Toshiyuki Inamura, a member of parliament from the ruling Liberal Democratic Party who served as Environment Agency director general between 1986 and 1988, allegedly evaded taxes of more than one billion yen (7.5 million dollars).

Sources at the Tokyo District Prosecutors Office said the 55-year-old former minister would probably be charged within the next two weeks.

The raid and questioning by public prosectors represent a new twist in Japan's latest corruption scandal which began with the arrest in July of Mitsuhiro Kotani, the former president of investment firm Koshin Co. Ltd.

Mr. Inamura is alleged to have made almost three billion yen (22.6 million dollars) in stockmarket transactions channelled through Koshin while he was director general of the Environment Agency.

The 53-year old former president of Koshin has been charged with violating Japan's securities transaction law by manipulating the price of shares in Kokusai Kogyo Co. Ltd., the biggest aerial surveillance company in Japan.

The scandal has claimed several victims to date. The most prominent has been Sumitomo Bank Ltd. chairman, Ichiro Isoda, who resigned as the head of Japan's third biggest bank in October after the arrest of a Sumitomo branch manager who allegedly arranged 23 billion yen (173 million dollars) in loans to Mr. Kotani.

The resignation prompted two other senior Sumitomo executives, deputy chairman Yasushi Nishi and vice president Teizaburo Nishi, to step down.

Another two banks -- Sanwa Bank Ltd., the country's sixth-biggest bank, and Mitsui Trust and Banking Co. Ltd., the third-biggest trust bank -- have been implicated in the affair but have not been accused of any wrongdoing.

Four securities firms -- including Daiwa Securities Co. Ltd., the country's second-biggest stockbroker, and Citicorp Scrimgeor Vickers International Ltd. of the United States -- have also been implictated. Japan's Finance Ministry punished the four in August by ordering them to briefly suspend trading.

The latest scandal to rock the Japanese establishment follows the Recruit bribery scandal which emerged in late 1988. The uncovering of that particular web of political favours led to the resignation of Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita last year and the stepping down of three ministers.

The Recruit affair has also led to the trial of 12 politicians, bureaucrats and businessmen for various offences. The verdicts in two of the five trials have already found former labour ministry official Shigeru Kano and former Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corp. chairman Hisashi Shinto guilty of bribery.

The Asahi Shimbun, the newspaper which first reported Mr. Inamura's links to the Kotani scandal, called Wednesday for prosecutors to adopt a "dauntless posture in rectifying what should be rectified" in the latest affair.

"It remains an open secret that the buying and selling of shares remains a way for politicians to reap political funds," the influential daily said. "The latest case involving Inamura may represent just the tip of the iceberg."

"Within the Liberal Democratic Party nowadays, there prevails a mounting air of indifference to political reform," the newspaper said. "The Inamura case, which was brought to light in a 'danger-past-and-God-forgotten' mood, must be accepted as a stern warning."

LONDON (DEC. 19) - Britain's gross domestic product fell by 1.2 per cent in real terms in the third quarter of 1990 compared with the second quarter, provisional seasonally-adjusted official figures showed here on Wednesday.

The fall in growth was bigger than had been expected by analysts who had forecast a fall of one per cent.

WARSAW (DEC 19) - Former Polish interior minister Czeslaw Kiszczak and prime minister Zbigniew Messner are being investigated for misappropriation of funds the newspaper Gazeta reported on Wednesday.

The paper said that the public prosecutor in Olsztyn opened an inquiry on Tuesday into allegations that General Kiszczak had used state funds to build a luxurious dacha in the forested northern region of Mazury. The general was one of the organizers of round table talks between the communist regime and the opposition in spring 1989, .

Mr. Messner is being investigated by the Warsaw public prosecutor on charges that he bought a Warsaw villa in which he has lived in 1984 "at a low price" and that he sold an appartment in Katowica, where he lived before becoming prime minister, on the black market.

The investigation of Mr. Messner is complicated by the fact that his villa had been confiscated by the government from its former owner, Colonel Ryszard Kuklinski, after he fled to the West shortly before martial law was declared in December 1981.

In a recent open letter, General Kiszczak called on his countrymen "not to rummage around in people's past," a process which he said could create new tragedies and endanger the process towards democracy.

NEW DELHI, Dec 19 (AFP) - Hindu and Moslem rioters fought street battles in the west Indian city of Ahmedabad Wednesday in continued violence over a holy site claimed by both communities that has left more than 350 people dead.

In the northern Indian state of Uttar Pradesh, the administration announced plans to recruit 5,000 men to combat rioting in the province, one of the worst affected by the spate of violence.

Rioters knifed and wounded six people in Ahmedabad, the commercial centre of western Gujarat state, in clashes in poorer districts of the city, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said.

City police enforced an indefinite curfew and fired teargas to disperse the rioters in Ahmedabad, where 34 people have died since violence erupted nearly two weeks ago, PTI said.

State-owned All India Radio (AIR) said the administration in Uttar Pradesh, India's largest state, will hire 5,000 locals to battle Hindu-Moslem rioting.

Uttar Pradesh's Hindu-majority paramilitary Provincial Armed Constubulary has often been accused of a communal bias in dealing with Hindu-Moslem rioting in the region.

PTI said most riot-hit Uttar Pradesh districts were returning to normal Wednesday.

More than 350 people have died in four Indian states since the outbreak of violence December 7, a day after Hindu militants resumed their campaign to replace a 16th-century mosque with a temple.

Hundreds of Hindus have marched on the Ayodhya shrine daily since then.

Hindus say the mosque in Ayodhya was built by Mughal rulers after razing a temple dedicated to their Lord Rama. Moslems reject this account.

WARSAW (DEC 19) - The core problem for Poland's president-elect Lech Walesa in getting a new government team together is whether to stick with the current tough economic policies or to allow some relaxation of the austerity.

That was made clear when his first choice as prime minister, the respected 60-year-old lawyer Jan Olszewski, gave up attempts to form a cabinet, citing "major differences of opinion" with Mr. Walesa.

With time pressing as his investiture nears, Mr. Walesa has been forced to tackle the task himself directly, although it is normally a premier's prerogative to name his ministers.

The former Solidarity chief knows the Polish people expect a distinct improvement in living conditions, but his room for manoeuvre is extremely restricted by outside factors. The country is 45 billion dollars in debt, and energy costs are up.

It emerged on Wednesday that current finance minister Leszek Balcerowicz was the sticking-point in all the negotiations.

Economist Janusz Lewandowski, of the Gdansk Liberals group close to Mr. Walesa told the Gazeta newspaper that the minister was the reason for the disagreement between Mr. Walesa and Mr. Olszewski.

Mr. Balcerowicz, who also has deputy premier rank, masterminded the plan for changing Poland into a market economy and represents the best guarantee for Western investors that the new government would abide by financially rigorous policies.

But his austerity package has angered the peasantry and the poorest sectors of society, where living standards have slumped 35 per cent in a year.

Mr. Walesa and the Liberals want to keep him in both his posts as "guardian of the anti-inflationist policy". The stratospheric price rises of 900 per cent last year have been clawed back to 250 per cent now.

The Liberals, very influential with Mr. Walesa, are suggesting there should be a second deputy premier responsible for "structural transformations and the fight against recession".

Names mentioned among the liberal economists of the Gdansk group include Mr. Lewandowski, Jan Bielecki -- also tipped to replace Mr. Olszewski -- and Andrzej Machalski a senator.

A complicating factor is that Mr. Balcerowicz has made it clear he wants to be solely in charge of working out future economic policy.

PARIS (DEC 19) - Indonesian Foreign Minister Ali Alatas, whose country co-chairs with France the international Paris conference on Cambodia, arrived here Wednesday for bilateral talks aimed at smoothing the way for a new peace meeting.

Friday's talks have been scheduled with the 12-member Supreme National Council representing the three Cambodian resistance factions and the Phnom Penh government, to discuss the SNC's role and implementation of a draft U.N. plan concerning a transitional period ahead of elections in Cambodia.

Indonesian embassy officials said the minister would meet with French Foreign Ministry specialist Jean-David Levitte, before holding talks with CNS representatives.

Later in the day he could also see his French counterpart Roland Dumas, who is co-chairing Friday's meeting, according to informed sources.

Most of the participants at Friday's meeting are already here, including Khieu Samphan of the Khmer Rouge who also arrived Wednesday, and other opposition representatives including former prime minister Son Sann and Prince Norodom Ranariddh.

The latter is the son of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who has also been holding consultations this week during a "private visit" to France. Prince Sihanouk is not an SNC member and said last week he no longer sought the SNC chairmanship.

Hun Sen, prime minister of the Vietnamese-installed Cambodian government, was due here Friday.

Foreign Ministry experts would hold bilateral meetings on Thursday to prepare for Friday's session, which could run into a second day, French Foreign Ministry spokesman Daniel Bernard said.

On Friday, the co-chairmen will formally present the SNC with the draft Cambodian peace plan agreed here on November 26 by the "big five" permanent members of the Security Council -- the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China.

The plan gives sweeping powers to the U.N. transitional authority, including control of key ministries in Cambodia.

The SNC, formed three months ago, is recognised as the "only legitimate source of authority" but is asked to delegate "all necessary powers" to the United Nations during the transitional period.

Phnom Penh has criticised the accord for "dismantling" the government currently in place.

KIGALI (DEC. 19) - Forty rebels have been killed in continued fighting in Rwanda's northern Kiyombe region between government forces and the rebel Patriotic Front of Rwanda, Rwandan military authorities said on Wednesday.

Two officers and a number of soldiers from the Ugandan 4th brigade were among the casualties, according to the same sources.

Fighting last week in the same region killed 60 rebels and 10 government soldiers, military authorities said.

The sources said that the rebels had been able to cross the frontier from Uganda without opposition from the Ugandan army. Rwanda has repeatedly accused Uganda of ignoring rebel activities around its borders.

Several thousand rebels, most of them members of Rwanda's minority Tutsi tribe who fled the country years ago, invaded north-eastern Uganda on October 1 but were subsequently pushed back to the border by Rwandan government forces.

Many of the rebels were enlisted members of the Ugandan army.

DHAKA (DEC. 19) - An unknown number of people were missing and feared dead when a fishing boat carrying at least 100 passengers capsized in turbulent weather near here, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

The mass-circulation Daily Ittefaq, quoting a survivor, said the overloaded trawler was caught in a high wind and capsized on the Padma River in Munshigang district 15 miles (24 kilometers) from here late Tuesday.

Most of the 100 people aboard the vessel jumped into the river and tried to swim to safety, said survivor, Khandakar Golam Mowla, who took two hours to reach the river bank.

Local officials were not immediately available for comment on the report. Bangladesh was whipped by high winds Tuesday when a severe depression moved

KARACHI (DEC. 19) - American Oil Co. (AMOCO) of the United States will ship 50,000 metric tonnes of crude oil each month to Pakistan, industry sources said here Wednesday.

The sources said AMOCO will begin shipping the oil, lifted in Saudi Arabia, in January on 30 days' credit, adding that the contract was probably for one year.

Official confirmation of the report was not immediately available.

An earlier agreement with Saudi Arabia for supply of 20,000 barrels per day of light crude is to expire December 31, the sources said.

Meanwhile, Pakistan has issued tenders for supply of some million tonnes of petroleum products, on six months' credit, to meet the country's requirements for the first quarter of 1991. The tenders, issued in the past week, will be opened on Thursday.

Pakistan's petroleum ministry has said the country will need 32,000 tonnes of gasoline, 140,000 tonnes of kerosene, 638,000 tonnes of gas-oil and 200,000 tonnes of fuel oil.

Industry sources said the imports would cost 250 million to 300 million dollars.

Pakistan used to import the bulk of its oil from Kuwait at concessionary rates of 15 dollars per barrel and the country has been badly hit by the Gulf crisis.

The official Associated Press of Pakistan (APP) reported meanwhile that Islamabad has told a United Nations working group on the effects of the Gulf crisis that it needs about two billion dollars in additional aid.

The special working group of the U.N. security council is preparing aid recommendations for donor countries and multi-national financial institutions to assist affected countries, APP reported from New York.

Pakistan has sent troops to Saudi Arabia as part of the multi-national military buildup in the kingdom after Iraq's August 2 invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

CAIRO (DEC. 19) - Libyan revolutionary leader Moamer Gaddafi has invited Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak to hold consultations with him on the Gulf crisis, the Egyptian news agency Mena reported here Wednesday.

The report said that Information Minister Mohammed Safwat Mohammed Jussef el Sharif, who had undertaken a surprise trip to Tripoli on Tuesday bearing a message from Mubarak, had brought back the invitation.

On Monday, Algerian President Chadli Benjedid had met here with Mubarak and then flown on to Libya. Benjedid was on an extended Middle East tour which has apparently failed to produce any progress towards a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis.

Mubarak has in recent weeks repeatedly described Arab initiatives as pointless as long as Iraq refuses to withdraw from Kuwait.

EPERNAY, FRANCE (DEC. 19) - The 1990 champagne harvest yielded a healthy 287.8 million bottles and is expected to be of vintage quality, but the Alsatian wine harvest, stunted by an unseasonably cold spring, fell by 11 per cent, industry associations announced Wednesday.

The Interprofessional Champagne Committee said that the 287.8 million bottle harvest, up from 279 million bottles in 1989, represented "a very good year," and that the 1990 champagne should be "vintage" due to its alcohol content of between 10 and 10.7 per cent.

The committee said that the 1990 crop, while hit by cold weather in April and June, was aided by the dry, hot summer followed by early autumn rain.

In Colmar, a statement from the Interprofessional Alsatian Wine Committee said that while the wine produced in the Alsace region in 1990 was "of very good quality," the total quantity produced fell 11 per cent from the 1989 total.

Muscat and gewurztraminer were the hardest hit, down 43 per cent from 1989, due to "a poor blossoming period and the washing away of much of the pollen by rain," the committee said.

The riesling harvest fell by 10.5 per cent, while pinot blanc and sylvaner were slightly more abundant.

ABU DHABI (DEC 19) - The United Arab Emirates (UAE) and Syria on Wednesday appealed to Iraq to avert war in the Gulf by withdrawing its troops from Kuwait, officials here said.

The UAE foreign minister, Rashed Abdallah, and his Syrian counterpart Farouk al-Shara also urged Baghdad to adopt a "courageous decision toward the Arab and international resolutions" calling for an Iraqi withdrawal.

Mr. Shara ended a 24-hour visit during which he met the UAE president, Sheikh Zayed ibn Sultan ibn Nahayan, and delivered a letter from Syrian leader Hafez al-Assad.

Syria has deployed troops in both the UAE and Saudi Arabia as part of the U.S.-led multinational force assembled in the region after the August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Shara warned Tuesday that there was no scope for compromise in the Gulf crisis without a complete Iraqi withdrawal, and he held Baghdad responsible for the failure of Arab peace efforts.

ROME (DEC. 19) - Foreign ministers from the 12-nation European Community (EC) and Latin America will sign a declaration on Thursday to make their cooperation stronger and more regular.

The declaration would set the framework for regular political meetings between the EC and Latin America. These meetings would become the only forum for discussions in place of the various fora which currently exist.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 19) - Namibia on Wednesday joined the African, Caribbean and Pacific (Acp) group of nations by signing the Lome-Iv treaty which will qualify it for some 62 million dollars' worth of European Community (E.C.) aid over the next five years.

Joining the Acp some nine months since gaining its independence, Namibia stands to gain the E.C. help under the 1991-95 ''Lome-Iv'' treaty, officials said.

Namibian Prime Minister Hage Geingob, who signed the Lome convention, stressed the importance which the treaty posed for his economically-deprived country.

Namibia had considerable development potential, but urgently needed outside financial and technical support, he said.

E.C. Commission vice president Manuel Marin praised the progress which Namibia had made in the political sphere as being a ''positive model for change in southern Africa''.

He said the Lome treaty provided the ideal framework for the E.C. to support Namibia in dealing with its most immediate problems.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) - Annual spending in Japan's next five-year national defense program for 1991-1995 will grow 2.9 per cent, about half of the 5.4 per cent rise in the current plan, officials said Wednesday.

The new program, set at 22.75 trillion yen (171 billion dollars), is 23 per cent larger than the current five-year plan expiring in March, they said.

The new defense buildup policy, agreed on at a Defense Council meeting Wednesday, is to be approved at an extraordinary cabinet meeting Thursday, the officials said.

Defense agency officials said the new five-year defense buildup program took easing East-West tensions into account.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu and other ministers agreed at the meeting that East-West relations were moving towards "dialogue and cooperation," defense agency officials said.

They also agreed that Moscow had increased the quality of its Far Eastern military strength, but reduced the quantity, the officials said.

A high-ranking defense agency official said Monday that the agency would seek to improve quality, rather than quantity, in frontline military equipment under the next five-year program.

Major purchases under the new plan will include airborne warning and control system (AWACS) planes and multiple launch rocket systems, officials said.

BUCHAREST (DEC. 19) - Several thousand people gathered Wednesday in Timisoara in western Romania, a key site of the unrest which toppled dictator Nicolae Ceasescu on December 22 last year, local television reported.

There has been political and social unrest in Timisoara since last Sunday, when commemorations of last year's events began.

A general strike was launched by 11 companies in Timisoara, which lies near Romania's western border with Yugoslavia, to deplore the nation's "disastrous" economy.

Another 17 companies were supporting the national student strike which began on December 11 to try and force President Ion Iliescu and his government to resign. The students want a national unity government to be formed.

On Wednesday, crowds of workers arrived in the city centre for a union meeting. Striking students joined them. The crowd then moved to police headquarters where the committee responsible for commemorating the events of Dwecmeber 1989 had organised a press conference.

At the end of the press conference, demonstrators laid a wreath at the gates of the "Elba" company in memory of the workers who died last year in clashes with the army. The demonstrators then moved on to a main gathering site, Opera Square.

Ankara (DEC. 19) - Officials from the four Black Sea powers, Bulgaria, Romania, the Soviet Union and Turkey, began discussing here Wednesday a proposed scheme for regional cooperation.

In a message to the conference, Turkish President Turgut Ozal said ''when we first proposed the idea, we were confident that the latest developments in Europe had opened the way for us to join our efforts towards setting up new models for partnership''.

A working document submitted by Turkey to the participants foresees cooperation for a region-wide infrastructure of roads, energy and telecommunication facilities and the free movement of people, goods, services and capital.

Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Ernest Obminski said he viewed the project positively and expected it to contribute to the economic, social and cultural development of the Black Sea states.

Beside its economic value, Obminski stressed the project's human dimension, saying it would promote friendship between the peoples and ''help erase ethnic and nationalistic animosities''.

To back his words, he pointed to the composition of the Soviet delegation which, beside the representatives of the central government, included ranking officials from the Soviet governments of Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia and Moldavia.

Tansug Bleda, the Turkish delegation chief, told reporters that the scheme would win Turkey an export market equalling the European Community (E.C.) in size and give it a leading status due to its longer experience with the market economy. The E.C was favourably disposed to the scheme, he added.

LONDON (DEC. 19) - Lloyds Bank said Wednesday it had reduced from 100 to 75 percent its stake in private German bank Schroder Munchmeyer, prompting gains in the British bank's share price.

At the close of trading, Lloyds shares were trading at 292 pence, up ten pence on their value Tuesday.

Lloyds said it had sold 25 percent of its stake in Schroder Munchmeyer to its senior management. The value of the deal wasn't disclosed.

The private bank, valued at 140 million DM (95 million dollars), was acquired in the early 1980s. The partial sale is consistent with Lloyds' strategy of reducing overseas commitments to concentrate on its core British business.

A spokesman for Lloyds in London said that the move was designed to, "strengthen the team spirit and entrepreneurial ethos that has enabled the bank to prosper".

PARIS (DEC. 19) - The Paris Bourse suffered a small loss on Wednesday on the first day of the January trading month, as the CAC-40 stock price index dipped by 0.15 per cent, operators said.

The tone had been firm at the opening, with the CAC-40 indicator jumping by 1.73 per cent in the wake of Wall Street's enthusiastic welcome to the half-point drop of the U.S. discount rate.

But prices quickly turned down on strong sales, and the indicator was in the red barely an hour later.

Operators said the drop, though small, was a bad sign for the near term, as the first day of a new trading month usually brings a rise because operators have the whole trading month to settle their positions.

Analysts commented that the U.S. Federal Reserve's decision to lower the discount rate was good for the stock market, but had been generally anticipated. It also comes at the last minute, they added, as the American economy displays increasing signs of marked weakness.

Investors said they were also concerned about pessimistic forecasts for the French economy in 1991 issued by the National Statistics and Economic Studies Institute (INSEE), and about the franc's behavior vis-a-vis the Deutsche mark. Turbulence within the European Monetary System (EMS) rules out any marked loosening of monetary policy in France, experts say.

The Gulf crisis remains another worrisome factor.

Shares making progress on the day include Salsigne, up 13 per cent, Bellon with 6.4, and Gaz et Eaux and Moulinex, six per cent each.

Comptoir des Entrepreneurs dropped 5.8 per cent, Auxiliaire d'Entreprises 5.7 per cent, and Pechiney International 4.8 per cent.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - The U.S. Congress may consider retaliatory action against South Korea if Seoul does not liberalize its farm import policies, a special envoy of South Korean President Roh Tae Woo said here Wednesday.

Soon Cho, a former deputy premier, said the threat of congressional action was conveyed to him in separate meetings he had here this week with Republican Senator Richard Lugar, U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills, Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and other administration officials.

"They said that if Korea's trade protectionist policies continued, they would have difficulties with Congress. They would not be surprised if measures were taken by Congress (when it reconvenes) in January," the envoy told the National Press Club.

He said his interlocutors did not specify what form the congressional action might take, but observers said it might involve recourse to section 301 of the Trade Act targeting countries deemed to be unfair traders for retaliation.

Mr. Cho said the U.S. officials expressed "concern and displeasure" at the stand taken by the South Korean delegate at the global trade talks in Brussels which ended in failure last week.

South Korea was among countries blamed for the failure of the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) talks in Brussels because of its refusal to make concessions on farm liberalization.

Saying Seoul stil hoped for a successful outcome of the GATT talks next year, he said, "The Korean economy will be dealt a real hard blow if the world trade system degenerates into a protectionist system."

But he stressed that in liberalizing imports of farm products such as rice, the Seoul government faced "great political constraints."

"The market opening of agricultural products is resisted not only by the opposition party by also by many of the ruling party members," he added.

He said he expected the government to review the entire policy in the light of the negative U.S. reactions and to "weigh the various consequences of alternative courses of action."

Mr. Cho also commented on U.S. concern that South Korea's current austerity campaign had "the smack of an anti-import campaign."

He said if the belt-tightening drive, launched to arrest fast growing consumption, "is allowed to degenerate into an anti-import campaign, then it is highly undesirable."

Tuesday, the Commerce Department released statistics showing that the U.S. trade deficit with South Korea so far this year reached 3.69 billion dollars.

Bilateral trade talks were held in Seoul Monday and Tuesday, at which the U.S. delegation called on South Korea to open its retail market to imports of such items as electronics, clothes, cars and furniture. The Americans also pressed for an end to discrimination against foreign imports.

Mr. Cho, who arrived here Tuesday and was due to return home Thursday, said another such meeting would be held in Seoul next January to take up oustanding issues.

He also noted that South Korean industries were losing their competitive advantages due to a slowdown in labor productivity, higher wages, hours lost in labor disputes, workers' unwillingness to work longer hours and a 30-per-cent appreciation of the won against the dollar since 1980.

He said his mission here was to reaffirm Seoul's commitment to economic liberalization and to discuss ways to resolve trade disputes.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - President George Bush, saying Norway had made progress in reducing the numbers of whales it kills in its whale research program, has decided not to impose sanctions against Norwegian fish imports.

"Norway has made improvements in the design of its research program in each year and a reduction in the take of whales from 68 to five North Atlantic minke whales," Mr Bush said in a letter to Congress.

Although the International Whaling Commission (IWC) "is not satisfied that this program meets all applicable criteria ... given the progress made in the caliber of research undertaken and the efforts that have been made to improve U.S.-Norwegian scientific consultations, I am not directing that sanctions be imposed on Norwegian fish products," Mr. Bush said.

Under an amendment to the Fishermen's Protective Act, the president may direct a prohibition of imports of fishery products into the United States from countries engaged in the taking of whales that diminishes the effectiveness of the International Convention of the Regulation of Whaling.

Since 1988, Norwegian scientists have been engaged in a research program on North Atlantic minke whales in the coastal waters of Norway.

According to the IWC, this program in 1988 and 1990 did not meet all the internationally established criteria for research involving the killing of whales.

NEW YORK, United Nations (DEC. 19) - The U.N. Security Council Wednesday again put off a vote on a draft resolution urging for the first time the convening of an international Middle East peace conference.

By a vote of nine in favor and six against, the council decided, for the fourth time in 10 days, to suspend its deliberations.

In addition to calling for a Middle East peace conference at an appropriate moment and with an adequate structure, the resolution would also stipulate that the Arab-Israeli conflict and Iraq's invasion of Kuwait should be dealt with separately.

France and China joined the four non-aligned sponsors of the draft -- Colombia Cuba, Malaysia and Yemen -- in opposing the suspension.

Diplomats said the final vote on the draft was delayed to await a reply from the U.S. State Department on remaining differences between Washington and the non-aligned sponsors.

Non-aligned countries feel they have made all the concessions they are going to make, and it is now the United States' turn, diplomats said.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has repeatedly sought to link a resolution of the Gulf crisis with a Western commitment to help end Israeli occupation of Arab lands. The United States adamantly opposes any such linkage.

The proposed draft also expresses the council's deep concern over the deteriorating situation in all territories occupied by Israel since 1967, including Jerusalem, and over the violence and growing tensions within Israel.

Despite major progress in haggling between Washington and the four non-aligned sponsors of the draft, Finnish U.N. Ambassador Klaus Tornudd, a key mediator, said differences remained.

A spokesman for the U.S. U.N. mission, Philip Arnold, said the remaining differences had been forwarded to the State Department in Washington.

The draft would deplore Israel's decision to resume deportations of Palestinians from the occupied territories in the wake of a wave of killings claimed by the Moslem fundamentalist group Hamas. It would also ask Israel to accept "de jure" the applicability of the Geneva Convention to the population of the territories.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) - A united Nations Security Council session due Wednesday to vote on a controversial Palestinian resolution was adjourned for yet another day, but amid signs of imminent agreement.

The 15 council members are now due to meet Thursday on the issue, over which they have been wrangling for weeks - at the latest sessions with Finland trying to organise a compromise.

The council's four Nonaligned members - Cuba, Colombia, Malaysia and Yemen - have been trying to push through a resolution critical of Israel, meeting opposition above all from the United States.

Finnish U.N. delegate Klaus Toernudd said the latest compromise proposals include one for increasing protection of Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied territories.

They also suggested that the Security Council president make a declaration in which the idea of an international Middle East peace conference is put forward.

Toernudd said difficulties remained only on the way the conference proposal would be termed in the declaration, and also on terminology for the Gulf conflict.

PARIS (DEC. 19) - Every opportunity for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis "must be seized" before a U.N. deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait expires on January 15, French President Francois Mitterrand said Wednesday.

Mr. Mitterrand told a news conference that "all chances must be seized", and did not rule out an initiative by France "in accordance with its allies", saying that "countless" Arab officials had asked France to mediate in the crisis.

"I allow myself to hope that by January 15, some new intervention, or declaration or event might come about that should be seized," he said, but acknowledged that the chances for peace remained "fragile" and public opinion should be prepared for war.

"Until that final date, we must hope that dialogue here and there will happen. France, acting ... in conformity with the objectives fixed by the United Nations and informing its western partners, shall not prevent itself from taking initiatives of this type," Mr. Mitterrand said.

The French head of state is to receive Algerian head of state Chadli Bendjedid on Saturday, as the Algerian leader continues mediation efforts at a time when the United States and Iraq have been unable to reach agreement on a date for talks.

Mr. Mitterrand warned that the failure to set a date reflected Iraqi "intransigence" which "risked creating an irreparable" situation.

Mr. Mitterrand suggested that a French initiative might be all the more likely given the deadlock between Iraq and the United States.

The French president, whose country was a major arms supplier to Iraq before the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, noted that his own plan first outlined at the United Nations in September remained valid.

Under his plan, if Iraq stated its willingness to free hostages and withdraw from Kuwait, "everything becomes possible", including an eventual Middle East conference.

Mr. Mitterrand stressed that only a total withdrawal from Kuwait would be acceptable to the anti-Iraq alliance, but said that if Iraq complied by January 15, Baghdad "should receive guarantees" that it would not be attacked.

"Everything can always be discussed, but by the responsible, free and sovereign authorities of the countries in question," he said.

Distancing himself from some U.S. officials who have spoken of the need to destroy the Iraqi military machine to prevent further threats to the region, Mr. Mitterrand said that the U.N. objective was to roll back the Iraqi invasion, "but not to conquer Iraq".

But he said that controlling Iraq's military muscle must "necessarily be discussed -- afterwards".

BAGHDAD (DEC. 19) - The Philippines communist insurgent New People's Army (NPA) has threatened to strike U.S. bases in the country if the facilities are used in an attack on Iraq, the Iraqi News Agency reported Wednesday.

An NPA delegation issued the warning during talks here with Iraq's first deputy prime minister, Taha Yassin Ramadan, the official news agency said.

The delegation was quoted as saying the NPA would act to "show its political and military solidarity with the Iraqi people."

The NPA is the armed wing of the banned Communist Party of the Philippines which has been waging a war against Manila for 21 years. It has an estimated 10,000-15,000 fighters.

The Clark Air Base and the Subic Naval Base are the largest U.S. overseas military bases.

RIYADH (DEC. 19) - Saudi Crown Prince Abdullah ibn Abdel Aziz held talks here Wednesday with U.S. Defence Secretary Dick Cheney and General Colin Powell, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Saudi television reported.

General Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of U.S. forces in the Gulf, also took part in the talks, the report said without giving other details.

Mr. Cheney and Gen. Powell arrived in Riyadh earlier Thursday at the start of a five-day visit to Saudi Arabia.

A U.S. diplomatic source said the American officials were scheduled to meet later in the evening with Saudi Defense Minister Prince Sultan ibn Abdel Aziz.

Two days of their stay will be devoted to strategy talks with Gen. Schwarzkopf and two days will be spent inspecting U.S. troops deployed in northeastern Saudi Arabia, a Pentagon official said in Washington.

He said Mr. Cheney and Gen. Powell wanted to make sure the 270,000 U.S. troops in the Gulf were well-equipped in case President George Bush ordered an attack on Iraq before the January 15 deadline for withdrawing from Kuwait.

Mr. Tirrolini had on several occasions opposed nationalist farmers.

Emile Mocchi, the mayor of Propriano, was standing close to Mr. Tirroloni when the assassins struck and was hit in the arm by a bullet.

Mr. Tirrolini was hit by about 25 bullets as he was coming out of a bar with Mr. Mocchi in Ajaccio, southern Corsica.

This was the twelfth murder so far this year in Corsica. The last victim Charles Grosseti, mayor of Grosseto-Prugna, was murdered three months ago.

BRASILIA (DEC. 19) - The 19-year prison sentences handed down to the father and son convicted of murdering ecologist Chico Mendes were "too soft," Brazil's Minister of Justice Jarbas Passarinho and Federal police chief Romeu Tuma said in interviews published Wednesday.

The daily newspaper O Globo reported both men were critical of the short sentence handed down to Darcy Alves, 23, who admitted gunning Mr. Mendes to death, and Darly Alves Pereira, 56, who was convicted of ordering his son to commit the murder.

The Justice Ministry confirmed the newspaper report reflected the minister's and police chief's views.

Mr. Passarinho was quoted by the newspaper as saying: "The verdict of 19 years would be logical if the penalty were enforced for the full period."

Police chief Tuma said the 19-year sentence meant in effect that the two killers could be moved into a semi-open detention system after three years behind bars and be freed on parole after nine years.

As the father and son killers have already spent two years in prison awaiting trial, that means they could be enjoying the less restrictive form of detention within a year from now.

Mr. Tuma added that if the conflicts between rich landowners and poor peasants were to be ended, it would be necessary for long prison sentences for those convicted and greater efforts by the authorities to track down the killers.

Meanwhile, Darcy Alves, the triggerman in the Mendes case, told television journalists that he had "acted with cowardice in killing Chico Mendes in an ambush."

If he had the opportunity again, he said, "I would kill him face to face.

His father, however, continues to insist on his own innocence in the case.

JOHANNESBURG (DEC. 19) - At least 600 workers at the giant Anglo American Corporation's East Rand Gold and Uranium Company (ERGO) will lose their jobs when three operation plants are shut down early next year, ERGO chairman Clem Sunter said said Wednesday.

He said in a statement that operations at ERGO will be rationalised during the first quarter of next year and that the plants will close down by April.

According to the ERGO chairman, "every effort will be made to relocate the employees affected".

Management plans to hold discussions with the trade unions concerned "regarding possible retrenchments", Mr. Sunter added.

Wednesday's announcement follows a recently completed investigation into the ERGO division which, according to Anglo, "demonstrated that certain elements of the present operations would no longer be economically viable at ruling product prices".

"As the reduction in working costs was forecast to exceed the decline in revenue, the closures would prolong the life and substantialy enhance the profitability of ERGO at current gold price leves," Mr. Sunter said.

Arrangements had been made for existing uranium and acid supply obligations to be met, he added.

PARIS (DEC. 19) - French President Francois Mitterrand Wednesday blamed the United States for the repeated postponement of a vote on a U.N. resolution on the Arab-Israeli conflict which was to contain a call for an international conference.

At a news conference, Mr. Mitterrand reaffirmed his support for such a conference, but in reply to a question said that for the resolution to be adopted "the United States must stop" postponing the vote.

Mr. Mitterrand said that he was insisting on a Mideast conference as "an indispensable instrument to bring peoples closer together".

He said that the conference would have three objectives: stability in the Gulf the Arab-Israeli problem -- although "not necessarily in the same conditions and at the same time -- and the balance of power in the Middle East by reducing arms and setting up a security system.

The U.N. Security Council Wednesday for the fourth time put off the vote on the draft resolution. France and China joined the four non-aligned sponsors of the draft -- Colombia, Cuba, Malaysia and Yemen -- in opposing the suspension.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has repeatedly sought to link a settlement of the Gulf crisis with a Western commitment to help end Israeli occupation of Arab lands. The United States adamantly opposes any such linkage.

Diplomats in New York said the 15 council members were moving toward agreement on a compromise formula put forward by Finland under which the call for an international Middle East peace conference would be made in the form of a declaration by the Security Council president and not in a formal resolution.

Unlike a council resolution, such a declaration would not be binding on U.N. members.

PARIS (DEC. 19) - Philippe Guilhaume, the president of France's two crisis-hit public channels Antenne-2 and FR3, announced his resignation Wednesday and accused the ruling Socialists of seeking his downfall.

He will be replaced by Herve Bourges, 57, who was president of the TF1 channel from 1983 to 1987, when it was publicly owned.

Mr. Guilhaume told a news conference that his appointment had "never been accepted by part of the political powers which for 15 months have strewn obstacles in my path, some which are mentionable and others unmentionable".

The Antenne-2 deficit has sunk to more than 600 million francs (more than 120 million dollars) since Mr. Guilhaume took over as "super-president" last year as the TF1 channel, privatized in 1987, notched up increasing success with French viewers.

France has four private channels and two public stations.

Mr. Guilhaume announced his resignation after Antenne-2 decision to scrap a number of high-profile magazine and variety programmes for financial reasons brought a public outcry last week.

One of the programmes had been on the air for about a month, an apparent victim of a ratings war with TF1.

His resignation also coincides with a strike by news journalists at FR3 seeking better pay and conditions, now into its third week.

Communications Minister Catherine Tasca said on Wednesday that it was "not possible to keep the contradictions that Mr. Guilhaume does by saying that everything is fine in a company where most of the staff say they have got problems."

The crisis in television's public sector was highlighted on Monday when Frederic Mitterrand -- a nephew of French President Francois Mitterrand -- was awarded a prize for his variety programme which was among those to be scrapped.

Mr. Mitterrand held up his award and told television viewers that he was "placing it on the floor -- where the public service belongs".

Mr. Guilhaume was last month implicated in a scandal after a suspended police officer said that his superiors had asked him to find a young homosexual to trap the television boss in order to force his resignation.

Mr. Guilhaume has said he will sue.

PARIS (DEC. 19) - The terrorist Carlos, presumed to be responsible for a wave of pro-Palestinian terrorist attacks in Europe in the 1970s, is living in the Syrian capital Damascus, according to L'Express magazine.

Carlos, whose real name is Ilitch Ramirez Sanchez, holds a Syrian passport issued in the name of Michel Assaf, the French weekly said in its editions to appear Thursday.

He is married to Magdalena Kopp, a former activist of the German Red Army Faction. They have a six-year old daughter, Evita, and live in a four-storey building in the chic quarter of Mazze, a Damascus suburb, L'Express said.

Sources close to the French anti-terrorist services said that Carlos' presence in Damascus was "highly likely."

L'Express said Carlos was being supported by Colonel Haytham Said, the "number two" of the Syrian air force's information service.

Carlos is wanted by police in France for the 1975 murder of two counter-espionnage agents.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - Illicit drug use has dropped 44 per cent in the United States over the last five years, a report presented by U.S. President George Bush here Wednesday shows.

A national household survey showed 12.9 million Americans currently take drugs. Pollsters asked 10,000 persons if they had taken drugs in the last month.

The total amounts to 6.4 per cent of the U.S. population, down from 7.3 per cent two years ago.

Bush said the study showed his strategy against drugs was paying off, but added: ''As long as there are hospital rooms filled with drug-affected babies, neighbourhoods ravaged by drug violence or children threatened by addiction, a declaration of victory would be premature.''

SAN SALVADOR (DEC. 19) - Salvadoran rebels Wednesday rejected as "absurd and biased" a ceasefire call made by the five Central American presidents.

In a communique capping a summit in Puntarenas, on Costa Rica's Pacific coast, the presidents of Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua voiced support for Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani and called on the rebel Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (FMLN) to agree to an immediate ceasefire and abandon the armed struggle.

In a statement issued 48 hours after the summit ended, the FMLN categorically rejected the presidents' statement because it "makes assumptions that do not correspond to reality in El Salvador."

The rebel statement, which was signed by the five members of the FMLN general staff, also said the call "lacks the most minimal objectivity, is unjust and hides and appeases the criminal policies of the army, by making unilateral demands" on the rebels.

The FMLN also pledged to continue U.N.-sponsored peace talks between the government and rebels.

To pressure the government to continue the stalled talks, the rebels launched an offensive November 20. Since then, the FMLN has inflicted 1,127 casualties on government forces, according to rebel figures. No breakdown of dead or wounded was given.

The rebels reported 37 deaths in their ranks.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - The State Department Wednesday warned Libya against supporting the Palestine Liberation Front (PLF), a extremist group which has threatened to launch terrorist attacks in case of a U.S. attack on Iraq.

"Libya has been on the U.S. Government's list of state sponsors of terrorism since 1979," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said. "We continue to hold terrorists and their state sponsor responsible for acts of terrorism."

The PLF is headed by Abul Abbas, who has been linked with the 1985 hijacking of the Italian liner Achille Lauro in which a U.S. passenger was killed.

"Libya continues to offer extensive support to notorious international terrorist groups, such as the Abu Nidal organization," Mr. Boucher said.

He also linked Libya with an abortive PLF attack on public beaches near Tel Aviv last May, which, he said, had been launched from Libyan soil.

MOSCOW (DEC. 19) - Rafik Nichanov, president of one of the two chambers of the Supreme Soviet, said here Wednesday that it would "take time" for a new union treaty to be signed and denied that the Baltic republics were being coerced into signing the document.

The Council of Nationalities president said the first stage in the procedure for signing the treaty, gathering positions from officials from the republics, was already underway.

The union treaty would lay the framework for the future relationship between the 15 Soviet republics and central government.

The officials would then prepare and initial a draft treaty which would then be examined by the Supreme Soviets, or parliaments, of all the republics, Mr. Nichanov said. Once the draft was approved each republic would put together a "special delegation" to sign the treaty.

"After that, the treaty would become legal," Mr. Nichanov said stressing that other procedures were also possible.

In a speech to the Congress of People's Deputies, Mr. Nichanov said that the speeches made on Tuesday by the Latvian and Estonian leaders Arnold Ruutel and Anatolijs Gorbunovs in which they denounced central government pressure on them to sign the treaty were "totally unfounded."

He also said it was not very important that the Baltic delegations had not attended the first debate on the treaty. "They refused. And so? They refused and didn't come," he said to laughter from the other delegations.

Mr. Nichanov said that representatives of "political parties or social organizations" who had asked to attend the debates had been invited. "We could not ignore the opinion of three million people," he said, referring to the Russian-speakers of the three Baltic republics.

The Ukrainian president Leonid Kravchuk said meanwhile that the treaty in its present form was not in the best interests of his republic. He said his government would put it to a referendum.

"The parliament cannot take this responsibility, we think the people should decide through a referendum," he said.

Mr. Kravchuk added that there was "no question of going back" on the Ukraine's declaration of independence.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - The State Department denied reports Wednesday that it had reduced its anti-drug operations in Peru after members of Peru's armed forces interfered with a planned drug bust.

"We are continuing interdiction and eradication programs but at reduced levels due to the holiday season," department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

Peru's Prime Minister Juan Carlos Hurtado Miller, who is currently in Washington, said he was not up to date on the details of the decision. He also reiterated Peru's determination to work with Washington to fight the illegal cocaine trade.

"Whatever misunderstanding there is could quickly be resolved, because relations between the two governments are very good and the differences are only of focus," the minister said.

The Washington Post reported Wednesday that Robert C. Bonner, head of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), temporarily suspended operations in Peru because of an incident in which Peruvian soldiers prevented a joint force of U.S. military and Peruvian police from entering a warehouse until the coca paste was removed.

Peru grows some 50 percent of the world's coca plants, the raw material from which cocaine is made.

High U.S. officials told the newspaper that is was considering de-certifying Peru as a nation which is co-operating in the anti-drug fight. The move would make Peru ineligible for U.S. aide.

Mr. Boucher said the State Deparment was reviewing military, economic and law enforcement aide for Peru for the 1991 fiscal year.

The spokesman noted that Washington and Peru had signed a five-million dollar interim agreement with the Ministry of Interior, but did not mention a 35 million in military aid to be used in the anti-drug fight rejected by President Alberto Fujimori.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - The United States Wednesday said it has seen no overtures for a last chance talk with Iraq, 27 days before the United Nation's mandated January 15 deadline for Iraq to pull out of Kuwait.

Senator Daniel Inouye, a Hawaii Democrat, meanwhile said that if war broke out in the Gulf, the United States could gain superiority within hours and the fighting would last no more than five days.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the United States remained ready to talk with Baghdad in order to persuade Iraq that it has no choice but to withdraw from Kuwait by January 15, or face the possible use of force.

President George Bush on November 30 offered to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz and to send Secretary of State James Baker to Baghdad. But the two countries have not been able to agree on a date for the Baker trip to Baghdad, and the Aziz meeting with Mr. Bush, scheduled for last Monday, was postponed.

"The offer of talks (is) still open," Mr. Fitzwater said.

But he added that Baghdad did not appear to be "really interested" in complying with the U.N. resolution, as demonstrated, he said, by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's statement to a Turkish television station that talks with Washington would be useless.

Mr. Fitzwater said there has been no response to Mr. Bush's invitation for Mr. Baker to meet with Mr. Hussein between December 20 and January 3.

Washington has rejected Baghdad's proposed January 12 date for a meeting, arguing it would not allow time for Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait by the U.N.-imposed January 15 deadline.

"We don't want him to be able to manipulate it," Mr. Fitzwater said.

Asked what Washington would do if January 3 passes and there have been no talks, he said, "We have to wait and see."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - Kuwaitis have paid a public relations firm 5.64

million dollars since the August 2 Iraqi invasion of their country to keep their plight in the public eye, Justice Department records reveal.

Hill and Knowlton Inc. received payments totalling that amount for the period August 20 through November 10, according to records filed by the company with the registration office for foreign agents.

The public relations company so far has spent 2.7 million dollars of the 5.64 million, including some 644,571 dollars for video production and 140,412 dollars for travel.

The Kuwaiti account is "a big job on a big stage ... the assignment is to be effective," said Frank Mankiewicz, a senior Hill and Knowlton executive.

The records indicated that Citizens for a Free Kuwait, a group financed largely by that country's exiled government, contracted the public relations firm to "provide counsel on a national media program, strategic planning and message development."

LONDON (DEC. 20) - The Independent newspaper said Thursday that European Environment Commissioner Carlo Ripa di Meana has drawn up confidential proposals to introduce a carbon tax in the period immediately after the end of the Gulf crisis.

A report from the commissioner, obtained by the paper, advocates the tax as part of an EC strategy to combat global warming and encourage energy conservation, The Independent said.

EC states could use the revenue from the proposed tax for research on energy efficiency, the development of renewable energy sources, clean energy technology and non-environmentally harmful modes of transport, it added.

The document, prepared at the environment commissioner's behest, envisages a phased introduction over five years of a tax of 10 dollars a barrel of oil - half the price rise of the last ten years, The Independent reported.

It also suggests that a fall in petrol prices after the Gulf confrontation would open a "unique window of opportunity" to introduce taxes, the paper went on.

An unnamed source said that Mr. Ripa di Meana intends to hold the carbon tax proposal in reserve for further refinement, while efforts are made to secure fellow commissioners' support, The Independent stated.

An abridged version of the environment commission document is to be discussed by European environment ministers at a meeting in Brussels on Thursday.

CARACAS (DEC. 19) - Venezuela has slashed its foreign debt almost in half by finalizing a debt restructuring agreement with its more than 400 creditor banks, Planning Minister Miguel Rodriguez said Wednesday.

"The debt-restructuring agreement -- signed late Tuesday in New York -- involves some 20 billion dollars: 80 per cent of Venezuela's public debt," he said.

Venezuela's private and public debt is estimated at 30 billion dollars.

"The government is pleased to announce that the process has been completed. Negotiations are over... and this is the definitive restructuring agreement," Mr. Rodriguez said.

From now on, he said, "Venezuela's yearly payments on its public debt will amount to 1.2 or 1.3 billion dollars, instead of the previous three billion dollars."

The debt restructuring agreement establishes new repayment schemes for 19.7 billion dollars of Venezuelan debt:

The principal on 1.8 billion dollars will be reduced by 30 per cent; interest on 7.45 billion dollars has been fixed at 6.75 per cent; interest on another three billion dollars starts off at five per cent, then goes up to seven per cent and will finally be set according to market rates.

Creditor banks holding more than six billion dollars of Venezuela's public debt have elected to supply Caracas with 1.2 billion dollars in soft loans, half of which was expected to be disbursed Wednesday.

Another 1.5 billion dollars will be repurchased by Venezuela on the secondary market with help from the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

Analysts expect Venezuela will save some three billion dollars in the next few years to buy back part of its foreign debt on the secondary market, where at present it has grown in value because of the restructuring agreement.

"We're not interested in repurchasing a debt which is already valued at 70 cents to the dollar, against 35 cents to the dollar a year ago," Mr. Rodriguez said.

The restructuring agreement effectively reduces Venezuela's public debt capital by 20 per cent, but coupled with the purchase of zero-cupon bonds from the U.S. Treasury, which eliminates nine billion dollars in red numbers, the country's foreign debt has been slashed "practically in half," the minister said.

PASADENA, California (DEC. 19) - It's official: the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced Wednesday that there were strong indications of life on Earth -- and it may be intelligent.

NASA scientists with the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here analyzed data on the Earth collected by the space probe Galileo using the same framework normally employed to determine if intelligent life existed on unexplored planets.

Galileo's data revealed nitrous oxide, methane and oxygen.

That, scientist Robert W. Carlson said in a press conference, reveals "there's a lot of life" on the planet.

The probe gathered the information as it boomeranged around the Earth and moon in early December to gather up speed for a July 1995 encounter with Jupiter. It swings past the asteroid Gaspa in October.

Galileo also detected man-made radio signals that became louder as it neared the planet, a sign to researchers on other planets that intelligent life exists on Earth, Galileo's chief scientist Torrence Johnson said.

The probe could not detect some evidence of intelligent life -- such as buildings -- because it was some 10,000 kilometers (6,200 miles) away from Earth.

Colombo (DEC. 19) - Government troops killed 25 Tamil rebels of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (Ltte) when they smashed a rebel hideout in northern Sri Lanka Wednesday, military officials said.

Fifteen women were among the rebels killed in the attack between Kurumbasetti and Mallakam, 12 kilometres north of the northern capital Jaffna, they added.

Army commandos who launched the surprise dawn raid on the hideout also recovered sub machine guns, rocket-propelled grenades, Ak 47 rifles and mortar shells, officials said.

Four soldiers were injured in the attack on Tamil rebels fighting in the north and east of the country for an independent homeland for the minority Tamils.

In a related development, Sri Lankan Air Force planes attacked five boats in the north eastern coastal area of Mullaitivu Tuesday. The boats, believed to belong to the rebels, were unloading supplies, military officials said. No casualty figures were available.

HALIFAX, Canada, (DEC. 19) - Eleven fishermen died and five survived when two Canadian fishing boats sank off the eastern coast of Canada, the rescue coordination center in Halifax reported Tuesday.

The dragger Nadine, out of Cap-aux-Meules, on the Canadian Iles-de-la-Madeleine, went down Monday in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Eight crewmembers died and only four bodies have been recovered, the center said.

Rescuers, however, picked up Nadine skipper Robert Poirier from a life raft, and his brother, found floating in a survival suit. Both were taken to hospital suffering from hypothermia.

Center official Pat Phelan said there was no hope of finding any more survivors from the Nadine.

Some of the dead crewmembers, he added, had managed to put on survival suits - an insulated rubber suit enclosing everything but the face - but they apparently failed to seal themselves in properly.

The second fishing boat, Strait's Pride from O'Donnell, in Newfoundland, also went down Monday some 50 kilometers (30 miles) from the coast, the rescue center said.

Three of the Strait's Pride crew managed to get into a lifeboat and were spotted from the air, but the remaining three seamen were found dead in the icy water wearing only life jackets, center officials added.

AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND (DEC. 19) - A New Zealand high court judge on gave the go ahead on Wednesday for surgeons to sterilise a severely mentally handicapped teenager.

The girl, known only as "X" in the precedent-setting court case, turned 15 on Wednesday.

Justice Peter Hillyer, after nearly two weeks of hearing evidence, said a hysterectomy could be performed "forthwith".

The Auckland Area Health Board had refused to carry out the operation and her parents applied to the court for consent.

The girl has a mental age of three months and the parents wanted the hysterectomy before her first menstrual period, saying that pain from menstruation would trigger fits of screaming and self-injury.

The judge said it was important that the operation was desired solely to stop menstruation, though it was also "absolutely vital" the girl should not become pregnant.

SINGAPORE (DEC. 19) - France's Thomson-CSF group has teamed up with a Singapore company to make military fuzes for international markets, it was learnt Wednesday.

A spokesman for Allied Ordnance of S'pore Pte Ltd (AOS) said the four million Singapore dollar (2.3 million U.S.) joint venture, Defence Electronics of Singapore (DES), was set up in August and will start production next month.

Initially DES will produce proximity fuzes, used to enhance the effectiveness of anti-aircraft and anti-missile rounds, he said.

DES is 51 per cent owned by Thomson-CSF and the remainder by AOS, a subsidiary of Chartered Industries which is part of the government-owned Singapore Technologies group.

Thomson-CSF, quoted by the Straits Times, said it was attracted to the joint venture because of the "skilled local workforce which can handle military technology."

"Furthermore, Singapore is in a good position to market the manufactured products in ASEAN," the paper quoted Thomson-CSF spokesman Pierre de la Chapelle as saying.

The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) groups Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand.

JAKARTA (DEC. 19) - Indonesia awarded three new oil exploration contracts worth 164 million dollars on Wednesday to companies from Britain, New Zealand and the United States, the state oil firm Pertamina said.

The first went to a local subsidiary of New Zealand's Petrocorp Exploration Ltd. to search for oil in onshore Kampar block in West Sumatra, with an investment commitment of 88.3 million dollars.

The second was awarded to the Indonesian subsidiary of Britain's Ultramar plc in the onshore Runtu block in East Kalimantan with a total investment of 60.8 million dollars.

A consortium led by Maxus International Energy Co. of the United States got the third contract to explore in the Fifi and Zaitun blocks in the Java Sea, with an investment commitment of 15.2 million dollars.

The contracts with Ultramar and Petrocorp were for production sharing, whereby any oil found would be split 85:15 in Pertamina's favour after the contractor's costs were covered.

The contract with Maxus was for a joint operation arrangement whereby Pertamina would have the right to half of the oil produced, with the remaining half split 85:15, also in its favour.

The three deals brought the number of new and extension contracts awarded by Pertamina to 17 this year, compared to 19 last year.

Pertamina officials said the company had completed negotiations for four more contracts but was still awaiting government approval.

WELLINGTON (DEC. 19) - New Zealand is reviewing a contract to buy 18 Italian-built Aermacchi jet trainers, as part of a cutback in defence spending, Defence Minister Warren Cooper said in a statement Wednesday.

In a wider economic statement Wednesday Finance Minister Ruth Richardson said the defence budget would be cut by an immediate 197 million New Zealand dollars (118 million dollars U.S).

The defence minister also said the upgrading of the army's Scorpion tracked reconnaissance vehicles, generators and navy computers would be deferred as would expenditure on minor equipment programmes.

The review of the Aermacchi trainer aircraft project would be conducted by the Treasury, the Defence Ministry and the New Zealand Defence Force, he said.

LONDON (DEC. 19) - A total of 177 Albanians have gone on trial, charged with several public order offences, in connection with disturbances in a number of provincial towns in Albania last week according to reports quoting the Albanian radio.

A radio report, carried by the Yugoslavian Tanjug news agency and monitored by the BBC here, said that they had been charged with "acts against property, lives and health, improper conduct, attacks on the organs of authority, taking part in illegal rallies" and other offences.

Radio Tirana said that they admitted responsibility, repented and agreed they "should have acted through dialogue, as defined by Albanian law".

The radio said that the accused were represented by lawyers, and were guaranteed the right of appeal.

Of the accused, 62 were on trial in Durres, 55 in Elbasan, and 60 in Shkoder, Tanjug reported.

JAKARTA (DEC. 19) - Oil prices will not crash in the aftermath of the Gulf crisis if the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) remains united and sticks to its output ceiling, an Indonesian minister said Wednesday.

Mines and Energy Minister Ginanjar Kartasasmita said that if OPEC returned to its production limit of 22.5 million barrels per day (BPD) when the Gulf crisis was over, prices would not plunge as many feared.

The group's 13 members, including representatives from Iraq and the Kuwaiti government in exile, agreed at a meeting in Vienna last week to return to OPEC's previous ceiling, set in July, the moment the crisis ended.

Indonesia would return to its previous quota of 1.37 million BPD once the Gulf crisis was resolved, the Indonesian minister added.

He also said the price of Indonesia's benchmark Minas crude had been set at 29.01 dollars a barrel for December sales to Japan.

This compared with 33.18 dollars in November under an agreed formula basing the price on an average of five Asian crudes.

Japan is Indonesia's main oil customer, taking more than half of its exports of around 700,000 BPD.

LUSAKA (DEC. 19) - The death toll in a cholera epidemic sweeping the north of Zambia has claimed 104 lives since the end of October, Health Minister Jeremiah Chijikwa told parliament.

The minister, whose remarks were reported in the Zambia Daily Mail on Wednesday, said the disease had spread southwards to the Copperbelt provinces in Central Zambia.

The newspaper said there were fears that the outbreak could reach the area around the capital of Lusaka, where 100 persons died in a similar outbreak earlier this year.

The United Nations Children's Fund (Unicef) and the World Health Organisation (Who) have donated drugs to fight cholera, a water-borne disease that is characterised by diarrhoea and dehydration.

SHANGHAI (DEC. 19) - The Shanghai Securities Exchange (SSE) was officially opened here Wednesday, launching China on its first attempt at a Western-style bourse.

Mayor Zhu Rongji said in an opening address that he firmly believed the SSE would contribute to the development of China, where securities are seen as a way to tap into massive personal bank savings to fund industrial growth.

He said the exchange showed that China "will insist on the policy of reform and opening to the outside world," a policy which has slowed over the last two years due to economic and social instability.

Only seven stocks, as well as a wide variety of bonds, will be listed on the SSE initially, but officials expect the number of stocks to grow with time.

Twenty-two member computerized brokerages will be able to buy and sell stocks and bonds in volume on behalf of clients.

Foreigners will not be allowed to trade for the time being. But a central bank official said here Monday that Chinese authorities were exploring ways of letting the French bank, Banque Indosuez, take part in the SSE.

Shanghai authorities have yet to define a range for the new exchange, but in over-the-counter trading price rises have been limited to three per cent daily, according to investors.

The SSE is expected to raise capital to turn Shanghai's Pudong district into a regional industrial and financial hub, a centrally approved project that is now at the top of Chinese development plans.

Since the mid-1980s, individual Chinese have been able to trade in select groups of stocks and bonds at dozens of brokerage counters in Shanghai, Beijing, Shenyang and other cities.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 19) - Israeli police have arrested an air force colonel and an engineer suspected of involvement in a major corruption scandal, police sources said Wednesday.

The scandal broke on October 28 with the apprehension of General Rami Dotan, the air force procurement chief. Gen. Dotan allegedly offered and received bribes and misappropriated funds totalling more than 10 million dollars and is accused of falsifying documents.

The general is the first serving high-ranking Israeli officer to face such accusations.

The earlier disclosures led to the arrest Tuesday of Col. Yitzhak Sar, the procurement director and co-conspirator with Gen. Dotan, and a civil engineer working with them, the police said.

A score of air force officers and civilians will be questioned in the coming days, the sources added.

Gen. Dotan has meanwhile admitted hiring an air force non-commissioned officer to murder Ofer Pail, an Israeli businessman who informed the Defense Ministry of the general's operations in spring 1989.

The killing was not carried out, the sources said.

The Israeli press reported Wednesday that Gen. Dotan made bogus orders and signed phony contracts - notably with American air defense contractors - for engine repairs, although the work was actually done in Israel.

HONG KONG (DEC. 19) - There has been a sharp fall in the number of Vietnamese boat people volunteering to go home, an official of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) here said Wednesday.

As a result, the UNHCR has cancelled plans to send back to Vietnam this month boat people who had volunteered to go and a number who had not volunteered but do not object to being repatriated.

"We have a serious drop in the number of applications for the voluntary repatriation programme and the number of people identified in the second catergory," Robert Van Leeuwen, head of the UNHCR mission here, said.

He attributed the drop to a pending legal challenge to the colony's controversial screening policy introduced in mid-1988 to separate genuine political refugees from economic migrants. The UNHCR has opposed the screening policy since the start.

Mr. Van Leeuwen said many boat people had taken a wait-and-see attitude as a result, and warned of possible serious consequences to the Vietnamese boat people. "The government concerned will review the situation and possibly identify other measures," he said.

Hong Kong conducted, for the first and only time, forced repatriation on December 12, 1989 when 51 Vietnamese were escorted on to a Hanoi-bound plane at the end of a secret pre-dawn operation which triggered an international furore.

Mr. Van Leeuwen said that in recent months, only an average of 150 applications a week from volunteers had been received in Whitehead Detention Centre, the British colony's largest refugee camp.

Hong Kong is home to some 53,000 Vietnamese boat people, most of whom do not have refugee status qualifying them for resettlement in a third country.

Since the voluntary repatriation agreement came into effect in March 1989, a total of 5,829 Vietnamese boat people have been flown home by the UNHCR.

MELBOURNE (DEC. 19) - As the recession bites throughout Australia, an automobile union warned Wednesday that another 1,000 Ford Motor Co. employees face redundancy in the New Year.

Vehicle Builders Union Victoria state secretary Ian Jones said his union would be doing everythig possible to ensure redundances did not occur -- "but sometimes there's nothing you can do."

He said the company had given a commitment that there would be no job losses before Christmas but indicated that the situation would be reviewed in the New Year.

Ford had since told his union it had 1,000 more blue-collar workers than were needed, Mr. Jones said.

The company announced earlier this month that it is to pay off 650 white-collar workers as part of a restructuring program.

Faced by the threat of disruption from white-collar unions it agreed to an improved redundancy package to cover the 650 workers.

Ford public affairs general manager Mike Jarvis confirmed negotiations would begin with unions on January 22 but refused to confirm the figure of 1,000 possible redundancies.

The automobile industry has been hit badly by the slump in recent months.

Meanwhile, a new forecast Wednesday suggested Australia faces a long, slow climb out of recession over the next 18 months.

Projections by the respected Melbourne University Institute of Applied Economic and Social Research showed the economy picking up early next year to for modest growth in the current financial year.

But they indicated only a slight pickup the following year and only negligible improvement in the job market with unemployment, which reached 8.2 per cent in November, still above eight per cent in June 1992.

MOSCOW (DEC. 19) - The situation in the country has reached such a critical turn that "the slightest wrong step will trigger a social explosion," Soviet Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov told deputies at congress Wednesday.

"The country now needs order," he said, warning that "destructive forces" were out to bring capitalism in through the backdoor.

"Under the flag of market reform, a political struggle has got underway and our left-wing radicals who pretend to fight for economic objectives are in fact ideologues and politicians," he said.

"Perestroika in 1985 aimed to renew socialism and help it overcome its deformations (...) but some forces had a different objective and aimed to change the social character of the country," he said.

Presenting the government's report on its activities, Mr. Ryzhkov acknowledged that "perestroika had destroyed structures within the country and within the communist party, but had built nothing in its place".

Even the introduction of an executive presidency last March "had changed nothing in this respect" but had further weakened executive powers, he said.

One should differentiate however "between (President Mikhail) Gorbachev's doctrine and the faults committed in implementing it, the prime minister added.

Mr. Ryzhkov, who is expected to step down as soon as congress approves a reform of executive federal powers, said he was opposed to a "choc economic therapy", but added that congress should take a number of measures to overcome the present crisis.

These should include a moratorium on strikes, suspension of unilateral economic decisions by some republics and repeal of moves to close a number of plants for ecological reasons.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) - The State Department has cleared the way for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT and T) to use Soviet communications satellites to open 100 new phone lines between the United States and Soviet Union, The Washington Post said Wednesday.

The deal would be the first permanent link between a U.S. long-distance company and the Soviet Intersputnik satellite system, the paper said.

The department earlier had opposed the plan, saying it would improperly divert business from Intelsat, the 119-nation consortium that handles most of the world's international satellite communications.

The Post said the department had dropped its opposition, citing a recent decision by Intelsat that satellites carrying 100 phone lines or fewer would be too small to pose an economic threat.

The Soviet Union has 130 satellite lines available for all long-distance companies through Intelsat, even though it is not a member.

But Moscow had proposed using its own satellite system for new lines so as to reduce the foreign exchange it would have to pay, the paper said.

State Department opposition had been seen as the only serious obstacle to approval of the link by the Federal Communications Commission.

SYDNEY (DEC. 19) - Shares in Adelaide Steamship (Adsteam) fell to an all time low of 16 cents (12 U.S.) Wednesday on rumours that the nation's third largest employer was to be put into receivership.

The share plunge from 6.60 dollars (5.07 U.S.) earlier in the year prompted the company to declare that it "had not been placed into receivership or liquidation and did not expect to be."

Adsteam Chief Executive John Spalvins said after the annual general meeting of subsidiary retailer David Jones, that its bankers supported the group's reconstruction plans.

"We have the Australian bankers' support and expect our reconstruction plan and asset divestment plan will be accepted by all bankers."

Shares in the group, which closed at 20 cents (15 U.S.) Tuesday, have plunged due to what brokers say are investor fears about the company's estimated debt of more than six billion dollars (4.6 billion U.S.).

When asked about the fall in the group's share prices, Mr. Spalvins said it was "a question of market fears."

To help restore investor confidence Adsteam said in November it would slash its debt by three billion dollars (2.3 billion U.S.) and focus on retailing.

The firm then announced a restructuring that would involve the formation of a new holding company -- Adsteam Group -- by merging publicly listed Adsteam, David Jones, Tooth and Co. breweries, and their jointly-owned investment company, Industrial Equity.

BEIJING (DEC. 19) - Factories that are both inefficient and heavily polluting will be shut down under a decision by China's State Council, the official China Daily reported Wednesday.

The State Council, or cabinet, made the decision Tuesday. It urged local governments as well as state enterprises to strictly implement China's law on environmental protection.

Under the decision, factories which have poor results and which cause serious pollution should temporarily stop production and take corrective measures.

A more drastic fate awaits small rural enterprises such as paper mills, chemical works, printing and dyeing mills and sulphur plants which consume large amounts of energy and discharge levels of pollution much higher than state-set limits.

They will be closed down, merged with other plants or switched to other fields of production.

New projects should take into account environmental protection and consider using new energy-efficient technology, the governmental directive said.

The absence of environmental protection measures during several decades of industrialization spawned severe pollution problems in China, with 65 per cent of the 1.13 billion Chinese lacking drinkable water and most city-dwellers choking on smog.

BANGKOK (DEC. 19) - Khmer Rouge guerrilla forces have captured a strategic town that could give them control over a provincial seat in northwestern Cambodia, the resistance faction's radio said Wednesday.

The clandestine radio said in a report monitored here that possession of Tonle

Sar paved the way to Samrong, the capital of Odder Meanchey province, some 320 kilometers (200 miles) northwest of Phnom Penh.

Some 17 government troops were killed and 22 others wounded when Khmer Rouge forces attacked the town on Monday, and 37 others defected to the resistance, the radio said.

The radio said the Khmer Rouge had isolated Samrong since early this month by cutting Route 68 which leads to the provincial seat.

The strategic route had been under attack since February, the radio added.

The report could not be confirmed. Khmer Rouge battle claims are considered exaggerated but based on fact.

The Khmer Rouge is the military backbone of the Cambodian resistance coalition fighting the government that Vietnam installed in Phnom Penh in 1979 after invading Cambodia.

PRETORIA (DEC. 19) - A foreign affairs department official has been detained by police in connection with an October 3 bomb blast at U.S. Ambassador Wiliam Swing's residence here, a departmental spokeswoman confirmed Wednesday.

No-one was injured in the late night blast which occured in the early hours of the morning when Mr. Swing was at home. The blast caused considerable damage to the property in a select Pretoria suburb.

The detained official, P.J. Kruger, had been working at the department of foreign affairs since August and has connections with the white right-wing, the influential Financial Mail reported Wednesday.

Spokeswoman Kim Smith confirmed on Wednesday that Mr. Kruger had been detained by police but said the department could not comment on the matter because "the law must take its course".

Right-wing extremists also attacked the British Embassy here in January when they fired shots at the building.

MANILA (DEC. 19) - The Philippine economy, whose growth is expected to slow down to about 3.2 per cent this year, is forecast to grow by 1.5 to three per cent in 1991 and by 3.2 to 4.2 per cent in 1992, economic officials said Wednesday.

The consolidated public sector deficit in turn is expected to hit 59.8 billion pesos (2.13 billion dollars) this year but is expected to drop to 38 to 45 billion pesos (1.36 to 1.6 billion dollars) in 1991.

Economic Planning Secretary Cayetano Paderanga said that "the years ahead will be more difficult," due to such setbacks as the drought earlier this year, a devastating earthquake in July, a series of powerful typhoons and the Gulf crisis.

However, he said that if an economic stabilization program designed to shrink the budget is put into effect, "we are confident we can turn the economy around."

This program includes new taxes, slashing the budget, tariff liberalization and an enhanced foreign investment climate.

"The government has prepared for a harsher economic environment in 1991," Finance Undersecretary Victor Macalincag said, adding that the shrinking of the deficit was the main priority.

The shrinking of the deficit is considered a major criteria for the now delayed approval of a crucial agreement with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) providing an initial 700 million dollars in fresh credits and about 1.1 billion dollars in debt relief.

A previous three-year agreement between the IMF and Manila collapsed in October due to the Philippines' failure to keep its deficit under control.

MANILA (DEC. 19) - Philippine President Corazon Aquino said Wednesday she had accepted the resignation of the the head of the Energy Regulatory Board (ERB), the body that sets fuel prices.

ERB chairman Marcelo Fernando offered to resign earlier this month after his agency ordered an average 45 per cent fuel price increase, triggering a widespread public outcry which prompted Mrs. Aquino to order a partial rollback of the price hikes.

Mrs. Aquino said she had accepted the resignation and and designated ERB commissioner Rex Tantiongco as acting chairman.

MANILA (DEC. 19) - The U.S. auto giant, General Motors Corp. (GMC) has tied up with a local firm to manufacture compact cars in the Philippines, trade department officials said here Wednesday.

GMC would be returning to the Philippine auto market after its local joint venture ceased operations here in the early-1980s during an economic crisis.

GMC is teaming up with Transfarm, a local auto firm, to produce the Opel Kadett as part of the 'People's Car program,' a government project to encourage the production of small, low-priced cars.

Transfarm had originally planned to enter the program in partnership with Gurgel Motors of Brazil but found that Gurgel could not supply the necessary completely knocked down and semi-knocked down kits, the officials said.

The GMC-Transfarm plant will assemble units imported from Adam Opel, a GMC subsidiary in Germany.

The official Philippine News Agency said that Transfarm would invest an initial 200 million pesos (7.14 million dollars) in the project. The trade department officials could not say how much GMC would be investing or when production would begin.

ABU DHABI (DEC. 19) - Kuwaiti nationals living in the United Arab Emirates (Uae) will be issued with new identity cards starting December 22, a Kuwaiti military official said here Wednesday.

Brigadier Mohammed Abdul Aziz al-Khatami said Kuwaiti security committees would hand out the cards in cooperation with Uae immigration departments, the Qaatar News Agency reported.

Al-Khatami, who is chairman of the Kuwaiti security committee in the Uae, said the new documents were designed to assert the Kuwaiti personality outside Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

Around 50,000 Kuwaitis living in the Uae would have until January 26 to apply for their new papers, which are valid until the end of the Iraqi occupation of their country.

Kuwaiti security committees functioning in Saudi Arabia started on Monday to issue new Id cards to the 200,000 Kuwaitis living there.

WELLINGTON (DEC. 19) - New Zealand Finance Minister Ruth Richardson on Wednesday ordered the central bank to change its inflation target.

Reserve Bank Governor Don Brash was directed to bring down inflation, running at 5.0 per cent in the year to September, to between zero and two per cent by the end of 1993.

The Labour government, defeated by the National Party in October elections, had set the same target by the end of 1992.

The change, in line with the National Party election manifesto, coincided with the announcement in parliament of a budget sharply cutting welfare expenditure which accounts for one third of all government spending.

Wholesale interest rates, currently running at just above 13 per cent, fell in anticipation of the measures announced by Miss Richardson.

Mr. Brash said there was "now room for these wholesale interest rate falls to feed through to reductions in retail interest rates."

BELGRADE (DEC. 19) EFE - More than 150 Albanians have been put on trial accused of taking part in last week's student-led anti-communist riots, the Yugoslav news ageny Tanjug reported Wednesday.

The riots, which were put down by troops backed by tanks, came just two days after President Ramiz Alia agreed to allow the formation of opposition parties in Albania, the last bastion of Stalinism in Eastern Europe.

Quoting Radio Tirana, Tanjug said that 62 people were being tried in the port city of Durres, 55 in Elbasan and 60 in Shkoder. The trials were expected to end this week.

The accused were charged with "threatening the lives and safety of citizens, illegal public conduct, assaulting representatives of the state, and illegal appropriation".

Some of the offences carry the death penalty.

The defendents have admitted their offences and recognized that they should have carried out their protests through "dialogue rather than violence", according to Radio Tirana.

Official reports said 16 people including six policemen were injured in the riots, but other sources put the figure at more than 100.

The Albanian state news agency ATA said Wednesday that the National Assembly had ratified Alia's decision but would not permit parties linked to "fascists, racists, those in favor of war or those which are anti-national".

Authorized parties could set up their own organizations, collect funds and publish their own newspapers.

The first new political organization, the Democratic Party, announced its formation after Alia bowed to student demands for moves toward democracy. It was given official status Tuesday according to ATA.

Malaga, Spain (DEC. 19) EFE - An international police operation has led to the seizure of 525 kg of hashish worth dlrs one million and the arrests of 32 people in southern Spain and Italy, authorities said Wednesday.

Alfredo Marijuan, the head of the local police's International Crime Group in the southern coastal city of Malaga, said that authorities this week had arrested 23 people in Italy and nine others in southern Spain.

He told reporters that the network had set up a base in the southern Spanish tourist area of the Mediterranean's Costa del Sol.

Five Italians, including Costa del Sol group leader Michelle Ricardi, three Moroccans and a Spaniard were detained in Spain, Marijuan said.

He added that the drugs were found in an Italian-registered truck in Seville after the activities of the group aroused suspicion earlier this year.

Marijuan did not say when police seized the drugs.

Rome (DEC. 19) EFE - The Sicilian Mafia struck a deal at least three years ago with Colombia's Medellin drug cartel acquiring the exclusive right to distrubute cocaine in Italy and southern Europe, according to an Italian police report released Wednesday.

The report by experts in the war against drugs said the pact defined the division of powers and was aimed at avoiding bloody feuds between drug traffickers.

The deal has already led to a substantial increase in the flow of cocaine into Europe, the report added.

Colombians continue to be responsible for smuggling the drug into Europe, chiefly through Spain from where it is destined to markets in northern Europe.

But, the report said, an amount was set aside for the Mafia to retail in areas they controlled.

The report referred to a court case in Miami in which several American Mafia families were named as having brokered the deal between their Sicilian associates and the Colombians.

Narcotics agents estimate that over the past three years, some 500 kg of Colombian cocaine has ended up in Italy as a result of the Mafia-Medellin pact.

KINSHASA (DEC. 19) EFE - Hundreds of Libyan prisoners of war are in a military base in eastern Zaire after the United States airlifted them out of Chad twelve days ago, diplomatic sources said Wednesday.

The POWs, who left Chad after Libyan-backed rebel forces overthrew the government of Hissen Habre earlier this month, are now in Kitona military base near the Atlantic coast, the sources said.

The sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said the move might jeapordize the dlrs one billion promised by Libya to the Zairean government to fund oil imports and to relieve the balance of payments deficit.

The United States was allegedly training the Libyans to undermine the government of Libyan leader Col. Muammar Gaddafi.

However observers have said President Mobutu Sese Seko might offer to return the Libyans in exchange for money from Tripoli.

Libya last week charged that the POWs were flown out of Chad against their will because Washington feared they would expose U.S. plans to subvert Gaddafi's government.

The POWs were captured during sporadic clashes between Libyan troops and Chadian government forces during a 1983-87 border dispute.

Tripoli alleges that 17 POWs were killed by the United States because they refused to join the airlift.

BEIJING (DEC. 19) XINHUA - CHINA HAS IMPORTED OVER 15 MILLION TONS OF GRAIN ANNUALLY IN RECENT YEARS, BUT AT THE SAME TIME THE COUNTRY HAS ALSO EXPORTED THREE TO FOUR MILLION TONS.

CHEN YAOBANG, VICE MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE, SAID AT A PRESS CONFERENCE HELD TODAY THAT CHINA IMPORTS GRAIN FOR THREE REASONS.

THE FIRST REASON IS FOR VARIETY ADJUSTMENT. CHEN SAID THAT CHINA'S WHEAT PRODUCTION IS RELATIVELY LOW, AND BECAUSE OF THIS THE COUNTRY MUST IMPORT WHEAT TO MEET THE DOMESTIC DEMAND.

IN ADDITION, THE AMOUNT OF GRAIN IMPORTED DEPENDS ON THE ANNUAL HARVEST OF A PARTICULAR GRAIN PRODUCT. THE VICE MINISTER SAID THAT WHILE CHINA HAS A BALANCED SUPPLY OF RICE AND MAIZE, IT IS SOMETIMES NECESSARY FOR THE SOUTHERN PROVINCES, WHICH RELY ON THE NORTHERN MAIZE, TO IMPORT THE PRODUCT IF THERE IS A POOR HARVEST IN THE NORTH. ON THE OTHER HAND, IF SOUTHERN RICE PRODUCING PROVINCES SUFFER FROM NATURAL DISASTER CHINA MUST IMPORT RICE.

FINALLY, SAID CHEN, PRICE CHANGES AND OTHER FACTORS WHICH EFFECT THE INTERNATIONAL GRAIN MARKET ALSO ARE FACTORS IN CHINA'S NEED TO IMPORT GRAIN.

HOHHOT (DEC. 19) XINHUA - AS HERDSMEN'S INCOMES HAVE INCREASED RAPIDLY IN RECENT YEARS IN CHINA, THEIR ATTITUDES TOWARD MONEY HAVE CHANGED DRASTICALLY.

WHEREAS THEY USED TO HIDE THEIR MONEY AT HOME, NOW THEY PREFER DEPOSITING IT IN BANKS.

ACCORDING TO STATISTICS FROM THE INNER MONGOLIA BRANCH OF THE AGRICULTURAL BANK OF CHINA, BY THE END OF NOVEMBER THIS YEAR THE TOTAL SAVINGS DEPOSITS OF THE HERDSMEN IN THIS NORTH CHINA AUTONOMOUS REGION REACHED 3.03 BILLION YUAN (ABOUT 606 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS).

MORE THAN 80 PERCENT OF THE HERDSMEN'S FAMILIES HAVE SAVINGS IN THE BANK AND EACH FAMILY AVERAGES 2,875 YUAN (ABOUT 570 U.S. DOLLARS), 5.4 TIMES THE FIGURE FOR 1980.

THE REGION, WITH A TOTAL AREA OF 1.18 MILLION SQ KM, HAS THE BIGGEST PASTURELAND AND THE SECOND-LARGEST FOREST AREA IN THE COUNTRY. IT ALSO BOASTS FARMLAND AND RISH MINERAL RESOURCES OF COAL, STEEL AND RARE EARTH.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER, "AGRICULTURE AND HUSBANDRY FINANCIAL NEWS", ANALYZED THAT THE REASON FOR THE INCREASE IN THE HERDSMEN'S SAVINGS DEPOSITS LIES IN THE HERDSMEN'S INCREASED INCOME IN THE PAST FEW YEARS AND THEIR CHANGING MENTALITY.

TAKE DLIGER, A HERDSMAN IN THE REGION, AS AN EXAMPLE. HE EARNED 800 YUAN (ABOUT 160 U.S. DOLLARS) IN CASH IN 1986 AND "DEPOSITED" THE MONEY IN A PAIR OF WORN-OUT SHOES, RATHER THAN IN THE BANK.

HOWEVER, HIS LITTLE SON, WHO WAS NOT AWARE OF THE MONEY IN THE SHOES, SOLD THEM.

THE NEXT YEAR DLIGER DREW A LESSON FROM THIS AND CHOSE TO DEPOSIT HIS SURPLUS MONEY IN THE BANK. AFTER HE RECEIVED A SUM OF INTEREST FROM THE BANK A YEAR LATER, HE FOUND THAT IT WAS NOT ONLY SAFE BUT ALSO BENEFICIAL TO DEPOSIT MONEY IN THE BANK.

SINCE THE HOUSEHOLD CONTRACT RESPONSIBILITY SYSTEM WAS IMPLEMENTED IN THE REGION A FEW YEARS AGO, THE REGION HAS REAPED BUMPER HARVESTS FOR SIX YEARS IN SUCCESSION. THE HERDSMEN'S AVERAGE INCOME PER CAPITA INCREASED FROM 573 YUAN TO 1,038 YUAN A YEAR.

MANY HERDSMEN HAVE BOUGHT TRACTORS, MOTORCYCLES, TV SETS, REFRIGERATORS AND WASHING MACHINES WITH THEIR NEW WEALTH.

TO MEET THE NEED OF THE DEPOSITORS, 3,246 SAVING BANKS HAVE BEEN SET UP IN THE RURAL AREAS OF THE REGION.

NAIROBI (DEC. 19) XINHUA - KENYA'S OVERALL BALANCE OF PAYMENTS GOT WORSE DURING THE FIRST HALF OF THIS YEAR AS IMPORTS CONTINUED TO INCREASE SHARPLY.

ACCORDING TO THE LATEST ISSUE OF "QUARTERLY ECONOMIC REVIEW" PUBLISHED BY THE CENTRAL BANK OF KENYA, THE EAST AFRICAN COUNTRY RECORDED A DEFICIT OF 3.1 BILLION SHILLINGS (ABOUT 135 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS) IN THE OVERALL BALANCE OF PAYMENTS DURING THE FIRST HALF OF THIS YEAR IN CONTRAST TO A SURPLUS OF 1.54 BILLION SHILLINGS IN THE CORRESPONDING PERIOD OF LAST YEAR.

THE PUBLICATION ATTRIBUTED THE WORSENING BALANCE OF PAYMENTS TO THE ON-GOING IMPORT LIBERALIZATION PROGRAM AND THE INCREASE IN CRUDE OIL PRICES.

ACCORDING TO THE REVIEW, KENYA SPENT 40.09 BILLION SHILLINGS IMPORTING OIL IN THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THIS YEAR. BUT CRUDE OIL IMPORTS ONLY COST THE COUNTRY 24.82 BILLION SHILLINGS DURING THE FIRST HALF OF LAST YEAR.

DURING THE PERIOD, THE MERCHANDISE TRADE DEFICIT WIDENED TO 7.27 BILLION SHILLINGS, AN INCREASE OF 38 PERCENT OVER THE SAME PERIOD OF LAST YEAR.

THE IMPORT BILL FOR THE FIRST SIX MONTHS INCREASED TO 19.77 BILLION SHILLINGS FROM 14.68 BILLION SHILLINGS IN THE SAME PERIOD OF 1989.

ISTANBUL (DEC. 19) XINHUA - TURKISH PRIME MINISTER YILDIRIM AKBULUT SAID TODAY THAT ALL PEACEFUL MEANS SHOULD BE TRIED IN SOLVING THE GULF CRISIS.

IN A MEETING WITH EXECUTIVE MEMBERS OF TURKISH JOURNALISTS AS SOCIATION, AKBULUT SAID THAT THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT WILL CONTINUE TO SUPPORT ALL PEACEFUL MEANS TO SOLVE THE GULF CRISIS.

IF IRAQ STILL REFUSED TO CARRY OUT THE U.N. RELEVANT SECURITY COUNCIL RESOLUTIONS DESPITE ALL THE PEACEFUL EFFORTS, "WE WILL THINK OF ENDING THE CRISIS IN A WAY THAT WE DO NOT WISH TO," THE PRIME MINISTER SAID.

ON MONDAY, AKBULUT SAID THAT NEITHER TURKEY NOR THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY WANTED A MILITARY SOLUTION TO THE CRISIS, BUT WARNED THAT IF IRAQ FAILS TO GIVE A POSITIVE RESPONSE TO "THAT PEACEFUL APPROACH," AN "UNWANTED SOLUTION" COULD BE CONSIDERED.

AKBULUT SAID HE EXPECTED IRAQ TO FOLLOW POLICIES BASED ON COMMON SENSE AND REASON. "IRAQ SHOULD AVOID BEHAVIORS THAT COULD PREPARE A WAR ATMOSPHERE," HE SAID.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) XINHUA - THE WHITE HOUSE TODAY QUICKLY TURNED DOWN AN ASSESSMENT BY ONE OF TOP MILITARY COMMANDERS IN THE PERSIAN GULF AREA THAT U.S. TROOPS WOULD NOT BE READY TO MOUNT AN OFFENSIVE BY THE JANUARY 15 U.N. DEADLINE FOR IRAQ TO LEAVE KUWAIT.

LT. GEN. CALVIN WALLER, THE DEPUTY COMMANDER OF ALL U.S. FORCES IN THE GULF, TOLD REPORTERS THAT THE FULL U.S. DEPLOYMENT WOULD REACH ABOUT 430,000 TROOPS BY MID-JANUARY, BUT THE LATE-ARRIVING ARMORED UNITS WOULD NOT BE COMBAT READY FOR SOME TIME, PERHAPS NOT UNTIL FEBRUARY 15.

MARLIN FITZWATER, SPOKESMAN OF THE WHITE HOUSE, WAS ASKED ABOUT WALLER'S ASSESSMENT. "WHAT HE REALLY SAID IS THEY MIGHT NOT BE AS READY AS THEY WOULD LIKE TO BE ... FOR ALL THE CONTINGENCIES," HE SAID.

"BUT WE ARE ASSURED THEY WILL BE READY TO DO WHATEVER THEY ARE CALLED UPON TO DO," FITZWATER SAID.

WALLER MADE HIS COMMENTS AFTER A MEETING WITH DEFENSE SECRETARY RICHARD CHENEY

AND GEN. COLIN POWELL, CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF, WHO ARRIVED IN SAUDI ARABIA TODAY FOR TWO DAYS OF STRATEGY SESSIONS WITH U.S. GULF FORCE COMMANDERS AND ANOTHER TWO DAYS OF VISITING THE U.S. TROOPS THERE.

WALLER SAID, "I WOULD SAY TO THE PRESIDENT AND TO THE SECRETARY AND TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF THAT UNTIL OUR FULL COMPLEMENT OF FORCES ARE ON THE GROUND, WE SHOULD NOT INITIATE HOSTILE ACTIVITIES."

ASKED HOW HE WOULD RESPOND IF PRESIDENT GEORGE BUSH WANTED TO ORDER A STRIKE ON IRAQ BEFORE THE FULL COMPLEMENT OF U.S. GROUND FORCES WAS READY, WALLER SAID "I'D TELL HIM: NO, I'M NOT READY TO DO THE JOB."

WALLER WAS THE FIRST SENIOR MILITARY COMMANDER TO SAY PUBLICLY THAT HE WOULD OPPOSE ANY U.S. MILITARY STRIKE UNTIL THE FULL FORCE WAS IN PLACE. HIS COMMENTS RAISED EYEBROWS AMONG DEPUTIES TO GEN. POWELL AND GEN. NORMAN SCHWARZKOPF, THE COMMANDER OF ALL U.S. FORCES IN THE GULF, WHO SAID THEY WERE CONCERNED THAT WALLER HAD BEEN TOO CANDID.

BUT CHENEY AND GEN. POWELL TOLD REPORTERS TRAVELING WITH THEM THAT THE UNITED STATES WILL BE READY TO GO TO WAR BY THE JANUARY 15 DEADLINE REGARDLESS OF WHETHER ALL REINFORCEMENTS HAVE ARRIVED AND REACHED COMBAT-READINESS, ALTHOUGH THEY ACKNOWLEDGED SOME GROUND FORCES ON THE WAY TO SAUDI ARABIA FROM THE UNITED STATES AND GERMANY PROBABLY WOULD NOT BE COMBAT-READY BY MID-JANUARY.

"WE HAVE AN OFFENSIVE CAPABILITY SHOULD THAT BE REQUIRED," CHENEY SAID. "MOST OF THE FORCES WILL BE THERE BY THEN (JANUARY 15), BUT OBVIOUSLY THERE IS ADDITIONAL WORK TO BE DONE BEFORE YOU WOULD IDENTIFY THEM AS COMBAT-READY."

HONG KONG (DEC. 19) KYODO - TWO JAPANESE COMPANIES, KUMAGAI GUMI (HK) AND MITSUI AND CO. (HK) HAVE SIGNED A DEAL TO JOINTLY DEVELOP PORT FACILITIES AT SHENZHEN, IN CHINA'S SOUTHEAST GUANGDONG PROVINCE, THE SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST SAID ON WEDNESDAY.

THE DEAL, INCLUDING STORAGE, TRANSPORTATION, AND LIGHT INDUSTRIES AT SHENZHEN'S YANTIAN PORT, IS WORTH 1 BILLION HONG KONG DOLLARS AND WILL HAVE THREE STAGES, THE PAPER REPORTS.

SHENZHEN, LOCATED JUST NORTH OF THE HONG KONG BORDER, IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL OF CHINA'S SPECIAL ECONOMIC ZONES, SEMICAPITALIST ENCLAVES ESTABLISHED UNDER THE OPEN DOOR AND ECONOMIC REFORM POLICIES OF THE EARLY 1980S.

SHENZHEN DONG PONG INDUSTRY CO. LTD., REPRESENTED BY SHENZHEN'S VICE MAYOR, ZHU YUENING, SIGNED A DEAL TUESDAY TO TRANSFER A ONE MILLION SQUARE FOOT SITE TO THE JAPANESE COMPANIES ON A 35-YEAR LEASE.

MITSUI, A LEADING TRADING HOUSE, AND KUMAGAI GUMI, A MAJOR CONSTRUCTION FIRM, HAVE A 50 PERCENT STAKE EACH IN THE JOINT VENTURE COMPANY CREATED TO HANDLE THE PROJECT, A MITSUI OFFICIAL WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

YANTIAN WILL BE ONE OF THE DEEPEST PORTS IN THE WORLD AND IS AIMING TO BE ONE OF CHINA'S LARGEST ENTREPOTS, THE OFFICIAL REPORTEDLY SAID.

IT WOULD ACT AS A FEEDER TO HONG KONG'S SEA TRAFFIC, RATHER THAN A RIVAL TO IT HE ADDED.

MEANWHILE, KUMAGAI GUMI (HK) HAS SECURED TWO CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS IN HONG KONG WORTH A TOTAL OF 344 MILLION HONG KONG DOLLARS TO SET UP POWER STATIONS, ACCORDING TO ANOTHER BUSINESS REPORT IN WEDNESDAY'S SOUTH CHINA MORNING POST.

KUMAGAI WILL UNDERTAKE SITE FORMATION WORK FOR A GAS TURBINE POWER STATION, AND WILL ALSO CARRY OUT MAIN CIVIL WORKS FOR A SUBSTATION, THE REPORTED SAID.

THE TWO CONTRACTS WERE AWARDED BY KOWLOON ELECTRICITY SUPPLY CO. (KESCO), A JOINT VENTURE 40 PERCENT OWNED BY CHINA LIGHT AND POWER AND 60 PERCENT BY EXXON ENERGY, THE POST REPORT SAID.

BOTH SITES AR ON THE SPARSELY POPULATED LANTAU ISLAND, THE LARGEST ISLAND IN HONG KONG'S TERRITORY.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) KYODO - THE TOKYO DISTRICT COURT ON WEDNESDAY STARTED THE TRIAL OF TWO FORMER BRANCH MANAGERS OF SUMITOMO BANK AND A MANAGEMENT CONSULTANT FOR ILLEGALLY ARRANGING HUGE AMOUNT OF LOANS TO STOCK SPECULATORS.

AKINORI YAMASHITA, 45, FORMER MANAGER OF SUMITOMO'S AOBADAI BRANCH IN YOKOHAMA PLEADED GUILTY TO CHARGES OF ILLEGALLY MEDIATING MORE THAN 20 BILLION YEN IN LOANS TO STOCK SPECULATOR GROUPS.

PUBLIC PROSECUTORS SAID THAT YAMASHITA RECEIVED A TOTAL OF 195 MILLION YEN IN CASH AND INFORMATION ON SPECULATIVE STOCKS IN RETURN FOR FIXING UNLAWFUL LOANS.

BUT YAMASHITA'S SUCCESSOR AT AOBADAI, FUMIO NISHIMARU, 41, PLEADED NOT GUILTY ON A SEPARATE CHARGE OF ILLEGALLY ARRANGING 20 BILLION YEN IN LOANS TO ANOTHER STOCK SPECULATOR GROUP.

NISHIMARU SAID HE MERELY INTRODUCED TARGETS FOR LENDING MONEY TO BANK CUSTOMERS AS A BANK SERVICE. HE ALSO STRESSED HE DID NOT INTEND TO GAIN PROFITS FOR HIMSELF A SPECULATOR GROUP AND DID NOT RECEIVE ANY CASH OR STOCKS FOR ARRANGING LARGE LOANS.

THE THIRD PERSON INVOLVED, MANAGEMENT CONSULTANT KIYOSHI AKIYAMA, 40, PLEADED GUILTY. THE PROSECUTORS SAID HE NOT ONLY RECEIVED AN ILLEGAL 1 BILLION YEN LOAN THROUGH YAMASHITA, BUT ACTED AS AN INTERMEDIARY FOR ARRANGING A SERIES OF ILLEGAL LOANS.

THE THREE HAVE BEEN INDICTED FOR VIOLATING THE SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE LAW. OFFICIALS OF FINANCING INSTITUTIONS ARE NOT ALLOWED TO MEDIATE LOANS FOR THIRD PARTIES.

DURING THE TRIAL WEDNESDAY, PROSECUTORS CHARGED THAT YAMASHITA ARRANGED 11.4 BILLION YEN IN ILLEGAL LOANS TO THE KOSHIN GROUP OF STOCK SPECULATORS IN 1988.

THE PROSECUTORS ALSO SAID MITSUHIRO KOTANI, HEAD OF KOSHIN, PAID YAMASHITA 100 MILLION YEN IN CASH AND GAVE HIM INFORMATION ON SPECULATIVE STOCKS FOR FIXING ILLEGAL LOANS.

KOTANI IS NOW STANDING TRIAL SEPARATELY FOR ALLEGED STOCK MANIPULATION. YAMASHITA ALSO ARRANGED 11.5 BILLION YEN IN ILLEGAL LOANS TO AN AFFILIATED COMPANY OF ANOTHER ''SEIBI'' STOCK SPECULATOR GROUP HEADED BY AKIRA KATO IN 1990, THE PROSECUTORS SAID.

SUMITOMO BANK CHAIRMAN ICHIRO ISODA RESIGNED FROM HIS POST IN OCTOBER AFTER YAMASHITA WAS ARRESTED.

NAGOYA (DEC. 19) KYODO - TOYOTA MOTOR CORP. HAS OPENED ITS SECOND FACTORY IN THE SOVIET UNION FOR MAINTENANCE AND AFTERSALE SERVICE OF ITS CARS, PRESIDENT SYOICHIRO TOYODA SAID WEDNESDAY.

TOYODA SAID AT A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT HE HOPES TO STRENGTHEN THE COMPANY'S SALES BASE IN THE SOVIET UNION AND EASTERN EUROPE BY BUILDING A NETWORK OF SUCH MAINTENANCE FACTORIES.

''WE ARE THINKING OF BUILDING EIGHT MORE FACTORIES IN THE SOVIET UNION BY THE END OF NEXT YEAR. WE ARE ALSO PREPARING TO BUILD FACTORIES IN EAST EUROPEAN COUNTRIES,'' HE SAID.

TOYOTA-DALJLESPROM KHABAROVSK SERVICE STATION, LOCATED IN THE SUBURBS OF KHABAROVSK, FOLLOWS A FACTORY OPENING IN MOSCOW IN OCTOBER, AND WILL BE THE SERVICE CENTER FOR TOYOTA CARS IN THE SOVIET FAR EAST.

IT HAS FLOOR SPACE OF 400 SQUARE METERS AND A STAFF OF 14 HANDLING MAINTENANCE AND REPAIRS AS WELL AS SALES OF CAR PARTS, THE PRESIDENT SAID.

PARTICIPATING IN THE INVESTMENT OF THE NEW FACTORY ARE TOYOTA, THE LOCAL SOVIET CONCERNS AND THE JAPANESE TRADING COMPANY NISSHO IWAI CORP.

TOYOTA'S CAR EXPORTS TO THE SOVIET UNION, AT 2,500 VEHICLES LAST YEAR, ARE EXPECTED TO INCREASE TO 3,500 VEHICLES THIS YEAR.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) KYODO - NIPPON TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CORP. (NTT) PRESIDENT MASASHI KOJIMA SAID WEDNESDAY HE WANTS THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT TO ALLOW FOREIGN INVESTORS TO BUY SHARES OF STOCK IN THE GIANT TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMPANY.

UNDER JAPANESE LAW, FOREIGN INVESTORS ARE PROHIBITED FROM BUYING NTT STOCK, AND THE TELEPHONE COMPANY CANNOT PURSUE BUSINESS ACTIVITIES OVERSEAS.

KOJIMA SAID AT A TOKYO PRESS CONFERENCE THAT THE LAW SHOULD BE REVISED TO ENABLE THE GIANT TELECOMMUNICATIONS COMPANY TO RAISE FUNDS ON OVERSEAS MARKETS AND TO JOINTLY CARRY OUT DIRECT BUSINESS PROJECTS WITH FOREIGN FIRMS IN OTHER COUNTRIES. HE ADDED THAT, BECAUSE SOME STOCKHOLDERS ARE UPSET WITH THE RECENT DECLINE IN NTT'S STOCK, THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD RAPIDLY ELIMINATE RESTRICTIONS ON FOREIGN INVESTMENT IN THE FIRM. THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT, WHICH OWNS 10.2 MILLION OF NTT'S OUTSTANDING SHARES, PLANS TO SELL OFF 500,000 SHARES OVER THE NEXT FIVE YEARS.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) KYODO - THE POPULATION OF THE TOKYO METROPOLITAN AREA ROSE 0.2 PERCENT, OR 25,624 PEOPLE, OVER 1985 TO SET A NEW HIGH OF 11,854,987 THIS YEAR, THE TOKYO GOVERNMENT SAID WEDNESDAY.

BOTH THE SIZE AND THE RATE OF THE INCREASE OF THE RISE WERE THE LOWEST ON RECORD, THE GOVERNMENT SAID WHEN RELEASING PRELIMINARY RESULTS OF A NATIONAL CENSUS CONDUCTED IN OCTOBER.

STEEP LAND PRICE SPIRALS AND THE EXPANSION OF OFFICE SPACE SENT THE POPULATION

OF THE 23 WARDS IN INNER TOKYO ON A 2.3 PERCENT DECLINE OVER THE 1985 LEVEL, THE SURVEY SAID.

THE 23 WARDS ACCOUNTED FOR 8,163,127 AND SURBURBAN CITIES MADE UP 3,525,926. THE REMAINING POPULACE IS DISPERSED IN COUNTIES AND ISLAND AREAS SOUTH OF TOKYO.

THE PRELIMINARY FIGURES OF THE CENSUS SHOWED A SLIGHT INCREASE IN MALES IN TOKYO COMPARED WITH FEMALES -- 101.4 MALES AGAINST 100 FEMALES, AND A GROWING TREND OF ''NUCLEAR FAMILIES.''

THE NUMBER OF HOUSEHOLDS IN TOKYO TOTALED 4,778,400, UP 5.9 PERCENT, OR 2.48 MEMBERS PER FAMILY COMPARED WITH 2.62 IN THE 1985 CENSUS.

POPULATION RISES WERE REPORTED ONLY IN EDOGAWA, NERIMA, AND THREE OTHER WARDS, WHILE THE SIZE OF INHABITANTS IN CENTRAL TOKYO DROPPED MARKEDLY. CHIYODA WARD, A BUSINESS HUB, SAW THE SHARPEST FALL IN ITS POPULATION, BY 21.8 PERCENT, TO 39,000.

POPULATION EXPANSION WAS CONSPICUOUS ACROSS THE WESTERN SURBURBAN AREA, WITH TAMA TOPPING THE LIST WITH AN 18.3 PERCENT RISE.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) KYODO - THE GOVERNMENT DECIDED WEDNESDAY TO BUDGET 22.7 TRILLION YEN FOR THE FISCAL 1991-1995 DEFENSE SPENDING PROGRAM, THE LOWEST RATE OF EXPANSION SINCE THE MID-TERM DEFENSE PLANS WERE LAUNCHED IN 1976.

THE PLAN, THE FIRST SINCE THE DECLINE OF THE COLD WAR, REPRESENTS AN AVERAGE ANNUAL INCREASE IN DEFENSE OUTLAY OF 2.9 PERCENT, HALF OF THE 5.4 PERCENT ANNUAL RATE OF INCREASE IN THE PREVIOUS FIVE-YEAR PLAN.

THE PROGRAM IS TO BE FORMALLY APPROVED BY THE CABINET ON THURSDAY AND WILL BE REVIEWED AFTER THREE YEARS.

MAJOR PURCHASES INCLUDE FOUR AWACS (AIRBORNE WARNING AND CONTROL SYSTEM) PLANES, AND MULTIPLE LAUNCH ROCKET SYSTEMS.

THE SLOWER GROWTH RATE REFLECTS THE DECLINE IN COLD WAR TENSIONS IN THE REGION AND THE ACHIEVEMENT OF GOALS SET FORTH IN THE 1976 NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM OUTLINE, GOVERNMENT SOURCES SAID.

THE CABINET IN ITS FIRST OFFICIAL REVISION IN 14 YEARS OF AN ANALYSIS OF INTERNATIONAL SECURITY THREATS TO JAPAN ACKNOWLEDGED WEDNESDAY THAT REDUCED SUPERPOWER TENSIONS ARE BEGINNING TO HAVE A POSITIVE EFFECT IN ASIA.

HOWEVER, THE NEW ASSESSMENT, APPROVED BY A CABINET DECISION, SAID THAT CONFLICTS DUE TO RELIGIOUS AND ETHNIC STRIFE, TERRITORIAL DISPUTES AND NATIONALISM REMAIN A THREAT TO STABILITY AND THAT JAPAN SHOULD CONTINUE A ''MODERATE'' BUILD-UP IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE 1976 DESIGN.

DEFENSE AGENCY CHIEF YOZO ISHIKAWA TOLD REPORTERS THAT THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION HAS NOT CHANGED SUFFICIENTLY TO MERIT A COMPLETE REVISION OF THE NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM OUTLINE, WHICH HAS GUIDED DEFENSE EXPENDITURE FOR THE PAST 14 YEARS. ;;MORE NNNN R142 R CA15 R :2ND LEAD DEFENSE 2 TOKYO:

''THE UNITED STATES AND THE SOVIET UNION ARE NOT NECESSARILY IN AGREEMENT ON ALL MILITARY AND INTERNATIONAL ISSUES,'' HE SAID AFTER ATTENDING A CABINET MEETING HELD TO APPROVE THE NEW ASSESSMENT OF INTERNATIONAL SECURITY.

THE GOVERNMENT'S POSITION PAPER ON DEFENSE SAID THE LIKELIHOOD OF A MAJOR CONFLICT HAS DECREASED.

''THE SITUATION IN THE ASIA-PACIFIC REGION IS MORE COMPLEX THAN IN EUROPE, BUT THE CHANGE IN U.S.-SOVIET RELATIONS IS BEGINNING TO HAVE AN IMPACT...BY REDUCING TENSIONS,'' THE DOCUMENT SAID.

THE TWO-PAGE DOCUMENT CALLED FOR GREATER CONFIDENCE IN JAPAN'S SECURITY PACT WITH THE UNITED STATES, WHICH IT SAID WOULD CONTINUE TO PLAY AN IMPORTANT A ROLE IN MAINTAINING REGIONAL STABILITY DESPITE THE CHANGES IN THE WORLD ORDER.

WHILE THE SIZE OF THE SOVIET FAR EAST FORCE IS BEING REDUCED, ITS CAPABILITIES ARE BEING UPGRADED, THE DOCUMENT SAID.

''THE RELATIONS AMONG THE U.S., THE SOVIET UNION, CHINA AND JAPAN ARE BECOMING EVEN MORE IMPORTANT TO MAINTAINING PEACE AND STABILITY IN THE REGION,'' IT NOTED. SITUATION.''

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 19) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT reports that housing starts for November were 1.129 million units up 9.3% from October and much higher than analysts' expectations. Analysts estimated that starts would barely hit the one million mark which would be a decline from October's report of 1,040,000 units. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT also reports that third-quarter GNP has been revised downward from up 1.7% to up 1.4%.

Stocks rally in Tokyo where the Nikkei moves up 453 points, a gain of nearly two percent. ... Stocks are also higher in London with the FTSE up 10 points in early afternoon trading. ... U.S. stocks trading overseas are flat to only slightly higher. ... Bonds slip after yesterday's big gains - the long yield is back up to 8.10%. ... The dollar rebounds strongly in overnight trading. ... Crude oil prices are slightly higher - Brent North Sea is up 12 cents to $26.22. ... The FEDERAL RESERVE cuts the discount rate to 6.5%. ... CITICORP says it will eliminate 8,000 jobs, cut dividends and increase reserves to cover bad real estate and other problem loans. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT says the merchandise trade deficit was $11.6 billion in October, the highest level in 32 months. ... Art auctioneer CHRISTIE'S INTERNATIONAL plans to cut 146 jobs and freeze senior staff salaries. ... NORWEST BANK in Minneapolis announces that it is lowering its prime rate to 9.75% from 10%.

FROM THE BULLS:

"From January 3rd, I see just an up market," says ROBERT NICHOLSON of Miami's NICHOLSON GROUP. "With interest rates coming down ... we think investors should get into interest sensitive stocks or high quality bonds." The period around the January 15 Mideast deadline could see some very rough days, says Nicholson, but he thinks the market will ride it out and go on to higher numbers. (FNN "Marketwatch P.M.", 12/18)

STOCK MARKET:

"The discount rate cut was the big news of the day," says HILDEGARDE ZAGORSKI at PRUDENTIAL-BACHE. "The rally will continue, provided we don't get something horrible out of the Middle East." ("USA Today", 12/19)

While the discount cut should be positive for the stock market, "many traders will see the situation as a selling opportunity, feeling that all the good news is out," says MICHAEL METZ of OPPENHEIMER. He says the market has hit a short-term top, and expects the market to trade between 2640 and 2540, but "there could be some thrills with this week's expiration of futures and options. Longer-term, he thinks the market will jump to 2750 in early next year, but, for the year, will trade within the same range as 1990. ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

"The stock market is going to need continued infusions of good news, not just this one move [by the Fed]," says MERRILL LYNCH's chief investment strategist CHARLES CLOUGH. "Stocks are still going to have to deal with an economy that's unwinding, unemployment that's picking up and probably a longer period of earnings weakness than most people think." Clough says discount rate moves are largely symbolic and he will be watching to see if the Fed follows up by aggressively adding reserves to the banking system. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/19)

"When you get to the point in a recession when the Fed is aggressively attempting to liquify the banking system, normally the stock and bond markets do very well," says WARREN SHAW, managing director at CHANCELLOR CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. (WSJ, 12/19)

"I don't know if [the discount rate cut] means unrelenting joy for the Dow Jones industrial average," says LARRY WACHTEL of PRUDENTIAL- BACHE. "Remember the reason we're getting these goodies is because the economy is in recession." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

"The market wanted to go higher all day" Tuesday, says STEVE BLISS, head of OTC trading for MABON NUGENT & COMPANY. "The Fed gave it the impetus." (WSJ, 12,19)

STOCK TIPS:

"It won't be enough," DUFF & PHELPS bank analyst CLAIRE PERCARPIO says of CITICORP's austerity moves. "Other steps need to be taken." GREGORY ROOT, president of THOMSON BANKWATCH INC., says a merger "is probably the right decision for a couple of the banks in New York. and right now New York, I suspect, is a little bit sensitive to any kind of major job cuts." ("USA Today", 12/19 and CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 12/18)

JOHN G. KINNARD & CO. recommends stock in DAHLBERG INC., a Minneapolis-based maker of hearing aids and operator of retail locations selling its products. The brokerage says the company's earnings should grow 16% next year. ("USA Today", 12/19)

ROBERT NICHOLSON of Miami's NICHOLSON GROUP likes TEXAS UTILITIES, DOMINION RESOURCES, BANK AMERICA, PRIMERICA, and FANNIE MAE. Nicholson also recommends zero coupon bonds with 25-30 year maturities. He suggests that investors concerned about the Mideast and the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline buy index puts to hedge their portfolios. (FNN "Marketwatch P.M.", 12/18)

ORACLE SYSTEMS is in the "Company Spotlight" this morning in "USA Today." "Oracle may have stopped its hemorrhaging, but it still has a lot of work to do," says analyst TIM McCOLLUM at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. He says the stock's low price makes it a "reasonable risk." BRUCE LUPATKIN at HAMBRECHT & QUIST says of the company: "The problem is management, management, management." ("USA Today", 12/19)

"It's sort of like cream moving to the top of the milk bottle," FIRST BOSTON analyst CHARLES WOLF says of AST RESEARCH, which jumped 5 1/2 to 32 yesterday after a strong earnings forecast. He has been recommending the stock for nine months and predicts it will emerge as a big player in the personal computer industry. A laptop to be introduced next year "will blow the socks off the competition," says Wolf. ("USA Today", 12/19)

While AST RESEARCH jumped 5 1/2 yesterday to a new high of 32, "there's still [upside potential] left in the stock," according to WALTER WINNITZKI of BROWN BROTHERS HARRIMAN & CO. But he says declining margins could hurt the stock next year. "You probably don't want to own the stock in the June quarter." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

"We're suggesting a [preference] toward bonds, but stay with some utilities and growth stocks," says MERRILL LYNCH's chief investment strategist CHARLES CLOUGH this morning in New York. He would look for high yielding utilities. "Notice how yields are beginning to fall in other sectors of the market ... that means high yielding utilities become a little bit of a shortage here [and] that secondary growth stocks are probably the areas we would look most closely at." Avoid bank stocks, warns Clough. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/19)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 19) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The dollar fell quickly yesterday afternoon with the announcement that the Federal Reserve would cut the discount rate to 6.5% from 7%. Because the Fed dropped the news into a calm, highly illiquid market, it's hard to gauge how sharp a sell-off the dollar will ultimately suffer, says AL SHEALY, foreign exchange manager at UNION BANK OF SWITZERLAND in New York. "It's certainly bearish news for the dollar," but the dollar has withstood bearish news in the past. (WSJ, 12/19)

"In a normal market [the drop in the dollar in response to the Fed ease] would have been a lot bigger," says WALTER SIMON of BANK JULIUS BAER & CO. The Persian Gulf crisis cushioned the dollar, according to many analysts. As CHRIS MENDELL of SECURITY PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK points out, "The market's response has been stronger buying of marks instead of selling dollars." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

By cutting the discount the discount rate to 6.5% from 7%, "the FED wants to derive the maximum benefit and action from the action that they've taken," says MONTE GORDON at DREYFUS CORP. "Everything they do at this particular point is laden with symbolism. What the Fed is telling you is: 'We are now clearly faced in the direction of ease and what we are going to try to do is damage control.' ... If you're going to do that, you don't wait for the Indians to come over the hill. The moment you hear the sounds, you put the wagons in a circle. ... You're looking at something you won't see effects from for some weeks or months. Monetary policy does not act that swiftly. direction of ease. ... Now the only question is how much lower do they have to go in order to achieve the affect they want." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/18)

The Fed "waited months too long - until we were well into the recession - but we applaud them for finally taking the action," says U.S. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE chief economist RICHARD RAHN. But he warned that the Fed should not go "full throttle" in its fight against recession. "If you go too far, then people will look at future inflationary expectations." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

"The FED recognizes we're in a significant recession," says JAMES ANNABLE at FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF CHICAGO. "They need to lower interest rates and to lower them noisily. This was a cymbal crash." ("USA Today", 12/19)

H. ERICH HEINEMANN, chief economist for LADENBURG, THALMANN & COMPANY, says the easing of the discount rate was an indication the FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD CHAIRMAN ALAN GREENSPAN "belatedly recognized that the economy is in a serious recession and he better do something about it." He says "the move will trigger a cut in the prime rate probably at once, and it will also signal that the Fed presumably will get around to putting some money into the banking system in the weeks ahead." (NYT, 12/19)

"Today's action was sort of dramatizing what we're going to see in the fed funds rate area," says NORTHERN TRUST chief economist ROBERT DEDERICK. He looks for the fed funds rate to drop 25 basis points. "I think the Fed was trying to announce, make it clear, that it was now aggressively trying to fight the recession." (CNN "Moneyline", 12/18)

The Fed moves of the past two weeks suggests "that they have quickened their pace of easing," says MICHAEL MORAN, an economist at DAIWA SECURITIES. Moves in the discount rate have little direct effect on the economy, but are used by the Fed to send loud and clear signals. "Symbolism is important," says Mr. Moran. "This will be on the front pages rather than the credit columns. It will be on the evening news. It will be seen by individuals and small-business people who might not otherwise know [what the Fed is doing]. It will be a boost to confidence." (WSJ, 12/19)

"With all due respect to stock market analysts, the discount rate is really symbolic," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "It's not very important. What is important is if it's followed up by an aggressive move by the FEDERAL RESERVE to increase the monetary aggregates, that is to increase bank reserves and really make the money supply grow. If it is a prelude to that, then it will work [to stimulate the economy] If not, it won't work." In any case, Wolman says it is clear the Fed is on the path to further easing if necessary. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/18)

"I wouldn't be surprised at all if the prime is cut right away," says IRWIN KELLNER, chief economist at MANUFACTURERS HANOVER BANK in New York. (WSJ, 12/19)

"Banks now have the room to drop the prime a half-point," says ROBERT HEADY, publisher of "Bank Rate Monitor" newsletter. "If they come up with only a quarter-point drop they're shorting the consumer." ("USA Today", 12/19)

With the discount rate being lowered, "maybe now the prime will come down, although I think the banks will try to delay that," says FIRST BOSTON's ALBERT WOJNILOWER. "Within a month or so, all sorts of interest rates will be lower." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/18)

"Price cuts have been necessary to encourage consumer buying," and have offset other inflationary pressures, says DOUGLAS LEE of COUNTY NATWEST. But as a result, he says it is "fair to assume that retail margins are going to continue to be under pressure." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

ROBERT HEISTERBERG of ALLIANCE CAPITAL was not surprised that the Fed eased, but "the surprise was that it was done on the day of the Federal Open Market

Committee meeting." He says the 50 basis point cut is "a very strong" and "symbolic" statement. He says that the move will lead to "some recovery" by the second half of 1991. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/18)

"The FED means business in trying to prop up the system," says WILLIAM CORNELIUSON, head of STRONG/CORNELIUSON CAPITAL MANAGEMENT. "The probabilities are rates will work their way lower." He has been bullish on long-term bonds for some time, and remains so. He has no money in stocks since the first week of August, but it is back up to 12% now -- mostly utilities bought to lock up yield in anticipation of falling interest rates. ("USA Today", 12/19)

"The bond market has behaved quite well recently," says LYLE GRAMLEY of the MORTGAGE BANKERS ASSOCIATION. He says that many in the bond market were afraid the Fed would "throw caution to the wind," and lower rates too quickly. "That was a concern earlier at the Fed, I think, when the bond market was in a state of great turmoil." ("Investor's Daily", 12/19)

THE ECONOMY:

"The FEDERAL RESERVE is very much acknowledging the weakness in the economy," says HENRY KAUFMAN, president of HENRY KAUFMAN & CO. "There are tremendous impediments to American economic recovery in the weeks and months ahead due to the financial situation." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/18)

The Fed move is psychologically important, says HUGH JOHNSON, chief investment officer at FIRST ALBANY CORP. "It sends a loud and clear message to the financial markets and to consumers that the Federal Reserve is deeply concerned about the current state of the economy and willing to do something about it." (WSJ, 12/19)

"The debate is over within the Federal Reserve," says ROBERT DiCLEMENTE, an economist at SALOMON BROTHERS. "Their action is a clarion call that they want rates down and they want people to borrow and spend." (NYT,)12/19

ALLEN SINAI at the BOSTON CO. dismisses the 12.2% increase in imports in yesterday's trade report as "an aberration" that will either be revised downward in coming months or be "slowly eroded" as unsold goods get stuck in the pipeline. That import increase overwhelmed an 8.6% increase in exports to a $34.8 billion figure that is the highest ever. Sinai says the strong export showing provides "some cushion" for the slumping U.S. economy. ROGER BRIMMER at DRI/McGRAW HILL says of the strong export showing: "The world's economic pie is growing and we are getting a larger slice of it." ("The Washington Post", 12/19)

BRIAN HORRIGAN, director of long-term forecasting for the WEFA GROUP, says he hopes the October trade deficit figure will prove to be an aberration. "A number that big is terrible news for the economy," he says. "The good part is that exports went up as well." (WSJ, 12/19)

WILLIAM ARCHEY, a vice president of the UNITED STATES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, says the October trade figures might be a fluke, but added that "if they represent a trend, it is a troubling one as it would represent a major inflationary problem for the United States economy." (NYT, 12/19)

The fairly low CPI number "seems to suggest that as the economy is losing momentum, it's beginning to drag the inflation rate lower," says WILLIAM SULLIVAN of DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS. "This slowdown in economic activity is having one positive influence." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/18)

The jump in the trade gap was fueled by "a very large increase in the price of oil in October," says NORMAN MAINS of BATEMAN EICHLER. "That more than offset the lower quantity of oil," and led to a gain in the dollar value, if not the actual amount, of imported goods. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/18)

"It's not a fluke. The [inflation] news is for real," says economist WILLIAM HUMMER at WAYNE HUMMER CO. ("USA Today", 12/19)

"We can't lay the inflation fears entirely to rest," says THOMAS SYNNOTT, chief economist for U.S. TRUST CO. "Inflation still continues at a very high rate" in some sectors, says Synnott. ("Nightly Business Report", 12/18)

"We really had a very sharp slowdown in inflation, excluding oil prices," says MICHAEL EVANS of EVANS ECONOMICS. He says those numbers are very positive because, "many people were concerned that higher oil prices would spill over into other types of inflation and that simply has not happened." (CNN "Moneyline", 12/18)

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - All Nippon Airways Co. Ltd. (ANA) announced today that it will order midsized aircraft from both Boeing and Airbus. The new aircraft will replace ANA's Lockheed 1011 Tristars, the capacity of which is between ANA's B747s and B767s.

ANA will purchase 25 B777 airliners from Boeing -- 15 firm orders and 10 options -- to use on domestic Japan routes. From Airbus, ANA will order 10 A340 aircraft -- five firm orders and five options -- for use on international routes. The price per plane for both types engines and other related equipment could bring the value of the total package to Y750 billion (US$5.8 billion). ANA will begin taking delivery of the B777s in 1995 and the A340s in 1996.

Today's announcement is the latest step in a program of vigorous investment in new aircraft at ANA. Management is seeking to position the airline to take full advantage of the growth in demand that is expected to result from the completion of three major airport projects underway in Japan, and to serve the fast-expanding network of international routes that ANA is building.

The announcement follows months of study by an ANA selection committee headed by senior executive vice president Keisuke Inui. Starting last spring, ANA gave thorough consideration to a number of candidate aircraft, including McDonnell Douglas's MD-11 and Airbus's A330, in addition to the B777 and A340.

In selecting the B777, ANA was attracted to the extensive new technology Boeing has incorporated into the plane, especially in connection with enhancing safety. "Fly-by-wire" is among the technological advances that enhance the operability of the new B777, while other improvements have increased reliability and maintainability of the aircraft and its systems. The plane's wide body maximizes comfort for passengers, and offers excellent economy in terms of operating costs per seat kilometer. ANA's B777s will seat about 400 passengers -- a size that fills the gap ideally between the B747s and B767s that they will join on ANA's domestic routes.

The A340, meanwhile, was the aircraft best suited to long- distance operations. It provides ANA with an effective means of serving long-distance international routes where demand does not warrant the larger capacity of the B747. With its four engines, the A340 is exempt from the Extended Twin Engine Operations (ETOPS) rule, which limits the long-distance flight time of twin-engine planes. In addition, the aircraft shares a number of operational features, such as side-stick control, with Airbus's 320 model, which ANA will begin putting into service in March 1991.

ANA will decide later which engines to use on the new aircraft. Candidates include CFM International's CFM56-5 for the A340, and General Electric's GE90-B3, Pratt & Whitney's PW4073 and Rolls Royce's Trent 871 for the B777.

In 1989, ANA carried almost 30 million passengers, making it the world's eighth largest airline and the largest carrier in Japan. ANA serves 17 destinations outside Japan and 29 destinations within Japan. In addition to its Los Angeles and Washington D.C. flights, the airline will be launching nonstop services between New York and Tokyo in March 1991, and extending its Tokyo-Washington flights to Orlando in a code-share arrangement early in 1991. Future plans call for services to Singapore, Honolulu, San Francisco, Shanghai, Manila, Barcelona and Frankfurt.

WATSONVILLE, CA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Granite Construction Inc. (NASDAQ: GCCO) announced today that it has been awarded an $18.4 million contract by the California Department of Transportation to reconstruct a two-mile segment of Highway 101 in San Jose. The company reported it was the apparent low bidder on the project earlier this month.

The contract calls for the construction of one additional lane in each direction from Trimble Road to Interstate 880 and a new eight-lane, cast-in-place concrete bridge at Brokaw Road. The scope of the work also includes widening two existing structures at North First Street and the Guadalupe River from six lanes to eight. Construction is scheduled to start in January and take approximately two and one-half years to complete.

Granite is a heavy civil contractor engaged in the construction of dams, highways, airports, tunnels and other infrastructure-related projects. The company's stock is traded in the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol GCCO.

ATLANTA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - An Atlanta physician appears to have found a promising new treatment for a little-understood medical condition that claims the lives of more than 7,000 infants annually.

Pediatric neurologist Francis Buda, a staff physician at Georgia Baptist Medical Center, reports excellent success in treating a number of infants at risk for Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) with high levels of phenobarbital a drug commonly used to treat seizures.

Buda initially used high levels of the drug -- equivalent to adult dosages -- on four infants under the age of one month who were experiencing numerous lapses in breathing. This condition, known as infant sleep apnea, can lead to SIDS or serious brain damage if left untreated.

"These children were prime candidates for SIDS," Buda said. "They had had acute, life-threatening, documented apnea, and showed abnormalities on their EEG tests. Had they been left untreated, the chances are good they would have continued to have significant episodes of apnea because they had had them up to that time."

Instead, the episodes stopped altogether, and after six months the infants were taken off the drug. None of the infants have had any problems since.

In recent months, Buda has treated 10 more high-risk infants with phenobarbital, all with similar success.

The key to the high success rate, the neurologist believes, is maintaining a high blood level of phenobarbital. Although the medication had previously been tried at much lower levels in high-risk infants, it had never been used in such large dosages because of the fear that it would reduce heart and respiratory rates.

"There had been concern in the past that a barbiturate would depress respiration," Buda noted. "In fact, I've shown just the opposite.

"The high phenobarbital level not only suppressed the infants' apnea, it also failed to produce any significant side effects," Buda said. "There was no sleepiness and no eating difficulties associated with the treatment, as might have been expected," the doctor said.

Buda cautioned that his research is still preliminary, and more data is needed to confirm early results. But he called the initial indication extremely encouraging. "I don't want people to think this is a miracle cure, but I think it is certainly significant," he said. "The idea that research in this area is being conducted is important for people to know."

Thus far, the physician's findings have appeared before the scientific community in the form of an academic paper presented last summer to the American Sleep Disorders Association. He plans to do a controlled study next, then publish those findings in a medical journal.

Buda's findings may be preliminary in terms of the scientific method, but to hundreds of parents of SIDS at-risk infants, the treatment offers a welcome ray of hope.

Despite advances in high-tech monitoring equipment in recent years, the incidence of SIDS in the population has remained steady. While the exact cause of the disease remains unknown, two out of every 1,000 babies born each year in the U.S. still die of SIDS. An unknown number of others suffer brain damage and cardiovascular problems resulting from "near-miss attacks." The underlying problem -- sleep apnea -- occurs primarily in infants between the ages of birth and six months. It is rarely seen in children beyond the age of six months and "exceedingly rare" after 12 months, Buda said.

ATLANTA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - C&S/Sovran Corp. (NYSE: CVN) today announced that it expects earnings for the year to be approximately $210 million, or $1.60 per common share, after making a provision to the loan loss reserve of $225-$250 million in the fourth quarter.

The reserve is being strengthened primarily as a result of deteriorating conditions in the Washington, D.C., real estate market and a rigorous internal credit examination just completed.

The company expects earnings for the full year 1990 to be approximately $1.60 per common share, although the decision to increase the reserve for loan losses eliminates earnings for the fourth quarter.

At Sept. 30, common shareholders' equity totaled $3.0 billion, representing 5.9 percent of assets, and the total risk-based capital ratio was 9.93 percent. These numbers are expected to be substantially the same at year end.

The ratio of the reserve for loan losses to period-end loans will be approximately 1.90 percent at Dec. 31, 1990, depending upon the final provision and other factors. The reserve for loan losses is expected to equal 100 percent to 110 percent of total nonperforming loans. The level of nonperforming assets to total loans and other real estate owned will slightly exceed 2 percent or $700 million at Dec. 31. If a similar increase in nonperforming assets occurs in the first quarter, this ratio would reach approximately 2.7 percent.

The board of directors also authorized the redemption of all of the company's $125 million outstanding money market preferred stock. After the required notices to investors are completed, C&S/Sovran intends to redeem its $62.5 million Series B issue on Feb. 5, 1991, and its $62.5 million Series A issue on Feb. 26, 1991.

SECAUCUS, NJ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Bertolli USA, Inc. chairman Aldo Cecchini, today announced that Bertolli President William C. Monroe has taken on the additional title of chief executive officer. Monroe has served as Bertolli's president and chief operating officer since February 1986.

Under Monroe's direction, Bertolli has established itself as the leader and fastest growing brand in the olive oil category. The company's sales have more than tripled in the past five years and are expected to reach over $80 million in 1990. Bertolli holds a commanding 40 percent share of all olive oil sales in the United States.

Upon his arrival at Bertolli in 1982 as director of sales and marketing, Monroe began applying a number of innovative marketing ideas to breathe life into a product which had never before been marketed as a consumer packaged good.

He spearheaded aggressive public relations and television advertising campaigns to increase consumer awareness about olive oil's health benefits. To capitalize on consumer interest, he expanded Bertolli's distribution from gourmet and ethnic stores to include placement directly on supermarket shelves next to other pourable oils. Behind Monroe, Bertolli changed its packaging from metal tins to clear glass, and introduced an assortment of bottle sizes to encourage consumer trial.

Monroe also brought product innovation to Bertolli. Under his guidance, the company developed Bertolli Extra Light -- the first new olive oil product in 2,000 years -- to satisfy the palates of Americans who were concerned about the taste and aroma of olive oil. For consumers who wanted a heartier olive oil, the company introduced Bertolli Extra Virgin Olive Oil.

Since the introduction of these two products, olive oil consumption in the United States has increased by about 72 percent, and light olive oil and extra virgin olive oil are the two fastest growing segments of the olive oil category.

In 1989, Bertolli initiated testing for a new line of Bertolli olive oil salad dressings, and in May 1990 the company launched Bertolli Olive Oil Spray and introduced another new flavor of olive oil called Robusto.

Prior to working at Bertolli, Monroe was vice president for sales and marketing at American Kitchen Products, and before that, he was national sales manager of General Mills' North Star Division.

Monroe is married and has two children. He and his wife, Evie, reside in Secaucus, N.J.

Bertolli USA, Inc. is a division of S.M.E., one of Italy's largest food companies, active in food manufacturing, retail distribution and restaurants.

ROCHESTER, NY (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - For the second straight year, Xerox Corporation (NYSE: XRX) has received the Pentastar Award, granted by Chrysler Corp. (NYSE: C) to suppliers who meet the auto manufacturer's highest standards of quality.

The award, established in 1985, is conferred on a select number of companies meeting exacting standards for quality, services delivered, and price competitiveness. Xerox is the sole vendor of copier and duplicator equipment for Chrysler and was recognized in the office products category for the second year.

"We are honored to receive the Pentastar Award," said Thomas F. Adams, vice president, Xerox business systems planning and management process. "At Xerox we define quality as fully meeting customer requirements. It is the stated goal of the Leadership Through Quality process by which we manage the company. Therefore, we place particular value on this award." Xerox was a recipient of the 1989 Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award.

LANSING, MI (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - After just one year, Oldsmobile officials are calling The Oldsmobile Edge an unqualified success in establishing the division as the No. 1 customer-caring car company.

"By any measure, The Oldsmobile Edge has put us head and shoulders above the competition when it comes to satisfying our customers," said General Motors Vice President and Oldsmobile General Manager J. Michael Losh.

Oldsmobile began the comprehensive customer satisfaction program with the 1990 model year and is continuing it with some enhancements for 1991. The program features Guaranteed Satisfaction which allows buyers to return their vehicle for any reason within 30 days or 1,500 miles and receive full credit toward the purchase of another Oldsmobile.

It also provides the benefits of GM's 36-month/50,000-mile Bumper-To-Bumper-Plus warranty, and Oldsmobile's 24-hour Roadside Assistance which includes computerized trip routing plus prompt service for any roadside problem during the vehicle's warranty period.

In 1991, the program expands with the Value Rated Edge and Value Rated Edge Plus plans which include nearly new and certain non-GM vehicles purchased through Oldsmobile dealers.

For the 1990 model year, Oldsmobile buyers returned only 1.7 percent of eligible retail vehicles delivered. And nearly half of those were for consumer choice reasons, such as the wrong color or option package.

In surveying each of the owners who returned their vehicle, Oldsmobile officials said that more than 92 percent were either extremely or somewhat satisfied with their replacement vehicle.

"We're finding through these results that buyers legitimately make mistakes in their purchase decision and like the flexibility of being able to return their vehicle," said Losh. "And obviously, when they do receive the vehicle that most closely meets their needs and desires, they're extremely happy with them."

During the 1990 model year, the Oldsmobile Roadside Assistance Center handled 29,602 calls. Of that total, 18,734 or 63.2 percent were for Oldsmobile's extensive trip routing program which gives buyers computerized maps, sightseeing tips along the way and a list of Oldsmobile dealers along the route. Of the remaining 10,868 (36.7 percent) calls, 8,150 or 75 percent were for dead batteries, lockouts or flat tires.

POMPANO BEACH, FL (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Natural Resources Recovery Inc. (NRRI), formerly SMS Group, Inc. (OTC), is pleased to announce its recent name change and the acquisition of Kore Enterprises, Inc., a company which, through a proprietary process, is able to extract microscopic gold from sulfide ores. A pilot plant is in operation in Florida, and preparations are now under way to increase production to commercial levels.

All previously owned subsidiaries of SMS Group, Inc. have been disposed of, and NRRI is devoting all of its efforts and resources to improvement of the yield of gold and attempts to extract other precious metals found in the ore, such as silver, platinum, rhodium, palladium and iridium. The ores which NRRI is working with contain all of the aforementioned minerals, with gold being currently refined at an extrapolated yield rate of approximately 6 oz. per ton from its existing ore body.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Imagine Films Entertainment, Inc. (NASDAQ: IFEI, IFEIU, IFEIW), today reported record revenues and net income for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990. Results for both periods were as follows (all amounts in thousands, except per share data):

Selected Financial Data

Fiscal year ended Sept. 30	1990	1989
Net revenues	$57,292	$26,732
Net income	$ 3,741	$ 606
Net income per share:
Primary	$.65	$.12
Fully diluted	$.62	$.12
Fourth quarter ended Sept. 30	1990	1989
Net revenues	$20,549	$15,751
Net income	$ 1,859	$ 1,471
Net income per share:
Fully diluted	$.29	$.28

Commenting on these results, Brian Grazer and Ron Howard, co-chief executive officers of Imagine, said, "Fiscal 1990 was much more exciting and financially rewarding than fiscal 1989. Profits and revenues achieved record levels. We were involved in releasing three films, producing four others and developing several promising new projects, three of which are now set for production. We feel we have established a strong position in the increasingly competitive entertainment marketplace.

"The results for fiscal 1990 reflect operating income from our first five motion pictures -- 'The 'Burbs,' 'The Dream Team' and 'Parenthood' (fiscal 1989 releases) and 'Opportunity Knocks' and 'Cry Baby' (fiscal 1990 releases). Also included are production and development revenues earned in connection with 'Problem Child' (fiscal 1990 release), 'Kindergarten Cop' and 'The Doors' (fiscal 1991 releases).

"Among fiscal 1990's three releases, 'Problem Child,' a comedy about a spirited young troublemaker starring John Ritter and Jack Warden, grossed more than $50 million at the domestic box office. A sequel starring John Ritter, 'Problem Child II,' is now in preproduction and is scheduled for a summer 1991 release by Universal Pictures. Also scheduled for 1991 release by Universal Pictures are 'Backdraft,' a Ron Howard-directed film featuring an outstanding cast including Kurt Russell, William Baldwin, Scott Glenn, Robert De Niro, Donald Sutherland, Jennifer Jason Leigh and Rebecca DeMornay; and 'Closetland,' starring Alan Rickman and Madeline Stowe.

"Fiscal 1990 was also a productive year for Imagine Television, L.P., our partnership with MCA. Our production during fiscal 1990 consisted of the pilot and the first five episodes of the NBC prime-time comedy series, 'Parenthood,' a pilot and several weeks of episodes of the syndicated talk show, 'My Talk Show,' and 'Conagher,' a movie produced for Turner Network Television. Shortly after year end, we also completed production of a half-hour comedy pilot for MTV's newly formed HA! The TV Comedy Channel. In addition, the partnership has received a 13-episode commitment from CBS for a half-hour series starring Emmy award-winner Shelley Long and a seven-episode commitment from NBC for an untitled comedy series by Barry Blaustein and David Sheffield (writers of 'Coming To America')."

Imagine Films Entertainment is an independent producer of feature films. It also produces television programming through its partnership with MCA, Inc., Imagine Television, L.P. The company was founded in November 1985 by its co-chief executives, producer Brian Grazer and director Ron Howard, and went public in July 1986.

ANCHORAGE, AK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Effective Dec. 21, almost all General Communication Inc. (GCI) (NASDAQ: GNCMA) employees will become employees of GCI Communication Corp., a newly formed subidiary. According to John Lowber, GCI chief financial officer, on Nov. 30, GCI transferred substantially all of its operating assets, liabilities, rights and obligations to its wholly owned subsidiary GCI Communication Corp.

"General Communication Inc. is now a holding company and is the sole owner (parent) of GCI Communication Corp.," said Lowber. "Although no real changes will occur except that GCI's operations will be carried out by its wholly owned subsidiary, this structure allows us much more financial flexibility.

"Through the holding company we can pledge subsidiary company stock to gain additional and more flexible debt financing," continued Lowber. "This flexibility will allow GCI, within limits, to create new companies, undertake acquisitions, purchase equipment and pursue technological innovations in order to continue our competitive leadership in the marketplace."

The name, General Communication Inc. shall be used only for transactions involving the parent company. All future operating contracts, leases, agreements and licenses shall be in the name of GCI Communication Corp., although the company will continue to use the abbreviation "GCI."

Transalaska Network Systems Inc. remains a separate subsidiary now owned by GCI Communication Corp. and is not affected by this transfer.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Cooper Companies, Inc. (NYSE: COO), today reported financial results for its fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990. This was the company's fifth consecutive profitable quarter and first profitable fiscal year since 1987.

For the quarter, the healthcare company reported net income applicable to common stock of $682,000 or 3 cents per share on sales of $13.3 million compared with $9.8 million or 41 cents per share on sales of $10.8 million in the same period a year ago. The 24 percent increase in sales reflects both product line extensions and acquisitions, which combined to offset a softening market for the company's sales of extended wear contact lenses. In the 1990 and 1989 fourth quarters, net income was increased by $.9 million and by $12.5 million, respectively, as a result of the reduction of certain tax accruals and, to a lesser extent, extraordinary gains on purchases of the company's debentures.

For the 1990 fiscal year, Cooper reported net income applicable to common stock of $3.0 million or 12 cents per share on sales of $48.2 million compared with a loss of $49.1 million or $2.09 per share on sales of $52.8 million in fiscal 1989. Sales for fiscal 1989 included $11 million from the international contact lens business which was sold in the second quarter of 1989.

Co-Chairmen Gary A. Singer and Bruce D. Sturman commented, in a jointly released statement, "The company is performing well, and is on target with our business plans. We have achieved improvements in our operations, including sales, margins, and asset management. In terms of business development, we have made a number of advances, including introductions of new products, acquisitions of additional product lines, and technology license agreements.

Net sales of the company's ongoing businesses were 15 percent higher in fiscal 1990 than a year ago. This was attributed to business development activities, the acquisition of Frigitronics in the second quarter of 1990 and the successful launch of new products throughout the year.

Gross profit margins for ongoing businesses rose from 58 percent to 62 percent of sales, reflecting primarily economies of scale, cost containment programs and product mix.

Total operating expenses were reduced by 16 percent or $8.4 million from 1989 levels. These reductions included $5.4 million from operations and $3.0 million from corporate expense.

CooperVision Pharmaceuticals began marketing EYEscrub to the ophthalmic pharmaceutical sector.

CooperSurgical progressed in developing its new business strategies, especially in non-ophthalmic areas, that are expected to broaden Cooper's product offerings and operations in the future.

RIVERTON, WY (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Energy Corp. (NASDAQ: USEG) and its 44 percent-subsidiary, Crested Corp. (NASDAQ: CBAG) have jointly announced that U.S. Energy (USE) has agreed to sell, and Crested has agreed to buy, one-ninth of USE's interest in the Sutter Gold Venture (SGV) for a price of $500,000. SGV is a mining venture formed between USE and Seine River Resources Inc. (SRRI), an unaffiliated company. SGV was formed to explore, develop and mine gold from leased properties in Amador County, Calif.

On Oct. 12, 1990, USE provided $4.5 million of the $5 million used to purchase mineral leases and related assets from FMC Gold Corp. (NYSE: FGL), which were subsequently contributed to SGV. SRRI had previously provided $500,000 of the purchase price to FMC Gold. SRRI has agreed to pay $2 million to USE in two installments due in April and October 1991, plus interest, in order to maintain a 50 percent interest in SGV. If SRRI fails to make those payments, its interest in SGV will be adjusted so that its percentage of ownership is equivalent to the portion of the $5 million purchase price it provides.

The price Crested has agreed to pay USE for its interest in SGV is the same as that paid by USE for an equivalent participation in the project. For its $500,000 payment to USE, Crested receives what is currently a 5.6 percent interest in SGV, and the right to one-ninth of any of the up to $2 million which SRRI must pay to prevent dilution of its interest in the project. Crested also incurs the obligation to pay its pro-rata share (currently 5.6 percent) of SGV's expenses, including a share of the initial $500,000 of joint venture costs being provided by USE. If SRRI fails to make the payments necessary to avoid dilution of its interest, Crested and SRRI will each hold 10 percent interests in the venture (each having contributed $500,000) and USE will have an 80 percent interest.

SGV's properties are located in the prolific Mother Lode Gold District near Sutter Creek, Calif., where gold was first discovered in 1848 starting the California Gold Rush. Mines in the surrounding area produced a reported 7.7 million ounces of gold prior to 1960, from veins extending as deep as 6,000 feet.

FMC Gold and a predecessor conducted exploration and development activities on portions of the properties now held by SGV. Through excavating a 2,800-foot decline, cross-cutting, raising and underground and surface drilling, two gold-bearing mineralized zones were identified. A preliminary feasibility study for gold production from those zones was then completed. That feasibility study reports the two zones contain approximately 631,200 tons of mineralized material averaging 0.351 troy ounces of gold per ton (OPT) for an equivalent of approximately 221,000 ounces of gold. Included in this mineralized material are probable reserves of 294,000 tons of mineralized material averaging 0.375 OPT, or approximately 110,000 troy ounces of gold.

Construction of a mill and tailings pond, and further development work, are required to exploit the mineralized zones. An estimated $15 million is needed to bring the ore bodies into production, exclusive of working capital requirements. USE/Crested and SRRI are currently investigating methods of obtaining the necessary funds. Appropriate environmental permits are being sought, and must be obtained, before mining and milling operations may begin.

Max T. Evans, president of Crested, stated, "Crested's board of directors was offered the opportunity to acquire up to one-half of USE's interest in SGV. However, to maintain a strong cash position, we elected to commit $500,000 for one-ninth of USE's interest. The project looks very promising. The feasibility study and work to date at the properties rely on drilling to depths of only 600 feet, but production at nearby mines was continuous to depths of 6,000 feet. The possibility of mineralization continuing below the levels explored to date makes the ore body particularly interesting."

USE and Crested are minerals exploration and development companies with interests in major uranium resources through Sheep Mountain Partners (with Cycle Resource Investment Corp.), and Green Mountain Mining Venture (with Kennecott Uranium Co.). SMP owns developed uranium properties and has contracts to deliver approximately 11 million pounds of uranium to various public utilities during the 1990s. USE and Crested also have equal interests in a world-class deposit of molybdenum, and various interests in gold and other base and precious metals properties.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Primerica Corporation (NYSE: PA) today announced that its subsidiary, Commercial Credit Company, has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire Landmark Financial Services, Inc. from MNC Financial, Inc. (NYSE: MNC).

The purchase includes approximately $355 million of net consumer finance receivables and two captive affiliated credit insurance companies for a purchase price of approximately $370 million, or a premium of $7 million over net tangible assets. Excluded from the transaction are Landmark's premium finance operation and servicing-retained real estate portfolio.

"This transaction demonstrates our continued focus on expanding our business through acquisitions of solid, healthy operations that can immediately add to earnings," said Robert I. Lipp, chairman of Primerica's Consumer Services group.

"The acquisition of Landmark gives Commercial Credit deeper penetration in several key states and access to new markets within those states. The business is very similar to Commercial Credit's and we expect a smooth integration, since Landmark already uses Action Data Services, our in-house data processing system."

Landmark, based in Silver Spring, Md., makes consumer loans through 116 offices, which are located in 10 contiguous states in the mid-Atlantic and southeast regions. As of Nov. 30, 1990, Commercial Credit had 663 branches in 37 states nationwide and a portfolio of $5.1 billion.

The lending operations of both Commercial Credit and Landmark provide consumers with primarily fixed-rate, fixed-term real estate-secured and personal loans. Each also has a relatively small sales finance program.

The closing of these proposed transactions is expected to occur in January 1991 and is subject to the approval of Primerica's board of directors and customary conditions, including regulatory approvals.

MNC Financial, Inc. is a $27+ billion-asset bank holding company headquartered in Baltimore, Md. Its principal subsidiaries include Maryland National Bank, the state's largest, American Security Bank, Washington, D.C., and MBNA America, of Newark, Del., the nation's leading issuer of endorsed group credit cards.

Primerica Corporation is a diversified financial services company principally engaged in life, credit, accident & health, and property & casualty insurance, investment banking and securities brokerage, mortgage banking, mutual funds, asset management, consumer lending and direct marketing. As of Sept. 30, 1990, Primerica had assets of approximately $21 billion.

PERKASIE, PA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Independence Bancorp (OTC: INBC) today announced it will add approximately $9 million to its loan loss provision in the fourth quarter of 1990.

Despite this provision, Independence said it expects 1990 earnings to exceed 1989 levels. Fourth quarter results are expected to show a nominal loss.

"As the recession sets in, increases in nonperforming loans and loan loss provisions are proving inescapable for virtually all banks," said John D. Harding, president and chief executive officer.

Independence will also charge off about $7 million in loans in the quarter. The loan loss reserve will be approximately 1.4 percent of total loans at year-end, compared with 1.35 percent at Sept. 30, 1990.

Nonperforming loans and other real estate owned are expected to increase to about $27 million, or 1.6 percent of total loans and other real estate owned, compared with $14.5 million, or .88 percent at Sept. 30, 1990.

"Our ongoing credit monitoring system indicated that several specific loans had deteriorated rapidly," said Harding. "We continually monitor our loan portfolio to ensure that we maintain proper levels of loan loss reserves relative to our total credit exposure. This is particularly important considering the deteriorating regional economy and weakening real estate markets that we are currently experiencing."

Independence's ratio of loan loss reserves to nonaccrual loans will be approximately 125 percent at Dec. 31, 1990.

Harding noted that Independence's strong balance sheet and capital levels will help the company weather the current economic climate. Independence's Tier I capital ratio will exceed 9 percent at Dec. 31, 1990, well above the required minimum of 3.625 percent.

"We expect to show modest earnings improvement for the year, and our basic strategies remain on course," Harding emphasized. "We are consolidating and standardizing operations so our community banks can more efficiently and effectively deliver services to their local communities, and we expect to continue to improve our core earnings stream in 1991."

Independence Bancorp is a $2.6 billion bank holding company for four community banks in eastern Pennsylvania: Bucks County Bank and Trust Co., Cheltenham Bank, Lehigh Valley Bank and Third National Bank and Trust Company of Scranton.

FARMINGTON HILLS, MI (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Creative House Advertising, Inc.

(CHAI) and The Public Relations Group, Inc. (PRG) have entered into a joint venture in which the two Detroit-area firms will work together to provide their clients with the full complement of advertising and public relations services.

The announcement, effective Dec. 1, 1990, was made jointly by Creative House President Ronald Merta and Vicki Lange and Dutton Morehouse, partners in The Public Relations Group.

Creative House Advertising, Inc. is a 26-year-old, full-service, marketing and research-driven advertising agency based in Farmington Hills.

The Public Relations Group, Inc. is a four-year-old firm based in Michigan and Wyoming. It provides a full range of public relations services including corporate, marketing and employee communications, government and community relations, special-event planning and management, media relations and speaker training.

PRG has moved its Detroit-area operations into the Farmington Hills offices of CHAI. The Public Relations Group also maintains an office in Laramie, Wyo., to service its clients in western states.

"We are extremely pleased that The Public Relations Group, Inc. has joined forces with Creative House Advertising," Merta said. "The addition of experienced and professional public relations practitioners, like Vicki and Dutton, fulfills one of the primary goals we identified in our five-year plan for growth. We believe that the new team of CHAI/PRG makes a strong combination to serve the broadcast range of a client's communication needs."

TWINSBURG, OH (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - General Computer Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: GCCC) reported today that its revenues increased 8 percent in the second quarter of fiscal 1991 as the company achieved its third consecutive quarter of profitable operations.

Revenues for the three months ended Nov. 30, 1990, totaled $3.1 million, compared to $2.9 million for the second quarter of fiscal 1990. Operating profit for the 1991 second quarter was $179,000, compared to an operating loss of $457,000 in the previous year's quarter. Net earnings were $18,000, or 1 cent per share, versus a net loss of $588,000, or 37 cents per share.

For the first six months of fiscal 1991, revenues were $6.5 million, an 11 percent improvement from the $5.9 million in the comparable period of fiscal 1990. Operating profit was $389,000 for the first half of fiscal 1991, versus an operating loss of $1,160,000 in the first six months of fiscal 1990. Net earnings were $70,000, or 4 cents per share, in the fiscal 1991 half, compared to a net loss of $1,402,000, or 89 cents per share, in the first six months of the previous fiscal year.

"We continue to show favorable comparisons in the service sector of the business," Richard R. Pilarczyk, president and chief executive officer, said. "Our revenue from the processing of prescription claims in the first half of fiscal 1991 was more than double that of the comparable period of fiscal 1990."

System sales in the fiscal 1991 second quarter felt the impact of economic conditions and were below the previous year's levels, although this year's quarter did include the first installations of General Computer's new Solution/90(TM) Unix-based pharmacy system which offers greater flexibility to the user. The new system has been well received by both existing GCC customers and non-GCC customers who are considering upgrading their systems.

"While we are pleased with our second quarter results and continue to believe that the claims processing base we have established will continue to expand, for the near term we still are subject to economic conditions in the marketplace which create a difficult environment for the sale of systems," Pilarczyk said.

General Computer Corporation is a leading developer of electronic systems and services for pharmacies and medical offices.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - SHL Systemhouse Inc. (NASDAQ: SHKIF) of Ottawa today announced that its Los Angeles branch has been awarded a US$32.5 million systems integration and outsourcing contract by Spectrum Healthcare Solutions of New York, which has been contracted by the Los Angeles County Department of Health to implement the Hospital Financial Information System for the six L.A. County-owned and operated hospitals.

Spectrum is a partnership between IBM of Armonk, N.Y., and Baxter Healthcare Corporation of Chicago and was established in January of this year through the merging of IBM's and Baxter's independent health systems divisions and assets.

Under the terms of the contract, Systemhouse will be responsible for the provision of all computer hardware, systems software, communication facilities a central data center and ongoing facilities management and system support. Systemhouse will supply an IBM ES 9000-500 mainframe processor and more than 1,200 remote terminals and personal computers running on a dedicated high-speed digital telecommunications network.

Spectrum will customize and implement hospital systems based on its application software packages currently installed in more than 60 sites around the world.

Systemhouse will bring the hospitals on-line in stages with the first fully installed in 13 months and the last in 30 months.

When fully operational, the system will run 24 hours a day, seven days a week and will be among the largest in the U.S. health care community handling all financial transactions for the 3,800-bed hospital network. The hospitals include the University of Southern California Medical Center, listed as the second largest hospital in the United States. The USC Medical Center alone has 100,000 admissions and 500,000 outpatient visits annually.

Los Angeles Vice President Paul Sweeny said, "The Spectrum-L.A. County system will be one of the most comprehensive and complex hospital financial information systems anywhere. In assisting L.A. County in providing the best level of health care possible, Systemhouse has established itself as the premier supplier of outsourcing services to the county. Moreover, ourselves, IBM and Baxter, through Spectrum, view this award as strategic with great potential for future cooperative efforts in the health care sector."

RICHMOND, VA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Heilig-Meyers Company (NYSE: HMY), the Richmond-based home furnishings retailer, today reported record revenues and earnings for the third quarter ended November 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the quarter increased to $4,917,000 or $.47 per share compared with net earnings of $4,744,000 or $.45 per share last year. Revenues for the quarter increased to $111.9 million as compared to $98.8 million in the prior year.

For the nine months ended November 30, 1990, net earnings rose to $16,908,000 or $1.60 per share compared to $14,529,000 or $1.38 per share (before the cumulative effect of an accounting change) in the prior year. Net earnings for the prior year, including $1,584,000 in nonrecurring income from the company's change in accounting for certain inventory costs, were $16,113,000 or $1.53 per share. Revenues for the period rose 15.8 percent to $333.6 million from $288.0 million.

William C. DeRusha, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, commented that the company has continued to produce sales and earnings gains despite a slowing economy and a general decline in industry sales.

Management believes the company's operating strategy, emphasizing its small town niche, broad product lines and aggressive advertising programs, will continue to favorbably influence operating results in this slowing economic environment.

The company also announced today that its Board of Directors declared a quarterly dividend of $.11 per share payable February 23, 1991 to stockholders of record on January 23, 1991. During the quarter, the company opened eight stores bringing the total number of stores in operation to 319 at November 30, 1990.

ANAHEIM, CALIF. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The parent company of Carl's Jr. restaurants announced today that a non-smoking policy will be implemented in all public areas of its 426 company-owned restaurants beginning Jan. 1, 1991. Carl's Jr. is the first major quick-service restaurant chain to voluntarily provide smoke-free dining in its restaurants.

Carl Karcher Enterprises Inc. (NASDAQ: CARL) cited the benefits of an improved dining experience and healthier atmosphere as the reasons for its decision. In addition, the company's franchises are also being encouraged to adopt a non-smoking policy.

"Carl's Jr. has been an innovator among quick-service restaurants in offering healthful and enjoyable meals quickly," said President and Chief Operating Officer Donald Karcher. "This new policy will offer our quests a fresher and healthier dining experience."

Since July 1990, the company has been testing a non-smoking policy in selected restaurants. While Carl's Jr. restaurants have been divided into smoking and non-smoking sections in the past, some local regulations have been successfully addressed by making an entire restaurant non-smoking.

Edward C. Cazier Jr., chairman of the American Cancer Society's California Division, praised the restaurant chain for implementing the new policy.

"The provision of a smokefree environment for diners is very much in the public interest, and we are very pleased to learn of this wise decision," he said. "The new policy will ensure that customers in Carl's Jr.'s company-owned restaurants are not involuntarily exposed to a known carcinogen -- tobacco smoke."

Organizations, including the American Cancer Society, National Academy of Sciences, and Environmental Protection Agency, have reported on the health hazards associated with passive smoking (also called secondhand smoke).

Carl's Jr., a regional chain of quick-service restaurants, is distinguished by its varied menu of charbroiled hamburgers, sandwiches and healthful, premium quality products. Founded in 1941, the company, its franchisees and licensees operate 568 Carl's Jr. Restaurants in California, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon and Japan.

FORT WASHINGTON, PA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Inc. (NYSE: RPR) today announced the successful completion of its offer to exchange Rhone-Poulenc Rorer shares for publicly owned shares of Laboratoire Roger Bellon.

Prior to the tender, Rhone-Poulenc Rorer owned 76.2 percent of Laboratoire Roger Bellon. In October, RPR announced its proposal to purchase the minority interest by exchanging ten Rhone-Poulenc Rorer shares for each Laboratoire Roger Bellon share outstanding.

With the successful closing of the tender, RPR has now acquired 97.7 percent of the Laboratoire Roger Bellon. The RPR shares exchanged will be admitted on the Paris Bourse as of the end of January 1991.

Until that time, the new equity in RPR will be traded as share exchange certificates on the Bourse. These exchange certificates will not be offered or sold to American investors.

The purchase of the minority interest in Laboratoire Roger Bellon by RPR Inc. is consistent with the company's strategy to consolidate and streamline operations.

In 1989, Laboratoire Roger Bellon generated sales of approximately $268 million and a net profit before minority interest of $31 million. Their product line includes both over-the-counter and ethical products. Hospitals and clinics account for approximately 50 percent of sales; approximately 80 percent of sales are in France.

Rhone-Poulenc Rorer Inc., is a global pharmaceutical company dedicated to the discovery, development, manufacturing, and marketing of human pharmaceuticals in eight major therapeutic areas: cardiovascular, infectious disease and AIDS, central nervous system and analgesia, allergy and inflammation, gastroenterology, bone metabolism, cancer and blood derivatives.

RPR has annualized sales of more than $3.5 billion and over $400 million per year investment in research. The company operates in all major markets of the world.

PHOENIX, AZ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Phelps Dodge Corporation (NYSE: PD) today announced that the Morenci Mining venture has discovered substantial open-pit mineable copper mineralization, known as the Coronado deposit, in the Morenci District north of the Morenci, Arizona open pit mine. Morenci Mining is a venture between Phelps Dodge Morenci, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corporation, which holds an undivided 85 percent interest in the venture, and Sumitomo Metal Mining Arizona, Inc., a jointly-owned subsidiary of Sumitomo Metal Mining Co., Ltd., and Sumitomo Corporation, both of Japan, which holds the remaining 15 percent interest.

During 1989 and 1990, sixty drill holes were completed which identified chalcocite mineralization that is continuous over the project area and averages 430 feet in thickness with a maximum thickness in excess of 800 feet. The chalcocite deposit is overlain by leachable copper oxide mineralization averaging 300 feet in thickness. Combined sulfide and oxide geological reserves in excess of 150 million tons grading 0.7 percent copper are indicated. Metallurgical testing demonstrates that the deposit is amenable to copper recovery by flotation and by heap leaching using solvent extraction/electrowinning.

Drilling of the area continues to define additional mineralization and will continue during 1991.

Phelps Dodge is the world's second largest producer of copper. The company is also the world's second largest producer of carbon blacks, the leading North American fabricator of wheels and rims for medium and heavy trucks, a major manufacturer of magnet wire and specialty conductors, and has operations and investments overseas in mines and wire and cable manufacturing facilities. The company's operations are located throughout the United States and in twenty- two other countries.

CHARLOTTE, NC (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - First Union Corporation (NYSE: FTU) has agreed to work as a consultant with the Madison Financial Group to help establish a retail bank in Gdansk, Poland.

Solidarnosc-Chase Bank, expected to open in the second quarter of 1991, will be one of the country's first private financial institutions in post-Communist Poland.

The private venture is a marked departure from Poland's existing banking system, which was operated by the Communist Party and primarily served commercial customers.

Interestingly, the new bank will open its first office in the building that formerly housed some of the Communist Party headquarters staff in Gdansk.

"One of our biggest challenges will be convincing the public that the bank is safe and convenient," said Terry G. Friddle, vice president in First Union's International Division. "Under the old banking structure, it was sometimes difficult to make a withdrawal, so people tended to stash their cash in the cookie jar."

First Union has agreed to provide technical and planning expertise in a number of areas, including design of physical properties and building renovations; organization and staffing; automation and operations; systems design; branch operations; marketing and advertising; accounting, financial, audit and regulatory controls, and compliance; policies and procedures; and document design. First Union Corporation will have no equity investment in the Polish bank.

The bank will be 51-percent owned by the Solidarity Foundation, a for-profit arm of Solidarity. The remaining 49 percent will be owned by Chase International Corp. and its partners, the American European Special Opportunity Fund (ESOP) and the U.S. Sheetmetal Workers National Pension Fund.

"This is an important step toward building a more prosperous Poland, and we are grateful to First Union for its support," said Jerzy Kobylinski, head of the Solidarity Foundation.

Chase is a Connecticut-based company whose interests include real estate development, broadcasting, financial services, insurance and product design engineering.

Chase and its partners will provide $6 million in capital to start the new bank, and Solidarity will grant exclusive rights to the use of the Solidarity name and logo, valued at $6 million. Future investment may be raised in public offering.

RICHARDSON, TX (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - CONVEX Computer Corporation (NYSE: CNX) announced today that Allied Geophysical Laboratories (AGL) at the University of Houston has installed a CONVEX C210 supercomputer. The system will be used extensively on a Texas- funded project called the State Lands Energy Research Optimization Program of SLERO. The goal of the project is to increase the amount of oil and gas produced on state-owned lands.

The Texas Bureau of Economic Geology oversees the project, which links researchers from the University of Houston, the University of Texas, Texas A&M and Texas Tech. The $8 million program will focus on ten state-owned reservoirs over a four-year period.

Researchers at the AGL will use the CONVEX supercomputer to tabulate data from seismic testing, called cross-holed tomography, to develop a more accurate picture of the underground geological structure of an oil or gas reservoir. With a better understanding of the makeup of a reservoir, producers can plan the ideal location for conventional wells or the proper depth placement for horizontal wells to maximize the recovery potential of the reservoir.

CONVEX sponsors an aggressive third-party software program that has attracted leading software vendors in a variety of fields. Currently, there are more than 900 third-party software packages available that take advantage of the C Series' advanced architecture. Almost 150 of these widely-used applications support the petroleum market and have been optimized for high performance on the CONVEX platform.

The Allied Geophysical Laboratories at the University of Houston is an interdisciplinary set of labs linking faculty and students from the departments of geosciences, computer science, mechanical and electrical engineering. The AGL has attracted more than $10 million from industry and government sources during the past ten years, surpassing several of the nation's most prestigious universities. Current funding from the Department of Energy, the State of Texas, and from industrial consortium members exceeds $1 million annually.

The University of Houston ranks among the great urban research institutions, ranking in the top 20 nationwide in National Merit Scholars enrolled as part of the 33,000-member student body. In 1990 the university conducted more than $43 million in nationally-recognized research in areas as diverse as superconductivity, commercial development of space, space habitat design, improved oil recovery, international business and health law.

CONVEX Computer Corporation, a leading supplier of supercomputers worldwide, was founded in 1982 to design, manufacture, market and service high performance systems. The company markets its products primarily to scientific engineering and technical users throughout the world for a wide variety of applications in such areas as geophysical processing, computational chemistry, computer-aided engineering, image and signal processing, aerospace simulations and molecular biology. CONVEX has sold some 750 systems in 34 countries. The installed base now represents more than half a billion dollars of cumulative revenues from more than 400 customers worldwide. The systems are sold and serviced through direct sales and an extensive distribution network around the world.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - In support of Operation Desert Shield, MCI Communications Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC) today announced it is donating free domestic long-distance services and short-wave radio equipment to the Armed Forces Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS).

Through the use of short-wave radio equipment manned by MARS operators in Saudi Arabia, American soldiers can contact any of 185 designated MARS stations in the United States. The domestic MARS operator can then contact the soldier's family in the United States and link the two by using MCI's long-distance telephone service. Eligible military personnel in the Navy and Marine Corps, Air Force and Army will have the opportunity to place free calls home for a five-minute period. MCI will donate the domestic long-distance calls. The service will be available for a 90-day period beginning Dec. 20, 1990.

MCI is also providing the equipment to establish 15 new MARS short-wave radio stations in Saudi Arabia.

"MCI's purchase of radio equipment and the donation of free long-distance service will assist Saudi-based U.S. soldiers in making calls home during the holidays and long after," said Kevin Sharer, MCI's president for business markets. "Americans assigned to Operation Desert Shield have had limited telephone access, particularly those soldiers stationed in remote areas. MCI's goal is to enable more U.S. troops to communicate with their families, at no cost."

Robert Loe, chief of the Navy-Marine Corps MARS, said, "The donation to provide greater telephone access to our U.S. troops is a significant morale booster, particularly during the holiday season."

MARS, founded more than 40 years ago, is comprised of individual systems in the Army, Air Force and Navy-Marine Corps. The membership consists of approximately 8,000 volunteer civilian amateur radio operators with some volunteer military members at military bases and aboard ships. MARS is known primarily for MARSGRAMS and radio-telephone calls placed for military personnel overseas. This morale and welfare traffic provides training to help MARS volunteers augment the services' regular means of communication in times of emergency. Operation Desert Shield has significantly increase MARS activity and led to innovations for handling large volumes of traffic from halfway around the world.

In September 1990, MCI announced that it was donating free emergency long-distance telephone service to U.S. military troops in Saudi Arabia through the American Red Cross. This MCI-Red Cross service is still in operation for an indefinite period.

MCI is the nation's second largest long-distance provider, supplying a full range of voice and data telecommunication services to business and residential customers and government agencies. MCI's long-distance services enable customers to call throughout the United States and dial direct to more than 170 countries representing 99 percent of overseas calling from the United States.

MCI Government Systems, a part of the MCI Enterprises Group, provides long-distance communications to the U.S. federal government, including the Department of Defense.

KEARNY, NJ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Goody Products, Inc. (NASDAQ: GOOD) announced today that the company has entered into a license agreement with Walt Disney Company, Inc. (NYSE: DIS) for the production and distribution of a line of hair accessories and cosmetic and travel organizers and accessories depicting a range of Disney characters.

This agreement with Disney closely follows the previously announced licensing agreement with Mattel, Inc. (NYSE: MAT) for the production and distribution of a line of hair accessories under the trade name "Barbie for Girls(TM)", which has met with an overwhelming response from the trade.

Leonard Goodman, chairman and CEO of Goody said, "We are extremely excited to have secured the Disney license for our hair accessories and Pretty Neat(R) product lines. In combination with the recently announced Barbie license, Goody now has two of the strongest licensed names in the personal products business. As a result, we confidently expect considerable added volume from these products in 1991."

Under the agreement with Disney, Goody has acquired the right to produce and market a complete line of hair accessories representing such Disney characters as Mickey Mouse, Minnie Mouse, Donald Duck, Daisy Duck, Pluto, Goofy, the Three Little Pigs and Clarabelle Cow, among other characters. These licensed products include barrettes, ponytail holders, fashion combs, headbands, hair ribbons and ties, clips, hair brushes, combs and mirrors, among others. The license also includes the use of Disney Babies characters specifically for barrettes and headbands.

Goody will also be producing a Disney line of decorative fashion hair accessories to be marketed primarily to department and specialty stores. This fashion line should provide additional sales potential and market extension since it represents Goody's initial penetration of the department and specialty store market.

The Disney license extends to Goody's Pretty Neat products which will use Disney characters in a children's line of cosmetic cases, personal organizers, travel cases, as well as travel accessories including plastic bottles, soap holders, toothbrush holders, etc.

The "Barbie for Girls" line has already been previewed by many of Goody's major customers and the order rate has far exceeded management's most optimistic expectations. "We expect to introduce and preview our Disney product line in the first quarter of 1991," Goodman noted, "and we anticipate a similarly strong trade response."

Both the Barbie line and Disney line should provide Goody with a strong presence in new channels of distribution. "In addition to Goody's traditional outlets, we expect to penetrate childrens' apparel chains, major toy chains and toy departments of our mass merchandise customers," Goodman said. "Moreover, Barbie and Disney should produce additional holiday season volume which will aid our traditionally soft fourth quarter."

Goody Products, Inc. is engaged in the design, manufacture and marketing of a wide variety of hair accessories and owns and operates three additional consumer products subsidiaries and divisions: Opti- Ray, a designer and marketer of high quality fashion sunglasses; Ace Comb, a manufacturer of premium, quality hard rubber combs, and Pretty Neat Products, a producer of plastic cosmetic organizers.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Stone & Webster, Incorporated (NYSE: SW) today declared a quarterly cash dividend of 15 cents per share on the outstanding common stock of the corporation, which if continued at the reduced rate would be at the annual rate of 60 cents per year.

This is a reduction of the dividend previously paid at the rate of $1.20 per year. The total dividend paid in 1990 was $1.20 per share. The dividend is payable Feb. 15, 1991, to stockholders of record on Jan. 2, 1991.

William F. Allen Jr., chairman and chief executive, stated: "As indicated in our 1989 annual report to stockholders, we are keeping highly skilled employees on the payroll whose time is not presently wholly chargeable to clients.

"In our opinion, because of anticipated shortages in power generation capacity electric utilities will face sizable expenditures for services and equipment required to satisfy a growing demand for power in the 1990s. Benefits to Stone & Webster will not be realized until after 1990.

"While we are holding staff which we feel will be required to meet the demand for our services in the power business, we are expanding into other major areas of environmental protection, restoration, rebuilding and enlargement of the nation's infrastructure. Strong demand for our services continues from the process industry.

"Keeping a staff of people on the payroll who are not chargeable to clients but who will be, contributes to increasing our operating expenses - as does our ongoing efforts to develop and maintain our "high technology" capabilities.

"Our workload has increased significantly in the last quarter of 1990 in the U.S. and internationally. The commencement of effort on these new projects requires large cash expenditures for payroll and related start-up costs."

SOUTHPORT, CT (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Kleban and Samor, P.C., a Southport law firm, announced today that Furrari, Inc. has filed for protection from creditors and will seek to reorganize under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Code.

Furrari, one of the region's largest fur dealers, sells its garments primarily through concessions it holds at Lord & Taylor stores, where it operates under the trade name Fur Salon, and at Alexanders, where it operates as Furmakers.

Kleban and Samor filed the petition for Furrari in the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York. Furrari is headquartered at 307 7th Ave., New York.

The petition cites assets of $13.5 million and liabilities of $22.7 million.

Elliot I. Miller, of counsel to Kleban and Samor, will direct the case for Furrari. Miller also represents Antonovich, Inc., a retail furrier in the tri-state area that is operating under a Chapter 11 petition filed approximately a year ago.

"There has been great pressure on the fur industry from animal rights activists," Miller said. "In addition, the downturn in the economy, a warm start to the winter and a Korean company's takeover attempt have created too great a financial strain for Furrari."

Miller said Furrari previously filed a civil suit against Ronlee Apparel Company of Korea and the Republic National Bank of New York because of the bank's reneging on a $9 million credit agreement under apparent pressure from Ronlee.

"Ronlee previously sought to acquire Furrari, a privately held company. We believe we will prevail in litigation against Ronlee, and we have pledged to use any award in that case to pay current Furrari vendors and creditors," Miller said.

HOUSTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Team, Inc. (AMEX: TMI), today announced operating results for its second quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990. Pre-tax earnings rose 73 percent to $2,685,000 compared to $1,554,000 in the same quarter last year, while revenues increased 43 percent to $28,780,000 from $20,146,000. Net earnings were $1,653,000, reflecting an increase of 72 percent from the same quarter last year.

On a fully diluted basis, earnings per share were $.35 for the quarter compared to $.31 for the second quarter of the prior year. The number of weighted average shares used in computing fully diluted earnings per share in the quarter increased 37 percent over the number of shares used in the second quarter of the prior fiscal year as a result of the completion in November 1990 of Team's public stock offering.

Team's President and Chairman of the Board, H. Wesley Hall, stated, "We are pleased with the results for the quarter, as revenues increased over the same period last year in each of Team's three divisions." Led by a growth in emissions monitoring and control services, revenues in the repair and specialty services division rose 36 percent. The company expects to continue the expansion of these services in order to assist its customers in complying with the requirements of the new Clean Air Act. In this regard, as previously announced, the company has completed its acquisition of Source Environmental Sciences, Inc., a professional environmental consulting firm specializing in air quality monitoring and related services.

In the transportation division, revenues rose 45 percent due primarily to increased demand in oilfield rental equipment and product related services. The division also continues to expand its industrial transportation business in the Houston area.

Revenues from the privatized services division's highway maintenance and repair services returned to near normal levels during the quarter. The division's revenues increased 57 percent over the second quarter of 1990, primarily as a result of increases from the federal sector, water consulting business and street repair contracts with the City of Houston.

Team, Inc. is a national service company providing environmental engineering and monitoring services to America's industrial facilities and repair and maintenance services to the public and private infrastructure. Headquartered in Houston the company has 57 operating locations in 24 states and serves the international market through licensee arrangements in 12 countries.

The work, which the Air Force has given a high priority, is expected to be completed by the summer of 1991, according to Transact. Dover is reportedly a key staging area for priority air cargo destined for "Operation Desert Shield" in Saudi Arabia.

In announcing the contract, Frank B. Carder, president of Transact, noted, "Right now, the U.S. Air Force is engaged in a massive airlift of men, equipment, vehicles, munitions and other cargo. It's gratifying to us to be one of the very few organizations in the world that can meet their unique demands and help them get their job done. We're pleased that they asked us to work with them again at Dover."

Carder stated that the contract calls for replacing outmoded equipment with four new, dual-pallet Elevating Transfer Vehicles, each with a capacity of 15 tons and capable of fully automatic operation. There will also be 13 new staging docks, which provide the necessary link to move pallets or containers to and from the ETV storage facility and mobile aircraft loaders.

With the addition of this new contract, Transact reported that its backlog of orders as of Dec. 15, 1990, is approximately $14 million, compared to an order backlog of approximately $5 million a year earlier.

Transact International is a specialized design, engineering and manufacturing organization which produces air cargo handling systems for airlines, air freight companies, and the U.S. Air Force. The company's executive offices are in Darien, with manufacturing facilities in Memphis, Tenn.

MONTPELIER, VT (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Six new energy efficiency initiatives, designed to lower the electric bills of Green Mountain Power's (NYSE: GMP) customers and protect the environment, were announced today by the collaborative parties that developed them.

New conservation initiatives for both residential and commercial customers would be launched in 1991 under the plan, which was submitted Monday to the Vermont Public Service Board (VPSB) by GMP, the Department of Public Service, the Conservation Law Foundation (CLF), the Vermont Natural Resources Council (VNRC), and the Vermont Public Interest Research Group (VPIRG).

The plan calls for GMP to increase investments in conservation, spending $1 million over the next two years for residential programs, and $5 million for commercial programs. These programs are projected to save about 4 MW of capacity by the end of 1992. Additional programs, involving more funding and savings, are under negotiation.

The collaborative process that brought together environmental and public interest groups, state agencies and the utilities resulted from an order issued by the Vermont Public Service Board in 1988. The board, after lengthy hearings, called for enhanced energy efficiency initiatives and promoted the use of cooperative negotiations to achieve this goal.

Spokespersons for the various groups that worked together to develop the GMP proposal said further negotiations are being held on certain important features of its long-range implementation plan. These issues are expected to be resolved by the time final program designs are submitted to the board.

In announcing the GMP programs today, the groups participating in the planning process said the current Mideast crisis and the resulting uncertainty about oil prices and supply has intensified the need for immediate energy efficiency investments.

They emphasized that the first round of efficiency programs is only the beginning, and that all of the parties will continue research and development of additional programs and measures needed for full achievement of least-cost planning.

Conservation and demand-side management, they said, has now become a permanent part of Vermont's energy planning, taking its place alongside power supply planning.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - All Nippon Airways (ANA) signed an agreement today with Airbus Industrie for 10 Airbus A340s, five firm and five options.

ANA is the first Far Eastern airline to announce an order for the ultra-long range A340. Deliveries will begin in 1996.

ANA has selected the larger of the two versions of the aircraft, the A340-300, but has the flexibility to switch to other members of the Airbus A330/A340 family. The A340s are ideal for non-stop long-range services, as well as thin routes to distant cities in the United States, Europe and other parts of the world into which ANA is expanding with new services.

The carrier previously ordered the short to medium-range Airbus A320, placing 13 firm orders and seven options, which will be delivered beginning early next year. The Airbus A320 and A340 have extensive commonality in cockpit and systems and will bring ANA important savings in training and maintenance.

Total commitments for the Airbus A330 and A340 now stand at 424 from 30 customers, including 220 firm orders.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - GATX Terminals Corporation in conjunction with joint venture partners Paktank International and Chicago Bridge & Iron Company, have opened a newly constructed petroleum storage terminal in Singapore. The $100 million facility is comprised of 35 tanks with over 3.2 million barrels of storage capacity.

"The Singapore transshipment market holds a viable future for distribution of petroleum products because of its excellent port facilities and ideal physical location at the hub of the one of the world's most progressive regions," stated Robert E. Claypoole, president, GATX Terminals.

"Since the mid 1970's GATX Terminals has operated a chemical terminal facility in Jurong Town. The new facility enables GATX Terminals to expand its Asian customer services to satisfy the rising petroleum product need in the region."

Located off the west coast of Singapore on the island of Pulau Busing, the terminal is self sufficient with three diesel powered generators providing power for utilities, buildings and the instrumentation at the terminal. The product transfer pumps for each product grade are also diesel engine driven.

The terminal is equipped with a state-of-the-art fire protection system with three diesel powered fire pumps, two fire trucks, foam systems on all tanks and jetties, and tank waterspray cooling systems on each tank. Communication with the mainland is done via wireless telephone.

GATX Terminals Corporation, a subsidiary of GATX Corporation (NYSE: GMT),

Chicago, is the largest bulk liquid public storage company in the world with 49 facilities in North America, the United Kingdom, Europe and Asia. LEXINGTON, MASS. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Raytheon Company's (NYSE: RTN) board of directors today elected Robert A. Skelly a vice president of the $8.8 billion diversified electronics company. It was also announced that Skelly, who is currently the assistant to the president of Raytheon, will become the company's vice president of public and financial relations, effective Jan. 1, 1991.

Skelly will replace Walter H. Palmer, who will become the vice president for external affairs. Palmer will fill the position vacated by Senior Vice President Charles W. Schmidt who is retiring at the end of this year.

Schmidt joined Raytheon in 1986, after serving as president and CEO of both SCA Services, Inc., and S. D. Warren Co.

In his new position, Skelly will be responsible for the corporation's public and financial relations, employee communications, advertising and executive communications activities.

Skelly, 48, joined Raytheon in 1969 as a subcontracts administrator at the company's manufacturing facility in Andover, Mass. He held increasing positions of responsibility including plant purchasing manager, manager of materials operations and administration manager for the 17,000 member Missile Systems Division, headquartered in Bedford, Mass. He has been in his current position since August 1989.

Skelly earned a bachelor's of arts degree from Boston College and an M.B.A. from Northeastern University. He and his family live in Chelmsford, Mass.

In his new position, Palmer will represent Raytheon with a variety of outside publics, including customers, universities and plant communities.

Palmer, 61, joined Raytheon in 1970 to direct the company's equal opportunity programs. In 1974 he assumed the additional responsibility of directing the company's public affairs and community relations activities. He was elected a vice president and moved to his current position in 1986.

Prior to joining Raytheon, Palmer served as president of the Boston Urban Coalition and prior to that as director of public affairs for the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

He is vice chairman of the New England Foundation for the Arts and treasurer of the Boston Arts Fund. Palmer is a trustee of Cambridge College, the Cotting School, the New England Conservatory and the Carol DiMaiti Stuart Foundation.

LONDON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Expanding its commitment to the U.K., Wasserstein Perella Group Inc., the international investment banking firm, announced today the appointment of Sir Peter Levene KBE as deputy chairman of its U.K. company, Wasserstein Perella & Co. International, Ltd. Sir Peter will join Wasserstein Perella in 1991, following the completion of his responsibilities as Chief of Defence Procurement for the Ministry of Defence. Sir Peter also will become a managing director and shareholder of Wasserstein Perella Group Inc.

Sir Peter, 49, has served in his current position since March 1985 and as chairman of NATO European National Armaments Directors since 1989. He is widely credited with significant improvements in the cost effectiveness and efficiency of U.K. defense procurements. Previously, Sir Peter was an industrialist, most recently managing director and then chairman of United Scientific Holdings.

Sir Peter's appointment is the latest step in Wasserstein Perella's European strategy. Recently, the firm opened its office in Paris, formed an ECU 300 million Euro Mezzanine Fund with Banque Paribas and appointed Professor Franco Reviglio, formerly chairman of ENI and Minister of Finance of Italy, as a senior director. During 1990 Wasserstein Perella has advised, among others, BASF, Dentsu, Henkel, International Paper, Dairy Farm (of the Jardine Matheson Group) and Sankyo Pharmaceutical on European-related assignments, and is currently advising France Telecom in its consortium bid for Telefonos de Mexico. In the U.K., it has advised, among others, Beecham in the formation of SmithKline Beecham, International Paper in the acquisition of the Cookson Graphic Arts business and Burmah Castrol in its current bid for Foseco. In its U.K. merchant banking activities, Wasserstein Perella acquired Yardley

Lentheric in June 1990 from SmithKline Beecham and holds a significant investment in the U.K. supermarket retailer, Isosceles, both through the $1.06 billion leveraged buy-out fund which Wasserstein Perella manages.

Sir Peter Levene studied economics and political science at the University of Manchester. He is an Alderman (Ward of Portsoken) of the City of London. He is married and has three children. He will take up his appointment with Wasserstein Perella by mid-1991.

Wasserstein Perella Group, Inc. is a leading international advisory and merchant banking firm that represents client interests with respect to mergers and acquisitions, restructurings, takeover defenses, corporate sales and divestitures, corporate real estate, recapitalizations, leveraged buyouts, and related financings. WP Group also provides financial advisory-related services, such as fairness and adequacy opinions and evaluations. Through an affiliate, WP Group also acts as a principal in merchant banking transactions.

TROY, MI (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - R.P. Scherer Corporation announced today that it has completed the acquisition of Polysystems Limited, a United Kingdom-based company specializing in the development and marketing of the PULSINCAP(TM) drug delivery system.

Polysystems Limited is located in Clydebank, Scotland, and is the inventor of the PULSINCAP dosage form. Polysystems Limited has an exclusive worldwide option on the rights to develop and exploit the PULSINCAP device covered by patent applications owned by the U.K. government body, the British Technology Group.

Polysystems Limited has been acquired by R.P. Scherer Holdings Limited, the U.K. subsidiary of R.P. Scherer Corporation. The new management team at Polysystems Limited will be:

-- Dr. Harry Seager, managing director -- Dr. Howard Stevens, technical director -- Peter Virley, marketing director -- Lionel Tebbutt, finance director Dr. Seager said Tuesday, Dec. 18: "The PULSINCAP technology forms the basis of an exciting novel patentable oral drug delivery system, which is entirely in tune with modern pharmaceutical thinking on the therapeutic importance of controlled pulsed delivery of medicaments to their site of action."

The PULSINCAP device is designed to release the drug and to provide a dose of medicament in the gastrointestinal tract at some predetermined time point. The device consists of a capsule composed of a water- insoluble body and a water-soluble cap. The drug formulation is contained within the capsule body and is sealed within this region by means of a hydrogel polymeric plug.

When the PULSINCAP formulation is swallowed and the product is exposed to gastric juice, the capsule cap dissolves and the hydrogel polymer swells. At a predetermined and controlled time point after ingestion, e.g. two, four, six or eight hours, (controlled by the size and position of the hydrogel plug) the swollen polymer is ejected from the PULSINCAP dosage form. The encapsulated drug formulation is then released into the small intestine or colon, where the active material dissolves in the intestinal fluid and is then absorbed into the blood stream.

PULSINCAP dosage forms will be used to treat diseases which require medication in a number of ways. For example, those requiring:

-- Morning dosing to give a pulse of drug at sometime later in the day when a circadian rhythm indicates the need for a dose of medicament, e.g. in the treatment of cancer and hormone therapy.

-- Evening dosing to avoid the effects of tolerance which may develop through the use of sustained release products, by delivering a pulse of drug at some time point in the night, e.g. to treat nocturnal asthma, to prevent morning stiffness in arthritics and to avoid morning cardiovascular stress, etc.

-- The intestinal or colonic delivery of drugs for the local treatment of gastrointestinal diseases.

-- The colonic delivery and systematic absorption of peptides and proteins.

The PULSINCAP dosage form can be formulated to contain a wide variety of drug substances produced by the pharmaceutical industry, and the technology has significant medical and commercial potential.

The PULSINCAP device provides an important extension to the existing rapidly developing drug delivery business of R.P. Scherer, based on the patented SCHERERSOL(R) softgel systems and the ZYDIS(R) fast-dissolving dosage form.

R.P. Scherer is a leading developer and manufacturer of drug delivery systems. Scherer's proprietary and patented drug delivery systems optimize the efficacy of drugs by regulating the dosage, rate of absorption, and place of release. In addition to being the world's largest developer and manufacturer of softgels, Scherer's drug delivery range includes the patented SCHERERSOL and ZYDIS systems. The company operates a global network of 14 facilities in 13 countries. R.P. Scherer is now a subsidiary of RPS Corporation (OTC: RPCPP).

NORTHVALE, NJ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Geritech Inc. today announced the signing of agreements forming a strategic alliance with Marion Merrell Dow Inc. (NYSE: MKC) (MMD) to develop and commercialize a new field of biomedical technology that holds increasingly strong promise for treating many health effects of diabetes and aging.

The alliance covers certain Geritech technologies stemming from discoveries, made at Rockefeller University, about biochemical reactions that appear to play an important role in diabetic complications. The Rockefeller scientists believe that these reactions also are involved in certain aging processes. This research has already led to human clinical trials of a drug called aminoguanidine for diabetic complications and eventually may yield treatments for some health effects of aging. The trials were supported by the successful completion of efficacy studies in numerous animal models.

The arrangements include a research and development collaboration through which the pivotal clinical trials of aminoguanidine and possibly other Geritech compounds will continue; a joint marketing agreement providing for the joint promotion of these compounds by both companies in North America and several important markets in Europe; an exclusive license to MMD for certain other important markets; and a manufacturing and supply agreement. Marion Merrell Dow also acquires an 8 percent ownership of Geritech and a right of first negotiation on certain ancillary technologies of the New Jersey-based firm.

Geritech receives significant initial payments under the agreements, a share of the profits from the joint marketing territories and royalties on MMD's sales in their licensed territories. Funding for future clinical development is provided by MMD.

Marion Merrell Dow is a major multi-national pharmaceutical company formed in 1989 through the merger of Marion Laboratories with the Merrell Dow Pharmaceutical Division of the Dow Chemical Company. Estimated 1990 sales are $2.4 billion and the company has approximately 9,000 associates (employees). MMD's focus is on research and development and strong sales and marketing. The merger almost doubled MMD's combined sales force in the U.S. to 1,100 representatives.

Geritech is a privately owned pharmaceutical and biotechnology company devoted to the research and development of therapeutics for diabetic and aging complications.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The United Steelworkers of America (USW) today said it will be notifying its full committee of local union presidents at all USX Corp. (NYSE: X) facilities to be in Pittsburgh on Jan. 7, 1991, for a resumption of negotiations.

Notification to the local union leaders was made by Andrew "Lefty" Palm, chairman of the USW's negotiating committee and John H. Reck, secretary to the committee.

The current contract expires Feb. 1, 1991. USX and union representatives began bargaining Oct. 15, but both sides suspended negotiations when they were unsuccessful in reaching an early agreement by Nov. 10.

"We've kept the door open for resumption of the process," Palm said, "and the groundwork has been laid for us to negotiate an agreement that meets the needs of our members."

Since the suspension of the negotiations, the USW has held numerous membership information meetings and has mailed a number of reports on the union's bargaining position to its members.

The USW represents about 18,000 workers in 27 local unions at USX mining and steelmaking operations located in seven states.

MINNEAPOLIS/ST. PAUL (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Minnesota state administration officials and IBM executives today announced a partnership agreement believed to be the nation's first in which a corporation has agreed to invest substantially in helping to improve the state's government and business practices.

Under the agreement, IBM will invest nearly $1 million and will join the Department of Administration's InterTechnologies Group in developing a series of computerized "expert systems" designed to transform service delivery to state citizens. The $1 million includes staff, software, equipment and services.

IBM Minnesota General Manager Art Wick said the partnership is an innovative approach to providing state services.

"Our agreement helps state government develop state-of-the-art technology," he said. "That translates into better services for Minnesota citizens."

Administration Commissioner Sandra J. Hale said the project will help the computer industry by advancing the development of expert systems.

Hale said the Department of Administration reached an agreement with IBM after a Request for Proposal process earlier this year. The agreement is part of the Alliances for Technology (AllTech) program which encourages the development of similar customer-driven technology products.

Expert systems are a field of artificial intelligence which shows great promise. An expert system "clones," or transfers, the knowledge of a human expert onto a software program. They can be used to more quickly provide quality state services to citizens from a variety of agency applications.

PEAKSolutions, Inc., a Bloomington-based software company, will be the subcontractor responsible for the actual development of the software. The first phase of the project will include testing the concept of a "solution factory" which would use expert systems to develop future expert systems, said Larry Walker, president of PEAKSolutions.

A number of expert systems applications already exist in the corporate sector, and government applications exist for education, welfare, transportation and health care. Harvard University's Dr. Jerry Mechling asserts that no other state government has undertaken such a broad-scale effort to apply expert systems technology toward solving public problems and providing improved customer service.

ATLANTA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Home Depot (NYSE: HD), the nation's largest home center retailer, today announced that it plans to open its first store in the Baltimore area during the summer of 1991.

The store, which will have approximately 100,000 square feet of inside selling area and a 30,000-square-foot outdoor lawn and garden center, will be located at the intersection of Highway 10 and Ordnance Road in Glen Burnie, Md.

The company also plans to open a store of similar size in White Marsh, Md., at the corner of Route 40 and Mohrs Lane but has not yet set an opening date. By the end of 1993, The Home Depot expects to be operating a total of at least four Home Depot stores in the Baltimore area.

According to Home Depot Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Bernard Marcus, "The move into the Baltimore area has been prompted by exceptional opportunities to join with The Price Club as a co-anchor at their shopping center developments in Glen Burnie and White Marsh."

The move into Baltimore is part of The Home Depot's effort to increase its presence in the northeastern United States. The company opened its first store in the Northeast in January 1989 and now operates a total of ten stores in New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

Despite the relatively weak regional economy, those stores are among the busiest in the company and they continue to set new sales records. Over the long term, The Home Depot believes that the Northeast has the potential to become one of the company's largest markets.

Atlanta-based Home Depot currently operates 137 stores in 12 states. Founded in 1978, the company is now widely regarded as the leading retailer in the home center industry.

Its warehouse-style stores stock approximately 30,000 different kinds of building materials, home improvement and lawn and garden products which are sold primarily to do-it-yourselfers. The Home Depot's stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol "HD" and is included in the Standard & Poors 500 Index.

More than $5.2 million will have been contributed to non-profit Canadian cultural, health, educational, and environmental organizations, the company said today.

Shell's contributions program supported higher education at Canadian universities and technical colleges with more than $1.5 million in 1990. In addition, across the country Shell's donations program paid out more than $800,000 in Ontario, $798,000 in Alberta, and $500,000 in Quebec. Another $1.3 million supported programs and institutions in other areas of Canada where the company has its operations.

Among the major projects supported in 1990 were the following: the establishment of 43 new scholarships at 21 universities and technical colleges across the country; the addition of the Vancouver Symphony to complete the Shell Student Concert programs across Canada; the Western Heritage Centre in Alberta; the YM/YWCA Building Campaign in Winnipeg; the Mt. Sinai Hospital in Toronto; the Montreal Neurological Institute, and the Izaak Walton Killam Children's Hospital in Halifax.

In June 1990, the company launched the Shell Environmental Fund, a program that provides up to $5,000 per project and $1 million per year towards environmental initiatives by community groups and individuals across the country. During its first six months of operation, the Shell Environmental Fund approved 166 projects for $340,000.

''I am proud of Shell Canada's continuing record in community support,'' said Jack MacLeod, president and chief executive officer. ''We are also pleased to add to our program an environmental focus through the Shell Environmental Fund. The success of this Fund and the worthiness of programs and institutions supported through our contributions program help to fulfil the growing and changing needs of our society.''

Shell Canada also supports community groups in which employees volunteer their personal time. The Community Service Fund, managed by employees, provides up to $1,500 each to qualifying organizations.

EAST HARTFORD, CT (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The world's newest wide-cabin trijet powered by Pratt & Whitney's most advanced jet engine was certified yesterday for commercial revenue service by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The McDonnell Douglas MD-11 with PW4000 turbofans completed a rigorous seven-month certification program which included some 258 flights totaling 373 flight hours.

"This represents a significant milestone in the PW4000 program," said Selwyn Berson, president of Pratt & Whitney's Commercial Engine Business. "It culminates a tremendous effort by a dedicated team of Douglas Aircraft and Pratt & Whitney employees. Their commitment to customers meant they often worked around the clock to ensure the product was ready to fly."

To date, 13 customers have placed orders and options worth a potential $3.8 billion for up to 475 PW4000s powering 132 MD-11s. The PW4000 is the most powerful engine Pratt & Whitney has ever built. Rated at 60,000 pounds of thrust for the MD-11, the PW4000 family is designed to grow to 100,000 pounds for future airline needs.

Since entering revenue service in 1987, the PW4000 has logged more than 1,200,000 flight hours. It is widely recognized for the advantages it provides airlines in terms of lower operating and maintenance costs, superior fuel efficiency and its higher thrust growth potential. In addition, it offers the highest degree of commonality on all wide-body aircraft types.

The PW4000 reduces long-term cost of ownership through extended parts life. This is achieved through improved materials, better cooling efficiencies, lower turbine operating temperatures and by having the highest life-cycle limits for disks and hubs of any engine in its class.

Digital electronic controls contribute strongly to the PW4000's reliability. It is the only engine in its thrust class equipped with a third-generation full-authority digital electronic engine control (FADEC). This system precisely meters fuel flow and controls cooling air, thrust management and all other critical engine functions.

The PW4000 has been selected by Air Outre Mer, ADO Finance, China Airlines, China Eastern, Delta Airlines, International Lease Finance Co., GATX, JAT, Korean Airlines, LTU, Minerve, Singapore Airlines, and Swissair to power new MD-11 aircraft.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Communications Workers of America announced that it would increase its activity in apprising all parties affected by AT&T's (NYSE: T) hostile bid for NCR (NYSE: NCR) of the telephone company's recent dismal record in its treatment of its employees. CWA President Morton Bahr today asked for the assistance of the AFL-CIO in identifying NCR shares held by union and public employee pension funds nationwide.

"We will let the managers of these funds know that we believe this proposed merger is bad for NCR, bad for AT&T, and bad for the shareholders and employees of both companies," Bahr said.

Bahr's action came following an emergency meeting in Chicago of CWA local leaders who represent 80,000 of the 110,000 AT&T employees covered by CWA contracts.

"AT&T has gone from a company that cared about its employees and treated them with dignity and respect, to a company that betrays its employees at every turn," explained CWA Vice President Jim Irvine, who called for the emergency meeting. "We want NCR employees to know that we have seen the future with

AT&T and that future looks bleak."

Irvine warned that AT&T's commitment to retain all NCR employees should the deal go through is, "just one more empty promise." Citing AT&T's current plans to violate the collective bargaining contract with the union in a large layoff of employees in its "Network" group, he said, "In the past I would have urged NCR employees to 'get it in writing,' but even that doesn't count with AT&T management anymore. Their promises aren't worth the paper they are written on. They begin violating the contract before the ink is dry."

The Chicago meeting was a prelude to a CWA executive board meeting scheduled for mid-January at which the union's current situation at AT&T will be discussed and a strategy to deal with the telecommunications giant will be further developed. This will be followed by a three-day session for all CWA locals, with members at AT&T, aimed at finalizing the union's strategy and plan of action.

Today's announcement follows by two weeks a letter sent by Irvine to NCR Chairman Charles Exley which cited a series of AT&T anti-worker actions. Irvine told Exley that the interests of NCR's employee stakeholders would be best served by rejecting the AT&T bid and he offered Exley the full assistance of his office in fending off the unwanted takeover.

CWA represents more than 600,000 working women and men in the United States and Canada.

BOSTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - MGI Properties, an equity real estate investment trust (NYSE: MGI), announced today a quarterly dividend of 20 cents per share for the fourth quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990, payable Jan. 16, 1991 to shareholders of record on Jan. 9, 1991.

W. Pearce Coues, chairman of the board of trustees, stated that, as in past years, results of the Trust's fiscal 1990 operations will be released upon completion of the Trust's fiscal 1990 audit which is expected to be on or about Jan. 4, 1991.

Coues also noted that during the quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990, the Trust had reduced its investment in office properties through the disposition of its 89,100-square-foot Gatewood Office Building in Fairfax, Va. For financial reporting purposes, the Trust incurred a capital loss on this transaction of $360,000. Since the Trust's tax basis in this property was lower than its financial reporting carrying value, MGI will realize a gain for federal income tax purposes of approximately $1.7 million. Coues stated that the decision was made in light of the highly overbuilt nature of the Fairfax market. He noted that the 1990 performance of this asset was modestly negative, and 1991 results for this property were expected to deteriorate had the Trust not effected the transaction. Following this disposition, the Trust's portfolio on Nov. 30, 1990, was approximately 95 percent leased, which includes an aggregate 88 percent occupancy for the Trust's remaining office buildings.

TULSA, OKLA. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - A flurry of deep gas drilling contracts recently awarded to Parker Drilling Co. (NYSE: PKD) were announced today at the company's annual meeting of shareholders.

"There is a definite resurgence in deep activity and Parker Drilling appears to be the beneficiary," said Robert L. Parker, president and chief operating officer. "In the past few weeks, four significant contracts for deep wells in the U.S. have been awarded to our company," he added.

The upturn in ultra-deep activity comes on the heels of the crisis in the mid-east, an event that is given partial credit for the domestic deep drilling programs. "With the current Persian Gulf situation, the environment is promising for a resurgence in natural gas," Parker told shareholders. "Some of these contracts are the result of the operators' speculation that natural gas demand and prices will steadily increase over the next several years," he added.

The four deep contracts include two 25,000-ft. wells in the Anadarko Basin; one for Park Avenue Exploration and the other for Exxon Co., U.S.A. Additionally, in Wyoming, a 25,000-ft. test for Louisiana Land & Exploration Co. (NYSE: LLX) will spud in January while in Colorado, a 20,000-ft. well for Mobil Exploration and Producing U.S. Inc. has commenced.

Other current ultra-deep projects include a 26,000-ft. well for Coastal Corp. (NYSE: CGP) in the Delaware Basin of West Texas; a 19,000-ft. well for TEX/CON Oil & Gas Co. in the Anadarko Basin; and a 17,500-ft. hole for Chevron, U.S.A. Inc. (NYSE: CHV) in Lincoln County, Wyo.

Deep drilling is not contained to the U.S., either, said Parker. In Colombia, two Parker SCR electric rigs are drilling twin 17,000-ft. wells for BP Exploration Co. Ltd. in the Llanos, east of Bogota.

At the annual meeting, two directors, James W. Linn, senior vice president of Parker Drilling and David L. Fist, president of the Tulsa law firm Rosenstein, Fist and Ringold, were re-elected for three year terms. In addition, the accounting firm Coopers & Lybrand were ratified as independent auditors for fiscal 1991.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Sara Lee Corporation (NYSE: SLE) today announced that the State Property Agency of the Republic of Hungary has accepted its offer to acquire a major interest in Compack Trading and Packing Company, Hungary's third largest food company. Terms of the offer, which are subject to approval by the Sara Lee board of directors, were not disclosed.

Headquartered in Budapest, state-owned Compack is Hungary's largest coffee roaster. Compack also produces and sells teas, spices, rice and household products. Annual sales for Compack are $140 million.

"Sara Lee is very pleased with this partnership, which will expand our coffee and grocery positions into Eastern Europe," said John H. Bryan, chairman and chief executive of Sara Lee Corporation. "Compack's product line perfectly complements Sara Lee's European coffee and grocery businesses. This represents a substantial commitment which we believe will offer significant long-term benefits to Sara Lee as well as to the consumers of Hungary."

The joint venture will be managed by Sara Lee/DE, N.V., the Netherlands-based company that operates Sara Lee Corporation's coffee, grocery, and household and personal care businesses in Europe.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - While retailers throughout the United States are enduring one of their weakest holiday seasons in recent memory, the liquidation of 85 remaining Salkin & Linoff junior department stores and specialty shops in the upper Midwest is producing better-than-expected results.

"Sales are going very well, surpassing our original projections," said Paul Buxbaum, executive vice president of Buxbaum Ginsberg & Associates, the Encino Calif.-based firm operating the liquidation. "We expect to complete the sale by Jan. 10."

Buxbaum reported today that approximately 75 percent of the merchandise has been sold to date, with inventories now consolidated in 30 stores. "By next week, we'll be down to about 25 stores," he said. Goods are now being sold at 50 percent off.

"The public's strong response to the sale can be attributed, in part, to the fact that many of the stores are located in small communities where they had been local retail fixtures for decades," Buxbaum commented. "Across the board, though, it's been a matter of offering good, current merchandise at very low prices during the peak selling season of the year. Cash-strapped consumers are looking for all the bargains they can get."

The sale began in mid-November in 85 stores operating under the names Bostwicks, S&L, Nina B, Stevensons, Hurrah!, Morrey A, and Wrangler Wroost. The stores are located in enclosed malls, strip centers and central business districts in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas.

In addition to merchandise inventories, store fixtures and equipment, Buxbaum Ginsberg is also offering leases on the 85 units as well as 18 locations that were previously closed.

Inventories, fixtures and leases on 90 additional stores stretching from Maine to California were sold before the liquidation began to Retail Holdings, a newly formed company.

Established in 1921, Salkin & Linoff operated some 250 stores at its peak. The company filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in February 1990.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Holiday travelers will get a real deal on The Trump Shuttle Dec. 23 through Jan. 1, 1991 -- more than 30 percent off the weekday fare, plus a chance to win a stay in Atlantic City, N.J., Trump-style.

From Dec. 23, 1990, through Jan. 1, 1991, travelers can fly The Trump Shuttle between New York and Boston or New York and Washington all day Monday through Friday and on Sundays from 4 p.m. and after for just $99 one way (a $43 savings off the regular $142 peak fare). No flight will cost more than $99 during this 10-day period, since Trump Shuttle one-way fares all day Saturday and through 3 p.m. Sundays are just $92.

To accommodate travelers 65 and over or 24 years and under, Trump Shuttle will honor youth and senior fares, including FlightPass coupons, on every Trump Shuttle flight during this 10-day promotion.

All customers on Trump Shuttle flights departing New York/LaGuardia during this period will have the chance to win an overnight stay at a luxurious Trump property in Atlantic City.

Two winners per flight will receive a free night's stay at either Trump's Taj Majal, Trump Castle, Trump Plaza or Trump Regency. The two winners will be selected via random drawing on board each Trump Shuttle flight departing New York's LaGuardia Airport during the 10-day period. No purchase is necessary; entry forms will be available at the Trump Shuttle LaGuardia ticket counter. Individuals must be 21 years of age or older to enter. The promotion is void where prohibited. Hotel prizes may vary by flight and are valid through March 31, 1991 (blackout dates and some restrictions apply).

The following is the holiday flight schedule for The Trump Shuttle, during which time the $99 fare is in effect:

Sunday, Dec. 23 Every other hour on the odd hour, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 24 Every other hour on the odd hour, 7 a.m.-9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 25 Every other hour on the odd hour, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 26 Hourly, 7 a.m.-9 p.m.(A) Thursday, Dec. 27 Hourly, 7 a.m.-9 p.m.(A) Friday, Dec. 28 Hourly, 7 a.m.- 9 p.m.(A) Saturday, Dec. 29 Every other hour on the odd hour, 7 a.m.-9 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 30 Every other hour on the odd hour, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 31 Every other hour on the odd hour, 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 1 9 and 11 a.m., 1 p.m., then hourly through 9 p.m.(A)

(A) -- Also 10 p.m. flights between Boston and New York. Regular Monday-Friday every hour-on-the-hour Trump Shuttle flight schedule will resume Wednesday, Jan. 2.

The Trump Shuttle provides every hour-on-the-hour all jet service between New York City and both Washington and Boston Monday through Friday, with shuttle service on weekends also available.

Trump Shuttle customers arriving at the gate prior to scheduled departure time are guaranteed a seat without prior reservation; the airline has additional aircraft and crews on standby in each city to meet demand. All Trump Shuttle Boeing 727 jetliners are equipped with air-to-ground phones. Customers can earn generous mileage in the worldwide OnePass frequent flyer program on all Trump Shuttle flights.

COLUMBIA, MD. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of The Ryland Group Inc. (NYSE: RYL) today elected Roger W. Schipke chairman and chief executive officer of the company.

He replaces Charles E. "Ted" Peck, who is retiring after reaching the age of 65 on Dec. 1. Under Peck's leadership from 1981 to 1989, Ryland's stockholders' equity grew from $44 million to $206 million.

Schipke, 53, has been president of the company since May 1990. He came to Ryland from GE, where he was senior vice president, GE Appliances, from 1981 to 1990. Revenues more than doubled under his management.

"Although he is assuming the leadership role in a difficult time for the homebuilding industry, our mortgage finance operations are continuing to grow, and I believe that upcoming market conditions will provide Roger with as many opportunities as challenges in the future," said Peck. "His experience in managing large businesses will help Ryland achieve its goal of significant long-term growth."

In other business, the board declared a regular dividend of $.15 per share to holders of record on Jan. 15, 1991, payable Jan. 30. The Ryland Group reported revenues of $334 million for the first nine months of 1990. Net earnings for the first three quarters were $17.9 million.

Ryland is one of the nation's most diversified homebuilders, with operations in 17 states and more than 30 markets. NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - When Randye Worth, co-founder and chief nutritionist for R.W. Frookies, Inc., a New Jersey based company which manufactures and markets Frookie Cookies and other "good-for-you" products, says that her company is defending against the year's most hostile takeover, the means business.

Military business, that is, R.W. Frookies announced today its donation of over 120,000 servings of "good-for-you" products for Christmas for Operation Desert Shield's U.S. troops involved in the gulf crisis.

Frookies' donation was selected among thousands of applicants and shipped out of Norfolk recently by the Defense Personnel Support Center as part of their carefully planned official Christmas dinner package. Worth was then acknowledge by Navy officials who were on hand at a Naval Aviation Supply Conference in Philadelphia where appreciation for Frookies' generous support was extended on behalf of the armed forces.

"We are extremely proud to have been chosen as part of the U.S. military's official Christmas dinner package," said Worth. "Of course, everybody would prefer the troops to be with their families over the holidays -- but if they can't be home for Christmas, the least we could do is bring a little bit of home to their Christmas."

R.W. Frookies' donation included Frookies Animal Frackers, one of the company's most popular varieties of their all-natural, no cholesterol, low in saturated fat, fruit-juice-sweetened product line.

Frookies come in twelve great flavors, including: Apple Cinnamon Oatbran, 7-Grain Oatmeal, Chocolate Chip, Mandarin Orange Chocolate Chip, Mint Chocolate Chip, Ginger Spice, Oat Bran Muffin, Oatmeal Raisin, Animal Frackers and Ginger boys and girls.

R.W. Frookies, Inc. also produces and markets Fruitins, tasty whole-wheat bars wrapped around real fruit, which come with apple or fig fillings, and Fibbers, high fiber, all-natural, peanut-butter flavored cookies. All Frookie products are available nationally in specialty, gourmet, and grocery stores.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - A $9.6 billion lawsuit against Hughes Aircraft Company that claimed the company installed defective parts in a government equipment has been dismissed.

The suit by Michael C. Denlinger was dismissed in U.S. District Court in Santa Ana at the request of Hughes and with the consent of Denlinger. In a June 1989 secret court filing, he charged Hughes with $3.2 billion in fraud under the Civil False Claims Act. The amount claimed is automatically tripled.

After a nine-month investigation, the Justice Department in February of this year declined to join in the suit against Hughes. Denlinger pursued the lawsuit on his own and in November Hughes moved to dismiss the case, citing evidence that the problem claimed by Denlinger was solved with the cooperation of the Department of Defense and other companies years before the suit was filed.

Hughes and the defense electronics industry in 1985 discovered that a part called a dual in-line package integrated circuit would sometimes crack when subjected to certain manufacturing processes. During that time, Hughes developed and used new manufacturing techniques that would prevent the problem and inspected all inventories to remove any potentially defective circuits.

As an additional assurance of quality, Hughes provided extended warranties on its equipment sold to the government.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Airlease Ltd., a California Limited Partnership (NYSE: FLY) said today its directors approved the fourth quarter 1990 cash distribution of 63 cents per unit. The distribution will be payable Feb. 15, 1991, to unitholders of record on Dec. 31, 1990.

On Dec. 3, 1990, Continental Airlines filed for bankruptcy under Chapter 11 of the U.S Bankruptcy Code. The partnership owns an undivided one-third interest in seven Boeing 737-200 aircraft on lease to Continental. The partnership's investment in the aircraft represents 17 percent of total annual 1990 revenues for the partnership and 8 percent of its total assets as of Nov. 30, 1990. The lease rental due to partnership for the seven aircraft is $268,333 per month, or $0.06 per month on a per unit basis.

As a result of the filing, Continental has not paid its monthly lease payment due Dec. 3, 1990. An Airlease spokesman said that it is likely that the January payment also will not be paid. Under certain provisions of the Bankruptcy Code, Continental has 60 days from the date of filing in which to pay its past due rents and assume its lease obligations or return the aircraft (in which event the aircraft would be available for re-lease or sale). The non-receipt of rents or early return of the aircraft would adversely affect the partnership's cash available from operations from which future cash distributions are made.

The General Partner is closely monitoring the Continental bankruptcy proceedings and will take such action as it believes to be in the partnership's best interest.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Leslie H. Wexner, chairman and chief executive officer of The Limited, Inc. (NYSE/LSE/TSE: LTD), today announced that it will increase selling square footage by 23 percent in 1991. This expansion will enlarge The Limited's projected year end 1990 selling base of 17.1 million square feet by four million square feet in 1991. The added selling square footage will result from the addition of about 600 new stores and the remodeling and expansion of approximately 250 existing stores, bringing the total number of stores by the end of 1991 to approximately 4,500.

In making the announcement, Wexner said, "Clearly this expansion reflects our confidence in the future and our ablility to look beyond current economic conditions. I believe the continued positive customer response to our merchandising, large store formats and the growth of our new businesses, coupled with our financial strength, has enabled us to achieve our 1991 real estate goals before the year has begun. We are now focusing on 1992 and beyond."

Wexner added, "We expect that our 1991 capital expenditures, currently estimated at $500 million, will be funded principally out of operating cash flow as was the case in 1990. Also in 1991, we will complete construction of the 1.89 million square-foot distribution center and office facilities in Reynoldsburg, Ohio."

The Limited, Inc., through Lerner New York, Limited Stores, Lane Bryant, Express, Victoria's Secret, Structure, Limited Too, Abercrombie & Fitch, Cacique, Henri Bendel, Victoria's Secret Bath Shops, Bath and Body Works and Penhaligon's presently operates 3,861 specialiaty stores and distributes apparel nationally through the Victoria's Secret, Lerner Direct, Lane Bryant Direct and Roaman's catalogues.

BRIDGEPORT, CT (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - In response to news media inquiries, Bridgeport Hydraulic Company (BHC) confirmed today that it was granted an increase in its annual revenues of 15 percent, or $6,983,000, by the Connecticut Department of Public Utility Control (DPUC).

In granting rate relief to BHC, the DPUC singled out the company as a "well-managed operation (that) provides good quality water at a reasonable price..."

The DPUC awarded BHC 71 percent of the $9,819,000 increase in annual revenues that the company had requested.

In disallowing roughly one-quarter of BHC's revenue request, the DPUC observed that "the constructive criticism and disallowances noted are all marginal to what is by and large a quality operation.

"In the areas of watershed protection, regionalization and distribution of water resources, and continuing commitment to quality water at an affordable price," the DPUC added, "Bridgeport Hydraulic Company is a leader."

The company said it anticipates that new rates for BHC's 102,000 customers could be placed in effect in January 1991.

Because the new rates will not constitute an across-the-board increase, the amount by which water rates may rise for each class of customer cannot be calculated until new rate schedules are designed by BHC and approved early next year by the DPUC.

BHC noted, however, that rates for its customers in the town of Litchfield will not yet be equalized with those rates paid by its other customers, but instead will rise by the same dollar amount that its other customers will pay as a result of the rate increase.

The largest water company in Connecticut, BHC and its Stamford Water Company subsidiary, which maintains separate rates, serve a population of 500,000 in 18 communities in Litchfield, New Haven and Fairfield counties. BHC is a subsidiary of The Hydraulic Company (NYSE: THC).

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Douglas (NYSE: MD) and Hughes Aircraft conducted a successful test of an Advanced Interdiction Weapon System (AIWS) prototype air vehicle Dec. 10 at the Naval Weapons Center in China Lake Calif.

The air vehicle was launched from an F-4 aircraft and flew autonomously for 21 nautical miles to a pre-determined target point before pop-up and recovery by parachute.

The AIWS is a low-cost, multipurpose, air-to-surface weapon system being developed for the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps for short- to medium-range standoff missions. It is designed to defeat various targets with submunition and unitary warhead payloads from standoff distances greater than that achievable in current systems.

The development of this baseline weapon system, which can be complemented with new variants and enhanced through pre-planned improvements, will meet future mission and performance needs. AIWS will replace the current inventory of standoff weapons, such as Maverick, Skipper, Walleye, and the laser guided bomb.

The AIWS team of McDonnell Douglas Missile Systems and Hughes' Missile Systems Group sponsored this demonstration to verify safe separation from the aircraft, aerodynamic performance and control, and integrated guidance avionics. Currently nearing completion of the demonstration and validation phase of this program, the companies also used the test to confirm the soundness of their design and to reduce schedule and technical risks.

The contractors will share data compiled from the test with the Navy for joint analysis.

The air vehicle was launched from approximately 15,000 feet at Mach 0.61. Global positioning satellites were tracked prior to launch by an antenna mounted on the F-4, and by the vehicle's own antenna after launch.

The McDonnell Douglas/Hughes team, with cooperation from several subcontractors, assembled this prototype AIWS air vehicle in about nine months.

The two companies are jointly performing overall weapon system definition, system engineering, design and development tasks. McDonnell Douglas Missile Systems, as prime contractor, leads in mission planning, aircraft integration, airframe design and logistics. Hughes' Missile Systems Group provides avionics integration, seeker and data link technologies. The teaming arrangement provides for a near 50/50 division of tasks and responsibilities.

McDonnell Douglas produces the Harpoon anti-ship, Dragon anti-tank and Tomahawk cruise missiles. Hughes produces the Maverick air-to-surface and TOW anti-tank missiles, as well as the Phoenix and AMRAAM air-to-air missiles. The two companies are also teamed on the Standoff Land Attack Missile (SLAM) and the Advanced Air-to-Air Missile (AAAM) programs.

CHICAGO, (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Ameritech today declared a 7.6 percent increase in its quarterly dividend, raising it six cents to 85 cents per common share, or $3.40 on an annual basis. The new quarterly rate is payable Feb. 1, 1991, to shareowners of record Dec. 31, 1990.

"This is the seventh dividend increase by Ameritech since the company's start in 1984," said Ameritech Chairman and Chief Executive Officer William L. Weiss. "Today's action balances the need for providing a solid return for our investors with the development needs of our business."

"Looking ahead, 1991 will be a challenging year. First, we are making the transition to incentive regulation in territories that represent more than 50 percent of our telephone revenues. Second, we continue to aggressively invest in new technologies and explore business development and growth opportunities worldwide. Third, while the Midwest economy continues to exhibit strength, we face uncertainty in the U.S. economy. These factors necessitate careful management of our financial resources," Weiss said.

With assets of $21.5 billion, Chicago-based Ameritech has some 264 million common shares outstanding, held in nearly 1.1 million shareowner accounts.

Ameritech is the parent of five Bell companies serving the Great Lakes region, and other information-related companies providing mobile communications, directories, lease financing, voice messaging and audiotex services domestically and internationally. DALLAS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Interphase Corp. (NASDAQ: INPH) today announced revenues of $28,575,660 for its fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990, up 39 percent compared to revenues of $20,502,645 for the last fiscal year. Revenues for the fourth quarter were $8,630,555 up 42 percent compared to revenues of $6,084,604 for the same period last year.

The company incurred a net loss of $3,689,213 or $1.11 per share for the year compared to a net loss of $106,920 or 3 cents per share for the previous year. The loss for the year ended Oct. 31, 1990 was primarily due to a combination of losses from consolidating the operations of OMNI Solutions Inc., a subsidiary, and a one-time write-off of assets associated with the decision to cease further operations at OMNI. Interphase reported a profit of $310,600 or 9 cents per share for the fourth quarter compared to a net loss of $330,220 or 10 cents per share for the same period of 1989.

Interphase president Michael E. Cope stated, "I think a 39 percent revenue growth rate for the year and return to profitability in the fourth quarter, tells a solid story. Also, our marketshare is stronger than ever, and good things seem to be happening for 1991."

Interphase is a leading manufacturer of high performance network controllers, disk and tape controllers, and SCSI host bus adapters for the VMEbus, EISA and Multibus markets, and the Sun Microsystems aftermarket.

STERLING, VA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Radiation Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: RADS), today announced that it has been awarded a $55 million contract from Associated Universities, Inc., a representative for the National Science Foundation.

The contract is for the design, fabrication, installation and testing of a 100-meter diameter radio telescope which will be operated by the National Radio Astronomy Observatory at its observing site in Green Bank, W.Va.

Richard E. Thomas, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Radiation Systems, said this award culminates the company's finest quarter for contract bookings. Added to the $34.4 million contract reported earlier, this month's bookings for the quarter will exceed $100 million.

Thomas said that Radiation Systems was selected on the basis of a superior technical and cost proposal and because Radiation Systems has the facilities, manpower and experience to deliver an antenna system having the quality and operational performance required by the specifications. The company's Technical Products and Universal Antennas Divisions and Loral Western Development Laboratories will jointly design and engineer the telescope. Mexia Fabricators Division will fabricate the antenna structure, while site work consisting of foundations, roads and structural erections at Green Bank, will be accomplished utilizing West Virginia contractors and labor where possible.

Thomas concluded by stating that RSI employees were extremely excited about the prospects of building this most precise instrument.

Radiation Systems, Inc. designs, manufactures and installs a broad range of antenna systems for radar, air traffic control, tactical military, satellite earth stations, terrestrial microwave and other specialized uses throughout the world.

WILMINGTON, DE (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Directors of The Columbia Gas System Inc. (NYSE: CG) approved a 1991 capital expenditure program of $600 million for System operating units, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John H. Croom announced today.

The 1991 program continues the system's aggressive growth in historic and non-historic markets and the expansion of its oil and gas exploration and development activities. Columbia expects to spend about $620 million on capital projects in 1990.

Total oil and gas expenditures are expected to be $195 million in 1991. Of the total, $110 million will be spent for oil and gas activities in the Southwest and Rocky Mountain areas, $55 million in the Appalachian Basin and $30 million in Canada. Approximately $100 million of the total oil and gas program will be spent on development activities.

Transmission capital expenditures are expected to be $270 million in 1991. Of this amount, $126 million or 47 percent is targeted for business expansion projects.

Distribution expenditures for 1991 are expected to be $115 million. Of the total, $46 million or 40 percent is targeted toward new business, including the addition of an estimated 33,500 new residential and commercial customers.

Columbia's expenditures of $20 million on other capital programs will be devoted primarily to developing cogeneration projects and to the expansion of Columbia's retail propane markets.

The Columbia Gas System is one of the nation's largest natural gas systems. Subsidiary companies are engaged in the exploration, production, purchase, storage, transmission, and distribution of natural gas. Columbia companies serve, directly or indirectly, more than 8 million customers in 14 states and the District of Columbia.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - JTN Acquisition Corp. announced today that, in its litigation against Justin Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: JSTN), the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals found that Justin had violated the federal securities laws, that the election of directors at the March 1990 annual meeting was "tainted," and remanded the case to the district court for an expedited hearing on permanent relief, including JTN's request to set aside the results of the annual meeting and to order a new election of directors.

for up to 6,177,825 shares.

Justin's board failed to disclose until five months after the 1990 annual meeting that they had amended the company's bylaws in November 1989 to make it more difficult to remove directors. The circuit court found that Justin's directors, who were re-elected in March 1990, "might not have been unopposed if they had disclosed the entrenching bylaw changes," and found that investors "could well consider the bylaw changes material."

The court found that the district court erred in the test of materiality it applied and noted that "(t)here is little reason to give target boards an incentive to withhold changes to bylaw provisions."

JTN also alleged that the current board failed to timely disclose its decision to enact golden parachutes for its top executives. The circuit court found that, if, in fact, "the decision to implement the golden parachutes was made well before the (annual) meeting," "the board should have disclosed that fact" because, "the average investor probably would be interested to know when directors facing a hostile takeover enact lucrative severance contracts designed to entrench management."

The circuit court affirmed the denial of preliminary relief, and ordered the district court to hold an expedited hearing on the issues regarding permanent relief which could include setting aside the 1990 annual meeting and ordering a new election of directors.

JTN is a newly formed entity organized and led by Perry H. Sutherland of Sutherland Lumber in Kansas City and New York investor Barry S. Rosenstein, on behalf of a group which has been involved in a continuing effort to acquire Justin.

DALLAS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - MorningStar Foods Inc., a Dallas- based dairy processor, announced today that it has commenced an offer to purchase $75 million aggregate principal amount of its 13 percent Senior Subordinated Debentures due 2000 for $480 per $1,000 principal amount of debentures as part of a comprehensive plan to restructure the company. The offer to purchase the debentures will expire Wednesday, Jan. 16, 1991, unless extended. The restructuring plan will be financed with a proposed $140 million in senior secured financing led by The Long-Term Credit Bank of Japan, New York Branch, as agent and NMB Postbank Groep N.V. and an additional $11,500,000 of new equity financing from an unaffiliated investor group.

James A. Back, MorningStar's president and chief executive officer stated, "The proposed restructuring will provide MorningStar with the financial footing necessary for us to face the challenges of the 1990s. Our new financial partners should better position us to achieve our strategy of branded products growth. We believe the restructuring meets the needs of all constituencies."

In the restructuring, MorningStar's existing senior bank indebtedness will be retired and a new class of preferred stock will be issued. The plan contemplates that MorningStar's existing stockholders will receive approximately 5 percent of the common stock of the restructured company.

The purchase price paid by the company for debentures will be in full satisfaction of the accrued and unpaid interest (including interest due on Dec. 31, 1990). In connection with the plan, MorningStar intends to defer the Dec. 31, 1990 interest payment until the restructuring is consummated.

MorningStar Foods has engaged Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette as dealer manger for the offer and has also retained Dewe Rogerson Inc. to act as information agent in connection with the offer. WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) (NYSE: FNM) today announced the addition to its multifamily program of a new mortgage designed to assist lenders in financing small multifamily loans.

Under the new mortgage called FAME, a lender may deliver a fixed-rate, first mortgage to Fannie Mae for either cash or Mortgage-Backed Securities (MBS), while simultaneously originating a fixed-rate or adjustable-rate second mortgage.

Fannie Mae recently signed the first commitments to be delivered under FAME with Western Bank of Sherman Oaks, Calif., for $50 million, and with Quaker City Federal Savings and Loan Association of Whittier, Calif., for $20 million.

Quaker City Federal will target all of its commitment to low- and moderate-income multifamily housing, which will assist the bank in meeting its community reinvestment goals.

The maximum loan amount eligible for delivery under FAME is $3 million. All loans purchased or securitized must be fixed-rate, first lien, balloon mortgages with 7-, 10-, or 15-year terms and 30-year amortization. Each loan must be combined with a second mortgage fully funded by the lender.

Loans must be secured by existing income-producing multifamily residential properties with minimum occupancy of 90 percent. A debt service coverage ratio (DSCR) of at least 125 percent is required for the first mortgage. The combined DSCR must be at least 110 percent if the second mortgage is fixed-rate or 115 percent for an adjustable-rate second mortgage.

Western Bank is a multistate lender specializing in apartment financing throughout the Western United States. Quaker City Federal has provided the residents of Southern California with personalized real estate service since 1920.

Fannie Mae, the USA's Housing Partner, is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company and the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

DENVER (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - TRI-R Systems Corp. (NASDAQ: RRRC), a Denver-based diversified recycling firm, today announced the results of operations for the first quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990.

TRI-R reported revenues of $1,657,559 for the first quarter of fiscal 1991, as compared to revenues of $2,378,494 for the comparable quarter in 1990. The company reported a net loss for the first quarter of 1991 of $784,389 (or 18 cents loss per share) as compared to a net income of $113,495 (or 4 cents profit per share) for the like quarter in 1990.

According to TRI-R President David R. Powelson, the losses for the quarter were primarily a result of cost associated with the damage by fire and impending closing of its Phoenix facility. The first quarter financial results reflect operating losses from Phoenix alone of $149,662 plus a loss of $403,827 to provide revenues for the expense of closing the facility.

Powelson stated, "By providing for the costs associated with the closing of Phoenix, we will be able to reflect the financial results of TRI-R's ongoing operations while an orderly sale of the equipment assets of the Phoenix operation take place."

Powelson also stated, "On a positive note, the long term slide in commodity prices for recyclable paper ended during the quarter. Along with most people in our business, we have been monitoring the number of new paper mill projects which are planned for start-up in 1991-92 and 1993. The number of projects is approaching 60 and represents capital expenditure committments of billions of dollars. We can foresee that these projects will restore a healthy balance between supply and demand and better pricing."

CLEVELAND (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE -- National City Corporation (NYSE: NCC) announced today that customers of its banks in Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana who have been called to active military service will be provided substantial relief on loan payment requirements under a newly-announced policy.

For example, an installment loan of $10,000 at 13.5 percent for 60 months would require a monthly payment of $230. The rate of interest would automatically be reduced to six percent upon submission to the bank of certification of the callup.

In the case of a home mortgage, the typical interest savings on a $75,000 mortgage balance, reduced to six percent from ten percent, would be $250 on the first monthly payment. The savings would decrease as the balance decreases.

In the case of a credit card account, the National City bank transfers the current balance to a new account at six percent interest. Charge privileges would be available on the old account subject to the standard interest rates and with a reduced credit line.

A $1,000 balance in the new six percent account would result in a monthly savings in the first month of $9.78, reflecting the difference between interest at 17.9 percent ($14.71) and six percent ($4.93).

Equity Reserve accounts, which are a variable rate revolving credit secured by a real estate mortgage, would be similarly treated. These accounts have a current Annual Percentage Rate of 11.5 percent and require a minimum payment of two percent of the balance.

The rate reduction, on a $10,000 Equity Reserve balance for example, would result in monthly interest savings of $45.83, which would go to reducing the principal balance. Any new advances from the line of credit would be subject to the standard rate of interest.

JACKSON, MI (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - First Mississippi Corp., (NYSE: FRM), has received a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service which allows a tax free spin-off to stockholders of the 14,750,000 shares, or 82 percent of outstanding shares, the company holds in FirstMiss Gold Inc. (NASDAQ: FRMG), its gold mining subsidiary. In February 1990, First Mississippi announced the proposed stock distribution subject to, among other things, a favorable tax ruling.

The tax ruling took longer than anticipated and start-up problems have delayed routine operations. "However, we still intend to proceed with the spin-off when we have achieved routine operations and we are comfortable FirstMiss Gold can operate as a viable stand-alone company," said J. Kelley Williams, chairman and chief executive officer of First Mississippi. "We are making progress on solving start-up problems. Although the timing is uncertain, we hope to complete the spin-off in calendar 1991."

First Mississippi Corp. also announced it has authorized a loan of up to $5.0 million to FirstMiss Gold to meet working capital requirements due to start-up expenses and lower gold prices.

First Mississippi Corp., headquartered in Jackson, Miss., is a resource and technology company with established operations in chemicals, fertilizer, energy, gold and emerging operations in technology-based ventures.

NEW CASTLE, PA. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of First Western Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: FWBI), at its meeting on Dec. 17, 1990, confirmed the election of four new directors, as contemplated by the agreement and plan of reorganization between First Western and First Federal of Western Pennsylvania.

The shareholders of First Western, on Nov. 20, 1990, voted to approve an increase in the size of the board from 14 to 18 members as part of a proposal to approve the agreement. This agreement contemplated the addition of Donald H. Mong, James M. Campbell, Richard C. McGill and James L. Gory, all directors of the former First Federal of Western Pennsylvania, to the board of directors of First Western after closing the acquisition, which occurred on Nov. 30, 1990.

In order to maintain the balance of the board's three classes of directors, with each class now consisting of six directors, these directors were elected to serve for terms to expire coincidental with the following classes:

Gory, 57, a director of First Federal since 1986, is president and owner of G & C Drainage Supplies Inc., Akron, Ohio, a building supply company.

McGill, 53, a director of First Federal since 1979, is managing partner, McGill, Power, Bell and Co., Grove City, Pa., a certified public accounting firm.

Mong, 67, a director of First Federal since 1966, has been chairman of the board of directors of First Federal since 1986, and was president and chief executive officer from 1964 through the date of acquisition on Nov. 30, 1990, when he retired from such positions. He will retain his title as chairman of First Federal's separate subsidiary board for two years, as part of a separate consulting agreement between First Western, First Federal and Mong.

DETROIT (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - GM International Export Sales (IES)

Executive-in-Charge Dale R. Hermiller has announced that fleet contracts have been signed between Arabian Motors & Engineering Company (AMECO), an IES dealer located in Dammam, Saudi Arabia, and three Saudi Arabian leasing contractors for 1,500 GM North American-produced passenger and commercial vehicles.

The vehicles are for the Arabian American Oil Company (ARAMCO), and represent their total annual lease vehicle order. Last year, GM was awarded about a third of their fleet business.

"We enjoy and welcome this increase in business in Saudi Arabia for General Motors," said Hermiller. "We are especially happy with this contract considering the aggressive competition we now face in this region."

Orders to GM for the lease vehicles from AMECO are expected early next year. Start of production for the lease vehicles will begin in March 1991, with the last vehicle scheduled to be shipped in June 1991.

A separate contract was recently signed between AMECO and Saudi Consolidated Electric Company (SCECO) for 179 GM North American-produced vehicles.

ATLANTA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Former President Jimmy Carter today announced Amgen's (NASDAQ-NMS: AMGN) donation to Global 2000 of $60 million worth of EPOGEN (recombinant erythropoietin), a drug for treatment of patients suffering from anemia associated with chronic renal failure.

The drug was shipped earlier this month to the People's Republic of China for the treatment of dialysis patients.

Global 2000 is a program of the Carter Center that was established to help improve health and agricultural services in developing countries. Disease control, rehabilitation and large-scale agricultural demonstration projects are underway in more than half a dozen countries, including China and parts of Africa. Based in Thousand Oaks, Calif., Amgen, the manufacturer of EPOGEN, is one of the U.S.'s leading biotechnology firms, specializing in using recombinant DNA techniques to create genetically-engineered health care products.

"I am very pleased that Global 2000 has been able to work out an arrangement between Amgen and the People's Republic of China to deliver 335,000 vials of this drug which will help people presently on dialysis," President Carter said. "I also want to express my gratitude to Amgen for its significant contribution to the work of Global 2000."

EPOGEN, which was licensed by the Food and Drug Administration for therapeutic use in June 1989, stimulates the production of red blood cells and eliminates the need for the frequent and debilitating blood transfusions that dialysis patients required in the past. The improvement in patient well being has been dramatic. Amgen spent eight years and over $100 million developing recombinant erythropoietin.

TROY, MICH. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Richard A. Smith, president and chief executive officer of Newcor, Inc. (AMEX: NEW), announced the results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990:

NEWCOR, INC.

	Fourth Quarter		12 Months
	1990	1989	1990	1989
Sales	$28,732,000	$28,546,000	$79,865,000	$100,436,000
Net income	1,908,000	749,000	1,215,000	3,095,000
Income per share	$.59	$.23	$.37	$.95

Although fourth-quarter sales were unchanged from the prior year, earnings increased 155 percent over 1989 to a new quarterly record. The improved earnings stem from higher margins from Newcor's special machines segment.

Sales for fiscal 1990 declined from 1989 as a result of low backlogs for machinery orders at the start of 1990. Since mid-year, backlogs are up sharply due to strong new orders for welding and assembly systems.

Full-year 1990 earnings were reduced by charges for the closedown of Newcor Canada Limited recorded in the first quarter. The closedown and first-quarter losses from the Canadian operation represent $1,514,000 net of tax benefits, or a loss of $.47 per share. Without Newcor Canada Limited, the company would have reported net earnings of $.84 per share in fiscal 1990.

Orders of $111 million were obtained in fiscal 1990, an increase of 43 percent over 1989 and a new record. Newcor's backlog of open orders amounted to $70.9 million at Oct. 31, 1990, compared with $39.6 million a year earlier.

Smith confirmed the company expects record earnings in fiscal 1991 when these orders are completed. The improvement in new orders and the 1991 earnings outlook relate principally to the company's special machines segment. The precision parts segment is expected to contribute lower earnings in 1991 due to a temporary softening in the automotive market.

Newcor, headquartered in Troy, designs and manufactures custom machines and manufacturing systems as well as special precision machined parts. Newcor is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

RICHMOND, VA (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Markel Corporation (NASDAQ: MAKL) has completed several previously announced transactions that will enable the Company to focus its business on the marketing and underwriting of specialty insurance products. The completed transactions include the purchase of 47.5 percent of F-M Acquisition Corporation (F-M) which increases the Company's interest to 90 percent. F-M owns Shand, Morahan and Evanston Insurance Company which are specialty insurance operations with expertise in professional and products liability insurance. The transaction also included the disposal of the Company's investment in its affiliated Canadian financial holding company, Fairfax Financial Holdings Limited, and the sale of the Company's 50 percent owned claims administration business, Lindsey & Newsom Claim Services, Inc. Markel expects to complete the purchase of the remaining 10 percent of F-M later this week.

The completion of these transactions will simplify Markel's organizational structure as well as its operations. Additional, this transaction significantly expands the size and scope of the Company's specialty insurance business. At year end 1990 it is estimated that the company's consolidated assets will have increased by $500 million to over $700 million.

To complete these transactions, Markel Corporation delivered to Fairfax approximately 1.65 million shares of Fairfax, the preferred shares of Lindsey & Newsom Claim Services, Inc. with a stated value of $7.0 million and $19.5 million in cash. Markel also paid Fairfax $14 million for certain non-compete and non-piracy agreements. Markel is obligated to pay to Fairfax up to an additional $11.5 million in the event that specified investment portfolios of F-M's insurance subsidiaries achieve certain designated increases in market values over the next 2 1/2 years. In connection with the transaction, Markel Corporation loaned Fairfax $11.5 million, which will be either repaid to Markel Corporation in June, 1993 or offset by additional sums owed to Fairfax by reason of an increase in the market value of the investment portfolios. For the remaining 10 percent interest, which is expected to close later this week, the consideration will be $4.3 million in cash, $4.0 million in Markel subordinated debentures and $4.7 million in Markel convertible subordinated securities.

Markel Corporation also exchanged its 50 percent interest in Lindsey & Newsom Claim Services, Inc. for 595,922 subordinate voting shares of Morden & Helwig Group (approximately 12 percent of the outstanding shares) and $4.15 million. Morden & Helwig Group Inc. is Canada's leading claims administration organization and its subordinate voting shares are traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Alan I. Kirshner, Chairman of Markel Corporation, said "we are extremely pleased that Markel Corporation is able to take this significant next step in our corporate evolution. By becoming more focused in marketing and underwriting specialty insurance products we will be better positioned to build value for our shareholders in the years to come."

Markel Corporation is a diversified, specialty insurance organization with operations in the brokerage and underwriting segments of the property and casualty insurance industry.

RALEIGH, NC (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Attorney General Lacy H. Thornburg announced today that a Wake County Superior Court Judge granted his request for a preliminary injunction ordering Quantum Chemical Corporation (NYSE: CUE) doing business as Suburban Propane and Petrolane, to list their price per gallon on all delivery tickets and billing statements to residential customers and to publish their rates in a clear and understandable way.

Thornburg filed the suit last month, alleging that the prices that Suburban and Petrolane charge to their 123,000 North Carolina consumers are excessively high, and therefore violate a State law which requires those prices to be sent "in good faith." The suit also charges that the companies deceptively conceal their high prices.

The preliminary ruling, issued today by Superior Court Judge Howard Manning, Jr., did not order the companies to charge a competitive market price, althout it did order them to clearly disclose their price per gallon to consumers.

Thornburg said he was disappointed that the judge did not order the companies to charge North Carolina consumers a fair price. "I am also disappointed that he did not see the connection between the companies' misleading billing practices and the fact that in most places in North Carolina Surburban and Petrolane have been able to charge considerably higher prices than their competitors," Thornburg said.

Thornburg said that it appeared that the judge was relying on market forces to correct the companies' high prices. Thornburg emphasized that he brought the suit because he believes market forces are inadequate to address Suburban's and Petrolane's high prices, especially in areas of the state where there are few or no other competitors.

"While this preliminary ruling did not give us everything we wanted, it's a good start and we fully intend to prevail in this lawsuit," Thornburg said.

MILWAUKEE (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - WICOR, Inc. (NYSE: WIC), the parent of Wisconsin Gas Company and Sta-Rite Industries, Inc., expects its fourth-quarter earnings from continuing operations will be at about half the level of fourth-quarter results last year, which were boosted by unusually cold weather. The announcement was made by Stuart W. Tisdale, president and chief executive officer of WICOR.

Tisdale attributed the earnings decline projected for the quarter and for the year to weather and economic factors. Temperatures that were the warmest in 60 years reduced sales at Wisconsin Gas Company, and poor economic conditions depressed several of Sta-Rite's key markets. In addition, further analysis of divestiture plans previously announced by Sta-Rite indicates the company will record a loss on these discontinued operations in its year-end financial statements. The businesses have not yet been sold, Tisdale said, and the extent of the loss is still undetermined.

Tisdale said the factors affecting this year's performance are short-term. WICOR remains financially very sound, and no negative long- term effects on the company are expected.

WICOR is a Milwaukee-based holding company. Its primary subsidiaries are Wisconsin Gas Company, the state's largest distributor of natural gas, and Sta-Rite Industries, Inc., a manufacturer of pumps and filtration technology.

ST. PAUL, MN (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Bio-Manufacturing, Inc. (Local OTC), a manufacturer of proprietary medical implants, announced today its fiscal year end results. The increasing sales resulted in net revenues for the year ended September 30, 1990 of $1,763,815 compared to $586,475 for the nine months ended September 30, 1989; a year in which the company changed its fiscal year end from December to September. Adjusting for comparison purposes using a nine month average for 1990, the increase in sales was approximately 226 percent. Net loss for the year ended September 30, 1990 was $65,965 compared to $269,021 for the nine months ended September 30, 1989. The company attributes the increase in sales and the reduction in losses to success of its first exclusive manufacturing contract which it has with Bioplasty, Inc. Mr. Art Beisang, CEO of the company, stated that, "The company's third and fourth quarters were, in fact, profitable from operations." He expects continued profitability due to the continuing growth of sales and the emplacement of certain cost reduction practices.

Prior to year end, the company successfully completed a rights offering of approximately 300,000 shares of its common stock, and subsequently completed a public offering and a private placement of an additional 600,000 shares of its common stock. The proceeds are being used to expand its manufacturing capacity and to include headquarter facilities at 623 Hoover St. N.E., Minneapolis. The remaining funds will be used for operating purposes.

Lawin, chairman of the board and chief financial officer, stated that, "with the additional manufacturing capacity, the company is in a better position to take on additional manufacturing contracts with other companies, such as Bioplasty, Inc." The company is optimistic about its growth based on a recent announcement by Bioplasty, Inc., which stated it has gained FDA market clearance for a new product is called "MISTI GOLD"(TM). This new product is called MISTI GOLD because of its new gold-colored gel used to fill the surface-patterned shell of the mammary implant. The "gold" gel is bio-compatible with the human body and this new filling material allows x-rays to pass through the MISTI GOLD implant better than x-rays can pass through silicone gel-filled or saline-filled breast implants. The company is confident that with the introduction of MISTI GOLD, it will continue to show dramatic sales growth.

Bio-Manufacturing, Inc. currently is traded on the local over-the- counter market (white sheets).

EDISON, NJ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - In response to the continuing downturn in the national and New Jersey economies, the board of directors of Midlantic Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MIDL) today announced its decision to omit payment of the quarterly cash dividend on the corporation's common stock, commencing with the dividend that would normally have been paid in January 1991.

Based on the previous quarter's dividend of 25 cents per common share, this action retains the corporation's capital at an annual rate of more than $38 million.

The corporation announced that during the week of Dec. 17, 1990, the boards of directors of four of the corporation's national banks are expected to enter into written agreements with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC). The four banks are: Midlantic National Bank, Midlantic National Bank/North, Merchants National Bank & Trust Company and Union National Bank.

Under these agreements, the banks will undertake measures, many of which have been previously identified and implemented, to review and strengthen, where necessary, various aspects of their operations, including credit risk identification processes, loan loss reserve methodology, and other loan portfolio-related activities.

The OCC and these banks have agreed to certain capital ratios at various dates between year-end 1990 and the end of the third quarter 1991. All of the banks are expected to meet or exceed the agreed upon ratios for year-end 1990, and Merchants National Bank & Trust Company and Union National Bank currently also meet or exceed the ratios for 1991.

Midlantic National Bank and Midlantic National Bank/North will be expected to achieve minimum risk-based capital ratios as follows: Tier I Capital of 7 percent, Total Capital of 9 percent and a leverage ratio of 6 percent by Sept. 30, 1991. Midlantic's management is in the process of formalizing plans for the banks to meet these agreed upon capital ratios.

Additionally, the agreements continue previously announced restrictions on payments of dividends by the banks and on acceptance of brokered deposits.

The board of directors declared the quarterly dividend payable on shares of the corporation's term adjustable cumulative preferred stock- Series A.

Midlantic Corporation is an interstate bank holding company headquartered in Edison. The corporation, with assets of approximately $24 billion, operates 512 offices primarily in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

LUBBOCK, TEXAS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias, L.P. (NYSE: CAF) announced today that it has filed revised preliminary proxy materials with the Securities and Exchange Commission in connection with Furr's/Bishop's proposed conversion to corporate form. Michael J. Levenson, chairman and chief executive officer of Cavalcade & Co. Inc., the Managing General Partner of Furr's/Bishop's, said that he expected a special meeting of Preference Unitholders would be held during the first quarter of 1991 for the purpose of considering and voting on the proposed conversion.

Levenson also said that, "In the light of the pending transaction, the Independent Committee and the Board of Directors of the Managing General Partner have determined that the Partnership will not pay on Feb. 12, 1991 a cash distribution on the Preference Units for the fourth quarter of 1990."

As previously announced, in the corporate conversion, each issued and outstanding Preference Unit (other than Preference Units held by Unitholders who shall have perfected the contractual dissenter's rights provided for in the merger agreement) will be converted into the right to receive a combination of (a) 75 cents in cash, (b) six-tenths of a share of Furr's/Bishop's, Incorporated Series A $9.00 Convertible Preferred Stock with a stated cumulative annual dividend of $1.12 per share, payable quarterly, increasing to $1.80 per share on the tenth anniversary of the Merger, and (c) one-fourth of a share of Furr's/Bishop's, Incorporated Class A Common Stock. The public holders of Common Stock on the one hundred sixty-fifth day following the Merger will have the irrevocable right to sell an aggregate of up to 1,500,000 shares of Class A Common Stock (representing approximately 56 percent of the Common Stock issued to the Preference Unitholders in the Merger) to Furr's/Bishop's, Incorporated at $5.00 per share in cash.

The Board of Directors of Cavalcade & Co., Inc. also announced the appointment of Donald D. Noe to chief operating officer of Furr's/Bishop's Cafeterias, L.P., a position which has been vacant for approximately one year. Noe was formerly vice president, operations and customer service of the Partnership. Noe joined Furr's in 1977 and has held various positions in operations.

PORTLAND, OR. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Oregon Steel Mills Inc. (NYSE: OS) announced today that Napa Pipe Corp., its wholly owned subsidiary, has received a letter of award from Bechtel Corp. to manufacture more than 650 miles of 36-inch and 42-inch diameter double-submerged, arc weld line pipe for the $1.2 billion PGT-PG&E Pipeline Expansion Project that will bring natural gas from Canada to serve growing markets in California and the Pacific Northwest.

The 845 mile-long pipeline expansion project is being sponsored by Pacific Gas Transmission Co. (PGT) and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. (PG&E) and will involve the installation of a pipeline parallel to and interconnecting with existing PGT and PG&E facilities from the Canadian-U.S. boundary in British Columbia to California. The project will increase the pipeline's current natural gas transportation capacity by more than 900 million cubic feet a day.

"We are very pleased and excited about the PGT-PG&E expansion pipe order and its tremendous implications for our operations in California," said Thomas B. Boklund, president of Oregon Steel. "The order is a great opportunity for our plant, equipment and employees in Northern and Southern California.

"It will really play a major role in the use of our rolling plate facilities at Fontana, California, and our pipe mill at Napa, California," added Boklund. "All of the steel plate for the pipe will be produced in Fontana and the pipe will be formed in Napa with slab production supported from our Portland, Oregon, operation."

The project is expected to get underway in early 1992 with project completion set for the fourth quarter of 1993. The Napa Pipe contract calls for pipe deliveries in 1992 and 1993.

Manufacturing release for the order is contingent upon regulatory approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and the California Public Utilities Commission.

In addition, the company announced that due to scheduled downtime for maintenance and capital improvement additions to the company's Portland and Fontana plate mills and Napa pipe mill, 1990 fourth quarter earnings are anticipated to be less than those reported in the third quarter of 1990.

OAK BROOK, IL. (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Citing growing consumer anxiety, increased promotional activity and an increasingly difficult credit environment, Spiegel Inc. (NASDAQ: SPGLA) said today that its holiday season margin performance is below earlier expectations.

"As the recession has taken hold, the consumer has sought out promotional opportunities," said Spiegel Vice Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer Jack Shea. "The result has been a solid increase in holiday sales but greater than expected pressure on margins." Spiegel's 125th Anniversary Sale book and Eddie Bauer's Ultimate Winter Sale catalogs are both performing above expectations.

Sales strength has remained firm at Spiegel catalog and at Eddie Bauer. However, the high-style Honeybee unit, with business concentration in the Northeast and products aimed at working women, has been particularly hard-hit by consumer retrenchment this holiday shopping season.

Despite the soft retail environment, Spiegel's successful promotional activities have allowed Spiegel to incrementally increase market share. "While Spiegel clearly will be affected by an extended recession, along with other retailers," said Shea. "Spiegel's ability to maintain and grow market share under adverse conditions augurs well for 1991 and beyond."

Spiegel Inc. is the nation's largest in-home direct marketer and a leading specialty retailer. PITTSBURGH, (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Consolidated Natural Gas Company's (NYSE: CNG) interstate pipeline subsidiary, CNG Transmission Corporation, said it will increase to 9.4 percent from 6.4 percent its interest in the Iroquois Gas Transmission System, a partnership of U.S. and Canadian energy companies formed to construct a 370-mile natural gas pipeline from the Canadian border to Long Island, N.Y.

Texas Eastern Iroquois, Inc., an affiliate of Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation will transfer its 6.4 percent interest in the project to CNG Transmission and affiliates of ANR Pipeline Corporation and Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company. As a result of the transfer, CNG Transmission and the ANR affiliate will increase their partnership interests by 3 percent each, and the Tennessee affiliate will increase its share by 0.4 percent. The transfer is expected to take place in February 1991.

The Iroquois pipeline, as approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission last month, will transport 576 million cubic feet of natural gas a day to customers in metropolitan New York City and New England. On an annual basis, this is the energy equivalent of more than 30 million barrels of oil.

"We look forward to our increased ownership in Iroquois and to further participating in the growing market for natural gas in the northeastern U.S.," a Consolidated executive said.

Consolidated is one of the country's largest producers, transporters and distributors of natural gas. ST. LOUIS (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Jefferson Smurfit Group plc announced on Dec. 13 that a wholly owned subsidiary has acquired from News International Townsend Hook Group Limited, the operating subsidiaries of which are Townsend Hook Limited, The Hale Paper Co. Limited, and Snodland Fibres Limited.

Townsend Hook Limited is a Paper Mill with three machines, two of which have a capacity of 150,000 tonnes of waste-based case making materials for the corrugated case markets, and one machine producing wood free matt coated papers.

The company operates from a single 61-acre mill site on the River Medway in Snodland, Kent in the Southeast of England. The Mill is one of the largest in the country and is renowned for its quality product. Amongst its trade names are Fineblade Cartridge, Fineblade Smooth, Fine Flute, Fine Chip and Fine Liner.

The two other small operating companies being acquired carry on business as paper merchants and a waste paper agent. Sales total approximately U.S. $145,125,000 (Stg 75 million Irish pounds) and the Mill has been consistently profitable over the years. Smurfit expect E.P.S. to be enhanced as a result of the acquisition. The consideration was not material in the context of the Jefferson Smurfit Group.

Commenting on the purchase, Dermot F. Smurfit, joint deputy chairman of the Jefferson Smurfit Group and chairman and chief executive of Smurfit in the UK says "We have known and admired Townsend Hook's operations for many years and this acquisition will significantly add to the strategic development of Smurfit's business in the UK. ATLANTA, (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Arby's, Inc. today announced the resignation of Frank Belatti as chief operating officer, effective immediately. The resignation was accepted by Victor Posner, chairman of DWG Corporation (AMEX: DWG), which owns Arby's.

"While I'm sorry to lose a man of Frank Belatti's talents, his decision was clearly a personal one and, in no way, reflects the regard we hold for each other. I wish him well. Fortunately, Arby's has a well-experienced management team that is committed to the days ahead. Our plans are already set for moving Arby's forward in the coming year," stated Posner.

Belatti's resignation comes following the announcement late November that Posner will relocate Arby's headquarters to Miami in 1991.

Posner stated that a search is already under way for a new chief operating officer.

Belatti also submitted his resignation as president of the Arby's Franchise Association (AFA) to board chairman Joe Smaltz. The AFA is the marketing organization of the Arby's franchisees.

Belatti did not indicate his future plans. Arby's showed a strong performances in 1990 despite a sluggish economy and heavy competitive pressures. It is projecting systemwide sales to reach a record height of $1.5 billion. Arby's expects to open 230 restaurants by year-end 1990 and now have nearly 600 commitments for new restaurants in the future. Also in 1990, Arby's, Inc. built or acquired more company restaurants than any time in its history, opened two new international markets and acquired a second restaurant concept.

Arby's is a leading international fast-food chain, with more than 2,350 restaurants in the United States, Canada, Asia, Mexico, the Caribbean and Australia. Arby's is ranked as an industry leader in areas such as technology product marketing, nutritional and consumer information and community service.

PARK CITY, Utah (DEC. 19) UPI - Seven passengers were killed and 41 other people were injured when a Chicago-bound Greyhound bus was broadsided and overturned by a big-rig truck in a blizzard near the Wyoming border, officials said.

The accident occurred about 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at Echo Junction on Interstate 80, near the Wyoming state line about 40 miles east of the resort town of Park City, where a winter storm was already raging.

Gary Whitney, a Utah Highway Patrol public information officer, said there were seven confirmed deaths and 16 people hospitalized. A total of 41 people were treated for injuries. He said it appeared all the fatalities were bus passengers.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said the Chicago-bound bus was carrying 43 passengers when it was hit and overturned.

''At the point of the accident, the interstate's westbound lanes are elevated.

An 18-wheeler westbound slid off the pavement, down onto the median separating the lanes and ran onto the eastbound lanes, striking the bus on the side. The bus then slid off the highway on its side in the ditch,'' Gravley said.

The truck bounced off the bus and struck a second big rig, he said.

The highway was icy and swept by high winds, Whitney said.

''We're not sure what caused the accident up there, though it appears the weather and road conditions could have been a factor. It's real icy in the area and we have high winds.'' Whitney said. Interstate 80 was closed in both directions between Park City, Utah and Evanston, a distance of about 50 miles.

One witness said people were standing on the side of the bus, pulling victims out through the windows.

''They were just all moaning and groaning and freezing,'' said the witness, Blaine Whimpey of Morgan, Utah. ''They wanted a warm place to get into. Of course, everybody was in shock.''

The National Weather Service had issued a snow advisory for Utah earlier Tuesday, forecasting winds to 55 mph, and blowing and drifting snow. The front had not reached Utah at the time of the accident.

''The biggest problem we're having right now is the visibility and the winds '' said Sgt. Robert Barrie, of the Summit County's Sheriff's Department. ''Air Med and LifeFlight (helicopters) have been forced to set down somewhere in the canyons back on the Utah side.''

The weather forced rescuers to shuttle victims by ambulance from the crash site to where the helicopters were able to land, Barrie said.

East and westbound traffic on the interstate was blocked for several hours, backing traffic up for several miles. The eastbound lanes were re-opened about 2 p.m. MST.

(DEC. 19) UPI - President Bush said he believes Americans support his Persian Gulf policy and reiterated that if war with Iraq does break out, the conflict would not become another Vietnam.

Bush told a meeting of regional editors Tuesday he favored a ''peaceful settlement'' to the crisis, but noted the fast approaching U. N.-mandated Jan. 15 deadline authorizing force to remove Iraq from Kuwait.

The president outlined the scenario for war in the gulf as prospects dimmed for high-level peace talks between U.S. and Iraqi officials.

Bush said his advisers have predicted ''all kinds of ranges on how quickly this guy (Iraqi President Saddam Hussein) would fold, but none that I know of are predicting anything like the long drawn out bitter experience of Vietnam.''

''The agony of Vietnam is still with us,'' Bush said. ''People remember a protracted war. They remember a war where individuals were asked to fight with one hand tied behind their back in essence. This will not be, in my view, that kind of confrontation.''

Bush said he feels he has the support of the American people, but that it would erode if the United States got into a prolonged war in the gulf.

In Brussels, Belgium, the European Community foreign ministers decided Tuesday they would not meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz unless he first holds talks in Washington with Bush.

Secretary of State James Baker told the ministers earlier in the day the United States would not oppose a meeting between Aziz and the EC, as long as Iraq did not receive ''mixed messages'' from the countries involved.

Baker, in Brussels for a meeting of NATO foreign ministers, also said he expected Iraq to attempt ''diplomatic sleights-of-hand'' in the coming weeks and reiterated that a partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait was unacceptable.

Proposed meetings between Aziz and Bush in Washington and between Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad have been stymied as the two countries argue about appropriate dates, 28 days before the U.N. deadline.

Excerpts of an interview with Saddam taped in Baghdad earlier were released Tuesday in Ankara by Turkish state television. Saddam told the interviewer, ''There is no need for us to go to Washington if Bush is to repeat to us the U.N. Security Council resolutions.'' The resolutions call for the complete withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Turkish television said the full interview would be aired Wednesday night. It did not say when the interview was taped.

The EC had earlier this month agreed that Aziz would meet with EC President Gianni de Michelis, the foreign minister of Italy, after his talks with Bush in Washington. The ministers said Saturday they would not change the ground rules for the proposed EC meeting.

Baker said the United States would not object to the Aziz-de Michelis talks and supported all diplomatic efforts toward peace.

''The one thing we do discourage are discordant messages, mixed messages or mixed signals,'' he said. ''The message that's going to go to the Iraqis must be a unifrom message, which is that they must comply with the United Nations resolutions in full.''

At the Pentagon, spokeman Pete Williams said the U.S. forces in the Gulf region - which now total more than 270,000 - will be prepared to force Iraq out of Kuwait on Jan. 15.

He said the United States ''absolutely'' would be ready for offensive action on that day.

The U.S. troops now in the region are joined by about 220,000 allied forces, and the U.S. contingent is expected to grow to about 430,000 by mid January or early February.

In a related development, administration officials said Vice President Dan Quayle will visit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia sometime after Christmas. The date of his trip was not released.
In other developments:

Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani said Iran was opposed to a U.S. attack on Iraq, but that Baghdad would be responsible if war broke out in the region, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

-Britain's Prince Charles will visit British troops in Saudi Arabia over the weekend in a trip arranged at his request, the British Defense Ministry said.

-Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that the foreign minister of Yugoslavia will lead a delegation of non-aligned countries to Baghdad on a peace mission that sources in Baghdad said Saddam welcomed.

-Iraq said 626 children had died during the past month as a result of the economic embargo imposed against Iraq by the United Nations following the invasion, according to a report from the official Iraqi news agency INA.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has pushed prospects for high-level U-S-Iraqi talks farther apart. Saddam said in a Turkish television interview that he sees NO need for his foreign minister to go to Washington and meet with President Bush if Bush is going to reiterate demands that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait.

In New York, the accused killer of militant Zionist Rabbi Meir Kahane remains behind bars. A state Supreme Court judge in Manhattan Tuesday revoked a 300-thousand-dollar bail set for El Sayyid Nosair, saying evidence showed the Egyptian immigrant might flee. Justice Alvin Schlesinger said- ''I changed my mind,'' and sent Nosair back to Riker's Island Jail.

South African President Frederik de Klerk has leveled his strongest attack yet on the African National Congress. De Klerk Tuesday accused the A-N-C of fanning ''the flames of confrontation.'' Speaking on state- run television, he said he's disappointed that the A-N-C appears to have reverted to ''outdated rhetoric and policies'' in a bid to speed an end to white minority rule.

Drug Enforcement Administration officials insist there's NO link between the agency and the 1988 terrorist bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland. D-E-A Assistant Administrator Stephen Greene told a packed House subcommittee hearing Tuesday that the D-E-A had NO part in the tragedy that left 270 people dead.

Broadcast reports have said Pan Am flights from Frankfurt, West Germany, including Flight 103, were used several times by an undercover D-E-A operation to fly informants and suitcases of heroin into Detroit. The flights were part of an elaborate sting operation to snare Middle East drug dealers. The reports said drug operatives may have uncovered the operation and retaliated by slipping a bomb in the suitcase of a Lebanese-American said to be acting as a D-E-A courier.

New York Representative Ted Weiss told a congressional panel Tuesday that the government has failed to require manufacturers prove that silicone breast implants are safe, despite mounting evidence the devices may endanger women's health. Weiss accused the Food and Drug Administration of ''dragging its feet'' on regulating breast implants.

F-D-A officials, however, defend their actions, saying they're balancing safety concerns against the value of implants to breast cancer patients. In addition, the officials say evidence indicates any adverse health effects from silicone implants appear relatively rare.

(DEC. 19) UPI - With the game on the line, simply call it Magic's moment.

Magic Johnson hit a hook shot in the lane and a jumper from the left of the free throw line in the final 40 seconds Tuesday night to guide the Los Angeles Lakers to a 100-97 victory over the New York Knicks.

Each of the baskets pushed a Laker lead that had been as high as 12 points back to 3.

The Lakers struggled much of the second half and shot just 28 percent from the field in the third quarter (5 of 18). Johnson adjusted his game and decided to shoot more in the final period.

''I don't mind passing when things are going well,'' said Johnson, who had 10 of the Lakers' 17 assists. ''When things are going well, why should I shoot? In the last minute I knew I was going to shoot the ball, it was just a matter of where I was going to shoot from.''

After Kiki Vandeweghe sank one of two free throws to bring New York within 94-93, Johnson cut across the lane and laid in a little hook shot with 40 seconds remaining. Johnson dubbed the shot the junior sky hook after sinking a similiar shot to win Game 4 of the 1987 NBA Finals from the Boston Celtics.

Patrick Ewing, who finished with 33 points for New York, brought the Knicks within 96-95. Johnson then sank a 15-footer to put the Lakers up 98-95 with 13.8 seconds left.

Ewing hit another inside basket and Bryon Scott was fouled and sank both free throws to account for the final margin.

''We picked it up a notch down the stretch,'' said the Lakers' James Worthy. ''Coming down to the end of a game, we just have so much confidence in ourselves that sometimes that will make the difference in getting a victory.''

Johnson finished with 22 points and 11 assists and Worthy had 21 points. New York received 16 points and 10 assists from Mark Jackson.

The Knicks pulled ahead 86-83 with 5:12 left behind an 8-2 run. Ewing capped the streak with a thunderous dunk as the Lakers failed to get back on defense.

But Los Angeles scored the next 6 points to go up 89-86 with 3:48 left. Worthy who scored 8 points in the final 4 1-2 minutes, sank two free throws with 1:12 remaining to put the Lakers ahead 94-92.

The Knicks held the Lakers to just 17 points in the third quarter and trailed 75-73 entering the final period.

''We were right there,'' said New York's Gerald Wilkins. ''We looked good, but we still have some wrinkles.''

Elsewhere, Philadelphia pounded the LA Clippers 110-99, Utah upended Charlotte 105-100, Phoenix pinched Dallas 114-95, Chicago clipped Miami 112-103, San Antonio stopped Houston 96-95, Milwaukee dumped Detroit 106-101, Portland defeated Golden State 122-94, Sacramento stopped Minnesota 108-99 and Seattle crushed Orlando 122-105.

-- AROUND THE NBA --

Sixers 110, LA Clippers 99

At Philadelphia, Charles Barkley scored 25 points and grabbed 15 rebounds and Rickey Green tied a season-high with 21 points. The Clippers have not won in Philadelphia since Oct. 31, 1975, losing 21 straight in the Spectrum.

Jazz 105, Hornets 100

At Charlotte, N.C., Karl Malone scored 30 points to lead Utah to its ninth victory in its last 11 games. Charlotte has lost seven straight.

Suns 114, Mavericks 95

At Dallas, Dan Majerle came off the bench to score 24 points to help the Suns win their sixth straight. Xavier McDaniel added 23 points and 11 rebounds. The Mavericks played without the injured Roy Tarpley, Herb Williams and Fat Lever.

Bulls 112, Heat 103

At Chicago, flu-ridden Michael Jordan scored 39 points, including 7 in a crucial 32-17 outburst to close out the first half and Scottie Pippen added 30 for the Bulls. It was the Heat's eighth straight loss.

Spurs 96, Rockets 95

Bucks 106, Pistons 101

At Milwaukee, Jay Humphries scored a career-high 36 points and sank two free throws with seven seconds left as the Bucks collected their 13th straight victory at home. The Pistons have lost seven of their last eight games.

Blazers 122, Warriors 94

At Portland, Ore., Clyde Drexler scored 20 points and the Trail Blazers held the Warriors to 9 first-quarter points. Jerome Kersey added 18 points for the Blazers, who improved their league-leading record to 22-2.

Kings 108, Timberwolves 99

At Sacramento, Calif., Wayman Tisdale scored 25 points and Lionel Simmons added 24 for the Kings. The Kings have won five of their last seven, while the Wolves have dropped four of their last five.

Sonics 122, Magic 105

At Seattle, Derrick McKey scored 33 points and Sedale Threatt added 22 in a game delayed nearly an hour because of a snowstorm. Terry Catledge scored 30 points for the Magic.

BEIJING (DEC. 19) UPI - A Chinese physicist who returned to his homeland to seek justice for a jailed dissident was given safe passage back to the United States Wednesday, saying family pressures forced him to cut his mission short.

Ge Xun, a 31-year-old doctoral candidate in physics at Texas A&M University, used the term ''frustrating'' to describe his quest for information about the case against democracy activist Wang Juntao.

''I'm not satisfied,'' Ge said in a seedy hotel hours before his departure. ''My friend is being treated unfairly.''

Ge returned to China Dec. 10 to demand an ''open and fair'' trial for Wang, a magazine editor charged with sedition and spreading counterrevolutionary propaganda for activities during the 1989 democracy protests.

Wang, whom Ge befriended in 1982, was branded a key agitator of the massive protest movement crushed by Chinese troops on June 4, 1989.

Undercover police tailed Ge conspicuously as he trudged from office to office in search of the facts surrounding Wang's case, but Ge said the government at no time pressured him to leave.

Ge's case was being watched closely from abroad as well.

U.S. sources said the United States made several high-level requests that China safeguard Ge's rights out of concern he might be arrested for his bold affront to the hard-line regime.

The scholar's mission coincided with an official visit to Beijing by Washington's top human rights official, Assistant U.S. Secretary of State Richard Schifter, who repeatedly raised questions about Wang and other jailed dissidents with Chinese officials.

In the end, it was the urgings of Ge's distraught family that persuaded him to give up his quest and return to his studies.

''I would stay if it weren't for family pressure,'' Ge said after eight days in his hometown.

Ge said he also was concerned about his wife in Texas, explaining that she had been hospitalized for stress since his departure.

Ge was evasive when asked how his family in Beijing had managed to obtain an exit permit and return ticket to San Francisco for him in only a matter of days.

Such procedures can take weeks or even months for ordinary Chinese lacking crucial connections, or ''guanxi,'' to grease the necessary palms.

The amiable scholar said he hopes to return to observe Wang's trial, and proudly exhibited hand-written letters to senior Chinese leaders requesting fair treatment for the jailed dissident.

Ge said the letters - sealed with red-and-white Christmas tape proclaiming ''seasons greetings'' in English - asked Premier Li Peng, Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin, President Yang Shangkun and National People's Congress chairman Wan Li to ''presume Wang's innocence'' and release him on bail.

Ge finally located Wang's case at a branch of the Beijing Public Security Bureau after four tedious days of inquiries.

Officials told Ge his friend Wang was ''still under investigation'' and barred from seeing his wife. Wang could receive letters from Ge only if the contents were judged ''appropriate,'' the officials said.

''I would not use the word 'kind,''' Ge said in a wry description of the officials' manner.

Ge said officials at the state prosecutor's office told him they were not yet handling Wang's case, although the office had stamped the arrest notice that listed the charges against him.

The brief notice was delivered to Wang's wife Nov. 24.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Utah authorities say they're NOT sure what caused a deadly collision of a Greyhound bus and two big-rig trucks Tuesday near the Wyoming state line. But officials say the weather may have been a factor as a blizzard was sweeping the area at the time of the accident, about 40 miles east of Park City. Seven passengers were killed and 41 other people were injured when the Chicago-bound bus was broadsided and overturned by a big-rig truck. The truck bounced off the bus and struck a second big rig.

President Bush says he favors a ''peaceful settlement'' to the Persian Gulf crisis. But in remarks to regional editors Tuesday in Washington, Bush noted the fast approaching U-N-mandated January 15th deadline authorizing force to remove Iraq from Kuwait. The president reiterated that any conflict in the Gulf region will NOT become another Vietnam. He said his advisers have predicted- quote- ''all kinds of ranges'' on how quickly Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would fold, if war broke out.

A major Colombian drug kingpin is in custody after turning himself in to government authorities in Bogota. 33-year-old Fabio Ochoa, a high-ranking member of Colombia's notorious Medellin drug cartel, surrendered Tuesday to avoid extradition to the United States where he faces drug trafficking charges in Louisiana and Florida. His surrender falls under a new government measure that reduces jail sentences and protects suspects from extradition.

President Bush is rejecting suggestions his administration flip- flopped on the issue of race-exclusive scholarships. Bush says the White House had NO warning of Assistant Education Secretary of civil rights Michael Williams' initial decision to ban scholarships reserved for minorities. But Williams Tuesday reversed himself after meeting with White House officials, citing political naivete.

The N-double-A-C-P says the department's change of heart- quote- ''helps put the genie back in the bottle.'' But the American Council on Education, which represents higher education institutions, says it doesn't think much of the administration's reversal. It says the new decision in fact still holds that the tremendous bulk of scholarships available for minorities are illegal.

Researchers report that high levels of cholesterol in children don't necessarily mean they will have worrisome levels of the artery-clogging substance as adults. A study of more than 23-hundred Iowa school children found about three-quarters of the girls and half of the boys who had high blood cholesterol levels between ages 8 and 18 had normal cholesterol counts as young adults. The study by University of Iowa's Dr. Ronald Lauer and William Clarke was reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Nothing Detroit Red Wings rookie Sergei Fedorov does surprises linemate Brent Fedyk.

''He'll do whatever it takes,'' Fedyk said Tuesday night after the Red Wings took a 3-1 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers. ''He's so good at holding onto the puck and waiting for something to happen. And he's so strong with the puck that it's hard to knock him off of it.''

Fedorov scored his 16th goal of the season with 2:54 remaining in the third period to lift the Red Wings to victory. His goal spoiled a brilliant performance by Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall, who stopped 27 shots, including several outstanding opportunities by the Red Wings in the third period when they outshot the Flyers 16-4.

The Soviet defector also had an assist on Fedyk's goal that tied the game 1-1 at 1:18 of the second period and has figured in all but one of Detroit's last seven goals - scoring three and assisting on three others.

Fedorov's goal came after Hextall stopped Johan Garpenlov's shot from the bottom of the faceoff circle. Fedorov was trailing on the play and knocked the rebound into the net while he was being checked by Philadelphia's Ron Sutter.

''I'm very happy with him,'' Detroit Coach Bryan Murray said about Fedorov. ''He creates a lot of chances for us, and tonight he gets the big goal.''

Steve Yzerman wrapped up the scoring with an empty-net goal with just 13 seconds remaining.

Detroit goaltender Glen Hanlon made 19 saves as he recorded his fourth victory in six starts since being called up from San Diego on Nov. 22.

''It wasn't really the goaltending tonight, but a solid effort by the entire hockey team,'' Hanlon said. ''I've been lucky that the stretch because we've played some quality games.''

The Flyers jumped out to a 1-0 lead when a high shot from the left point by Dave Fenyves hit Hanlon's glove and went into the net at 14:45 of the first period.

''We had a fair amount of chances in the first period and didn't score,'' Philadelphia Coach Paul Holmgren said. ''Then they got stronger as the game went on and we failed for some reason.''

In other NHL games Tuesday night, Pittsburgh routed Winnipeg 9-2, Toronto and the New York Islanders tied 2-2, Quebec slipped by Montreal 6-4, Buffalo beat Hartford 4-3 in overtime and New Jersey hammered Boston 8-3.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Penguins 9, Jets 2

At Pittsburgh, Mark Recchi scored a goal and two assists for the Penguins and Paul Coffey became the third NHL defenseman to record 700 career assists. The victory was Pittsburgh's fourth straight, while the Jets lost their second game in a row.

Islanders 2, Maple Leafs 2

At Uniondale, N.Y., Pat Lafontaine scored his 20th goal of the season early in the third period to lift the Islanders into the tie. Lafontaine ripped a slap shot past goaltender Peter Ing at 2:47 to help the Islanders run their unbeaten streak to four games (2-0-2).

Nordiques 6, Canadiens 4

At Quebec, Joe Sakic scored a goal and added two assists to help the Nordiques rally for the victory over the Canadiens, losers of three straight games. Quebec's Tony Hrkac snapped a 3-3 tie at 2:58 of the third period and Sakic raised the Nordiques' lead to 5-3 less than two minutes later.

Sabres 4, Whalers 3

At Hartford, Conn., Dave Andreychuk scored at 1:07 of overtime to help the Sabres end a five-game losing streak. Rick Vaive scored twice and Uwe Krupp also scored for the Sabres, 11-15-7, who are just 2-6-1 since Nov. 28.

Devils 8, Bruins 3

At East Rutherford, N.J., Alan Stewart, Peter Stastny and Doug Brown scored second-period goals to break open a close game and propel the Devils to victory. The win was New Jersey's first in its last four games and snapped the Bruins four-game unbeaten streak.

#90353u0267 12/19/1990 ~United Press International
(DEC. 19) UPI - President Bush spoke to a meeting of newspaper editors Tuesday, and outlined the scenario for war in the Persian Gulf, as prospects dimmed for high-level peace talks between U-S and Iraqi officials.

Members of the European Community have decided against meeting with Iraq's foreign minister unless he meets first with President Bush in Washington. The Dutch foreign minister said ''We mustN'T give the impression that there's a difference of position between Europe and the United States.''

A military court in the Philippines Wednesday convicted 81 army officers and men of mutiny and multiple murder in connection with the August 1987 coup attempt. They were sentenced to terms ranging from 12 to 20 years at hard labor.

At the urging of consumer advocate Ralph Nader, angry callers swamped the office of Vice President Quayle Tuesday to protest his 45-thousand dollar pay raise. Nader announced Quayle's office phone number and asked people to call.

Environmental groups are urging the Bush administration to include tough energy efficiency standards and the development of renewable fuels in its National Energy Strategy. The plan is expected to be released next month.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Kentucky lost its third straight game to No. 6 Indiana and second in a row to the Hoosiers under Coach Rick Pitino. But these Wildcats did something in defeat Tuesday night no other Kentucky team has achieved in the past 20 years.

They earned the respect of Indiana Coach Bob Knight.

''I hope the people in Kentucky appreciate the fact that whether we win or lose, I can at least walk off the floor and respect the people we played against and respect the kind of operation Kentucky has,'' said Knight, a harsh critic of the scandal-plagued reigns of Pitino's predecessors, Joe B. Hall and Eddie Sutton.

Calbert Cheaney scored 23 points, including a critical three-point play with 37 seconds remaining, lifting Indiana past Kentucky 87-84 for its seventh straight victory.

Jamal Mashburn tied the game 82-82 with 53 seconds remaining on a pair of free throws before Cheaney drove to the basket, scored while being fouled by Deron Feldhaus, and made the free throw.

Jamal Meeks added two free throws with 14 seconds remaining, extending Indiana's lead to 87-82 to seal the Hoosiers' third straight triumph over their border rivals.

Kentucky was plauged with foul trouble as five Wildcats - including four starters - were disqualified. Sean Woods fouled Meeks in the final seconds, joining John Pelphrey, Gimel Martinez and Reggie Hansen on the bench for good.

''We were in very serious foul trouble and we couldn't substitute,'' Pitino said. ''But I can't be any more proud of this team. I'm as proud as any win we've had in two years here.''

The Wildcats scored six straight points to open the second half, taking a 40-37 lead before a 19-6 Indiana run soon after pushed the Hoosiers ahead 58-47 with 11:25 remaining. Cheaney and freshman guard Damon Bailey, who finished with 16 points, each scored 7 in the streak.

Kentucky, 5-2, responded by scoring 15 of the next 17 points. Pelphrey and Mashburn each added five in the run that tied the score at 61 with 8:30 remaining.

''Kentucky dictated the way the second half could have gone with the start they got,'' Knight said. ''As well as we played all year was after Kentucky's start and then we got up by 11. One thing we wanted to do was go hard at Kentucky and get them in foul trouble, which we did.''

Eric Anderson scored 15 points for Indiana, 9-1, while Pelphrey led the Wildcats with 21. Indiana's only loss this year came against No. 3 Syracuse in the Maui Classic.

Elsewhere in games featuring Top 25 teams, No. 11 Louisiana State crushed Arkansas State 98-74, No. 23 Temple nipped Penn State 67-63 and co-No. 24 Michigan State topped Evansville 81-76.

At Baton Rouge, La., Shaquille O'Neal scored an arena-record 53 points - 37 in the second half - to power the Tigers. O'Neal added 19 rebounds and broke the previous LSU Assembly Center record of 50 points set by Chris Jackson in 1989. Vernell Singleton added 21 points for the Tigers, 5-1. Bobby Gross led Arkansas State with 26 points.

At Philadelphia, Mark Macon scored 18 points and Donald Hodge added 15 to lead the Owls. Freddie Barnes drilled a three-pointer with 3:42 left to bring the Nittany Lions within 55-54 but the Owls, 4-2, hit 10 of 12 free throws down the stretch to preserve the win.

At East Lansing, Mich., Steve Smith scored 35 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to propel the Spartans. Smith scored 15 points in the first seven minutes of the second half as Michigan State turned a three-point halftime deficit into a 10-point lead. The Spartans, 4-3, received 11 points from Mark Montgomery.

ABOARD OLFERT FISCHER, Hormuz Strait (DEC. 19) UPI - Six civilian Iranian sailors were plucked from the waters of the Gulf early Wednesday by a patrolling Danish frigate, after a collision between their vessel and an unidentified ship.

Those rescued were unhurt, but one crewmember was missing and rescue operations involving Olfert Fischer, a Norwegian supply ship and the USS Fife were still under way Wednesday morning.

The accident happened early Wednesday while the small, 350-ton Iranian freighter Moktar was on its way from Dubai to Iran's port of Bandar Abbas.

Rescued Iranians said a ''large vessel'' collided with their freighter during the night. Two minutes after the collision the Moktar sunk, and its crew, unable to put on life jackets, was forced to jump overboard and cling to floating parts of the wrecked vessel.

''We were on patrol and one of the Olfert Fischer crew who was sleeping at the rear of the vessel woke up suddenly, heard shouts coming from the water and raised the alarm,'' said a senior member of the Olfert Fischer crew, who for security reasons refused to be named.

''Using searchlights, we located at first four men clinging to wreckage, and after a short further search found another two,'' he added.

All were Iranians and had been in the warm water, clinging to wreckage, for six hours.

None on board the Moktar had been able to identify the vessel which rammed them, saying only it had been ''large'' and had continued its voyage apparently unaware it had collided with a smaller ship.

The six surviving Iranians were transferred to another small Iranian vessel which was to transport them to Iran.

The Olfert Fischer is Denmark's contribution to the international naval force patrolling the Gulf to enforce the United Nations embargo on Iraq, imposed following that country's Aug. 2 invasion of the tiny Gulf emirate of Kuwait.

In the two months the vessel has been active in the Gulf it has boarded and searched 280 vessels, and found none to be attempting to break the U.N. imposed embargo.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (DEC. 19) UPI - Senior Indian and Pakistani officials held a second day of talks Wednesday aimed at defusing a crisis in relations between the two rival nations that has threatened peace in the region.

Foreign Secretary Shehryar Khan, his Indian counterpart, Muchkund Dubey, and their aides continued discussions they began Tuesday in the third round of a series of meetings which began in July.

No details of the latest session have been released, but a joint statement was expected at the conclusion of the talks later Wednesday.

The two previous rounds failed to make any significant progress toward resolving the root causes of tensions between the two South Asian neighbors, and observers say this week's discussions are also unlikely to result in any breakthrough.

Dubey also held a separate meeting Tuesday with President Ghulam Ishaq Khan that dealt with the ''whole range of bilateral issues,'' a government statement said. It said Ishaq Khan told the visiting official that improved relations ''required a constructive response'' from India.

''The president reiterated Pakistan's principled stand on the Kashmir issue ... the on-going communal riots and the attempts to demolish the Babri mosque '' the statement said. ''He hoped that the Indian government would take the necessary steps to discharge its constitutional obligations towards the minorities.''

Hundreds of people have died in communal riots in India sparked Hindu attempts to build a temple on the site of the Babri mosque in the city of Ayodhya. New Delhi has rejected as ''objectionable interference'' in its affairs recent statements from Islamabad on the issue.

However, Pakistani officials said the foreign secretaries' talks would focus the Kashmir dispute.

India has accused Pakistan of arming and training Islamic militants conducting an 11-month-old uprising against New Delhi's rule in Jammu and Kashmir state. Islamabad has denied the charges, but says it morally supports the movement.

The dispute led to fears of a fourth war between the two nations over the northern Kashmir region, which is claimed by both sides but is divided along a U.N.-monitored cease-fire line into Indian and Pakistani controlled sectors.

Officials said Pakistan would press India during the talks for a joint redeployment of forces along the border to peacetime locations.

Pakistan is suspected of pushing ahead with a program to develop nuclear weapons following the rise in tensions over Kashmir, allegations Islambad denies. The suspicions led Washington to freeze millions of dollars in aid to Pakistan in October.

Both nations have new governments since the last round of talks. In Pakistan, Nawaz Sharif was elected Oct. 24 to succeed ousted prime minister Benazir Bhutto, and in India a shakey coalition headed by Chandra Shekar last month replaced the year-old administration of V.P. Singh.

The two new leaders met for the first time at a regional summit meeting in the Maldives capital of Male in November.

Ishaq Khan told Dubey during their talks Tuesday he hoped the Indian official's visit ''would help build upon the encouraging trend emerging from the recent meeting'' of the two prime ministers in Male, the government statement said.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Around the world... Around the clock... U-P-I brings the latest news.

President Bush says he believes Americans support his Persian Gulf policy. But he says he believes that support would erode if the United States got into a prolonged war in the Gulf. He reiterated that he favors a ''peaceful settlement,'' but emphasized that if war with Iraq does break out, the conflict would not become another Vietnam.

Bush outlined the scenario for a Gulf war as prospects dimmed for high-level U-S-Iraq peace talks. The talks have been stymied as the two nations argue about appropriate dates. Now Iraqi President Saddam Hussein reportedly is saying there's NO need for talks if Bush is going to repeat his demand that Iraq withdraw from Kuwait.

The House Education and Labor Committee still plans to hold hearings today on the issue of race-exclusive scholarships, despite the administration's reversal of its ban on scholarships reserved for minorities. One of the featured witnesses will be Assistant Education Secretary Michael Williams, who set off a firestorm of controversy with the ban.

In the Philippines, a military court today convicted 81 army officers and men of mutiny and multiple murder stemming from the August 1987 coup attempt. They were sentenced to terms ranging from 12 to 20 years at hard labor. The general court martial acquitted 20 officers and enlisted men of the same charges.

Chicago police arrested a man who they say stabbed a woman to death under her family's Christmas tree and stole their presents to sell for drugs. Police say the woman's eight-year-old daughter returned home from school and found her mother's body under the tree. Police say the suspect, who lived upstairs from the family, also tried to kill a two- year-old girl the woman was babysitting.

Hospital officials in Mount Vernon, Missouri, say the condition of a comatose woman whose life support feeding tube has been removed remains UNchanged. 33-year-old Nancy Cruzan, who has lingered in a vegetative state for nearly eight years, is being allowed to die after her parents won a right-to-die legal battle last week.

Police and security guards yesterday arrested a group of religious activists who went to the Missouri Rehabilitation Center in an attempt to force feed the woman. But they were arrested before they could enter her room. The activists oppose the Cruzan family's decision. Doctors say Cruzan could die within two weeks.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Iraq lashed out Wednesday at the 12-nation European Community for refusing to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, and Egyptian news reports said Iraq was bolstering its forces in Kuwait with troops moved from the border with Syria.

Reports of the Iraqi buildup in Kuwait surfaced shortly before Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were due to arrive in Saudi Arabia to meet with U.S. troops and military strategists.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported Wednesday that Iraq had withdrawn large numbers of its troops deployed along its border with Syria to bolster its troops in Kuwait.

In a dispatch from the Syrian capital of Damascus, MENA quoted sources in the border region as saying, ''armored Iraqi troops, tanks and artillery units had been withdrawn to occupied Kuwait.''

Regional observers said the unconfirmed Iraqi reinforcement of its 430,000-strong force in Kuwait and southern Iraq was an apparent sign Baghdad was preparing for a U.S.-led attack after the Jan. 15 deadline set by the U.N. Security Council for Iraq's withdraw from the oil-rich emirate.

Earlier Wednesday, Iraq issued a statement condemning the European Community for its refusal to meet with Aziz before the Iraqi Foreign Minister had held talks in Washington with President Bush.

Plans for the Aziz-Bush talks and a reciprocal meeting in Baghdad between Secretary of State James Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein have been put on hold because Baghad and Washington have yet to agree on dates for the meetings.

''The European Community's action demonstrates that it is appeasing the United States and its aggressive policies,'' said Baghdad Radio, monitored in Cairo.

The state-owned radio quoted a foreign ministry spokesman as saying the EC action ignored ''European interests in the Middle East'' and warned Europeans they would regret their action.

U.S. Secretary of State James Baker told the ministers earlier in the day the United States would not oppose a meeting between Aziz and the EC, as long as Iraq did not receive ''mixed messages from the countries involved.''

Some EC countries wanted the meeting to go ahead, but British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd opposed it, pointing out that this would give Saddam the opportunity to say the alliance confronting him over Kuwait was crumbling.

Baker, in Brussels for a meeting of NATO foreign ministers, also said he expected Iraq to attempt ''diplomatic sleights-of-hand'' in the coming weeks and reiterated that a partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait was unacceptable.

Proposed meetings between Aziz and Bush in Washington and between Baker and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in Baghdad have been stymied as the two countries argue about appropriate dates, 28 days before the U.N. deadline.

Excerpts of an interview with Saddam taped in Baghdad earlier were released Tuesday in Ankara by Turkish state television. Saddam told the interviewer, ''There is no need for us to go to Washington if Bush is to repeat to us the U.N. Security Council resolutions.'' The resolutions call for the complete withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Turkish television said the full interview would be aired Wednesday night. It did not say when the interview was taped.

The EC had earlier this month agreed that Aziz would meet with EC President Gianni de Michelis, the foreign minister of Italy, after his talks with Bush in Washington. The ministers said Saturday they would not change the ground rules for the proposed EC meeting.

Baker said the United States would not object to the Aziz-de Michelis talks and supported all diplomatic efforts toward peace.

''The one thing we do discourage are discordant messages, mixed messages or mixed signals,'' he said. ''The message that's going to go to the Iraqis must be a unifrom message, which is that they must comply with the United Nations resolutions in full.''

At the Pentagon, spokeman Pete Williams said the U.S. forces in the Gulf region - which now total more than 270,000 - will be prepared to force Iraq out of Kuwait on Jan. 15.

He said the United States ''absolutely'' would be ready for offensive action on that day.

The U.S. troops now in the region are joined by about 220,000 allied forces, and the U.S. contingent is expected to grow to about 430,000 by mid January or early February.

In a related development, administration officials said Vice President Dan Quayle will visit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia sometime after Christmas. The date of his trip was not released.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Housing starts in the United States rose 9.0 percent in November to an annual rate of 1.12 million units from a revised rate of 1.03 million, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

But November's pace was 16 percent below the year-earlier rate of 1. 34 million and offers yet another sign of the weakness that has hammered the nation's housing industry.

Starts in buildings with two units or more accounted for the increase, the government said.

The November rate for buildings with five units or more was 314,000, about twice the October amount. Starts of buildings with two to four units was 43,000.

But weakness continued to batter the single-family housing industry, where starts in November were at an annual rate of 772,000, or 110 percent below October's rate of 856,000.

November's single-family housing rate was the lowest since the last recession when single-family housing starts fell to an annual rate of 773,700 in October 1982.

During the first 11 months of the year, overall housing starts of 1. 13 million were down 13 percent from 1.30 million the year before.

The number of building permits, an indication of future building activity, also slipped in November to an annual rate of 907,000 from 920,000 in October and 34 percent below the year before.

Single family permits were issued at an annual rate of 673,000 in November, down 5 percent from the month before. But permits for buildings with five units or more were issued at a rate of 194,000, up 15 percent from October.

For the first 11 months of the year, 1.05 million building permits were issues down 16 percent from 1.24 million in the year-earlier period.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - The U.S. gross nation product, the output of goods and services, increased 1.4 percent, or $14.9 billion, in the third quarter, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

In its final report on third-quarter GNP, the government said the economy firmed during the third quarter from a real GNP increase of 0.4 percent - or $4.5 billion - in the second quarter.

The GNP price index rose 4.2 percent in the quarter, compared with a gain of 3.9 percent in the second quarter.

Increases were posted in real personal comsumption spending, which gained $18 billion during the quarter after rising $1.5 billion in the second quarter.

Non-residential fixed investments also rose, posting a gain of $10.9 billion during the quarter after decreasing $6.2 percent in the second quarter.

Residential fixed investments decreased $9.8 billion after slipping $5.5 billion in the second quarter.

Net exports fell $1.9 billion after tumbling a sharp $9.2 billion in the previous quarter. But exports rose $10.4 billion in the quarter after falling in the previous quarter and imports increased.

Federal government purchases of goods and services increased $100 million in the quarter after gaining $12.9 billion in the second quarter. National defense purchases increased $1.7 billion after rising $2.1 billion in the previous quarter.

Final sales for the quarter increased 1.9 percent, or $19.7 billion, during the quarter after falling 0.7 percent, or $7.2 billion, in the second quarter.

Business inventories subtracted $4.8 billion from the third-quarter change in real GNP, the government said, after adding $11.7 billion to the second-quarter figures.

Businesses increased inventories $4.7 billion during the quarter after bolstering inventories $9.5 billion in the second quarter.

The government also reported that profits from current production decreased $5.9 billion during the quarter to an annual rate of $300.7 billion. Profits increased in the second quarter by $9.8 billion.

Profits for non-financial corporations decreased $17 billion after rising $11.3 billion in the second quarter.

(DEC. 19) UPI - The U.S. Federal Reserve's decision to lower its official discount rate by 0.5 percentage points boosted stock prices Wednesday on the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

The benchmark Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which gained 336.11 points Tuesday, jumped another 452.76 points to 24,876.78.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major issues climbed 30.93 points to 1,821.41 points, following a 11.59-point gain Tuesday.

Trading volume increased sharply as an estimated 620 million shares changed hands, up from 382.16 million Tuesday.

Advances topped declines 686 to 278, while 171 issues remained unchanged.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices closed higher on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange in extremely thin trading reflecting a lack of fresh news from the Persian Gulf.

The benchmark Hang Seng Index rose 16.79 points to 3,083.44. The gain followed a 14.73 point rise Tuesday.

Among the narrower indexes, financials eased 1.08 points, utilities slipped 0.11, properties gained 54.33 and industrials climbed 23.53 points.

Turnover was the slowest in almost two months as an estimated 489 million shares changed hands, well below the 681 million Tuesday.

In Singapore, stocks closed mixed on the Singapore Stock Exchange after profit taking overcame early gains.

The Straits Times Industrial Index, which added 2.82 points Tuesday, slipped0.76 point to 1,173.64. The broader-based All Singapore Index fell 0.14 point to 323.65.

An estimated 46.71 million shares changed hands, compared with 31.7 million Tuesday.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices closed slightly higher in light trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange despite doubts about the events in the Middle East.

The Securities Exchange of Thailand Index, which eased 2.94 points Tuesday, rose 4.54 points to 623.58.

Volume amounted to about 73 million shares, compared with 59 million Tuesday.

In Australia, stock prices closed mixed in light trading on the Sydney Sharemarket.

The All Ordinaries Index, which fell 12.1 points Tuesday, added 0.4 point to 1,284.1. The All Industrial index rose 2.5 points to 1,964.9 and the All Resources Index slipped 0.9 points to 760.6.

Turnover, boosted by several block trades of NAB Bank ahead of its 29-cent dividend payout, amounted to 90.1 million.

MOSCOW (DEC. 19) UPI - Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin, declaring ''the era of commands from the Kremlin is past,'' told the Soviet legislature Wednesday that Mikhail Gorbachev's central government should step aside and let the 15 Soviet republics run their own affairs.

Yeltsin joined Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov on the third day of a key session of the Congress of People's Deputies in opposing Gorbachev's plan to reorganize the government and grant the office of president broad new powers.

''As the chairman of the Russian Parliament, I declare that Russia will not agree to the restoration of a dictatorship that also does not possess a real political program for the revival of the country,'' Yeltsin said in a brief speech.

Gorbachev is seeking approval for a reorganization plan that would create new law enforcement structures and place all government ministries directly under his control, eliminating Ryzhkov's job for all practical purposes.

''No Soviet leader, neither Stalin nor Brezhnev, had such unlimited powers,'' Yeltsin said.

Yeltsin said restructuring should be left to the Soviet Union's 15 republics. The three Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania declared independence earlier this year, and all but one of the other Soviet states have passed milder sovereignty proclamations.

''The era of commands from the Kremlin is past,'' Yeltsin said. ''The republics are no longer afraid. The main thing is that they (the central government) should not meddle, that they should not be jealous, that they should not block, but that they should help the initiatives of the republics.

''We cannot be pulled back. The so-called revolution from above for the restructuring of our society is over. The Kremlin has ceased being the initiator of the renewal of our country.''

Ryzhkov called for a delay in Gorbachev's reorganization plan, saying political stability and a new ''union treaty'' outlining the relationship between the republics and the central government were needed first.

''The government needs order now and a sort of breathing space,'' Ryzhkov said. ''The restructuring of the state organs cannot be done out of context. ... Otherwise it will simply be a new facade and nothing will change.''

Ryzhkov said the Soviet Union was in a ''catestrophic condition'' because of ''government and political instability.''

''The old system was destroyed and it was not replaced with anything, '' he said. ''Under the banner of a market (economy) a political war is going on.''

The speeches by Ryzkov and Yeltsin came on the third day of a congress session promoted by Gorbachev as a unity meeting. Gorbachev opened the session Monday by calling for greater presidential powers and approval of a voter referendum on a new Soviet federation and private land ownership.

Gorbachev's plan to hold a national plebiscite on the fate of the union is a risky bid to appeal directly to the people, over the heads of rebellious governments in the republics and his own fractious legislature.

''Let them kill me, let them hang me on a cross, but I will not abandon my position,'' he said Tuesday. ''It is impermissible to pit peoples against each other. We must strive for unity.''

Yeltsin, his chief rival for power, signed an agreement Tuesday on economic cooperation with Byelorussian President Nikolai Dementei. It was the latest in a series of such pacts between the dominant Russian republic and sister Soviet states.

Interfax reported that Russia and Estonia also were close to signing a treaty, and the new nationalist leader of Georgia, Zviad Gamsakhurdia, told the news service that Yeltsin would travel to his Transcaucasian republic in several weeks.

Also Tuesday, some deputies from the tiny southwestern republic of Moldavia walked out of the Congress, raising to six the number of the republics observing a full or partial boycott of the session.

(DEC. 19) UPI - A federal appeals court has stayed the execution of Danny Ray Harris, who was slated to die by injection early today in Texas. Harris was convicted of beating to death a man who had stopped to help with a disabled car in 1978. Harris and his brother, Curtis, both are on death row for the murder of Timothy Michael Merka, who was beaten to death with a tire tool after he stopped along a rural road to help the brothers and two others with a disabled stolen vehicle they were driving.

Michael Williams, assistant education secretary for civil rights, said yesterday he met with White House officials and is reversing his ban on scholarships reserved for minorities. Williams set off a controversy earlier this month by announcing that race-exclusive scholarships are illegal. White House officials said they were not notified in advance of the ruling.

Senior Indian and Pakistani officials held a second day of talks today aimed at easing a crisis in relations between the two rival nations that has threatened peace in the region. FOXBORO, Mass. (DEC. 19) UPI - Sam Jankovich, athletic director at the University of Miami, has apparently accepted the top post with the New England Patriots, although details of the arrangement must still be hammered out.

Team owner Victor Kiam hopes new leadership will give the team a much-needed boost. The Patriots have managed to secure only one win in a season that has also been plagued by off-field troubles, including an incident in which a female sportswriter was sexually harassed in the team's locker room.

Both Kiam and Jankovich cautioned that the deal was not finalized.

''The deal isn't done yet,'' Jankovich said Tuesday night following a meeting with Kiam in New York. ''We're still in meetings and we'll talk again tomorrow.''

Although Kiam said ''nothing has been concluded,'' he later conceded Jankovich would be the team's ''chief executive officer and owner's representative.''

''Sam will be the owner's representative and while he won't have complete control, he would be the top man in the organization, overseeing everything that happens there,'' Kiam said.

"The responsibility for putting a winning team together will be his."

Details of the incipient deal were not disclosed, but Jankovich reportedly agreed to a five-year pact that will bring him a base salary of $350,000 with significant incentives that could nearly double the deal's value.

What role - if any - will be left for current Patriots General Manager Patrick Sullivan was not disclosed.

Jankovich made it clear the team would not be ruled by committee. ''There can only be one captain,'' he said. ''The only way to succeed is to have one voice.''

Jankovich, Kiam and Sullivan were to meet again Wednesday to finalize details.

Jankovich will also have to decide the future of head coach Rod Rust, whose standing appears shaky. Rust has two years remaining on a three- year contract.

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 19) UPI - Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, arrived Wednesday on a five-day trip to consult with Saudi leaders and bring pre-Christmas greetings to U.S. troops.

Cheney and Powell touched down at a Saudi air base outside the capital where they were met by Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, the top U.S. commander in the Persian Gulf, Prince Khalid bin Sultan, his Saudi counterpart, and a crowd of several hundred military officers, diplomats and officials.

Cheney said nothing to reporters upon his arrival. He, Powell and U. S. Ambassador Chas Freeman were invited inside a reception room at the air base where the prince served tea.

The defense secretary has a schedule jammed full of meetings with Saudi leaders, as well as with the commanders of other forces in the gulf allied against Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Chances for a peaceful solution to the gulf crisis before Jan. 15, the date set by the United Nations when the allies will be authorized to use force against Baghdad, appeared to dim this week as Saddam rejected one date after another to meet with Secretary of State James Baker.

During their visit, Cheney and Powell will criss-cross the desert to meet with some of the 270,000 U.S. troops sent to defend the Saudi kingdom against Iraq.

Many of the soldiers have been in the country since August and have endured withering desert heat, as well as the Islamic nation's prohibitions against liquor and lewdness, which includes women wearing short sleeves.

Cheney is expected to sypathize with the servicemen and women who are not home with their families for Christmas, but will try to impress upon the troops the importance of their mission. Both Cheney and Powell will be back in the United States for the holiday Tuesday.

Also due to visit Saudi Arabia before Christmas are Britain's Prince Charles and comedian Bob Hope.

NAGOYA, Japan (DEC. 19) UPI - Toyota Motor Corp. said Wednesday it has started basic research at a newly completed biotechnology laboratory at its Nagoya headquarters.

The company said research at the facility will include protein engineering work on enzymes and natural materials, as well as studies conducted on plant functions and possible engineering applications for them in the future.

The research is expected to contribute to specific measures aimed at reducing growing environmental problems, such as increasing levels of carbon dioxide emission in the atmosphere, the company said.

Toyota said it plans to gradually increase the number of researchers at the facility from about a dozen at present.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) UPI - Kirin Brewery Co. said Wednesday it has agreed with Florida's Tropicana Products Inc. to launch a 50-50 joint venture to market citrus beverages.

The Japanese brewer said the new firm, Kirin Tropicana, will be incorporated in Tokyo Jan. 7 by Tropicana, a major U.S. fruit juice processor, and a separate subsidiary, Kirin Beverage, to be established Jan. 1.

The new company, in which Kirin and Tropicana will own equal stakes, will market a variety of citrus juice drinks in the Tokyo metropolitan area starting in March, according to Kirin.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - The nation's home-heating oil inventories declined slightly last week and gasoline supplies rose in keeping with normal seasonal trends for this time of year, the American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday.

In the week ended Dec. 14, U.S. crude oil inventories fell and the nation's refineries stepped up operations, the oil industry trade group said.

Supplies of distillate, used primarily for home-heating oil and diesel fuel, moved down to 132.6 million barrels last week from 133.4 million barrels the week before and remained substantially above the 116.2 million barrels in storage in the same week last year.

Distillate production held steady at 2.9 million barrels a day, unchanged from the previous week but below the year-ago rate of 2.9 million barrels a day.

Distillate imports dropped to 162,000 barrels a day from 181,000 barrels a day in the prior week and 454,000 barrels a day in the corresponding 1989 week.

Gasoline stocks inched up to 224.6 million barrels from 221.7 million barrels the week before and almost matched the 226.5 million barrels on hand a year ago.

Gasoline production slipped to 6.8 million barrels a day from 7.2 million barrels daily a week earlier and a year earlier.

Gasoline imports picked up to 474,000 barrels a day from 312,000 barrels a day in the preceding week and 361,000 barrels a day in the same week last year.

Crude inventories moved down to 331.5 million barrels from 332.1 million barrels in the prior week and nearly matched the 347.8 million barrels in storage at this time last year.

U.S. refineries operated at 83.8 percent of capapcity, up from 83 percent a week ago but substantially below the 89.2 percent rate recorded in the corresponding 1989 week.

Crude oil imports moved up to 5.1 million barrels a day from 4.7 million barrels a day in the previous week but trailed the year-ago rate of 6.4 million barrels a day.

Imports of petroleum products rose to 2.1 million barrels a day from 1.7 million barrels a day the week before but fell short of the 2.3 million barrels a day reaching U.S. shores a year ago.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - Overall U.S. oil demand dropped 2.6 percent in November from year-ago levels in face of higher fuel prices and the slowing economy, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

The United States is the world's largest oil-consuming nation and the No. 2 oil producer after the Soviet Union.

Demand for most major petroleum products, such as gasoline and home- heating oil, declined in November, the oil industry trade group said in its monthly report, but deliveries of kerosine jet fuel reached record levels for this time of year.

Domestic crude production slipped 6 percent to 7.08 million barrels a day in November from 7.53 million barrels a day in November 1989, partially reflecting a slowdown in output from Alaska's North Slope caused by stormy weather at the Port of Valdez.

Imports of crude and petroleum products continued to decline in November because of weak demand and adequate domestic supplies.

U.S. demand for all petroleum products fell to 16.86 million barrels a day in November from 17.31 million barrels a day a year earlier.

The API attributed the decline to ''the higher prices of recent months and a weakening economy.''

Demand for gasoline slipped 3.2 percent to 7.12 million barrels a day last month from 7.35 million barrels a day in November 1989, extending the drops that have occurred in recent months, the API said.

The trade group pointed out that pump prices declined slightly at the end of November after rising about 30 cents a gallon between August and October in the aftermath of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

''The impact of higher prices, however, continued to be evident,'' said the API, which also cited substantial switching by motorists away from premium unleaded to cheaper grades of gasoline.

Demand for distillates, used primarily for home-heating oil and diesel fuel, decreased 3.5 percent in November to 3.19 million barrels a day from 3.31 million barrels a day the year before.

Even though November was 17 percent warmer than a year ago, the API said distillate deliveries - adjusted for the weather - should have been down only about 1.5 percent.

Deliveries of kerosine jet fuel shot up 4.5 percent in November to 1. 39 million barrels a day - the highest level for any November - from 1. 33 million barrels a day the year before.

''Spot jet fuel prices had risen sharply in the United States in September and early October,'' the API said. ''However, by the end of November, increased jet fuel production and softer military demand brought jet fuel prices more in line with those of heating oil.''

Crude oil imports plummeted 17.6 percent to 5.05 million barrels a day in November from 6.13 million barrels a day in the same month last year, while imports of petroleum products skidded 14.7 percent to 1.85 million barrels a day from 2.17 million barrels a day during the same period.

On the supply front, the United States had 1.059 billion barrels of oil inventories as of Nov. 30, down 2.2 percent from the 1.086 billion barrels in storage on the same date last year.

TOKYO (DEC. 19) UPI - Oil refiner Idemitsu Kosan Co.'s request to export fuel oil with more than 1.0 percent sulfur content to Taiwan and South Korea has received government approval, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry said Wednesday.

Japan has suspended exports of heavy fuel oil since the nation's 1980 oil crisis.

Idemitsu said it will sell 40,000 tons of the ''C'' heavy oil to Taiwan and an additional 35,000 tons to South Korea.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Housing starts in the United States rose 9 percent in November to an annual rate of 1.12 million units, but economists said Wednesday the beleaguered housing industry has not recovered from its slump.

The Commerce Department reported November's housing starts topped last month's revised rate of 1.03 million. ''It's nice to see the rebound and nice to see a positive number, but I don't think this is the beginning of a recovery. We'll have to wait a little longer for that,'' said Thomas Holloway, senior economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association.

November's pace was 16 percent below the year-earlier rate of 1.34 million units, the government said.

During the first 11 months of the year, overall housing starts of 1. 13 million were down 13 percent from 1.30 million the year before.

The number of building permits, an indication of future building activity, also slipped in November to an annual rate of 907,000 from 920,000 in October and 34 percent below the year before.

So far this year, 1.05 million building permits have been issued, down 16 percent from 1.24 million in the year-earlier period.

Holloway said he expects that either November's housing numbers will be revised this month, or the levels of December starts will drop. Still, he expects the housing market to recover by late spring.

This forecast coincides with his prediction that the recession will ease by the end of the first quarter.

John Tuccillo, chief economist for the National Association of Realtors, discounted November's gain because of what he termed ''artifically depressed'' housing levels in October.

Increased multifamily housing, bolstered by declining interest rates and unusually mild weather in the South, accounted for most of the gain.

But serious signs of weakness continued in the single-family housing market, where starts were down 10 percent last month to 772,000 from 856,000 in October.

November's rate of single-family housing starts was the lowest since the last recession when starts fell to an annual rate of 773,700 in October 1982.

Building permits for single-family housing, a sign of future construction activity, were issued at an annual rate of 673,000 in November, down 5 percent from the month before.

''The declines in single-family starts and permits suggest we haven't hit bottom yet, and there may be further deterioration in the coming months,'' Tuccillo said.

''We expect, however, that overall housing construction has gone as far down as it will go during this cycle.''

The November starts rate for buildings with five units or more was 314,000, about twice the October amount. Starts of buildings with two to four units was 43,000.

Permits for buildings with five units or more were issued at a rate of 194,000 last month, up 15 percent from October.

Overall housing starts are expected to reach 1.2 million units this year, down 12.9 percent from last year, Tuccillo said.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and his top military chief began a visit to Saudi Arabia Wednesday as Iraq urged its citizens to stock up on home heating oil to ease potential shortages in the event war erupts in the Persian Gulf this winter.

In another indication Baghdad was preparing for war, Iraqi armored columns, tanks and artillery units were being withdrawn from the Syrian border and sent into Kuwait, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported Wednesday from the Syrian capital of Damascus.

Some 430,000 Iraqi troops already are stationed in southern Iraq and Kuwait, which was overrun by Iraq on Aug. 2.

Cheney and Colin Powell, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, arrived Wednesday at a Saudi air base outside the Saudi capital of Riyadh to begin a five-day visit with U.S. troops and Saudi leaders.

The two were welcomed by the commander of U.S. forces in the gulf, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, as well as his Saudi counterpart, Prince Khalid bin Sultan, and several hundred other military officers, diplomats and officials.

Cheney was to meet with Saudi leaders as well as with the military commanders from other countries taking part in the U.S.-led multinational force assembled in the Persian Gulf against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The U.N. Security Council has authorized the use of military force after Jan. 15 to dislodge Iraqi occupation forces from Kuwait unless Iraq withdraws completely from the oil-rich emirate.

Chances for a peaceful resolution to the crisis continued to diminish as Washington and Baghdad remained deadlocked over the dates for a pair of high-level talks President Bush has proposed take place before the U. N. deadline.

State-owned Baghdad Radio issued a public appeal Wednesday from the Iraqi Oil Ministry for citizens to stock up on home heating fuel, anticipating that Iraqi refineries and other installations would be likely targets of any U.S.-led attack.

The announcement came about two months after Former Oil Minister Issam Abdulrahim Chalabi ordered the rationing of gasoline in October, citing a shortage of chemicals needed to refine crude oil. Saddam later fired Chalabi, saying the rationing order was unncessary.

In other war preparations Wednesday, Iraqi television screened programs on how to cope with bombing, fires and attacks from chemical and nuclear weapons. The Baghdad government previously has said it would begin civil defense exercises Jan. 15.

Earlier in the day, Iraq issued a statement condemning the 12-nation European Community for its refusal Tuesday to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Aziz before Aziz had held talks in Washington with Bush.

Plans for the Aziz-Bush talks and a reciprocal meeting in Baghdad between Secretary of State James Baker and Saddam have been put on hold because Baghad and Washington have yet to agree on dates for the meetings.

''The European Community's action demonstrates that it is appeasing the United States and its aggressive policies,'' said Baghdad Radio, monitored in Cairo.

The state-owned radio quoted a Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying the EC action ignored ''European interests in the Middle East'' and warned Europeans they would regret their action.

Baker told NATO foreign ministers in Brussels Tuesday the United States would not oppose a meeting between Aziz and the EC, as long as Iraq did not receive ''mixed messages from the countries involved.''

Baker also said he expected Iraq to attempt ''diplomatic sleights-of- hand'' in the coming weeks and reiterated that a partial Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait was unacceptable.

Excerpts of an interview with Saddam taped in Baghdad earlier were released Tuesday in Ankara by Turkish state television. Saddam told the interviewer, ''There is no need for us to go to Washington if Bush is to repeat to us the U.N. Security Council resolutions.'' The resolutions call for the complete withdrawal of Iraq from Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2.

Turkish television said the full interview would be aired Wednesday night. It did not say when the interview was taped.

The EC had earlier this month agreed that Aziz would meet with EC President Gianni de Michelis, the foreign minister of Italy, after his talks with Bush in Washington. The ministers said Saturday they would not change the ground rules for the proposed EC meeting.

Baker said the United States would not object to the Aziz-de Michelis talks and supported all diplomatic efforts toward peace.

''The one thing we do discourage are discordant messages, mixed messages or mixed signals,'' he said. ''The message that's going to go to the Iraqis must be a unifrom message, which is that they must comply with the United Nations resolutions in full.''

At the Pentagon, spokeman Pete Williams said the U.S. forces in the Gulf region - which now total more than 270,000 - will be prepared to force Iraq out of Kuwait on Jan. 15.

He said the United States ''absolutely'' would be ready for offensive action on that day.

The U.S. troops now in the region are joined by about 220,000 allied forces, and the U.S. contingent is expected to grow to about 430,000 by mid January or early February.

In a related development, administration officials said Vice President Dan Quayle will visit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia sometime after Christmas. The date of his trip was not released.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Vice President Dan Quayle said Wednesday he will spend New Year's Day with U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield.

Quayle announced the trip at the beginning of a meeting with Prince Bandar, Saudi Arabia's ambassador to the United States.

Bandar said Saudi King Fahd also wants to meet personally with Quayle ''to express his appreciation'' to America for coming to his country's defense against Iraq's Saddam Hussein. ''We're very grateful,'' Bandar said.

Quayle is scheduled to fly to the Persian Gulf area Dec. 29 and go directly to Riyadh to meet with officials in the oil-rich kingdom before visiting U.S. military personnel.

Asked if he would visit the Indiana National Guard unit, which he joined during the Vietnam War, Quayle smiled and said: ''Stay tuned.''

Dave Beckwith, Quayle's press secretary, said the vice president's visit is designed to help morale.

President Bush spent Thanksgiving Day with the troops in the gulf and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, are currently there.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - A nationwide survey of American adults shows nearly 90 percent play Santa more than Scrooge by donating time, money or both to charities serving causes ranging from homelessness to the environment, it was reported Wednesday.

The survey by USA Weekend found the central states from Minnesota and North Dakota south to Texas are the most charitable, with states in the West the least charitable.

The poll also showed that women are more generous than men and people ages 35 to 54 are more likely to make donations than those younger or older.

The nationwide telephone survey of 801 adults was conducted by the Gordon S. Black Corp. and has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percent.

The survey found that 62 percent of Westerners felt obliged to help those less fortunate than themselves, compared with 77 percent of Midwesterners, 75 percent of Southerners, 71 percent of Northeasterners and 68 percent of people in the Great Lakes region.

Thirty-five percent of people in the Great Lakes region said they feel ''bad'' about not giving more time to charity, while 68 percent of those in the West and South reported having turned down a charity because they didn't trust it.

Broken down by age, 39 percent of people 35-54 said they felt obligated to give time or money to charity, compared with 31 percent of those younger or older.

And the poll also found that the holiday spirit does indeed bring out the best in people: 70 percent of women do something special for charity at the holidays, while 54 percent of men do.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Egypt's Middle East News Agency says that Iraq has withdrawn large numbers of its troops deployed along the Syrian border to beef up its troops in Kuwait. The troop movement is seen as an apparent sign that Iraq is preparing for a U-S-led attack. In a report from Damascus, the agency quoted sources in the border region as saying ''armored Iraqi troops, tanks and artillery units had been withdrawn to occupied Kuwait. ''

Reports of the Iraqi buildup in Kuwait came shortly before Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, were due to arrive in Saudi Arabia to meet with U-S troops and military strategists.

Russian leader Boris Yeltsin told delegates to the Congress of People's Deputies today that Mikhail Gorbachev's central government should step aside and let the 15 republics run their own affairs. Yeltsin said ''the era of commands from the Kremlin is over.'' Yeltsin joined Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov in voicing opposition to a Gorbachev plan to re-organize the government and grant the president wide additional powers.

The troops in the Persian Gulf will be getting a couple more high level visitors. Administration officials say Vice President Quayle will visit U-S troops in Saudi Arabia sometime after Christmas. The date of his trip was not released. The British Defense Ministry says Prince Charles will visit British troops in Saudi Arabia this weekend in a trip arranged at his request.

A U-S District Court jury in Brooklyn is deliberating the fate of a reputed drug gang leader and eight others who officials say have long dominated Brooklyn's heroin market. The jury began deliberating yesterday in the trial of Ricardo Melendez, the gang's alleged mastermind, and his cohorts. They are accused of five drug-related murders along with kidnappings, shootings, stabbings and beatings.

Authorities in Seoul, South Korea, say they seized a total of 21-hundred-71 items using fake foreign brands in a recent crackdown on UNlicensed use of foreign labels. They say the most frequently pirated foreign brands included Louis Vuitton and Chanel of France, found on bags and other items, and Reebok and L-A Gear of the United States used on footwear.

The American Automobile Association says the average price of gasoline has dropped by one-point-four cents since Thanksgiving. Triple- A say the national average price of self-serve regular UNleaded gasoline was one-dollar-37 a gallon. The report says holiday travelers should find plentiful supplies of gasoline because 84 percent of stations plan to maintain normal operating hours Christmas Day. 33 percent will stay open 24 hours.

BEIJING (DEC. 19) UPI - Washington's top human rights watchdog formally asked China Wednesday to justify political charges against 150 jailed dissidents and to free those accused not of violence but of merely speaking their minds.

Assistant Secretary of State Richard Schifter said his Chinese hosts did not explicitly agree to account for the 150 political prisoners on a ''case-by-case basis'' as asked, but said he was hopeful because ''they didn't rule it out.''

Schifter told reporters he voiced greatest concern for intellectuals, students and workers charged with ''counterrevolution'' for leading the Tiananmen Spring democracy movement that was crushed by Chinese tanks and troops on June 3-4, 1989.

Schifter said he had been assured that no Tiananmen dissidents had been tried yet and that most would be given leniency, and aides said the Ministry of Justice had given vague assurances that the trials would be open to some Chinese.

Schifter said he distributed a list of 150 prisoners believed charged with political offenses and asked the Chinese to ''engage in a discussion of the names.''

''Our expressions of concern were combined with the suggestion that persons who have not been guilty of any act of violence, where the evidence cannot be produced - these persons who are now under arrest should be released,'' Schifter said.

''The ball is now in their court,'' he said.

High on the 150-name list are veteran democracy advocates Wang Juntao, 32, and Chen Ziming, 38, the only dissidents known to have been charged with sedition, which is punishable by death.

Besides Tiananmen Spring dissidents, the list names Wei Jingsheng, a leader of the 1978-79 Democracy Wall movement, Tibetans jailed for advocating independence, Catholic priests and other political and religious activists.

U.S. Ambassador James Lilley said China's very acceptance of an official visit by a U.S. human rights envoy betrayed a ''sea change'' in the leadership's hard-line position.

''The fact that we are engaged in a dialogue over human rights to me is a major step forward in the process,'' Lilley said, recalling how U. S. and Chinese officials had been ''snarling at each other across a table'' one year ago.

Lilley nevertheless said China must demonstrate its stance by freeing political prisoners. ''The proof is in the pudding,'' he said.

Both officials maintained steadfastly that the Persian Gulf crisis has not distracted U.S. citizens and their government from concern over human rights in China and elsewhere, and that political and economic sanctions imposed after the Beijing massacre are not being lifted.

Schifter, assistant secretary of state for human rights and humanitarian affairs, said he raised U.S. concerns with officials from the ministries of foreign affairs, public security and justice as well as jurists and officials responsible for religion, family planning, minorities and education.

Schifter said he spent much of his 16 hours of meetings Tuesday and Wednesday arguing that human rights is not just an internal matter as Beijing maintains, but an international and bilateral issue that deeply affects U.S.-China relations.

Schifter said the Chinese seemed sensitive to anger over China's human rights in the U.S. Congress, where efforts to strip China of its lucrative most-favored-nation trading status are gaining steam.

''It is not up to me to offer threats, but I did engage in discussions of the realities in the Congress of the United States,'' he said, citing the MFN issue specifically.

Schifter took a shot at the hard-line official view that the massive student-led protests of 1989 were a ''counterrevolutionary rebellion'' that had to be crushed.

''I explained the view that a government that is in control of the army and security forces could not really be threatened by unarmed students,'' Schifter said.

He gave China the dubious credit of having a better human rights record than the isolated and extremist communist government of North Korea, but said many countries had done better.

OSHKOSH, Wis. (DEC. 19) UPI - A judge Wednesday dismissed the case against a man accused of sexually assaulting a woman by taking advantage of her multiple personalities, sparing the woman from the ordeal of another trial.

Prosecutors had asked that the charges against Mark Peterson, 29, be dropped after they consulted with the woman's doctors and were told that another trial could worsen her mental condition.

Peterson was convicted of second-degree sexual assault Nov. 8 but Judge Robert Hawley on Monday struck down that conviction, saying a defense psychiatrist improperly had been prevented from examining the woman.

The 27-year-old woman, known as Sarah, contended Peterson took advantage of one of her vulnerable personalities when they had sex last June in an Oshkosh park.

Hawley dismissed the case at the request of the Winnebago County District Attorney's Office.

''Our office filed a motion and supporting letter dismissing the charge,'' said Deputy District Attorney Vince Biskupic.

He said after the conviction was overturned, his office contacted the woman's physicians to determine whether to proceed with another trial.

''All of the doctors stated that it would not be in the best interest of the victim to go through with another trial,'' Biskupic said. ''All of them said her mental condition likely would worsen.''

He daid the woman's number of exhibited personalities increased from 18 to 46 during the course of the first trial.

''She did develop a number of additional personalities during the trial, and had to be in-patient hospitalized prior to the first trial,'' Biskupic said.

He also said the woman's court-appointed guardian, attorney George Curtis, also agreed the woman should not be subjected to the rigors of another trial.

Biskupic said the jury's verdict in the case, although overturned on a technicality, ''sent a strong message'' about protecting the rights of the mentally ill.

Peterson had been convicted under a Wisconsin law that makes it a felony to have sex with someone who is mentally ill and cannot understand the consequences of the behavior.

Hawley ruled Monday that Peterson did not have a fair trial because Darold A. Treffert, a defense psychiatrist, was not permitted to interview and evaluate Sarah.

Hawley acknowledged in his order that he erred in refusing to allow the interview but he also said defense attorney Edward Salzsieder should have pursued that effort.

Peterson admitted having sex with the woman but said she agreed to the liaison. The prosecution contended he seduced a vulnerable personality known as Jennifer.

The woman's psychiatrist during the trial testified Sarah had 46 distinct personalities. The woman assumed the identities of several of them in her testimony - including that of Jennifer, who testified she did not know what sex was.

However, Sheila Carmichael, former coordinator of the Winnebago County victim-witness program who counseled the woman, wrote a letter Nov. 21 to the trial judge in which she said Gerald Reeves, a key witness against Peterson, had had a sexual relationship with the woman for about a year.

Reeves, who with his wife and two children lived in the same building as the woman, denied the accusation and testified he warned Peterson beforehand that the woman had a mental problem and was vulnerable.

Carmichael was fired Nov. 21 over allegations she had signed a contract involving movie and publication rights about the case.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - Siemens AG, the German electronics and telecommunications giant, said Wednesday it will make several management changes at its North American companies.

Horst Langer, 54, chairman and chief executive officer of U.S. subsidiary Siemens Corp., will become a member of the board of directors of the Siemens companies in Canada and Mexico. Langer will also represent the three North American countries on Siemens AG's central managing board while remaining chairman of the U.S. company.

Hans Decker, 61, Siemens Corp.'s president since 1970, will become vice chairman and represent the company before governmental, economic and academic audiences.

In addition, Albert Hoser, 57, president and chief executive officer of Siemens Ltd. of Bombay, India, will become president and chief executive officer of Siemens Corp., the company said.

"Siemens is now looking to a new North American concept in which I will play an active role," Langer said. "Therefore, the day-to-day activity of our holding company in the United States will require another pair of guiding hands."

Siemens AG also said that Volker Jung, 51, president and chief executive officer of Siemens Stromberg-Carlson, Boca Raton, Fla., will return to Germany next October to take on additional central administration duties. Jung will remain chairman of Siemens Stromberg-Carlson.

Siemens Corp., with a combined sales volume of about $4 billion, has some 60 manufacturing and assembly facilities and about 450 sales, service and other locations in the United States.

SACRAMENTO (DEC. 19) UPI - Northern and Central California can expect temperatures to fall to near-record lows by the end of the week with possible damage to some kinds of crops, the National Weather Service predicted.

However, the cold weather apparently won't bring any rain to the drought-stricken Central Coast and Tulare regions where storage of water has declined to record low levels for modern times.

"By Friday morning we may be looking at temperatures in the low 20s in the Sacramento Valley and the Northern San Joaquin Valley, and temperatures in rural areas may get down into the teens," Margaret Nordberg, agricultural meteorologist at the weather service's Sacramento office, said Tuesday.

She said high-pressure air masses that normally block off the arctic cold have moved out into the Pacific, leaving California exposed to frigid air coming down from the north. Nordberg said citrus-growing operations in Central California and the northern part of the San Joaquin region will be particularly vulnerable.

Meanwhile the state Department of Water Resources reported Tuesday the quantity of water stored in California's 155 largest dams has declined to 12.38 million acre-feet, more than 4 million acre-feet less than was available in December last year.

The hardest-hit area in the state is the Central Coast region, including Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Monterey counties. Water in local storage there has declined to less than half the amount that was available in December 1977, during the worst period of the 1976-78 drought. The six dams serving the Tulare Basin also have less water in storage now than they did in December 1977.

"Down in Tulare, they are drilling into their underground water like they were headed for China," remarks Bill Helms, a spokesman for the state Department of Water Resources.

Statewide, the amount of water in the 155 major dams still is well above the low of 7.68 million acre-feet reached in December 1977. However, Helms said the picture remains discouraging despite the two light storms that passed over Northern California in December.

The drought, now entering its fifth year, has killed enough trees to furnish 12 billion board feet of timber, said Karen Terrill, information officer for the Department of Forestry. About five billion board-feet of the loss occurred in 1990.

"What we lost last year was enough to build about 500,000 small homes," Terrill said. "The losses are spread all over the state. Up in Tahoe National Forest, there are some stands where half the trees now are dead. The Stanislaus and El Dorado forests also have been hit pretty hard." Lack of water and nourishment during the drought renders trees, especially conifers growing at higher elevations, vulnerable to insects.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - The U.S. economy grew 1.4 percent in the third quarter, or $14.9 billion, lower than previously estimated but up 1 percentage point from the previous quarter, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

In its final report on third-quarter gross national product, the government showed the economy firming in the third quarter after growing a scant 0.4 percent - or $4.5 billion - in the second quarter. Real GNP grew 1.7 percent in the first quarter.

The GNP price index rose 4.2 percent in the quarter, compared with a gain of 3.9 percent in the second quarter. This index reflects prices paid domestically and was swayed by sharp increases in petroleum prices.

But economists said the third-quarter growth, which was revised downward from previous estimates of 1.7 percent, still does not signal much muscle in the economy and is not strong enough to alter estimates of negative growth for the fourth quarter.

''Basically, the economy was just sort of moving along the edge of downturn in (the third quarter). So much has happened since then that this is going to slide right by,'' said Robert Dederick, chief economist at the Northern Trust Co., in Chicago.

The greatest downward revisions were in personal consumption spending, which was trimmed $2.9 billion, and net exports, which was lowered $1.4 billion.

''Those are aspects of the economy that we are counting on to pull us through the recession,'' said Cynthia Latta, an economist at DRI/McGraw- Hill, in Lexington, Mass.

''We expect consumers will retrench more in the fourth quarter and we'll probably not see a lot of improvement in net exports.''

Much of the quarter's growth came from strong automobile sales, which rebounded from weak sales in the second quarter with the help of attractive incentives from Detroit.

Motor vehicle sales rose to $179.6 billion during the quarter from $177.8 billion in the second quarter.

''Taking autos out of here, the two quarters were about the same,'' Dederick said.

Personal spending gained $18 billion during the quarter after rising $1.5 billion in the second quarter.

Non-residential fixed investments also rose, posting a gain of $10.9 billion during the quarter after decreasing $6.2 percent in the second quarter. But residential fixed investments continued to fall, decreasing $9.8 billion after slipping $5.5 billion in the second quarter.

Net exports fell $1.9 billion after tumbling a sharp $9.2 billion in the previous quarter. Exports rose $10.4 billion in the quarter after falling $8 billion in the second quarter. Imports also improved, gaining $12.3 billion in the third quarter after a rise of $1.2 billion in the second quarter.

Federal government purchases of goods and services increased $100 million in the quarter after gaining $12.9 billion in the second quarter. National defense purchases increased $1.7 billion after rising $2.1 billion in the previous quarter.

Final sales for the quarter increased 1.9 percent, or $19.7 billion, during the quarter after falling 0.7 percent, or $7.2 billion, in the second quarter.

Business inventories subtracted $4.8 billion from the third-quarter change in real GNP, the government said, after adding $11.7 billion to the second-quarter figures.

Businesses increased inventories $4.7 billion during the quarter after bolstering inventories $9.5 billion in the second quarter.

The government also reported that profits from current production decreased $5.9 billion during the quarter to an annual rate of $300.7 billion. Profits increased $9.8 billion in the second quarter.

Profits for non-financial corporations decreased $17 billion after rising $11.3 billion in the second quarter.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - Overall U.S. oil demand dropped 2.6 percent in November from year-ago levels in face of higher fuel prices and the slowing economy, the American Petroleum Institute said Wednesday.

The United States is the world's largest oil-consuming nation and the No. 2 oil producer after the Soviet Union.

Demand for most major petroleum products, such as gasoline and home- heating oil, declined in November, the oil industry trade group said in its monthly report, but deliveries of kerosene jet fuel reached record levels for this time of year.

Domestic crude production slipped 6 percent to 7.08 million barrels a day in November from 7.53 million barrels a day in November 1989, partially reflecting a slowdown in output from Alaska's North Slope caused by stormy weather at the Port of Valdez.

Imports of crude and petroleum products continued to decline in November because of weak demand and adequate domestic supplies.

U.S. demand for all petroleum products fell to 16.86 million barrels a day in November from 17.31 million barrels a day a year earlier.

The API attributed the decline to ''the higher prices of recent months and a weakening economy.''

Demand for gasoline slipped 3.2 percent to 7.12 million barrels a day last month from 7.35 million barrels a day in November 1989, extending the drops that have occurred in recent months, the API said.

The trade group pointed out that pump prices declined slightly at the end of November after rising about 30 cents a gallon between August and October in the aftermath of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

''The impact of higher prices, however, continued to be evident,'' said the API, which also cited substantial switching by motorists away from premium unleaded to cheaper grades of gasoline.

Demand for distillates, used primarily for home-heating oil and diesel fuel, decreased 3.5 percent in November to 3.19 million barrels a day from 3.31 million barrels a day the year before.

Even though November was 17 percent warmer than a year ago, the API said distillate deliveries - adjusted for the weather - should have been down only about 1.5 percent.

Deliveries of kerosine jet fuel shot up 4.5 percent in November to 1. 39 million barrels a day - the highest level for any November - from 1. 33 million barrels a day the year before.

''Spot jet fuel prices had risen sharply in the United States in September and early October,'' the API said. ''However, by the end of November, increased jet fuel production and softer military demand brought jet fuel prices more in line with those of heating oil.''

Crude oil imports plummeted 17.6 percent to 5.05 million barrels a day in November from 6.13 million barrels a day in the same month last year, while imports of petroleum products skidded 14.7 percent to 1.85 million barrels a day from 2.17 million barrels a day during the same period.

On the supply front, the United States had 1.059 billion barrels of oil inventories as of Nov. 30, down 2.2 percent from the 1.086 billion barrels in storage on the same date last year.

#90353u0938 12/19/1990 ~United Press International

UNITED NATIONS (DEC. 19) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis has dealt a serious blow to the world economy, reducing the growth of global output in 1990 by 0.3 percent, the U.N. department of international economic and social affairs said Wednesday.

The department said in a report the steep hike in oil prices caused by the crisis has helped some oil-producing countries to reap $27 billion by the end of 1990 while driving millions of people into poverty.

''It is estimated that the rise in oil prices and other consequences of the (gulf) crisis - the trade embargo, the loss of remittances, the repatriation of migrant laborers - reduced the growth of world output in 1990 by 0.3 percent,'' the report said.

The rise in oil prices, from $15 a barrel in July to $33 in October and $25 by mid-December following the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait byf Iraq, has caused subtantial redistribution of real income between producers and consumers of oil in the second half of 1990, the report said.

In poor and heavily indebted countries, high oil prices disrupted the balance of payments and increased debt-servicing difficulties, the U.N. department said.

The drop in the growth of world output has resulted in an increase of the number of people living in countries with declining per capita income from 1.2 billion in 1990 from about 700 million.

In the Middle East, the impact of the Iraqi invasion has been ''immediate and immense,'' the department said.

The U.N. trade embargo imposed on Iraq stopped oil exports from Iraq and Kuwait, which prior to Aug. 2 were estimated at 4.3 million barrels daily.

The U.N. department said other oil-producing countries rushed to increase their ouput to fill the gap, ''but crisis stocking raised demand and produced a substantial price increase which further enhanced oil revenues.''

''In case of war in the region, panic stockpiling could temporarily drive prices up way beyond present levels - serious observers talk of $50 or even $100 per barrel as possibilities in such a scenario,'' it said.

''Conversely, a quick and peaceful resolution might result in a price of $10 a barrel,'' it said.

Aside from the gulf crisis and its consequences on the world economy, the United Nations said 1990 was not a year of economic expansion. The overall global output grew only 1 percent in 1990 compared to 3 percent in 1989 and 4 percent in 1988.

Asian economies stayed on a ''steep growth path,'' the department said. But North America and Europe suffered slowdowns, Africa remained stagnant, Latin America was in decline and Eastern European and Soviet economies were in disarray.

Oil-importing countries may face more difficulties next year if the gulf crisis continues because demands for their primary exports will remain weak and financing needed to shore up their account deficits is not in sight, the report said.

(DEC. 19) - Eric Bieniemy, who battled one of the country's toughest schedules to finish within 14 yards of the national rushing title, was named Wednesday as United Press International's Back of the Year.

Bieniemy was the overwhelming choice of a panel of UPI sports writers from across the country. The only other player to earn mention was Brigham Young quarterback Ty Detmer, the Heisman Trophy winner who was named UPI's Player of the Year earlier this week.

Bieniemy will complete his Colorado career Jan. 1 when the top-ranked Buffaloes face No. 6 Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl. He owns 15 school records, including rushing yards in a season (1,628), career rushing yards (3,940) and consecutive 100-yard games (8). He averaged 98.5 yards rushing over his 40 games for Colorado.

He averaged a Colorado record 148.0 rushing yards a game this season, coming within 1.27 yards a game of national rushing champion Gerald Hudson of Oklahoma State.

A 5-foot-7, 195-pound firebrand, Bieniemy impressed coaches with his competitive nature. He was a runaway selection of Big Eight Conference coaches when they were asked which player they would most like to start a program.

He also came within one vote of earning unanimous acclaim as the Big Eight Offensive Player of the Year.

''All season long he's been our bread-and-butter guy,'' Colorado Coach Bill McCartney said. ''He's just a real gritty guy. He competes hard every time, with or without the ball. He's a real special competitor, one that you rarely get to coach.''

Earlier this season, the Buffaloes coach said Bieniemy is ''such a fiery, competitive guy. He always gets everyone excited. He's the kind of guy an offensive lineman will block for because he's got the same temperament that they do. He would prefer to run inside the tackles rather than outside. Of course, that's a special kid who does that.

''It's his chemistry and temperament and makeup mentally that separates him from other kids.''

An off-season incident relative to his nature - a run-in with firefighters battling a blaze at his mother's home in Aurora, Colo. - led to Bieniemy being suspended for Colorado's opening game against Tennessee in the Pigskin Classic.

However, he followed by piling up 149 yards and three touchdowns against Stanford in his first action of the season, adding three- touchdown games against Texas and Kansas. He was held under 100 yards just once - 99 yards against Texas - and turned in a 217-yard effort against Missouri.

Bieniemy's statistics are more impressive when it is noted that Colorado faced No. 3 Texas, No. 7 Washington, No. 10 Tennessee, No. 13 Nebraska, No. 17 Illinois and 8-3 Oklahoma in its schedule. Only Illinois - a 23-22 winner in Champaign - was able to beat the Buffaloes this season. Bieniemy had 127 yards on 23 carries against the Illini.

It was after a slightly injured Bieniemy had 174 yards on just 18 carries against Kansas that Heisman Trophy talk began to include him. McCartney put it off, saying the following two weeks - against Oklahoma and Nebraska - would be the real Heisman difference.

All Bieniemy did was rip Oklahoma for 188 yards and a touchdown. He added 137 yards against Nebraska and scored four fourth-period touchdowns to knock the Cornhuskers from the unbeaten ranks. The resulting attention allowed Bieniemy to earn enough votes to finish third in the Heisman voting behind Detmer and Notre Dame's Raghib Ismail.

''Bieniemy is as competitive as anyone I've ever been around,'' McCartney said. ''It's that fire within him that distinguishes him. He's got so much grit and so much competitive urge and instinct, that's what separates him. His ability to run inside, outside, his ability to catch the ball and his willingness to block - all of those things are really first-rate.''

Detmer, like Bieniemy, finished second in most of the statistical championships but helped 10-2 BYU again win the Western Athletic Conference and claimed some of the top individual honors.

The BYU junior completed 361 of his 562 passes for 5,188 yards and had an NCAA quarterback rating of 155.9. Only Virginia's Shawn Moore (160.7) had a higher rating. His 41 touchdown passes was also the second-highest in Division I-A this season.

Detmer was also second in total offense, averaging 418.5 yards a game while Houston's David Klingler worked the run-and-shoot for 474.6 yards a game.

MOUNT VERNON, MO. (DEC. 19) UPI - The condition of a woman being allowed to die after nearly eight years on life support and feeding systems was worsening Wednesday as hospital officials prepared for a second wave of protesters threatening to force-feed her.

Cruzan's condition was downgraded Wednesday from ''stable'' to ''deteriorating '' said Barbara Shoun, director of public relations for the hospital. She said no other details of Cruzan's condition would be released.

Shoun and Lt. Ken Perkins, of the Lawrence County Sheriff's Department, said they expected more demonstrators to arrive at the hospital Wednesday, but none had shown up by mid-morning.

''We're battening down the hatches,'' Shoun said. ''We have made our security a little tighter, and we're ready.''

Nineteen people were arrested Tuesday at the Missouri Rehabilitation Center after entering the hospital and refusing to leave, authorities said. The protesters, who refused to walk out and had to be carried out in wheelchairs, were charged with misdemeanors of first-degree trespassing and unlawful assembly.

Eleven protesters reached the second-floor unit where Nancy Cruzan's room is located but police and security guards kept them from her room, hospital officials said.

Cruzan's parents last week won a court order allowing them to remove the feeding tube that has kept her alive in a vegetative state for nearly eight years. The tube was removed during the weekend.

All 19 demonstrators continued to refuse bond Wednesday, said Perkins. Bond was set at $500 each.

The protesters refused to give their real names and all identified themselves as ''Nancy Cruzan,'' police said.

The leader of the group, the Rev. Joseph Foreman of Montreat, N.C., said Tuesday he and the others would remain in jail until Cruzan dies or until her feeding tube is replaced.

''They're all fasting today except one. She had a bowl of cereal this morning '' Perkins said. He said the jail is full because the protesters were refusing bond, but that officials will find room for more if there are further demonstrations.

''We'll board them out,'' Perkins said.

Some protesters who did not block hallways or doors Tuesday were allowed to hold a prayer vigil in the hospital's chapel until visiting hours were over Tuesday night, Shoun said. She said protesters would be allowed to use the chapel as long as they did not disrupt the hospital's operations.

''There is a lot of resentment about the coming into the hospital both from those who agree with the decision and those who disagree because they're interfering with patient care at that point,'' Shoun said. ''Nancy is not our only patient.''

Cruzan has been in a vegetative state since a 1983 automobile accident. Her surgically implanted feeding tube, which had supplied her with food and water, was removed Saturday, one day after a Jasper County judge granted her family's request. Doctors said she would die within two weeks.

The order ended a 3-year legal battle by Cruzan's parents, Joyce and Lester ''Joe'' Cruzan of Carterville. The U.S. Supreme Court earlier this year upheld a Missouri Supreme Court ruling that the Cruzans had failed to provide ''clear and convincing evidence'' of their daughter's wishes not to live in a helpless state in the absence of a written statement.

But several of Nancy Cruzan's former co-workers who had not testified at the original hearing came forward and testified last month before Jasper County Probate Judge Charles Teel Jr. that Cruzan had made statements to them that she would not want to be kept alive in a hopeless vegetative state.

Teel ruled the new testimony met the ''clear and convincing evidence'' standard and allowed the Cruzan family to have the feeding tube removed. Family members have stayed with her since the ruling.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin said Wednesday it appears the administration is aiming to force a resolution of the gulf crisis as early as February.

The Wisconsin Democrat said the gulf debate boils down to a clash of ''timelines'' - a battle between those who want a quick military solution and critics who would prefer to wait longer in case economic sanctions alone are sufficient to force Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait.

''Clearly the administration is heading to a timeline to bring this thing to a head sometime in late winter, February,'' said Aspin.

His comments came during the next to last hearing in a three-week series of sessions examining the crisis from the standpoint of the sanctions and the diplomatic and military options.

Former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who quit the Carter administration over the ill-fated attempt to rescue U.S. hostages in Iran a decade ago, argued strongly to let the sanctions run their course.

''We are on a winning strategy,'' said Vance. ''... The choice of deciding on the early use of military force should be outweighed by the wisdom of staying with the winning course you're on.''

Forcing the administration to back off and wait, said Vance, would not be read as a sign of weakness in the administration but rather a sign of resolve and staying power for U.S. policy.

Jeane Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations in the Reagan administration, contended that Saddam only understands force.

''I do not expect Saddam Hussein will accept a diplomatic solution - unless or until he is led by force and the threat of force to do so,'' she said.

Around the corner, at the Joint Economic Committee, arms control expert Paul Warnke agreed with Vance, saying sanctions should continue so that Saddam understands ''that we can wait him out, that he cannot retain the fruits of his aggression.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - The Federal Reserve, following up its symbolic easing of the discount interest rate confirming an easier credit stance, Wednesday took other steps to nudge the key Federal funds rate lower.

Securities traders and money market analysts said the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Fed's agent in financial markets, bolstered the level of reserve funds by purchasing securities through its open market desk.

The Fed executed the maneuver when the floating funds rate was at 7 percent, .25 percentage point off its previous target of 7.25 percent. This was taken as a clear indication the Fed intended to guide the rate lower.

''I think it could very much mean the (Fed) funds are at 7 percent now,'' said Joel Kazis, a Smith Barney government securities trading manager.

The Fed funds rate, which banks charge each other for short-term borrowing of reserve system funds, is a bellwether of U.S. monetary policy.

The Fed had been expected to nudge the key Fed funds rate by another notch or two after its announcement Tuesday that it was taking the exceptional step of lowering the fixed discount rate to 6.5 percent from 7 percent.

Both steps indicated the Fed is stepping up its march towards a looser credit policy in an effort to ward off a deep and long recession.

''The Fed has found there is more weakness than it expected and has had to play a little bit of catch-up,'' commented Dana Johnson, market analysis chief for First National Bank of Chicago's capital markets group

Kazis and Johnson said there was some faint disappointment in the government securities market - the financial sector most immediately concerned with such shifts in credit policy - that the funds rate did not fall more.

After the long-awaited and psychologically important discount rate cut, some central bank-watchers had hoped Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan might increase his easing dosage to a half point from a quarter point at a time.

Johnson said the price of the benchmark 30-year Treasury bond dipped by 1/32 point - a negligible loss amid generally rallying prices - because some market participants positioned themselves for a more generous rate cut.

A Fed spokesman confirmed the central bank carried out $1.5 billion worth of so-called repurchase agreements - temporary purchases of government securities from the market - for its customers, often other central banks.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - National environmental groups, religious organizations and institutional investors have filed a record number of shareholder resolutions aimed at forcing companies to take steps to preserve the environment, two groups coordinating the effort said Wednesday.

The groups - the Coalition for Environmentally Responsive Economies (CERES) and the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility - said resolutions had been filed with 56 corporations in 17 industries.

Most of the resolutions ask companies to sign the Valdez Principles or to make public an environmental report showing how the firm measures up to the code, a set of 10 guidelines covering a range of ecological concerns such as the release of pollutants, use of natural resources, reduction and disposal of waste and energy efficiency and conservation.

''We would prefer to see corporate leaders subscribe voluntarily to the Valdez Principles, but we are prepared to carry this demand for a sustainable future to annual meetings, supermarkets, college campuses and the nation's voting booths,'' said Denis Hayes, a co-chair of CERES and the international chairman of both Earth Day celebrations.

Targets of the resolutions included firms in the chemical production, oil refining, auto manufacturing, waste disposal and pharmaceutical industry.

Resolutions were filed by groups as diverse as the Midwest Capuchin Friars, the National Wildlife Federation, the Social Investment Forum and the New York City Employees Retirement System.

''As a trustee of over $35 billion in pension assets,'' said Elizabeth Holtzman, New York City Comptroller, ''I am tremendously concerned not only with the environmental devastation unsound practices can cause, but with the resultant expenditures for clean-up, legal fees and fines that can have a substantial impact on shareholders.

''Unsound environmental practices are both fiscally and physically unsound company policy,'' she said.

Tim Smith, director of the ICCR, a coalition of 250 religious investors, said that the number of environmental shareholders resolutions rank second only to those filed on the issue of South Africa.

Last year, the first time resolutions were filed following the drafting of the Valdez Principles, just five resolutions were filed but they garnered between 8 percent and 16 percent of the vote at stockholder meetings. ''Usually 3 percent is considered a respectable showing for a first time resolution,'' Smith said.

''The public is learning that it has a great deal of influence and power in dealing with corporations, whether as consumers, voters or shareholders,'' Hayes said. ''The Valdez Principles offer a standard around which to rally.''

Companies being asked to sign or support the Valdez Principles or report on their compliance with the code include Chrysler, Ford, General Motors, Dow Chemical, American Cynamid, ARCO Chemical, DuPont, Kimberly Clark, American Telephone & Telegraph, GTE, Hewlett Packard, IBM, Cooper Industries, General Electic, Westinghouse, American Express, McDonalds, Pepsico, Kerr-McGee, Newmont Mining, Gannett, Knight-Ridder, The New York Times, the Tribune Co., The Washington Post, Atlantic Richfield, Exxon, Halliburton, and Philips Petroleum.

Also, Champion International, Mead, International Paper, Louisiana Pacific, Bristol-Myers Squibb, Arkla, Philip Morris, Union Pacific, American Electric, Centerior Energy, Cincinnati Gas & Electric, Commonwealth Edison, Houston Industries, Southern Company, Texas Utilities, Safety Clean, Armstrong World Industries and Corning.

''Through this effort, shareholders are telling their companies that environmental responsibility is a major component of the 'bottom line,''' said Joan Bavaria, president of Franklin Research and Development and a co-chair of CERES.

MEXICO CITY (DEC. 19) UPI - For most Latin American and Caribbean nations, 1990 was a year of transition - control of hyperinflation and a move toward privatization and free trade.

Rampant inflation, stagnant economic growth and foreign debt burden are likely to continue in 1991, but there is reason for some optimism.

The priority of Latin American nations - especially Argentina, Brazil and Peru - was to end hyperinflation.

President Carlos Menem of Argentina abandoned the price controls he imposed in 1989 and tried both a free exchange rate and free prices in 1990. Inflation has been gradually abating since the program began in January, but it still is very stubborn, hitting 6.2 percent in November and running at an annual rate of 1,832.2 percent in the 12-month period ending Nov. 30.

Menem is getting a lot of support from the business community, which has cheered the privatizations of the Argentine telephone company and the state airlines as well as plans for privatizations of electric power companies and other state enterprises in 1991.

But the Argentine economy is at a standstill as a result of cutbacks in government spending and a decline in consumer spending, which once fueled the runaway inflation. Next year is likely to bring more of the same for Argentina: more debt-for-equity swaps, more curbing of the cost of living, but continuing recession - the orthodox economic cost for reducing inflation.

Brazil still is in a more transitional phase than Argentina, trying to rein inthe hyperinflation that President Fernando Collor de Mello inherited when he took office March 15.

Collor resorted to price controls and a freeze on bank deposits in the initial phase of his stabilization plan, which contained hyperinflation until the cost of living began shooting back up again. In November, monthly inflation reached 16.64 percent.

Collor has a lot more work to do, including unpopular cutbacks in state spending to stabilize the Brazilian economy. The annual inflation rate was 2,359.45 percent for the 12-month period ending Nov. 30.

Collor is privatizing state companies but not the biggest ones in a departure from the trend in Argentina and Mexico. Apparently reluctant to sacrifice his popularity, he has reduced state employment but not in the drastic fashion that cuts deep and makes a difference.

Over the last three years, Mexico has maintained tight fiscal and monetary policies, combined with wage, price and exchange rate controls. The program has been successful in slashing inflation, which rose to 160 percent in 1987 and 51.7 percent in 1988. In 1990, inflation was expected to be about 23-35 percent, up from 19.7 percent in 1989.

In Peru, President Alberto Fujimori, after taking office July 28, let prices float and curbed state spending. He is making a high priority of cutting inflation and appears willing to pay the price of recession to accomplish this goal. Inflation in November was 5.9 percent in Peru, a remarkable reduction compared to a rate of 397 percent in August - an all-time high for the nation.

Fujimori's challenge is to maintain his anti-inflation program without letting Peru's terrible social problems boil over.

Four Andean nations - Bolivia, Colombia, Peru and Venezuela - agreed in November to form a free-trade zone open to foreign capital by the end of 1991 and to scrap tariffs. Ecuador, the Andean Group's only member that has not followed liberal economic reforms, has been given some time to lower trade barriers.

Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay plan to establish a common market by 1995.

The five nations of Central America - Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua - held an economic summit in June and agreed to revive their dormant regional common market that foundered about 20 years ago. Trade among the five countries, whose combined foreign debt is estimated at $20 billion, declined to $600 million in 1989 from $1.1 billion in 1981.

After a decade of leftist Sandinista rule that ended early this year in Nicaragua, new President Violeta Chamorro has embarked on a privatization scheme, and similar steps are being taken by President Alfredo Cristiani of El Salvador, whose decade-long civil war has cost over 72,000 lives.

News from the Caribbean was mixed, however.

Jamaican Minister of Development, Planning and Production P.J. Patterson said in his budget address in May his country's ''economy is in a critical but extremely fragile growth path.'' To ensure continued economic growth in 1990, the government created an export development fund for exporters, foreign account facilities to allow individuals to hold foreign currency in Jamaican banks and a unit to assist the development of small business.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Defense Secretary Cheney and General Colin Powell arrived in Saudi Arabia today on a five-day mission. A host of Saudi dignitaries greeted the military men who are spearheading the U-S response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and a Saudi prince served them tea. During their visit, Cheney and Powell will criss-cross the desert to meet with some of the 270-thousand American troops sent to defend the Saudi kingdom against Iraq.

Housing starts rose last month. But the figure is NOT as positive as it appears on first glance. The Commerce Department reports a nine- percent jump in housing starts for November, most of it in multiple-unit construction. But the rate of single-family housing starts actually dropped in November to the lowest since October 1982- when the nation was battling its last recession. And the overall November figure, while up from October, is still 16 percent below November of last year.

The economy continued to firm up during the third quarter of the year. The Commerce Department is out with its final revision of G-N-P figures for the July-September period. It shows an increase of one- point-four percent, up one percent from the four-tenths of one percent expansion in the second quarter. Consumers also spent more during the summer months, up by 18-BILLION dollars when compared with one-point- five-BILLION in the second quarter.

Police declined to confirm reports that at least two other men have been held. The U-S Embassy has NO comment.

LONDON (DEC. 19) UPI - Stock prices closed higher Wednesday in light trading on the London International Stock Exchange, as investors put their books in order and securities houses started to take positions for next year.

Stock prices ended lower in Frankfurt.

London's blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which added 3.9 points Tuesday, gained 16.9 points to 2,178.7. The narrower top 30 industrial average added 12.9 points to 1,707.1.

Volume amounted to about 509 million shares compared with 575 million shares Tuesday.

Analysts said the U.S. Federal Reserve's decision Tuesday to cut its discount rate to 6.5 percent from 7 percent lifted stocks in light trading.

Market sentiment was also boosted by renewed hopes of a cut in British interest rates.

On the local economic front, the government reported Britain's economy showed its biggest quarterly contraction for nearly 10 years in the third quarter of this year, fueling economists' fears of a deep recession.

A steep drop in investment and a downturn in consumer spending combined to cut gross domestic product 1.2 percent in the third quarter from the second quarter, bringing GDP growth for the previous 12 months to 0.6 percent, the Central Statistical Office said.

The last time such a large quarterly decline was registered was in the last three months of 1980, when GDP fell 1.5 percent from the previous quarter.

On the trading floor, glass manufacturer Pilkington gained 20 cents to $3.45 on renewed hopes of a bid from industrial group BTR which announced it had increased its stake in the glass producer to over 4 perxent from 3.75 percent.

Pharmaceuticals group Glaxo eased 26 cents to 15.96 amid worries of competition to its asthma drug.

Elsewhere in the sector, Wellcome gained 26 cents to $8.68.

In Frankfurt, stock prices closed lower on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange in light pre-holiday trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which added 1.54 points Tuesday, lost 20.17 points to 1,457.24.

BOSTON (DEC. 19) UPI - A new study has raised new questions about the existence of a mysterious syndrome that some doctors have linked to repeated yeast infections, researchers said Wednesday.

In the study, the widely used drug anti-fungal nystatin was no more effective than a dummy drug in relieving symptoms such as fatigue, premenstrual tension, gastrointestinal problems and depression in 42 women with a history of vaginal yeast infections.

''I think these data cast further doubt on the existence of the syndrome,'' which is variously known as chronic candiasis, candida- related complex and candiasis hypersensitivity syndrome, said Dr. William Dismukes of the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham.

Yeast infections are caused by the fungus Candida albicans, which is commonly found in the intestinal tract and the vagina. Usually, it does not create problems. But if factors such as use of antibiotics or pregancy allow the fungus to grow rapidly, it can cause vaginal infections in women.

Proponents of chronic candiasis believe it not only causes vaginal symptoms such as irritation and discharge but a host of other symptoms as well. However in the study published in The New England Journal of Medicine, Dismukes and co-researchers concluded that their results ''provide additional objective evidence that the syndrome is not a verifiable condition.''

In an editorial accompanying the study, Dr. John Bennett of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases acknowledged that few ''illnesses have sparked as much hostility between the medical community and a segment of the lay public as the chronic candiasis syndrome.''

Bennett said patients who feel they suffer from the syndrome have charged that doctors who doubt it exists are not listening to them, have shirked their responsibilities and dismissed as unacceptable potentially helpful treatments.

One of the primary proponents of the syndrome, Dr. William Crook, said although Dismukes' study was ''carefully done,'' it could not prove or disprove that chronic candiasis is a real condition because it did not include changes in the women's diets.

Crook is a pediatrician in Jackson, Tenn., who said he has sold more than 900,000 copies of his book, ''The Yeast Connection: A Medical Breakthrough.'' He said people with the syndrome not only need to take drugs such as nystatin, but also avoid sugar, foods containing yeasts and molds, cheese, mushrooms and alcohol.

Crook said more studies need to be done involving diets that avoid foods patients ''seem to be sensitive to'' and additionally use anti- fungal drugs such as ketoconazole that may be more effective than nystatin.

Crook and others think growth of the cadida fungus causes inflammation of mucous membranes in the vagina and intestine and an overall allergic or toxic reaction. Some researchers have suggested it may be responsible for another baffling disorder, chronic fatigue syndrome, which also causes symptoms such as fatigue and depression.

In the new study, Dismukes and colleagues had the women, who ranged in age from 21 to 40, take different combinations of nystatin and a worthless substitute drug for four successive eight-week periods.

During each period, the women took either daily oral and vaginal doses of nystatin, oral nystatin and a dummy vaginal drug, an oral dummy drug and vaginal nystatin or oral and vaginal substitute drugs.

Dismukes said the nystatin was more effective than the dummy drug at relieving the women's vaginal symptoms. ''But that is to be expected - that is what nystatin does,'' he said.

But nystatin and the substitute drug were about equally effective in relieving the women's other symptoms. On average, the non-vaginal symptoms in women receiving treatment that included nystatin improved 25 percent, compared to 23 percent in the women taking only the worthless placebo, they said.

The improvement seen with the dummy drug conforms to a well-known phenomenon called the ''placebo effect'' frequently observed in such studies, Dismukes said.

Although Crook believes ''millions'' of Americans are afflicted with chronic yeast syndrome, Dismukes said the ''number of people who believe they have it is not known, although it certainly is a lot.''

Dismukes agreed with Crook that more studies need to be done ''so we can finally answer 'yes' or 'no' about whether it is a real entity.'' In the meantime, ''patients are frustrated and doctors are frustrated, because the patients clearly don't feel well and their doctors don't know why,'' he said.

NEWARK, NJ (DEC. 19) UPI - The union representing Atlantic City casino workers is controlled by imprisoned mob boss Nicodemo ''Little Nicky'' Scarfo, federal prosecutors charged Wednesday in a lawsuit seeking to take over the union.

The suit charges that organized crime has dominated Local 54, Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union, for more than 20 years, using murder and extortion to maintain control.

The Justice Department is seeking ouster of the local executive board and its replacement by a court-appointed trustee.

Local 54, headquartered in Atlantic City, represents more than 22,000 members in southern New Jersey, most of them restaurant and bar employees in the casinos.

The complaint ''graphically shows how criminals and their willing union followers take control by means of murder, threats and manipulation,'' Attorney General Richard Thornburgh told a news conference announcing the suit.

The named defendants include Scarfo; Anthony ''Tony Bucks'' Piccolo of Philadelphia, believed to be the Scarfo-Bruno crime family's acting head; and Nicodemo Scarfo Jr. Prosecutors charge that the younger Scarfo is a go-between for his father, serving a life racketeering sentence in the federal prison in Marion, Ill.

International President Edward T. Hanley of Antioch, Ill., former Local 54 President Frank Gerace, President Roy Silbert and the rest of his executive board are also named. The New Jersey Casino Control Commission removed Gerace as Local 54 president in 1984, and he is now an employee of the international union.

The government's complaint charges the Scarfo mob killed two union officials to maintain control of Local 54: Joseph ''Joey'' McGreal, president of Hotel and Restaurant Workers Local 170 on Christmas 1973, and Roofers Union Local 30 President John McCullough in December 1980.

''With freedom and democracy breaking out all over the world, it's time for a court-appointed trustee to restore democracy to the thousands of hard-working casino hotel and restaurant workers who are members of this union,'' said Michael Chertoff, U.S. attorney for New Jersey.

Scarfo was convicted in 1988 of racketeering and murder-conspiracy. New Jersey State Police arrested his son and Piccolo in a roundup of mobsters charged with drug dealing, illegal gambling, credit card fraud and other crimes.

A federal judge last week found Piccolo guilty of violation of probation. A mob informant taped Piccolo at an apparent mob initiation ceremony in The Bronx.

The U.S. attorney for New Jersey pioneered union takeovers with a complaint filed in 1982 against Teamsters Local 560, which has been under a court-ordered trusteeship since 1986. The Justice Department has since filed complaints against Roofers Local 30 in Philadelphia and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

PALM BAY, FLA. (DEC. 19) UPI - Call it the ''Geraldo'' defense. A young woman who could face 20 years in a federal prison for bank robbery said she and her boyfriend got the idea for the crime watching a Geraldo Rivera's' syndicated television show that featured thieves.

Kathleen Meka, 19, and her 25-year-old boyfriend walked into the First Union National Bank Friday, presented a note demanding money and saying they were armed and walked out with $2,215, according to Palm Bay police.

Meka surrendered on Saturday. Her boyfriend, whose name has not been released, was still at large Wednesday.

Meka told her lawyer, police and FBI agents she and her boyfriend were watching a Dec. 12 segment of the Geraldo show that featured bank robbers and embezzlers when her boyfriend remarked how easy it would be to pull off a heist.

So they used Meka's mother's car and tried it. Now she could face a lengthy federal prison sentence and a $250,000 fine.

''She is a victim,'' said her public defender, Joel Remland. ''She's 19, easily influenced and here she is being coerced by her boyfriend because of this irresponsible, sensational, yellow journalism.''

Rivera spokesman Jeff Erdel said the segment should have been a deterrent because it focused on ordinary people who committed crimes and were caught.

''If we do a show on auto safety and somebody decides to drive their car into a brick wall, we have no control over that,'' Erdel said.

Meka, who was being held without bond, has no criminal record, according to Remland, who plans to seek a psychiatric evaluation to show his client was influenced by the program.

''The real irony of this case is that the least culpable person involved is sitting in jail, and the person most to blame is out running around somewhere '' Remland said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Hinshelwood didn't think a ''Geraldo'' defense would carry much weight.

''If she were to enter any courtroom in this district and proffer that as a defense, I don't think there would be any reluctance by the judge or jury or appellate courts to convict and uphold the conviction,'' Hinshelwood said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - A survey of mayors in 30 major cities reported a rise in both hunger and homelessness during the past year and most expect the economic recession - now hitting most cities - to heighten the problem, the U.S. Conference of Mayors said Wednesday.

At the same time, the city officials also reported public sentiment is turning against the homeless.

''More than three out of four of the survey cities report that they have experienced an economic slowdown in recent months and all but one of the cities which reported it had not experienced an economic slowdown ... anticipated the recession will affect the problems of hunger and homelessness during the next year,'' the report said.

Every one of the responding cities said they expect the demand for emergency food assistance and shelter - especially by homeless families - to increase during the next year.

The mayors' survey confirms a report issued last week by the National Coalition for the Homeless predicting that as the recession deepens, many Americans - especially those working in low-wage jobs - are at risk of becoming homeless and the problem could become critical if the Bush administration fails to respond.

''During the past year,'' the mayors' survey said, ''requests for emergency shelter increased ... by an average of 24 percent, with four out of five of the cities registering an increase, 10 percent reporting that the number of requests remained the same and another 10 percent reporting a decline.''

Just under 75 percent of the survey cities reported an increase in the number of homeless families needing emergency shelter, ranging from an increase of 60 percent in Phoenix, Ariz., 40 percent in New Orleans, and 36 percent in Cleveland to 10 percent in Norfolk, Va., and 5 percent in San Antonio, Texas. Kansas City, Mo., Minneapolis, Minn., and San Francisco reported declines in the number of homeless families.

In 70 percent of the cities, shelters are forced to turn away homeless families needing aid bacause the shelters lack resources.

The city officials estimated that overall 19 percent of the requests for shelter by all homeless people went unmet last year and 16 percent of the requests by homeless families could not be met despite an average increase of 3 percent in the number of emergency shelter beds and a 12 percent increase in the number of transitional housing units available.

''Officials in four out of five of the survey cities have seen evidence of change in public sentiment toward homeless people, and in the majority of these cities - 57 percent - there are more negative attitudes,'' the report said.

According to the survey, those who are homeless are remaining that way longer - another sign that the recession is taking its toll and making it more difficult for people to re-enter the mainstream of the economy.

''About 20 percent of shelter users have been without their own home for more than a year,'' according to Minneapolis officials. Providence, R.I., officials reported that the time frame of a shelter stay there ''has gone from four to six weeks to two to three months.''

''The average length of stay, particularly for families, has significantly icnreased over the last year,'' said officials in Alexandria, Va., the Washington, D.C., suburb. City officials cited a number of factors - the lack of subsidized housing, an increase in single-parent families and more families entering the shelter with multiple dysfunctions.

Alexandria, along with Kansas City, Los Angeles, Louisville, New York, Philadelphia, Portland, Ore., San Antonio, Texas, and Trenton, N. J., said that families with children account for 40 percent or more of their homeless.

Overall, the report said single men comprise 51 percent of the homeless population; families with children are 34 percent; single women 12 percent and unaccompanied youth 3 percent.

City officials reported that 46 percent of the homeless are black, 34 percent white, 15 percent Hispanic, 3 percent American Indians, and 1 percent Asian.

Persons considered mentally ill make up 28 percent of the homeless population, according to city officials. Substance abusers are 38 percent and nearly a quarter are employed in full- or part-time jobs. Some 26 percent are veterans and 6 percent are people reported to have AIDS or HIV-related illness.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (DEC. 19) UPI - Panamanian officials stood by two weeks ago as 500 heavily armed U.S. troops surrounded National Police headquarters, pinned rebellious police officers to the ground and led them away in handcuffs.

The Dec. 5 police uprising was a stark reminder of Panama's deep dependence on the United States a year after invading U.S. troops ousted dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega and installed the civilian government of President Guillermo Endara.

''I think you could describe it as being somewhat embarrassing for Panama,'' said Panamanian Archbishop Marcos McGrath. ''Panama (lacks) a certain economic stability plus a good police force ... These are the two great disadvantages in achieving a real sense of independence.''

At a time when Panama should be preparing for greater autonomy and the takeover of the Panama Canal, the country seems more reliant than ever on U.S. economic and security assistance, observers say.

Endara, who won the annulled 1989 elections, was expected to lead post-invasion Panama into a prosperous new era of democracy after 21 years of military rule. Much of his support came from his pledge to improve relations with the United States, which grew increaingly strained under Noriega's rule.

In some ways, Panama is on the mend. Crippling U.S. economic sanctions against the Noriega regime have been lifted. Deposits are increasing in Panama's off-shore banking center. Stores looted during the Dec. 20 invasion of last year have reopened. And the economy is expected to grow by 5 percent this year.

But daunting problems still remain. Violent crime plagues Panama City. The police force remains ineffective and a source of potential coups.

Endara's free-market economic plan has sparked massive protests by labor unions. Riot police fired teargas and shotguns to break up labor rallies last week. More than 12,000 government workers have been fired and unemployment is 20 percent.

Also, U.S. economic aid has fallen short of Panama's expectations. Only $108 million in U.S. aid has been disbursed due to a number of conditions attatched to the $461 million aid package. The U.S. government has refused to compensate for Panamanians who were killed or wounded during the invasion.

''After promising practically everything, they (the U.S. government) haven't come up with anything,'' said political analyst Marco Gandasegui.

Endara, who was sworn in on a U.S. base during the invasion, is widely viewed as a weak, ineffective leader. In a November opinion poll in the newspaper La Prensa, his approval rating was just 25 percent.

The high profile U.S. presence in Panama has also created resentments.

The U.S. military refused for months to turn over 15,000 boxes of Noriega documents confiscated during the invasion to Panamaniam investigators. When the U.S. Army seized three Pacific Ocean islands during the invasion, they kept them for five months before giving them back.

The conversion of Noriega's army into a police force that carries pistols and nightsticks increased Panama's reliance on the Americans. With 10,000 U.S. troops based in Panama until the year 2000, it leaves the U.S. military as the only real power brokers. That worries many here.

''Panamanians on the whole are mortified by having to call in U.S. troops and everytime it happens we feel ourselves less a nation,'' McGrath said, referring to the police mutiny.

The Dec. 5 rebellion occurred just as the U.S. military was planning to withdraw the last 150 troops stationed around the country since the invasion. Now, those plans have been delayed indefinitely.

U.S. Ambassador Deane Hinton admits there have been ''headaches'' in the relationship but says ties between the two countries are strong.

''Expectations were too high. Frustrations have boiled over,'' Hinton said in a speech last week. ''We all have to remember that this government has faced problem after problem since the day it was sworn in - no breathing space.''

Louis Martinz, Endara's foreign press secretary, described Panama as a ''protected democracy'' and said the country will rely on U.S. security help ''until necessary.''

The U.S. connection goes back to the country's foundings. Panama declared independence from Colombia with U.S. backing in 1903. U.S. engineers began work on the Panama Canal in 1903 and 10 American military bases were built. Even the official currency is the U.S. dollar.

Under the Panama Canal treaty, Panama will take control of the waterway by the end of the decade. The canal is currently a joint U.S.- Panamanian operation. U.S. military bases are also scheduled to close down. But Martinz admits Panama has long way to go before it weans itself off U.S. support.

''In the past, the U.S. has always been there,'' Martinz said. ''Lets hope by the year 2000 we're on our own.''

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (DEC. 19) UPI - H&R Block Inc. said Wednesday it has begun a previously announced $45 million cash tender for all outstanding shares of Interim Systems Corp. common stock.

Block is offering $1.66 a share for the stock of Interim, a temporary help company based in Clifton, N.J.

The companies last week announced a definitive merger agreement.

Under the agreement, Block also would acquire shares held by Interim Chairman and President Fred R. Sullivan for the same price. Sullivan owns 13.8 percent of the company's outstanding stock.

The tender will expire at midnight Jan. 17.

Block, the nation's largest provider of income tax preparation services, owns several subsidiaries, including Personnel Pool of America Inc., a temporary help services company. Acquiring Interim would allow the company to increase its market presence and enhance its competitive position through a single acquisition, Block said.

MOSCOW (DEC. 19) UPI - Georgia's Parliament demanded Wednesday that Soviet Interior Ministry troops keeping peace in the Ossetia region of the republic be put under local control, a move that would undoubtedly heighten ethnic tension in the area.

A state of emergency and a curfew were declared and troops were sent into the region, which has moved to break from Georgia, last week after three people were killed in Georgian-Ossetian ethnic violence.

The shootings capped a month of increased tension between the Ossetian region and the new nationalist-controlled government in Tbilisi, the capital of the southern Soviet republic of Georgia.

The Ossetians declared their autonomous region within Georgia a separate republic, a move the Georgian Parliament declared illegal and countered by abolishing the separate administration of South Ossetia.

On Wednesday the Parliament in Tbilisi demanded that Soviet Interior Ministry troops sent to the region to stop violence between Georgians and Ossetians be placed under Georgian control or pulled out of the area.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said the Parliament threatened that the Georgian government and its people would resort to ''extreme measures'' if Moscow did not comply with the request.

The outlawed local government in South Ossetia, however, called instead for a strengthening of the Soviet peacekeeping force and the widening of the state of emergency.

An official of the independent newspaper Premier in Northern Ossetia, which is part of the Russian republic, said South Ossetia was under a ''virtual blockade'' and was running out of gasoline and other supplies, but the report could not be confirmed.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 19) UPI - Defense Minister Moshe Arens told visiting U.S. senators Wednesday he was not in the guessing business when they asked him to predict whether war would break out between U.S.-led forces and Iraq.

''Exactly what Saddam Hussein will do until the end of the month, until the 15th of January, the entire world is guessing. They (the senators) also asked me to guess ... I don't like to guess,'' Arens said.

But Arens told the seven-member Senate delegation, led by Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell, Israel was prepared in case of war. As far as Israel was concerned no change had occurred since Aug. 2, when Iraq invaded Kuwait, Arens said.

''We are ready for any attempt to attack us,'' Army Radio quoted Arens as telling the visiting American senators.

The Senate delegation was one of several congressional tours through the Middle East recently, which have met with Israeli officials and U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia.

BOSTON (DEC. 19) UPI - The once-common practice of using kerosene to get rid of head lice not only is outdated but it can be extremely dangerous, two health care workers warned Wednesday.

Donald Damschen and Dr. John Carlile of the University of Nevada School of Medicine in Reno cited the case of a five-year-old girl who was badly burned when fumes from the kerosene her family used to treat her head lice ignited, creating a flash fire.

In a letter to The New England Journal of Medicine, Damschen and Carlile said the family resorted to kerosene as a ''delousing agent'' after several shampoos apparently failed to get rid of lice the child acquired at school.

Undiluted lantern fuel was applied to the child's head and she was then taken to the kitchen sink to rinse it off, they said. At that point, a ''pilot light in the kitchen stove ignited the fumes, causing flash burns to the child and two other family members,'' they reported.

The child was the most seriously injured, with burns over 40 percent of her body. She was taken to University Medical Center in Reno and is now undergoing skin grafting procedures.

Although in current medical practice the chemicals lindane and malathion are used to treat head lice, the use of kerosene ''has been advocated in the lay medical literature for several decades,'' Damschen and Carlile said.

Consequently, the ''outdated kerosene treatment continues to come to the attention of modern physicians, with tragic consequences in our patient,'' they said.

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA (DEC. 19) UPI - The Federal Chamber of the Yugoslav Parliament Wednesday urged the central government to prevent the ruling nationalist coalition in Slovenia from holding a plebiscite on independence for the republic.

The motion was approved at the end of a six-hour debate on plebiscite to be held Sunday. Delegates from Slovenia staged a walkout, protesting that a discussion should await the outcome of the vote, which is expected to be overwhelmingly for independence.

The republic's leaders have stressed that passage will not mean automatic secession, but represent a bargaining chip in their efforts to change the constitutional framework of the multi-ethnic nation of 23 million.

The Federal Chamber supported a finding rendered Tuesday by the nation's eight-man collective presidency that said the plebiscite is ''anti-constitutional'' because any move by a republic toward secession must be blessed by the other five republics.

The motion asked the Constitutional Court, Yugoslavia's highest judicial body, to rule on the legality of the plebiscite. The panel later announced that it would decide by Friday whether to issue a temporary restraining order.

Slovenia's ruling Democratic Union, a coalition of nationalist parties that ousted communists in April polls, called the plebiscite to give it the right to declare independence if its plan for a new federal constitution is rejected.

Slovenia, joined by Croatia, wants Yugoslavia made a confederation of independent states because of fears of domination by the largest republic, Serbia, whose ruling Communists have been fanning Serbian nationalism to maintain their lock on power.

Croatia and Slovenia, the most liberal and economically developed republics, also contend that they derive insufficient benefits from federal spending compared to the amount of funds they contribute.

The Croatian and Slovenian assemblies adopted measures earlier this year declaring the sovereignty of their republics and giving their laws pre-eminence over federal statutes.

Serbia's Communists reject confederation unless Serbia's borders are expanded to include Serbian enclaves in other republics, a demand that has fueled fears of civil war.

Rising opposition among various segements of the country to the plebiscite has provoked concerns of intervention by the Communist-led Yugoslav military, which has indicated it will use force to preserve the federation formed in 1918.

Slovenian authorities have responded by posting paramilitary police reinforcements around government buildings and other key installations.

Speaking to the Federal Chamber during the debate, Yugoslav Deputy Defense Minister Stane Brovet said the armed forces would act according to the orders of Parliament and the constitution.

''The Yugoslav People's Army will not do anything which is beyond the will of this parliamentary chamber, the Parliament of Yugoslavia, beyond the constitution and law, and those who count on treason and capitulation will gravely deceive themselves.''

Deputy Foreign Minister Milivoj Maksic said other nations oppose shifts in Yugoslavia's frontiers for strategic reasons.

''Nobody in Europe wants a change of borders and the disintegration of Yugoslavia would lead to a possible disintegration of far bigger states and this might violate the international balance in the world,'' he said.

Said Ibro Hadzic, a delegate from Bosnia-Herzegovina: ''With this referendum, Slovenia opens an unconstitutional way for rearranging the country which could have unforeseeable consequences and could lead to the fanning of ethnic conflicts.''

''The federal organs, when this plebiscite is in question, should act to prevent non-constitutional activities and protect interests of all citizens of the country,'' he said.

TORONTO (DEC. 19) UPI - The current Canadian recession could have been avoided, minimized, or delayed if a greater effort had been made in reducing the federal deficit, the head of the Canadian Manufacturing Association said Wednesday.

Laurent Thibault, president of the CMA, told reporters at the group's Yearend Review and 1991 Outlook briefing that the costs of not having cut the deficit are "enormous."

The recession has cost $25.5 billion in short-term lost sales, the review noted, with a cumulative 5-year output loss of more than double that figure. Thibault said the size of the country's debt and fiscal deficits were being fueled by high interest rates and an overvalued Canadian dollar.

Canadian prime rates hit a high of 14.75 percent earlier this year and the currency traded above the 88-cent level in late summer. More recently, the rates have eased, currently at 13.25 at most major banks, and the dollar has traded at the 86-cent level.

The association also said 180,000 manufacturing jobs are expected to be lost, half of them permanently, by mid-1991 compared with 1989 peak levels. For the year ending in October, 140,000 jobs had already been lost, the review indicated.

The job losses were attributed by the CMA to a drop in both manufacturing shipments and profits, restructuring to compete globally and declining competitiveness.

Thibault said the manufacturing sector entered into a recession in the fourth quarter of 1989 and will likely remain in it until at least the third quarter of 1991.

"It's clear that the manufacturing outlook continues to deteriorate," Thibault said. "Consumer confidence has been slipping, construction activity is dropping very rapidly and there are increasing indications of a United States recession."

The association is forecasting a drop in manufacturing activity for 17 of 20 industries in 1990 and for 15 or 20 industries in 1991. Furniture, textiles, leather, non-metal minerals and electrical industries were the big losers in 1990 with non-metal minerals, machinery and furniture expected to be the hardest hit next year.

Thibault said as the cost of capital for manufacturers has risen, spending on updated technology, needed to make themselves more competitive, has fallen. And unless the rate of decline in interest rates accelerates, the situation facing manufacturers could turn worse, he added.

"Canada is in a period of very fundamental (economic) adjustment," Thibault said, adding that the federal deficit limits the ability of the government to act which in turn impacts on manufacturers.

"We have no flexibility to invest in more training, more research and development, more of all the things that we need to compete," Thibault said. "The next few years will be difficult."

(DEC. 19) UPI - It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas in areas that generally don't see much snow... including Seattle. In fact, there's a wide range of temperatures throughout the country today. Miami residents are in the comfortable 80's while Montana's citizens may be lucky to find highs between 10 and 20 degrees- below zero. Add to that expected winds of 35 miles an hour and you come up with Montana wind chills of 70 degrees below zero. The cold air and strong winds extend as far west as Seattle, where snow-laden powerlines came crashing down today. The Seattle park system is expected to open several golf courses- for skiing and sledding.

Iraq apparently is drawing lines of its own in the sand as it prepares for the possibility of war next month. Baghdad Radio reports Iraq's oil ministry is asking civilians to stock up on domestic heating fuel in case there are shortages if war breaks out. Saddam Hussein fired his oil minister in October after that official ordered gasoline rationing. Saddam proclaimed, at the time that rationing was NOT needed.

And a separate report from Egypt's Middle East News Agency indicates that Iraqi armored units are being pulled away from northwestern borders with Syria and are heading southeast to occupied Kuwait. Iraq already has 430-thousand troops in the area.

Housing starts rose nine percent last month, but economists say it's NOT a sign that the housing industry has ended its depression. Thomas Holloway, senior economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association in Washington, says ''it's nice to see the rebound and nice to see a positive number'' but we'll have to wait a little longer to see the beginning of a recovery. Holloway says he expects the housing market to recover by late spring.

New York's Supreme Court has opened the way for insurance companies in that state to test applicants for the AIDS virus, and deny coverage for anyone who tests positive. That possibility comes after the court struck down a 1987 ruling from the former Superintendant of Insurance that kept insurance companies from making AIDS tests. New York courts later ruled the superintendant did NOT have the authority to make the ruling. California is the only state with a law keeping insurance companies from testing for AIDS.

A 19-year-old woman charged with robbing a bank in Palm Bay, Florida, says she and her boyfriend were inspired by the t-v show ''Geraldo.'' Police say the woman wrote a note demanding money, presented it to a teller and left the bank with 22-hundred dollars. The suspect turned herself in to Sheriff's officials this weekend and is being held without bond. She told authorities that she and her friend realized how easy it was to rob a bank after watching a December 12th segment of the talk show that featured bank robbers and embezzlers.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 19) UPI - The people who hire management and professional staffs appear confident in the economy despite widespread speculation of a recession.

Management Recruiters International, which describes itself as the nation's largest search and recruitment firm, surveyed more than 3,000 executives responsible for hiring and found 32 percent plan staff increases during the next six months, while 52 percent plan no change and 16 percent plan staff reductions.

"We were awaiting with bated breath the result of the survey," MRI President Alan Schonberg said Wednesday. "We were very pleased with the result. We're not looking at a massive downturn. Sure, there's some tightening. There are some downs, but we are not looking at a holocaust here."

The Cleveland firm has been doing the survey for nine years. Highs for planned staff increases were in the 40 percent range from late 1983 until early 1985. The lows, ranging between 28 percent and 29 percent, were recorded in late 1982.

The latest survey, however, does indicate some slowing. Surveyed earlier this year, 36 percent said they planned staff increases in the second half of this year.

"We're looking at a pinch, but we're not looking at a decapitation," Schonberg said. "The head has not been sliced from the body of the economy." He said the survey historically has been more accurate than predications from economists.

"The people we talk to are mid- and senior-level management people," he said. "They're responsible in their companies for the hiring of mid-management and professional people. So what they're reflecting is a real investment. ... They're not hiring hourly workers that can be added at will. They're making investments in their future."

Particularly strong in the latest survey were the Pacific, Mountain and Southwest regions. Forty-one percent of respondents from the Pacific region said they planned management and professional staff increases during the first half of 1991, while 40 percent plans increases in the Southwest and 39 percent in the Mountain region. At the low end were New England at 26 percent, South Atlantic at 27 percent and South Central at 29 percent.

Thirty-five percent in the Midwest said they planned staff increases, as did 32 percent in the Middle Atlantic and 31 percent in the North Central regions.

"I might have looked for a little more strength in the North Central area," Schonberg said. "It's down from 34.8 percent to 30.9 percent. I was not expecting that. Other than that, there are no surprises."

By industry, telecommunications led the way at 47 percent, followed by data processing at 46 percent and pharmaceuticals at 42 percent. On the low end were textiles at 14 percent, lumber-wood products at 20 percent, and primary metals at 23 percent.

MRI found similar results in a separate survey regarding the employment outlook for sales, sales management, and marketing staffs - 32 percent planning increases, 52 percent no change and 16 percent reductions.

By region, results were slightly different. The Southwest led at 42 percent, followed by North Central at 36 percent and New England at 32 percent. The Pacific, South Atlantic and Midwest regions all came it at 29 percent, followed by Middle Atlantic at 28 percent and Mountain at 19 percent. Insufficient data were available for the South Central region.

TIRANA, ALBANIA (DEC. 19) UPI - Albania formally legalized political parties Wednesday, and thousands of supporters of the first opposition group in 46 years of Marxist rule celebrated at a rally where authorities were criticized for using tanks to suppress recent riots.

''This is a great day for Albania,'' Gramoz Pashko, a key organizer of the new Democratic Party, told the crowd that packed the center of Tirana's Enver Hoxha University, named after the founder of what was Europe's last orthodox Communist state.

The economic professor reaffirmed that the party would contest elections to the national Parliament set under a program of gradual reforms initiated by President Ramiz Alia after the fall in 1989 of Marxist regimes across Eastern Europe.

The party, however, will press Alia to delay the vote to give it time to organize, Pashko said.

''We will immediately fight to have the date of the election moved back from February to May, demand the release of all political prisoners and start campaigning,'' he said.

London-based Amnesty International last week reported that nearly 1, 000 political prisoners remain jailed in Albania despite Alia's pledges to adhere to international human rights accords.

Sali Berisha, another senior Democratic Party leader, blasted the conservative bureaucracy for ordering the use of tanks to suppress two days of anti-government riots last week that erupted after Alia first indicated he was opening the doors to political pluralism.

''Be wary of the bureaucrats who want to destabilize this country. It was they who ordered the tanks into Elbasan,'' Berisha told the crowd.

Earlier, organizers of the new party met to discuss establishing a newspaper and were told to send a representative to Justice Minister Enver Halili to hear a decision on their request for formal recognition.

When the representative returned with word that their application was approved the leaders hugged and kissed each other and chanted ''freedom.''

The developments coincided with the trials of more than 170 people arrested in three towns rocked by anti-regime riots.

State-run Radio Tirana said 60 people in Shkoder, 55 in Elbasan and 62 in Durres were indicted on charges ranging from attempted assassination and assault to holding illegal gatherings.

The radio said defendants had acknowledged their crimes and ''repented.''

At least 16 people, including two senior police officers, were reportedly injured in clashes between protesters and security forces during the riots in Shkoder, Elbasan, Durres, as well as in Kavaja and Saranda on Dec. 15 and 16.

The unrest in the tiny Balkan state apparently grew out of mounting anger over the severe economic problems among workers, who apparently took Alia's decision on pluralism as a sign the government would tolerate dissent.

Alia's decision on Dec. 10 followed three days of student demonstrations for better living conditions and broader political liberalization.

The official Albanian Telegraphic Agency (ATA) said in a dispatch received in Belgrade that a decree approved by the presidium of the rubber-stamp Parliament ''recognizes the right of the citizens to form political and social organizations (parties) or associations.''

The presidum is chaired by Alia and consists of senior members of the parliament controlled exclusively by Albania's communist Party of Labor.

Under the decree, the government would have 30 days to approve or deny an application for the formation of a new party. Its failure to meet the deadline would mean automatic approval, ATA said.

Political parties are allowed to ''have the necessary property to carry out their activity, their press, as well as to administer the incomes deriving from the membership quotas or other legal sources,'' ATA said.

The decree banned parties that have a ''fascist, racist, warmongering, anti-national character or instigate national hatred'' or ''aim at violently overthrowing'' the constitutional order, ATA said.

Foreign and Albanian citizens who are not permanent residents of the country are prohibited from joining or participating in the activities of political parties, which are not allowed to receive funds from abroad. Such funds would be confiscated by the state, the agency said.

PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 19) UPI - The Philadelphia Eagles Wednesday placed three starters on the NFC Pro Bowl team, but quarterback Randall Cunningham was not one of them.

Defensive linemen Reggie White and Jerome Brown and tight end Keith Jackson were voted to the starting team by the NFC players and coaches in balloting conducted earlier this week.

But Cunningham, who is the NFC's top-rated quarterback and sixth- leading rusher, was voted to the second team, behind starter Joe Montana of the San Francisco 49ers.

''Joe is a great quarterback and you can't take anything away from him,'' said Cunningham, who has completed 58 percent of his passes for 3,150 yards and 27 touchdowns and run for 828 more yards this year.

White ranks second in the NFC with 13 quarterback sacks and Jackson, who missed the first two games of the season because of a contract dispute, is tied for 14th with 47 catches for 619 yards.

Brown has managed only one sack but he is tied for fourth on the Eagles with 88 tackles this season.

''I've said all along it's not just a question of how many sacks I get,'' said Brown, who had 10 1/2 sacks last season. ''I thought I'd have more sacks but instead, I've gotten more tackles.''

White was named to the Pro Bowl team for the fifth straight time and Jackson and Cunningham each made it for the third year in a row.

Brown made it for the first time.

While the four Eagles said they were pleased to earn the respect of their peers, all said they have their minds on other things.

''I did what I needed to do to get there but that wasn't my main focus,'' Cunningham said. ''My main focus is getting to the Super Bowl.''

The Eagles, 8-6, clinched an NFC wild-card berth with Sunday's 31-0 victory over Green Bay but have lost in the first round of the playoffs for the last two seasons.

''Right now, I'd rather win and take it all the way,'' White said.

Jackson, whose 47 catches rank second among tight ends to the 54 receptions by Dallas tight end Jay Novacek, said he was not surprised to be voted to the team, even though his numbers are down.

Jackson had an Eagles-record 81 catches in his rookie season and 63 last year, when he missed several games because of injury.

''It's who they think is the best at the position,'' Jackson said. ''I wasn't worried about the Pro Bowl. I came back to make the team better. The Super Bowl and the playoffs are No. 1. The Pro Bowl is secondary.''

Brown said it was a thrill to make the Pro Bowl but added, ''I'll be excited a lot more for the playoffs.''

BERLIN (DEC. 19) UPI - A reduction in child death rates will convince parents to have fewer children, thus curbing population growth and helping global environment as well as reducing poverty, the U.N. Children's Fund said

Wednesday.

The U.N. agency called in its annual State of the World's Children for slashing death rates among children under 5 by one third during the 1990s.

The program was launched after an unprecedented meeting in New York of presidents and prime ministers of 71 countries, assembled to agree on measures to drastically cut the daily deaths of 40,000 children.

UNICEF said economic progress, effective family planning programs and advanced education and health for women contributed to reduce birth rates worldwide.

''Birth rates have begun to fall in almost every region of the developing world,'' it said. ''There is every reason to believe that further falls in under-5 deaths would be associated with even steeper falls in births.''

The U.N. report was released in united Berlin by UNICEF Executive Director James Grant who was joined by German President Richard von Weizsaecker at a news conference.

British movie actor and director Peter Ustinov, UNICEF's goodwill ambassador, was also on hand to assist children programs. Ustinov urged Berliners to participate in efforts to help the world's children.

''Berlin has won a battle,'' he said, adding that, ''Like the children, Berliners also needed to fight to survive.''

In presenting the report, Grant warned also that more than 250,000 children around the world still die of hunger and preventable diseases every week. He said this ''silent catastrophe'' could be overcome with more political will from governments.

Grant said UNICEF had reached its goal set 10 years ago of immunizing 80 percent of the world's children against major diseases, a program that saved more than 12 million lives. But he stressed that it would not lead to a population explosion.

''When parents are confident that their first child will survive,'' the birthrate will drop, he said, referring to the practice in most developing countries to have a large family as a guarantee for survival.

The report cited the example of China, Sri Lanka and India's Kerala region, which has a population of 29 million, in the link between lower birth rates and a sustained reduction in child death rates.

It said economic progress helped to limit a family size in the case of those three areas in the world. It said if social progress is sustained in South Asia as a whole, it would see 5.2 million fewer child deaths a year and 14.3 million fewer births.

''Reducing child deaths can therefore help societies to move towards family building by design rather than by chance,'' it said.

Grant told reporters before issuing the report in Berlin that a drop in birth rates will help reduce human demands on the deteriorating environment.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) UPI - The use of two little words - Thirst Aid - has made a little Vermont company a lot richer and put a dent in the coffers of a much bigger company that makes Gatorade.

U.S. District Senior Judge Prentice Marshall ruled Tuesday that Ouaker Oats Co. must pay $24.7 million to Sands, Taylor & Wood of Norwich, Vt., for violating the New England firm's trademark "Thirst Aid." The amount is ten percent of the profits from Gatorade sales plus interest. A division of Quaker Oats, Stokely Foods, in the 1980s started marketing Gatorade as "thirst aid, for that deep-down body thirst."

There was one problem, however. The Vermont firm, which markets ice cream sundae toppings and soft-drink syrups under the "Thirst Aid" name, owns the trademark.

Frank Sands II, president of the Vermont firm, said Wednesday he has been trying since the suit was filed in 1984 to settle the case with the Chicago-based firm, and even offered to sell Quaker Oats the trademark.

"They weren't interested. They just wanted to take it," Sands said. But he added the money is not yet in hand for the company, which was founded in 1790 and has a net worth of about $200,000.

"We haven't got the money yet." Sands said. "We're very gratified, especially considering the time and a lot of emotional travail, which is part of (Quaker Oats') method."

"Our attorneys are reviewing the opinion," Rob Bottrell, a Quaker Oats spokesman, said Wednesday. "It's a 62-page opinoin, which is being looked at very, very carefully as to what our course of action might be."

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (DEC. 19) UPI - A green-and-white billboard in the El Chorrillo slum carries the words of Panamanian President Guillermo Endara: ''Have patience. We will rebuild El Chorrillo.''

But one year after the U.S. invasion, which destroyed much of El Chorrillo and left hundreds dead, the ghetto remains a barren prairie of knee-high weeds and empty gravel lots. A few new buildings are going up, but people's hopes have fallen.

''I thought they would build Chorrillo back up, that we would just live a normal life and everybody would get a job,'' said Anabel Brooks, 17, who moved back to El Chorrillo after the invasion. ''But now I see that nobody gets anything.''

El Chorrillo used to be a poor but funky ghetto where salsa blared from the balconies of rickety wood tenements and street hustlers sold beer and lottery tickets. Local hero Roberto Duran learned to punch in El Chorrillo before moving on to world boxing fame. There was also petty crime, drug abuse and rats, but to thousands it was home.

Nestled among the buildings, however, was dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega's military headquarters, the main target of the Dec. 20, 1989, U.S. invasion. During the attack, the neighborhood burned as U.S. helicopter gunships and tanks faced off against Noriega's troops.

Many ''Chorrilleros'' initially supported the invasion. But one year later, they are angry with construction delays and say Endara has done little for Panama's poor. Some are rethinking the merits of the attack.

''We never asked for the invasion,'' said Emiliade Tabia, 42, who runs a soda stand. ''We were hurt by the dictatorship but we are being hurt by what's happening now.''

Some of the 2,800 families who lost homes have resettled elsewhere with the help of $7,300 in U.S. funds. But some say they deserve compensation for relatives killed in the fighting and have protested at the U.S. Embassy.

Panamanian and U.S. officials say aid to refugees has been generous and note that many are moving into better homes than they had before. Compensation for invasion deaths and injuries, however, will not be paid.

About 500 families live in a Panama City refugee camp waiting for new buildings in El Chorrillo to open next year. Those who have already moved back say times are tough.

''Before, there was more action. You could sell fried fish or yucca,'' said Leroy Eduardo Howard, an unemployed Chorrillo resident. ''There is no business now because there are no people.''

Vilma de Quijada, 46, said some refugees refuse to return due to traumatic memories of the attack. Others say the sense of community is also missing.

''Sometimes there would be dances on the streets. Kids would play basketball or just stand around on the street corners talking and hanging around,'' Brooks said. ''Now, you don't see hardly anyone. You don't see your friends. Everybody is separated. This was a ghetto but now it's not because everything got burned down.''

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - Desperate for life-prolonging treatments for AIDS, activists around the country Wednesday demanded that two promising drugs receive early government approval.

"The basic problem is you have tens of thousands of people failing AZT (the only government-approved drug to fight the AIDS virus) either because it is not working for them or it is too toxic or their bodies have become resistent to it. And these people are in desperate need of access to these drugs," said David Gold of the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power.

ACT UP joined the Gay Men's Health Crisis in New York, San Francisco's Project Inform and other groups in a plea for faster action from the government and the manufacturers of the two drugs - dideoxyinosine or DDI and dideoxycytidine or DDC.

Hoffman-LaRoche in Nutley, N.J., which makes DDC, had no immediate comment on its plans for getting the drug licensed. But a spokeswoman for Bristol-Myers Squibb in New York said the firm plans to submit an application for approval of DDI "in the first quarter of 1991." That means, if previous experience is repeated, it could take more than six months from now for DDI to win full government approval.

The Food and Drug Administration, which took 3 1/2 months to approve licensing for AZT in 1987, could not say how long approval of either new drug would take once the manufacturers submit their applications. FDA spokesman Brad Stone said, "AIDS drugs get top priority, so when it comes time for the agency to take action, they get reviewed immediately."

Both DDI and DDC have been available through clinical trials, as well as through a special expanded access program which has reached about 15,000 people, most of whom have received DDI.

But activists said those programs still leave thousands of patients unable to obtain the drugs, which may be their only hope for surviving longer with the acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

"I am HIV-infected and have been taking AZT for over a year. Recently I discovered that AZT was causing muscle deterioration, a common side effect, and I had to stop taking it. However, because the problem has not reached a serious stage, I am not eligible for the DDI expanded access program. said David Barr, assistant policy director for Gay Men's Health Crisis.

"I should not have to wait until I cannot walk in order to get DDI. There are thousands of other people just like me. We need this drug available immediately so that our doctors can prescribe it before we get any worse," Barr said.

DDI and DDC are chemically related to zidovudine or AZT, but preliminary results indicate neither drug causes the severe anemia that frequently troubles patients taking AZT.

However, DDI is associated with inflammation of the pancreas and both DDI and DDC can trigger a painful nerve disorder in the feet and hands. It is hoped their toxicities can be tempered by using lower doses of the drugs in combination with each other. "What the feeling is now is that enough is known about these two drugs for people to make informed choices," ACT UP's Gold said.

MOSCOW (DEC. 19) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev said Wednesday he was prepared to impose a state of emergency in any of the Soviet Union's rebellious republics should there be a ''serious threat to state security and lives.''

Gorbachev's warning came on the third day of a key session of the Congress of People's Deputies after his chief political rival, Russian Federation leader Boris Yeltsin, challenged Gorbachev's proposal to concentrate more power in the central government.

''The era of commands from the Kremlin is past,'' Yeltsin said in an address to the Soviet parliament, calling on the central government to step aside and let the 15 Soviet republics run their own affairs.

The three Baltic republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania declared independence earlier this year, and all but one of the other Soviet states have passed milder sovereignty proclamations.

''As the chairman of the Russian Parliament, I declare that Russia will not agree to the restoration of a dictatorship that also does not possess a real political program for the revival of the country,'' Yeltsin said.

Joining Yeltsin in criticism of Gorbahev's plan was Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, whose post would essentially be eliminated by the proposed restructuring.

Gorbachev, citing ethnic strife sweeping Moldavia and Georgia, responded to his opponents with a reminder that he holds special presidential that he has so far refrained from using.

''In those areas where the situation becomes especially sharp, where there is a serious threat to state security and lives of people, we will have to introduce a state of emergency or presidential rule,'' he said.

''I think in this case, the president will have to assume full responsiblity because my attempts to come to agreement and to act jointly (with the republics) as a rule always end in our inability to come to agreements.''

Gorbachev's remarks followed an appeal from more than 50 conservative figures, including top army officers and the head of the Russian Orthodox Church, to invoke emergency powers to fight ''anti-national and anti-socialist'' forces.

Gorbachev, who was previously granted the power to rule by decree under certain circumstances, is now seeking approval from the congress for a reorganization plan that would create new law enforcement structures and place all government ministries directly under his control.

''No Soviet leader, neither Stalin nor Brezhnev, had such unlimited powers,'' Yeltsin said, adding that overhaul of the nation's political and economic system should be left to the republics.

''The so-called revolution from above for the restructuring of our society is over. The Kremlin has ceased being the initiator of the renewal of our country '' he said.

Ryzhkov called for a delay in Gorbachev's reorganization plan, saying political stability and a new ''union treaty'' outlining the relationship between the republics and the central government were needed first.

The speeches by Ryzkov and Yeltsin came on the third day of a congress session promoted by Gorbachev as a unity meeting. Gorbachev opened the session Monday by calling for greater presidential powers and approval of a voter referendum on a new Soviet federation and private land ownership.

Gorbachev's plan to hold a national plebiscite on the fate of the union is a risky bid to appeal directly to the people, over the heads of rebellious governments in the republics and his own fractious legislature.

TORONTO (DEC. 19) UPI - Citing the slowdown in the United States economy, the Bank of Montreal Wednesday whittled another quarter of a percentage point off its prime lending rate to 12.75 percent. It marked the second time in eight days that the bank has cut its prime rate.

"The U.S. economy is showing greater signs of weakness than expected," said Lloyd Atkinson, chief economist at the bank, "which has profound implications for Canada's growth prospects." Atkinson added, "It is clear that there is now room for more rapid rate reductions."

Last week, Atkinson said the Canadian economy was dominated by "deflationary forces". He pointed to the rising unemployment rate, now at 9.1 percent, and a continuing slide in housing starts.

Atkinson said he expects the Bank of Canada, which cut its key rate to 12.01 percent last Thursday, to accelerate the easing of a tight monetary policy that has been used to fight against inflation.

The central bank has used high interest rates, which peaked at 14.75 percent earlier this year, to slow consumer spending. The Bank of Montreal is forecasting no growth 1991 for Canada's economy with a slow recovery beginning in 1992.

In cutting its prime rate, the Bank of Montreal has further distanced itself from Canada's other major banks which currently have their prime rates pegged at 13.25 percent.

HOUSTON (DEC. 19) UPI - A company sponsoring a sweepstakes for an American to win a trip to the Soviet space station Mir produced letters Wednesday from Soviet officials confirming the existence of a contract for such a trip.

Space Travel Services Corp. President David Mayer and Vice President James Donaldson also testified Wednesday before a Harris County grand jury investigating whether the contest violates Texas lottery laws.

Organizers say the contest is not an illegal lottery because it allows contestants to register for the space trip free of charge by mail in addition to calling a 900-number for a $2.99 fee.

"We feel, based on what we know about it, that it appears to be a lottery," said Harris County Assistant District Attorney Jean Spradling Hughes. "And lotteries are illegal in Texas."

State officials said they shared those concerns. Under Texas law, a contest is considered a lottery if it involves chance rather than skill, offers a prize of value and requires financial consideration to enter. "We're definitely going to look into it," said attorney general spokesman Ron Dusek of Austin.

"I understand the lottery laws, and we're not violating them," Davidson said, adding the contest is still going on despite questions about it. Space Travel Services announced Monday it had a contract to send an American on a week-long all-expenses-paid trip to the Soviet space station Mir.

However, the official Soviet news agency Tass said in a story Tuesday that Soviet officials had "denied" the reports that a U.S. citizen might fly on a Soviet rocket.

Mayer said Space Travel Services has a contract with Space Commerce Corp. of Houston. In turn, Space Commerce negotiated the contract with NPO Energia of Moscow, which makes Soviet rockets.

In a letter sent to Space Commerce Corp. Wednesday, Energia General Director Yuri Pavelovitch Semenov called the Tass report "a disappointing misunderstanding."

"This letter is to confirm our intents, that were signed in the letter dated Nov. 22, 1990. I am sure in the success of our project evolution and completion," Semenov wrote. The contract with the Soviets was negotiated by Houston businessman Art Dula, president of Space Commerce, organizers said.

Space Travel Services said it had contracted with the Soviet space agency for a seat aboard a Soyuz rocket in late 1992 or early 1993. The "guest cosmonaut" will be selected at random in December 1991 by an independent judging organization, the company said. The winner may take the trip or $1.5 million cash, Mayer said.

If the winner opts for the cash, a backup astronaut selected from a group of 20 would be offered the trip. Residents of New York, Florida and Rhode Island are ineligible because of restrictive local laws, organizers said.

Space Travel Services declined to say how much they will pay the Soviets for the flight but said it would be more than the $12 million reportedly paid recently to send a Japanese television reporter into space with the Soviets.

The company hopes to recoup its costs and earn a profit through the fees paid by hopeful cosmonauts who enter the sweepstakes by calling 1- 900-258-2MIR. The line is active nationwide except in scattered rural areas, organizers said.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Officially, winter is still a few days away, but you can't tell that to residents of Western states from Washington to South Dakota. A brutal Arctic front swept eastward today, bringing high winds that troubled drivers in Oregon, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Colorado and Nebraska. The cold was dangerous in Montana. The lowest overnight temperature was 23 below zero in Great Falls and a 50 mile an hour gust was recorded in Kalispell. Water, rather than ice, was the main concern in Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana where rivers flooded their banks.

More defensive posturing to report from the Persian Gulf as a January 15th deadline approaches. That's the date the U-N has authorized for the possible use of force to get Iraq out of occupied Kuwait. Defense Secretary Cheney and General Colin Powell are both in Saudi Arabia for talks with local leaders and visits to U-S troops. Their numbers already approach 270-thousand with a total commitment of 430-thousand expected by mid-January. Another 220-thousand allied troops are drawn up against Iraq.

The United Nations says the Persian Gulf crisis has hurt the world economy... allowing some oil companies to reap big profits while driving Millions of people into poverty. The U-N department of international economic and social affairs says the Iraq standoff has reduced the growth of global production in 1990 by three-tenths of one percent. It says the impact in the Middle East has been ''immediate and immense.''

The clash continues in Moscow between Russian leader Boris Yeltsin and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. During Day Three of the Congress of Peoples Deputies, Yeltsin declared that the ''era of commands from the Kremlin is over.'' But Gorbachev responded by raising the possibility he might impose states of emergency to maintain order in rebellious republics. 14 of the 15 Soviet republics have declared sovereignty.

A Wisconsin judge today dismissed the sexual assault case against an Oshkosh man accused of taking advantage of a woman with multiple personalities. Prosecutors asked that the charges against Mark Peterson be dropped after the woman's doctors said another trial could worsen her mental condition. Peterson was convicted of second-degree sexual assault last month, but a judge earlier this week struck down that conviction, saying a defense psychiatrist improperly had been prevented from examining the woman.

Texas authorities want to see if last month's auction of a reported copy of Paul McCartney's birth certificate was rigged to inflate the document's value. Charges to that effect have been brought to the attention of officials in Harris County. The charges allege the price was inflated through phony bids during the auction process. Brian Taylor, a student at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia, eventually paid 18-thousand dollars for the birth certificate of the former Beatle. It was authenticated as a certified copy given to McCartney's parents when he was born.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) UPI - Widespread selling throughout the day pressured grain and soybean futures Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Closing prices were lower in light, pre- holiday trading.

Traders attributed most of the selling to the lack of specifics for export credits to the Soviet Union. The Agriculture Department official who is working out the commodity mix with the Soviets was back in washington after one day of talks in London. Talks had beem expected to last about three days.

Grain and soybean prices were at or near session lows at the final bell.

January beans were down 7 cents on the day, touching a low of $5.76 per bushel and closing just above that level. Limited trading overseas weighed on soybean complex prices, along with reports the Soviets bought soybean meal from Argentina.

Grain futures ended the day with moderate losses, although corn had underlying support from the sale of 266,000 tons to the USSR.

Commission house selling pressured the wheat, as did a bleak near-term export outlook.

At the close, corn was off 1 to 3 1/2, soybeans down 5 1/4 to 7 3/4, wheat off 1/4 to 4 and oats down 1 1/4 to 1 3/4.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - Bo Jackson became a two-sport All-Star and Lawrence Taylor became the NFL's first 10-time Pro Bowl pick Wednesday when the league announced the rosters for the Feb. 2 game at Honolulu.

Jackson, a Los Angeles Raiders running back, will play for the AFC squad against New York Giants linebacker Taylor's NFC team in the Pro Bowl. The teams were selected by voting among the league's players and coaches.

Jackson, who splits time between the Raiders and baseball's Kansas City Royals was named a reserve running back for the AFC squad. Jackson has played in two All-Star games as an outfielder.

The amazing part of Jackson's Pro Bowl selection was that he missed the first five games while with the Royals. He has only 97 carries with two games remaining, but has gained 605 yards for a 6.2 rushing average.

Taylor was voted a starter at outside linebacker, as he has been every year since he joined the Giants in 1981. Taylor last year became the seventh player selected for nine Pro Bowls, but none had ever been picked for 10.

The AFC East-leading Buffalo Bills placed a league-high eight players on the Pro Bowl squad, including five starters. The Houston Oilers had six players on the AFC team.

The Chicago Bears led the NFC with six selections, with the Giants and two-time Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers placing five each. Dallas, the New York Jets and Seattle placed none.

San Francisco's Joe Montana and Houston's Warren Moon were selected as the starting quarterbacks. Montana will be joined in the NFC backfield by Detroit's Barry Sanders and Neal Anderson of Chicago.

Jerry Rice of the 49ers and Atlanta's Andre Rison are the NFC's starting wide receivers and Philadelphia's Keith Jackson is the tight end.

The starting AFC backs are Thurman Thomas of Buffalo and Marion Butts of San Diego. Buffalo's Andre Reed and San Diego's Anthony Miller and Cincinnati tight end Rodney Holman are also starters.

Guard Mark Bortz and center Jay Hilgenberg of Chicago will start on the NFC's offensive line, along with tackles Jim Lachey of Washington and Jackie Slater of the Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota guard Randall McDaniel.

Houston guards Bruce Matthews and Mike Munchak were voted starters on the AFC offensive line. The tackles were Anthony Munoz of Cincinnati and Bruce Armstrong of New England and Kent Hull of Buffalo was the center.

Minnesota placed three defensive starters on the NFC team - end Chris Doleman, safety Joey Browner and cornerback Carl Lee. The other NFC defensive starters were end Reggie White and tackle Jerome Brown of Philadelphia, outside linebacker Charles Haley and safety Ronnie Lott of San Francisco, inside linebackers Mike Singletary of Chicago and Pepper Johnson of the Giants and Washington cornerback Darrell Green.

The NFC specialists were kicker Morten Andersen of New Orleans, punter Sean Landeta and cover man Reyna Thompson of the Giants and Detroit kick returner Mel Gray.

The AFC specialists were Kansas City kicker Nick Lowery, punter Rohn Stark and return man Clarence Verdin of Indianapolis and Buffalo cover man Steve Tasker.

The NFC offensive reserves were Philadelphia quarterback Randall Cunningham, running backs Earnest Byner of Washington and Johnny Johnson of Phoenix, wide receivers Sterling Sharpe of Green Bay and Gary Clark of Washington, Minnesota tight end Steve Jordan, Detroit tackle Lomas Brown, San Francisco guard Guy McIntyre and Giants center Bart Oates.

The NFC defensive backups are Chicago end Richard Dent, Detroit tackle Jerry Ball, New Orleans linebackers Pat Swilling and Vaughan Johnson, Tampa Bay cornerback Wayne Haddix and Chicago safety Mark Carrier.

The AFC offensive reserves were Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly, running backs Jackson and Denver's Bobby Humphrey, Houston wide receivers Drew Hill and Ernest Givens, Miami tight end Ferrell Edmunds, Miami tackle Richmond Webb, Raiders guard Steve Wisniewski and Raiders center Don Mosebar.

The AFC defensive backups were end Jeff Cross of Miami, Houston tackle Ray Childress, linebackers Cornelius Bennett of Buffalo and David Little of Pittsburgh, Kansas City cornerback Kevin Ross and Denver safety Dennis Smith.

Johnson, Carrier and Webb are rookies.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - The education official who issued a short-lived ban on scholarships for minorities refused to testify before a House committee Wednesday, prompting an angry protest from the chairman.

The decision to cancel a scheduled appearance by Assistant Education Secretary Michael Williams is ''an affront to the committee, to the Congress and to the American people,'' said Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D- Calif.

A spokesman for the Education Department said Williams cancelled the appearance because, ''He feels that he has said all he can say on the issue and there's nothing more he can add.''

Hawkins said the Education and Labor Committee had scheduled the hearing ''to examine yet another of the administration's policies and misguided efforts to turn back the clock on equality.''

The hearing, which went on with other witnesses, was prompted by a policy decision announced by Williams last week and reversed Wednesday that would have banned scholarships that are reserved for minorities.

Williams initially said that according to his interpretation of civil rights laws and recent Supreme Court decisions, race-exclusive scholarships are illegal. The incident began when Williams gave unsolicited advice to the Fiesta Bowl on their scholarships for the teams playing in the New Year's Day football game.

The decision, which prompted a storm of criticism, caught the White House off guard and, after a quick review, the policy was reversed.

Groups representing minorities and universities called Williams' ruling contrary to decades of legal advice.

White House officials said they were not notified in advance of his ruling and after a barrage of criticism from Cabinet members and top administration officials, Williams announced his new position Tuesday.

''The position that we took is a position that is supported by the law, but there are obviously a lot of different ways to look at this and there is some legal merit to other ways of addressing it,'' Williams said Tuesday.

Williams said his advice to the Fiesta Bowl was legally correct, ''But it was indeed politically naive.''

Under the policy he outlined Tuesday, the Education Department will permit universities receiving federal funds to administer scholarships for minorities that are established and funded entirely by private persons or entities.

Also, Williams said the department has no jurisdiction over race- exclusive scholarships funded by state and local governments.

However, Williams said the Education Department has determined that private universities receiving federal funds may not fund race-exclusive scholarships with their own funds. He said the schools will be allowed a four-year transition period ''to review their programs ... to assure that any students under scholarship, or being evaluated for scholarship, do not suffer.''

He said he could not predict what would occur when the four-year period has concluded.

Hawkins, in an opening statement at the committee hearing, called the latest policy ''a hoax,'' and said it ''is contrary to the express letter of the Civil Rights Restoration Act.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Two years ago, Gabor Demszky demonstrated outside the Hungarian Embassy protesting his nation's environmental policies. This week, as mayor of Budapest, he was a guest of honor inside the compound and his attention focused on such issues as pornography, abandoned cars and refugees.

Demszky, 38, is a long way from being a dissident intellectual fighting the communists. He was elected to Parliament during Hungary's free elections early this year that brought Western style democracy. In October, he was elected to the position of mayor of Budapest.

He is in charge of running a capital of 2 million people and has a budget of $1.2 billion. The city employes nearly 60,000 workers. It is the largest enterprise in Hungary.

''My main purpose is - and it is not much different from being mayor of Washington - to improve the quality of life in my city, to improve housing and the environment,'' Demszky said. ''The task is huge. Hungary is in a deep economic crisis with poverty and unemployment on the upswing.''

As a lawyer, Demszky had fought the now-discredited communists for political freedom and pushed for national policies to safeguard the environment. He demonstrated outside the Hungarian Embassy in November 1988 against a project widely seen as harmful to the Danube River.

Today, Demszky is tackling a wide range of problems.

''One of the problems in Budapest is an open and unrestricted display of pornographic magazines in windows that can be seen by everyone - from children to church-goers,'' he said. ''It is an unacceptable situation.''

The situation arose from measures taken to free Hungary's press. Suddenly, it became possible to publish virtually anything. Demszky says he is not concerned about sexually explicit magazine sold privately but that such materials should not be seen by minors and by those who object to them.

Another problem Demszky faces is abandoned cars scattered around the city. His solution is to tow them.

But perhaps the most sensitive issue is a recent flood of refugees from the East, mainly from Romania, where a revolution a year ago toppled a brutal dictatorship. Thousands of refugees, many of them Gypsies, are trying to make their way to the West.

''We don't have the resources to take care of them,'' Demszky said. ''Most of them are economic, not political, refugees. It is a difficult situation.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Congress will be the key battleground over a new city measure holding assault-gun merchants and manufacturers responsible for deaths or injuries caused by the weapons, observers said Wednesday.

The measure, which was signed by outgoing Mayor Marion Barry, faces a review by Congress before it can become law, under the District of Columbia's unique ''home rule'' charter.

Barry, who leaves office in two weeks, signed the measure late Monday, saying, ''We don't need these guns on the streets.''

The legislation covers a variety of asault weapons, including the Uzi, the Beretta and the Tec-9. Shooting victims, or their families, could recover damages from the manufacturers or retailers.

The city council approved the measure in the wake of record violence in the nation's capital. More than 465 people have been slain in the city this year.

''We are real confident about our chances in court. We're very confident,'' said Bernie Horn, legislative director of Handgun Control Inc., an anti-gun lobby. ''The question is Congress.''

The politically active National Rifle Association is expected to lobby hard, asking Congress to scuttle the measure.

''There's nothing unconstitutional about it,'' Horn said Wednesday. ''There's no decent legal argument against it. The Congress is a fight. I think we can win this fight, but it's a big fight.''

Richard Gardiner, the National Rifle Association's legislative director, said, ''It's an absurd bill. It flies in the face of every notion of justice that we've ever known in our law, by holding innocent manufacturers financially liable for the criminal acts of people in the district.''

Gardiner said, ''It doesn't have a prayer constitutionally. The courts are going to practically laugh it out of court.''

Richard Muchnick, legislative director of the Coalition to Stop Gun Violence, said, ''We've favored his legislation. I honestly don't know what's going to happen in Congress - fighting the NRA is always going to be difficult.''

If Congress allows the measure to become law, ''Our attorneys have told us it shouldn't have a problem at all, constitutionally, in the courts,'' Muchnick said. ''Law professors also have told us it should get through the courts.''

Gun sales have been illegal in Washington since 1976. But there is a steady flow of weapons from neighboring Maryland and Virginia.

Members of the city council said a key purpose behind the legislation was to make gun retailers in Maryland and Virginia think twice about selling assault weapons. City police have confiscated more than 8,000 guns during the past two years and some 70 percent were traced to Maryland and Virginia dealers.

Although strong opposition is expected in Congress, the council said it tailored its measure to garner support from federal lawmakers. The list of assault weapons covered by the city legislation is identical to a roster of assault weapons that the Senate voted to ban last year.

Horn said, ''This list can also pass the House.'' He noted that the House leadership so far has prevented a vote on the issue.

Both Houses of Congress would have to pass a ''resolution of disapproval'' by mid- to late-March 1991 in order to scuttle the anti- gun bill, Horn said.

The city council also softened the bill somewhat by dropping a plan to make all handgun manufacturers liable for shootings and shooting deaths in the District of Columbia.

TORONTO (DEC. 19) UPI - Northern Telecom Ltd. has extended until Jan. 8 its $2.6 billion offer to buy out the ordinary shares it does not already own of STC PLC, a British communications company, Northern Telecom's investment banker said Wednesday.

London-based Baring Brothers & Co. Ltd. said Northern Telecom and its subsidiaries now own or have valid acceptances for 84.2 percent of STC's shares. Northern Telecom has offered 317 British pence ($6.12) a share.

Northern Telecom, a supplier of digital telecommunications switching equipment had a 27.1 percent stake in STC before the offer was made Nov. 8. The offer was to have expired Dec. 18.

The offer was valued at a 21.6 percent above the middle-market price of 269 pence ($5.16) on Oct. 12, the last trading day before STC said it was aware offers were being considered for its share capital.

STC shareholders have the choice between receiving loan notes or cash as part of the offer but the loan note alternative was not made available to shareholders in North America.

The STC purchase is expected to help Northern Telecom expand its operations outside North America. STC was a wholly owned subsidiary of ITT Inc. until 1979 when it went public on the London Stock Exchange.

UNITED NATIONS (DEC. 19) UPI - The U.N. Security Council, meeting on whether to hold an international conference on Middle East peace, broke up Wednesday in disarray with the United States accusing some members of trying to link the Persian Gulf crisis to the peace talks.

The 15-nation Council postponed the debate until Thursday. It was the fourth postponement in two weeks, but this time China and France opposed the 24-hour delay after abstaining in previous procedural votes.

The council voted 9-6 for the postponement. Also voting against the delay were Cuba, Colombia, Malaysia and Yemen, which adamantly called for convening a Middle East peace conference to solve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering, who successfully used procedural rules to delay the vote, said demands by the non-aligned countries had nothing to do with Palestinians in Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza strip.

''It has to do with the linkage,'' Pickering told reporters after the session adjourned.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said he would withdraw his troops from Kuwait if Israel relinquished the two territories it occupied since 1967. Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 and is challenged by a U.S.-led, 27- nation joint military force in the gulf.

Pickering said his government supported in its entirety a draft resolution worked out by Finnish U.N. Ambassador Klaus Tornudd, which tried to find a compromise on the positions of non-aligned countries and the United States positions. The Council has been stalled on the question since the Oct. 8 riot on the Temple Mount. At least 17 Palestinians were killed by Jerusalem police.

Canadian Ambassador Yves Fortier said the differences between the two groups were ''tremendously small.''

But Malaysian Ambassador Ismail Razali retorted, ''The differences are not small. There are a few words, but they are very important.''

Diplomats said the idea of the Middle East conference has divided the council in two groups. The U.N. body agreed, however - including the United States - to condemn Israel for deciding last Saturday to resume the deportation of Palestinians suspected of inciting anti-Israeli demonstrations.

The Finnish draft, which is not supported by the non-aligned, made no mention of the Middle East conference. But it contained most demands by the Security Council dealing with the occupied territories. The newest addition would be for the Council to condemn the Israeli decision to deport Palestinians.

The call for the Middle East conference would be made by the Council's president in a separate statement, thus making it non-binding on U.N. member states. Only provisions in an adopted Security Council resolution are to be carried out.

The prepared presidential statement called for the conference to be held ''at an appropriate time and properly structured'' to help efforts aimed at bringing a negotiated settlement for the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Diplomats said the controversial part in the statement was that the parties to the conflict, without defining which ones, should decide when to meet. The United Nations supports the participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the United States and Israel rejected the idea.

CAIRO (DEC. 19) UPI - Saudi Arabia has suspended all exports of aircraft fuel and ordered it to be stockpiled to ensure the Arab kingdom will be able to supply some 2,000 allied military aircraft deployed in the Persian Gulf, Cairo Radio said Wednesday.

The state-owned radio said the Saudi decision to suspend exports also encompassed other types of fuel, such as kerosene and residual fuel, which would have "strategic value for the U.S.-led multinational alliance confronting Iraq."

Residual fuel is used by industry to run manufacturing plants and by utilities to generate electricity. Kerosene is used for heating, cooking, transportation and other purposes.

The radio quoted an unnamed high-ranking Saudi official as saying the kingdom, which is hosting some 300,000 foreign troops, "wants to make sure that when (the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait) arrives, it will be ready to supply all allied aircraft, tanks and ships with enough fuel should the need arise for them to liberate Kuwait by force."

Other reports from the gulf said Saudi Arabia had ordered its foreign partners in three joint venture refineries to suspend exports of residual fuel and kerosene indefinitely.

The reports cited industry sources close to the companies as saying Saudi Arabian issued notices Monday calling on its partners in the Yanbu, Rabigh and Jubail refineries to halt exports.

Representatives from Royal-Dutch Shell and Mobil had no immediate comment on the reports, but an oil industry source in Elefsina, Greece, said Petrola of Greece had for some time been seeking alternative fuel supplies.

"I cannot give details, but (Petrola) has been looking around for some time in anticipation of such a move ... let us say it has not come out of the blue," Piraeus, Greece-based oil shipper Evangelos K. Pappaioannou told United Press International in a telephone interview from Cairo.

Early last week Saudi Arabia notified Japanese importers it would suspend shipments of kerosene and residual fuel to Japan until further notice because of reduced production caused by a fire at the kingdom's giant Ras Tanura refinery. Saudi Arabia is the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' largest producer.

The Saudis have kicked up production to an estimated 7.9 million barrels a day to help make up for the shortfall created by the U.N. embargo on oil exports from Iraq and Kuwait. The United Nations imposed the sanctionsfollowing Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

OPEC assigned the Saudia Arabia an output quota of 5.6 million barrels a day in July, but the 13-nation cartel decided to temporarily abandon its production-sharing system in August to offset the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude from the world market.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) UPI - All Nippon Airways Co. Wednesday announced large plane orders for the European consortium Airbus Industrie and The Boeing Co., including more orders for Boeing's new jetliner, the 777.

Executives at All Nippon's U.S. headquarters said the new aircraft would replace the carrier's aging Lockheed 1011 Tristars. All Nippon placed firm orders for 15 Boeing 777s, valued at about $1.7 billion, and options on ten others.

The 777, which received its first orders from United Airlines in October, will carry about 350 passengers and is designed to fill a market gap between the 767 and the 747 jumbo jet. The first 777s are scheduled for delivery in 1995.

All Nippon also said it was ordering five A-340s, a competitor of the 777, and taking options on five more. The airline placed the value of those planes, including replacement engines and other equipment, at about $150 million per aircraft.

All Nippon said it would use the Boeing planes on domestic routes and the Airbus jets on international flights. Deliveries of the 777s were scheduled for 1995, while the Airbus planes would be delivered the following year, the carrier said. The airline said it had not yet decided what engines to put on the planes.

"Today's announcement is the latest step in a program of vigorous investment in new aircraft at ANA," the company said in a statement. "Management is seeking to position the airline to take full advantage of the growth in demand that is expected to result from the completion of three major airport projects underway in Japan, and to serve the fast-expanding network of international routes that ANA is building."

The order was good news for Seattle-based Boeing, putting it within about $500 million of tying its all-time record for value of plane orders place in one year. For this year, Boeing has received firm orders for 517 planes valued at about $46.07 billion. Last year the aerospace giant set a record, receiving orders for 883 planes valued at about $46.6 billion.

(DEC. 19) - A remarkable, first-of-a-kind movie shot by the Galileo probe as it raced past Earth earlier this month shows the blue planet spinning in the vast night of space, giving elated scientists a taste of the view they can expect of Jupiter in 1995.

Captured by Galileo's state-of-the-art solid-state cameras, the movie showed the blue-and-white Earth from a vantage point below the planet, a view that included snowy white Antarctica and brownish Australia that extended as far north as Florida and the Persian Gulf region.

As the cloud-streaked planet rotated on its axis in the black night of space, the glint of sunlight off oceans and rivers repeatedly flared into view as entire continents rolled by as if on parade.

While Apollo-era photographs of the planet exhibit greater sharpness in some instances, the Galileo movie marked the first time humanity's home planet has been seen rotating on its axis.

''The movie is unique in the sense it's from a single point in ... space and you see the Earth rotating,'' said Michael Belton, Galileo imaging team leader. ''There have been no sequences of pictures that show the Earth in motion.''

Galileo was launched Oct. 18, 1989, from the shuttle Atlantis on a convoluted trajectory requiring three gravity-assist planetary flybys to boost the spacecraft on to a 1995 encounter with distant Jupiter.

The nuclear-powered spacecraft whipped past Venus Feb. 9 and completed the first of two Earth flybys Dec. 8 at an altitude of just 600 miles. The second Earth encounter, at an altitude of less than 200 miles, is set for Dec. 8, 1992, a velocity-boosting flyby that will finally put Galileo on course for Jupiter.

The Earth movie was assembled by scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., using images taken by Galileo as the robotic explorer raced past on Dec. 8.

As it approached and then receded, the $1.5 billion spacecraft's instruments recorded more than 58 billion bits of data, including more than 2,600 pictures of the Earth and moon and priceless data about the planet's space environment.

As an intellectual exercise, scientists studied the data for evidence of life on Earth. While they were able to see clear signs of biological activity, there was no direct evidence of intelligent life in the Galileo data.

''The accumulated evidence we have from all the spectral data, gas compositions and so forth, would give your hypothetical extra- terrestrial explorer a very strong indication that you had biological activity occurring on the Earth,'' said Galileo project scientist Torrence Johnson.

''The question of intelligent life is more difficult. We don't see anything obvious in the pictures that would indicate intelligent life. Probably the best indication we have that there might be something odd going on ... is in the radio part of the spectrum.''

During a news conference at JPL, Johnson described what an alien scientist would be able to learn about Earth based on nothing more than the flyby data from Galileo.

The alien, he said, would be able to determine the planet's mass, diameter, density and general composition from the Galileo data and gain insights into the structure of Earth's crust. The alien also would see large amounts of water, a few rocky continents and one large ice continent.

In addition, the composition of the atmosphere could be determined, with levels of nitrous oxide, methane and oxygen indicating the presence of biological activity on a large scale.

And the relative concentrations of various gases would imply the presence of intelligent life in the process of altering its environment.

Johnson said scientists would use the Earth flybys to fine-tune Galileo's instruments and ground-based techniques for the upcoming encounter with Jupiter.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - NASA has developed a $40 million plan to fix the Hubble Space Telescope by replacing one instrument on the orbiting outpost and sacrificing another to make room for a corrective device, officials said Wednesday.

The repairs, which would be conducted during a spacewalk by shuttle astronauts in 1993, should restore the telescope to at least 90 percent of its intended capacity, said deputy program manager David Pine.

''The telescope today is the best optical telescope - by far the best ultraviolet telescope - in the world, even with the problems. Having the opoptunity to bring it back to its original pre-launch expectations is certainly very pleasing to everybody,'' Pine said. ''It's looking really good.''

The plan was submitted to top NASA officials this week as part of planning the agency's budget and a decision on whether to proceed was expected by April, Pine said.

The $1.5 billion telescope was expected to revolutionize humanity's understanding of the universe by using a highly advanced optical system to peer deep into the cosmos from its perch high above Earth's atmosphere.

But about two months after the long-awaited telescope was placed into orbit in April, scientists were shocked to discover the instrument's supposedly perfect primary mirror was shaped incorrectly, preventing the telescope from focusing properly.

Although the telescope has proven able to conduct valuable research in its current condition, NASA has been studying various options for correcting the defect, called spherical aberration.

In addition to replacing the telescope's wide field-planetary camera with a new camera built with corrective lenses, the plan calls for the installation of a device the size of a telephone booth called COSTAR, Pine said.

COSTAR, which stands for corrected optics space telescope axial replacement, would contain a structure that would extend out and be positioned between the telescope's defective primary mirror and the telescope's instruments.

The structure would hold five pairs of very precisely shaped mirrors ranging in size from about the diameter of a dime to about the diameter of a quarter, which would reflect incoming starlight to compensate for the flaw, Pine said.

''It would just intercept the beam going into the instrument and do a double bounce and go into an instrument. In that double bounce you would correct most of the spherical aberration,'' he said. ''Right now, it seems extremely promising.''

The major drawback to the plan is that COSTAR - which would probably be built by Ball Aerospace Systems Division in Boulder, Colo. - would require sacrificing one of the telescope's five instruments to make room for COSTAR, Pine said.

Under the plan, the telescope's high-speed photometer - a high-tech light meter - would be replaced by COSTAR, he said. The photometer was picked because it is the most specialized, and therefore the least utilized, device, he said.

Robert Bless, an astronomy professor at the University of Wisconsin in Madison and principal investigator for the photometer, said he was disappointed his device had to be the ''sacrificial lamb,'' but he understood the reasoning.

''You wish there were other alternatives. But given the spherical aberration and the necessity to recover at least some of the capability we were supposed to have from the beginning, it's a reasonable thing to do,'' he said.

COSTAR would help compensate for deficiencies in the telescope's faint object camera and two light-splitting instruments called spectrographs.

All the instruments were designed to be replaced and doors have been built in the back of the telescope to allow spacewalking astronauts to remove them.

In addition, the telescope's energy-collecting solar arrays may be replaced during the 1993 repair job if a vibration problem cannot be fixed new computer programs or modifications, Pine said.

Also, a gyroscope that failed Dec. 3 probably will be replaced, even though the telescope is being controlled properly with backup gyroscopes, he said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - More drug makers will face corruption and fraud charges as part of an expanding probe into ''corporate greed, arrogance and deceit'' in the generic drug industry, a federal prosecutor told a congressional panel Tuesday.

Breckinridge Willcox, U.S. Attorney for Maryland and head of the Justice Department's investigation of the generic drug industry, said ''we have just scratched the surface'' in prosecutions relating to the scandal.

''We expect additional charges of other generic manufacturers and their executives,'' Willcox told a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee.

The prosecutor did not identify the firms or individuals who are targets of the probe. Willcox did say more charges will be filed ''in the near future'' against Bolar Pharmaceutical of Copiague, N.Y., a firm that has had two top executives plead guilty to felony counts stemming from a fraud that generated $100 million in revenues for the company.

Since 1988, the industry has been mired in a scandal stemming from revelations that company executives used cash, trips and gifts to bribe key Food and Drug Adminstration officials to obtain swift and unscrutinized approval for generic drugs. Investigators also found drug makers fraudulently substituted brand-name drugs for their own unproven formulas to subvert FDA tests and obstructed investigators examining the matter.

''I can tell you that the evidence we have amassed presents an astounding picture of corporate greed, arrogance and deceit coupled with a reckless disregard for the health and safety of the consuming public,'' Willcox said.

''I'm not aware of any industry that has been as broadly corrupted as the generic drug industry,'' he added.

Generic drugs are supposed to be chemically equivalent to brand-name drugs with expired patents and are less expensive than the brand-name versions. Generic medications account for up to one-third of the U.S. prescription drug market.

In the wake of the wrongdoing, about 250 generic drugs made by 27 firms have been recalled and more than 100 drug approvals have or are in the process of being withdrawn, the FDA said.

Five former FDA officials, including the former director of the generic drug division; five generic company executives, one industry consultant and three firms already have been convicted on corruption- related felony charges, including bribery and racketeering.

Willcox said the worst may be yet to come.

Committee member Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., asked Willcox: ''Are you saying that the subcommittee should expect more and even perhaps more serious disclosures regarding the conduct of a substantial portion of the (generic) drug industry?''

''Yes, sir,'' Willcox responded, adding the criminal activities were ''not unique'' to the companies already prosecuted and that the ''depth and breadth'' of wrongdoing is ''much, much bigger'' at other companies.

Willcox also criticized the industry as ''indifferent to the unknown risks'' posed by the availability of untested drugs on the market and the ''unknown safety factor on the consuming public.''

Daniel Michaels, the director of the FDA's office of compliance, and another

FDA official faced close questioning on the pace of the agency's examination and its apparent willingness to allow companies to delay any enforcement actions.

Michaels said the agency also was expanding its own investigation into the industry.

''I am not satisfied that we have turned over every rock and our current plans are to intensively audit at least 15 more manufacturers of generic products,'' he told the committee. ''We'll see what we do after that.''

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (DEC. 19) UPI - Former fertilizer salesman and white supremacist Byron De La Beckwith was free on bond Wednesday, vowing to fight ''tooth, nail and claw'' his extradition to Mississippi for a third trial on charges he fatally shot civil rights leader Medgar Evers in the back 27 years ago.

Beckwith, 70 and ailing, was reindicted on murder charges in Jackson, Miss., this week after ''courageous'' witnesses provided new evidence in the 1963 case, said Ed Peters, district attorney for Hinds County, Miss.

But Peters declined to the spell out the nature of the new evidence.

Some reports indicate the new evidence may involve a former Ku Klux Klan member who turned FBI informant. Other new witnesses may also include witnesses who can place Beckwith in Jackson at a civil rights rally led by Evers on the night he was murdered.

Evers, 37, was Mississippi field secretary for the NAACP when he was shot in the back by a sniper in front of his Jackson home the night of June 12, 1963, in what became one of the most notorious incidents of racial violence in the South during the turbulent civil rights era.

Beckwith claimed he was at a filling station in Greenwood, Miss., when Evers was killed and called the new charges ''nonsense and poppycock.''

He called the indictment ''just something to to stir up and beat the public drum and incite lower forms of life to force and violence against the country club set,'' the News-Free Press of Chattanooga reported.

''I was raised in the country club and I don't like the way things are going in Mississippi now,'' he said.

A hearing was set for Feb. 22 on Mississipp's request to extradite Beckwith for trial on the new indictment.

Beckwith was arrested Monday at his suburban Signal Mountain home on a Mississippi fugitive warrant and granted freedom Tuesday under $15,000 bond.

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the NAACP, welcomed the news of the indictment.

''No trial can ever restore Medgar,'' Hooks said. ''But at the very least, amends can now be made for the mockery of justice that occurred at the first trial. An indictment is, of course, far from being a conviction, but it does open the way for a fresh public disclosure of the true facts surrounding Medgar's death.''

Beckwith's fingerprints were found on the murder weapon, a rifle, but two all-white juries deadlocked and failed to reach a verdict in his trials. In a Louisiana trial in 1975, Beckwith was convicted of transporting explosives into the state.

At Beckwith's first trial, before a judge who was an admitted segregationist, the prosecutor quizzed prospective jurors by asking, ''Do you believe it is a crime to kill a nigger?'' The all-white jury did not convict Beckwith, did not acquit him, either.

The charges were dismissed in 1969, five years after a second trial, also before an all white jury, ended in a deadlock.

Last year, the Jackson Clarion-Ledger reported that a segregationist group known as the Mississippi Sovereignty Commission had screened potential jurors at the Beckwith trials.

Although prosecutors had asked for high bond, Beckwith's attorney, Russell Bean argued that Beckwith had family in the Chattanooga area and was unlikely to flee.

On Tuesday, Beckwith's wife, Thelma, told reporters that Beckwith was nonchalant about the arrest, telling the deputies who came to arrest him, ''It's good to see you, boys. I'm ready to go. I'm not guilty.''

Beckwith reportedly suffers from high blood pressure, clogged arteries and other heart problems.

According to neighbors he spends much of his time gardening and maintaining three rental apartments he owns.

(DEC. 19) UPI - New financial figures are out today... and they show the nation's output of goods and services expanded by one-point-four percent in the third quarter of the year. That's well ahead of the four-tenths of one percent increase for the second quarter. The Commerce Department figures put the value of third-quarter G-N-P growth at 14-point-nine-BILLION dollars, or 10-point-five-BILLION above the second quarter. But some analysts say the improvement is still NOT enough to change what is expected to register as a decline once the fourth-quarter figures are in.

A nationwide survey of American adults shows nearly 90 percent play Santa more than they play Scrooge by donating time or money- or both- to charities. The survey found that the central states from Minnesota and North Dakota south to Texas are the most charitable, and states in the west are the least charitable. The poll says Americans donate to causes ranging from homelessness to the environment.

Iraqi television these days is featuring programs showing viewers how to cope with aerial bombardments, fires and chemical and nuclear attacks. Previously, the Baghdad government said it would begin civil defense exercises on January 15th, the deadline after which the U-N authorized the use of force against Iraq. State-owned Baghdad Radio today broadcast an appeal from the Iraqi Oil Ministry, urging for citizens to stock up on home heating fuel... indicating that Iraq fears refineries and other installations would be likely targets of any U-S- led attack.

Washington formally is asking China to explain political charges lodged aginst 150 jailed dissidents. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Schifter says the United States wants China to free those merely accused of speaking their minds. Schifter says Beijing did NOT explicitly agree as asked to account for the political prisoners on a ''case-by-case basis,'' but ''they didn't rule it out.'' He says his greatest concern is for intellectuals, students and workers charged with ''counter-revolution'' linked to the Tiananmen democracy movement.

First the Palestinian uprising cut into the tourism dollars being spent in Israel. Now, Israel says it lost 750-Million dollars in tourism revenue since the start of the Persian Gulf crisis in August. During the last five months, hotels saw a substantial decline in the number of guests registered despite offers of special rates and packages to lure tourists. Few guests are expected during Christmas... traditionally a busy time for pilgrims venturing to the Holy Land.

Authorities in Florida say a domestic squabble at a hotel allowed them to catch up with a globe-trotting European couple who racked up more than 18-thousand dollars on a stolen American Express card. In 30 days the couple traveled from Italy to New York, Miami, Pompano Beach and Fort Lauderdale, posing as ''Anthony Rosenthal'' and his wife. They wound up in a deluxe suite at Walt Disney World's Polynesian Village, where the woman complained about fighting with the man. Police found a bogus one-Million-dollar check in his pocket.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) UPI - A health care career might be the best bet for this year's crop of college graduates.

The American Hospital Association Wednesday reported growing shortages among 14 hospital occupations, including physical therapists, nurse anesthetists, practical and vocational nurses, medical technologists, and pharmacists. The AHA said as a result, some hospital personnel directors are boosting salaries to retain and recruit personnel and others are cutting services.

"Hospitals have a growing concern about their ability to maintain adequate services in light of these persistent shortages," said Barbara Bloom Kreml, director of the AHA Department of Human Resources.

"One of the areas most affected is rehabilitation services, because of shortages of physical therapists, occupational therapists, and speech pathologists. Increasing compensation costs make it difficult for hospitals to keep costs in line."

Kreml said hospitals also are contracting out some work and offering more overtime. They also are offering scholarships and loans to students and signing bonuses. The reported shortages followed a U.S. Labor Department projection of a dramatic increase in the need for health care workers before the year 2000.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - Two senators, who reported Wednesday to President Bush on their trip to Saudi Arabia to review Operation Desert Shield, said they were told by American military commanders that a war with Iraq would last no more than five days.

But White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater was not as optimistic, telling reporters ''obviously our commanders feel confident about their strength and abilities, but we would be most reluctant to put days or minutes on it.''

After an Oval Office meeting Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said he learned in talks with American commanders that ''if there is a war, it will last no more than five days with all the air power ... the missiles'' and other U.S. military capabilities.

''Absolutely,'' Inouye replied when asked if the commanders in the field believed that any conflict would end quickly.

Inouye said the troops, the commanders and the forces aligned against Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein are ready. ''The question is - is America ready?'' asked the senator.

He added that the United States had accumulated ''the most awesome force since World War II.''

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who accompanied Inouye on the trip to Saudi Arabia Bahrain, Israel and Morocco, said that he agreed with the assessment of a war lasting less than a week ''based on complete air superiorty.''

Asked if Bush concurred, Stevens replied sternly: ''We didn't ask for his opinion.''

Inouye, an Army veteran who lost an arm in combat during World War II, is chairman of the defense appropriations subcommittee. Stevens, also a World War II veteran, is the ranking Republican on defense approprations subcommittee.

Fitzwater reminded reporters that the president told a news conference Tuesday that ''we don't intend to have long drawn out'' hostilities similar to the Vietnam War.'' U.S. combat troops spent 10 years in Southeast Asia.

''We want to pursue the course set by the UN resolutions,'' he said, adding he hoped Saddam would ''understand we have the force and we intend to use it.''

Earlier, the president gathered with a group of business leaders to thank them for their support. All reported that Bush appeared confident and personally indicated he had resolved that he was on the right course.

Pentagon spokeman Pete Williams said Tuesday the U.S. forces in the gulf region, which now total more than 270,000, will be prepared to force Iraq out of Kuwait on Jan. 15 - the deadline set by the United Nations for Iraq to comply with its resolutions.

The U.S. force, expected to grow to about 430,000 troops in the coming weeks, is joined by roughly 220,000 soldiers from nations participating in the coalition aligned against Iraq.

On the diplomatic front, Fitzwater reported no progress in trying to set dates for an exchange of emissaries, proposed by Bush, for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to visit Washington and Secretary of State James Baker to go to Baghdad.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 19) UPI - The driest winter season in 70 years forced government officials Wednesday to declare a 25 percent cut in the water supply to Israeli agriculture and more emergency measures were expected.

The Agriculture Ministry adopted as its conservation slogan, ''a pity for every drop'' of water wasted.

The Agriculture Ministry announced plans to cut by 25 percent, effective Jan. 1, the water supply to agricultural lands, providing 250 million to 300 million cubic meters less water to farmers, Army Radio reported. Gadi Shalitim director general of the Agriculture Ministry, also said the water supply to urban areas would be cut by instituting restrictions, such as watering private gardens only at night.

''It's unthinkable that a sharp cut in the agriculture sector will take place and nothing will be done on the subject of cutting water consumption and waste in the urban sector,'' Shalitim told Army Radio.

Officials said they would decide in two weeks whether to declare a drought or a disaster because of the water emergency.

In Israel, December usually marks the start of the rainy season. But this winter has proven to be the warmest and driest in at least 70 years, when weather-related records were first kept in the region.

Lake Kinneret, or the Sea of Galilee, is near the danger line set by the government as the minimum level, even though the national water company stopped pumping water from the lake more than two weeks ago.

#90353u1590 12/19/1990 ~United Press International

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board has strengthened its prescription of easier credit to cure what ails the U.S. economy, lowering two key interest rates in two days, but the patient isn't going to respond overnight.

The economists cautioned that recovery from what just about everyone but Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan and the White House is calling a recession depends on whether there is war, peace, or stalemate in the Persian Gulf.

Gulf uncertainties aside, though, economists surveyed generally agreed that a continued lowering of the U.S. interest rate structure will spark or promote a renaissance of American economic expansion by mid-1991.

Typically, economic recovery is led by housing, after construction and sales are prompted by lower lending rates, and consumer spending. But with many U.S. regions sitting on a glut of housing and office space, and consumers overloaded with personal debt, the recovery this time is more likely to be produced by exports, with industry gearing up and retooling.

"By spring I think those effects will accumulate," said Lyle Gramley, chief economist for the Mortgage Bankers Association of America. "My feeling is it's going to be over sometime by the middle of next year."

Somewhat more cautious was Dana Johnson, market analysis chief for the First National Bank of Chicago's capital markets group. "You're not likely to have any sense of improving stability in the economy until spring at the earliest," he said. "At this point, we'd like to see the rate of descent slow, and we haven't even seen that yet."

The economists said the Fed's much-hailed 0.5 percentage point discount rate cut Tuesday was largely a hand-holding gesture, and that Wednesday's lowering of the key Fed funds rate will be repeated in early 1991. "Unless there's a remarkable change for the better, this easing process is going to continue," Johnson said.

The Fed's cut in its funds rate, a bellwether interest rate charged on loans between reserve system banks, brought it down to 7.0 percent from 7.25 percent - 1.25 percentage points below where it stood a year ago.

The last Fed funds easing took place just 12 days before, on Dec. 7, meaning the central bank is speeding the pace of credit-loosening, if not increasing the size of the increments by which it has been easing.

The Fed funds rate reduction came less than 24 hours after a morale-boosting Reserve Board announcement that it was lowering the official discount rate to 6.5 percent from seven percent - the first such cut in four years.

Most U.S. banks haven't yet responded to the Fed moves by cutting their prime lending rates to which many consumer loans are fixed. But analysts see this as inevitable the more the central bank pursues the "Big Easy."

Yet the economists said lower interest rates aren't the only requirement for turning the economy around. Continued declines in world oil prices and a U.S. export surge fueled by the weak dollar could be crucial too.

"If we were dependent on interest rates and interest rates alone, I would not be as confident as I am that this economy is going to turn around very soon," commented Lyle Gramley, chief economist of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, based in Washington, D.C.

Favorable resolution of the Mideast crisis "is going to have a very important salutary effect on consumer confidence," said Gramley. That could lead to a surge in purchases of housing and big-ticket consumer items.

In a favorable environment like that, he said, lower interest rates "help a good deal" by reducing consumers' monthly payments on mortgages - adjustable or refinanced fixed - home equity loans and installment debt. "It's a positive effect," the Washington-based economist said. "Not all of it occurs right away (but) some of it begins very soon."

Yet First Interstate Bank Corp. chief economist Jerry Jordan says interest rates taken at face value tell only half the story. Though the funds rate has come down, money market conditions are just starting to loosen up.

"What we've had so far is lower interest rates reflecting an intent to ease," Jordan said. "Their intent has been to ease up, but because they were playing catch-up to the market, it wasn't working." "I don't want (Fed officials) to tromp on the accelerator," Jordan added. "I just want them to get their foot off the brake."

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - The discovery of an enzyme linked to breast cancer's deadly spread may open new treatment avenues against the disease that kills nearly 45,000 American women annually, scientists reported Wednesday.

A French research team said it has identified an enzyme produced by the tissue around invasive breast tumors, but is not present near tumors confined to a single, small area.

The enzyme, called stromelysin-3, belongs to a family of proteins that destroy the connective tissue surrounding cells during growth of an embryo. The new enzyme appears to ''eat through'' a breast tumor's envelope of connective tissue, allowing cancer cells to spread beyond the original tumor site and enabling blood vessels to feed tumor growth, said Pierre Chambon, who directed the study.

In addition to detecting stromelysin-3, Chambon and his colleagues from INSERM's biochemistry institute in Strasbourg, France, also pinpointed the gene that carries instructions for the production of the enzyme.

''It is the first gene that has been identified that seems to be clearly related to (breast tumor) invasion and invasion is very important. Usually, a patient doesn't die from a contained tumor - a patient dies from invasion,'' Chambon said in a telephone interview.

About 20 percent to 30 percent of breast tumors detected by mammography are not invasive, while almost all breast tumors found by manual exams are invasive, said Dr. William McGuire, head of medical oncology at the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. If caught in a non-invasive state, breast cancer is almost 100 percent curable, he added.

Chambon said the new findings open ''a potentially new avenue for therapy'' against breast cancer.

One treatment strategy would be to develop a small molecule, perhaps a tiny piece of protein patterned after those that naturally inhibit related enzymes, to block stromelysin-3. Another tactic that Chambon's team is exploring is creating antibodies, possibly hooked up to toxins, to attack and kill cells producing the cancer-promoting enzyme.

Unlike other growth-promoting proteins found within breast tumors, stromelysin 3 does not appear to play a general role in healthy adults, although it can be found in the placenta and uterus, Chambon said.

Dr. John Stevens of the American Cancer Society said the French findings, published in the journal Nature, may offer ''a different angle'' of controlling cancer's deadly progression.

McGuire also called the discovery ''an exciting new lead which deserves a lot of effort and attention.'' However, the breast cancer researcher said he was ''witholding judgment'' about whether it lead to useful treatments, saying it remains to be seen if the enzyme plays a role in metastasis - the deadly spread of cancer beyond the breast to other organs - as well as in localized invasion of the breast.

In addition to possible therapeutic advances, McGuire suggested tests for traces of the stromelysin-3 may provide a new way of detecting breast tumors in early, treatable stages.

SANTIAGO, Chile (DEC. 19) UPI - Latin America's Gross Domestic Product dropped a half percentage point in 1990 and its per capita income fell 2.6 percent, according to a grim report released Wednesday by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean.

The commission, a branch of the United Nations based in Santiago, said that Latin Americans have the same income level now that they had in 1977 because of their failing national economies.

Gert Rosenthal, executive secretary of the comission, said that Latin America's foreign debt rose to $423 billion in 1990, with the region losing a net of $19 billion in capital outflow. Exceptions in this regard were Mexico and Chile, which re-entered the voluntary capital markets because of economic improvements in recent years, the he said.

He said Latin America has lost a net capital outflow of $223 billion in the past nine years.

According to Rosenthal, the poor performance was influenced greatly by ''the very big contraction in two of the biggest economies of the region (Brazil and Argentina). Nevertheless, another seven countries showed negative growth rates in their Gross Domestic Product and six others grew at rates inferior to or equal to their rates of population growth.''

He said only three of the 24 nations studied in the report, Colombia, Costa Rica, and Venezuela, had positive growth rates equal to or greater than 3.5 percent, a performance he called ''mediocre.''

Discussing efforts by many nations to cut their deficits and reduce inflation, Rosenthal said that ''governments and societies made a determined effort to correct their marco-economic disequilibriums in the short run.''

Despite ''considerable sacrifices,'' Rosenthal said, the results were ''unsatisfactory.''

He said that while Brazil, Argentina, Nicaragua and Peru made gains in curbing hyperinflation - inflation of greater than 50 percent a month - other countries, such as Chile, Uruguay, Mexico, and Ecuador low ground to inflation although theirs was much less than the other four.

Rosenthal said the Persian Gulf crisis hurt oil importing nations, such as Chile and Brazil, which had to spend on a whole an additional $2 billion because of higher fuel prices.

''The evolution of the economies in 1990 shows once again the serious obstacles that impede development in Latin America and the Caribbean,'' Rosenthal said.

''Even those economies that advanced in adapting to the new and changing international circumstances had to sacrifice growth to achieve control over inflation.''

Rosenthal said that while the volume of Latin American exports was increased, benefits were reduced by ''a fall in prices'' for raw materials, with the exception of petroluem, whose price rise benefitted oil-producing nations of Venezuela, Ecuador, Colombia and Mexico.

He said Latin America's obstacles to achieving growth were excessive debt, shrinking levels of incomes and purchasing power, insufficient investment, inflation, and ''fragile'' state fiscal capabilities.

Rosenthal said that Latin America was also affected by a slow rate of growth for the world economy as a whole in 1990, which the commission estimated at 1 percent.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (DEC. 19) UPI - President Violeta Chamorro vetoed the country's proposed 1991 budget Wednesday to prevent a 25 percent cut in military spending sought by ruling party legislatros.

''To reduce the armed forces budget by such a high percentage as was approved by the National Assembly would disrupt the ongoing, gradual reduction of the size of the military,'' Chamorro said in a message read on national television and radio.

The proposed budget, approved last week by National Opposition Union, or UNO, legislators, set aside $58 million for the Nicaraguan armed forces, about $20 million less than the military had requested.

''With the disarming of the Contras, 20,000 soldiers are jobless, creating needs that cannot be met and provoking large social problems,'' Chamorro said.

The government hopes to reduce the size of the military to 29,000 by the end of the year. The Sandinista army was made up of an estimated 85, 000 troops in February.

In her veto, Chamorro recommended that the military budget be reduced by only $8.5 million, which she said would keep total proposed government spending at about $500 million.

The presidential veto won't block the military spending cuts unless it is supported by at least 46 votes in the National Assembly. Sandinistas hold 39 seats in the National Assembly and UNO legislators say Chamorro will not receive the additional seven votes she needs.

Chamorro has been pressured by Sandinistas, who ruled the country from 1979-89 to support the $78.6 million for the armed forces.

UNO legislators said the veto would heighten tension between legislators of the coalition party and Chamorro, who they criticized earlier this year for allowing Humberto Ortega to stay on as leader of the country's armed forces. Humberto Ortega is the brother of former Sandinista President Daniel Ortega, who was defeated in February elections.

UNO gave solid backing to Chamorro in the presidential race, but says she has given in to too many Sandinista demands since taking power in April.

Chamorro has also had to soften plans to layoff government workers amid strong

Sandinista opposition.

Discharged soldiers marched in front of the National Assembly building Tuesday to protest the recommended cuts by UNO legislators. In a letter to Chamorro, the former soldiers asked for jobs, land, Christmas bonuses and six months backpay.

Businessmen called Chamorro's veto ''the most tragic political error'' committed by the president since taking office.

EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (DEC. 19) UPI - Far from home, in a country that has little use for any religion but Islam, U.S. troops are doing what they can to make this desert Christmas a merry one.

From caroling aboard aircraft carriers in the Persian Gulf to planting Christmas trees in the sand, America's 270,000 servicemen and women are determined to observe the holiday the way they remember at home, even if they have to use a little discretion.

For Christmas dinner, the joint military services plan to cook 151, 000 pounds of turkey, 172,000 pounds of roast beef and 34,500 pounds of shrimp. Dessert will be sliced from 34,500 fruitcakes being imported from the United States, according to a menu prepared by the U.S. Central Command.

Egg nog is a certainty, but only the non-alcoholic - and some say, undrinkable - variety, in keeping with strict Moslem laws against imbibing liquor.

Across the desert kingdom, little signs of the season are appearing. Blow-up reindeers have alighted on the tops of tents not far from the Kuwaiti border and stockings are hanging from mess tent walls.

''Hopefully, I'll have a nice dinner in the desert with the unit and relax a little bit, not be so much on the go,'' said 1st Lt. Anthony Super, 30, of Mobridge, S.D., who has a wife and five children at home.

The plans are modest not only to avoid offending Moslem sensibilities but also because the holiday hoopla is bringing on serious bouts of homesickness for a lot of the soldiers.

''I think Christmas is doing more to lower the morale than to raise it,'' said Pfc. David Wilson, 19, Bicayune, Miss., whose wife is seven months pregnant. ''Things are so far from home, people who are getting things from home are getting them a month early or they're going to be late. A lot of people have families and stuff and are used to being with them.''

But there are many who are trying to get into the spirit of the season, in much the same way as they would in Kansas or Oregon or New York, but with slight variations.

Several Navy carriers will hold ''steel beach'' cookouts on the ships' main decks. The USS Trenton will hold a fishing tournament while the USS Guam has scheduled its own version of a New Year's Rocking Eve, complete with a DJ and talent show. The USS Shreveport will hold a Christmas cantata featuring a 10-voice choir.

In the desert, one Army infantry division plans to distribute about 20,000 Christmas stockings stuffed with all sorts of goodies, as well as provide 30 Santa suits for the fattest, jolliest guys in every unit and more than 100 Christmas trees.

Saudi authorities have generally overlooked these manifestations of Christmas as long as such religious symbols as the cross are not openly displayed.

And of course it wouldn't be Christmas on the battlefield without a visit from Bob Hope, who, although well into his 80s, will arrive this weekend to kick off his famous USO tour for the troops.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - The dollar brushed off another Federal Reserve reduction of a key interest rate Wednesday to end broadly higher in New York trading after finding countervailing support in continued war fears. The Fed acted to lower the key Federal funds rate, a barometer of U.S. money market rates, to seven percent from 7.25 percent.

That was the second Fed funds easing step in less than two weeks, and came one day after the Fed said it was lowering the discount rate to 6.5 percent from seven percent in an effort to lift U.S. economic morale.

Despite that double-barreled interest rate cut, the dollar moved up against all key currencies as the U.S.-Iraqi impasse deepened and Baghdad added to its forces in Kuwait in an apparent preparation for fighting.

"The dollar really did not suffer any serious losses on the back of the rate cuts," said Robert White, a currency vice president for First Interstate Bank Corp. He cited war fears and "year-end lackadaisical trading."

"The discount rate cut was really discounted," said Earl Johnson, a Harris Bank vice president and corporate currency adviser. He said the possibility of a Group of Seven dollar rescue as well as Gulf tensions countered the bearish effects of U.S. economic trouble and interest rate cuts.

Late in New York the dollar was quoted at 1.4780 German marks, up a tick from 1.4775 marks Tuesday, and at 134 Japanese yen, up from 132.70. Britain's pound sterling slipped to $1.9330 from $1.9400.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2675 Swiss francs, up from 1.2660; 5.0450 French francs, ahead from 5.0390; and 1,118 Italian lire, up from 1,117.

In Europe, the dollar rallied slightly against most currencies but failed to recoup early losses in a market dominated by the deutsche mark.

The U.S. discount rate cut sent the dollar straight into the doldrums at the outset in Europe. Demand for the mark swelled as the Bundesbank warned of the chances of tightening monetary policy because of unification costs.

The dollar took some comfort from investors wary of being short dollar to yen ahead of the United Nations' Gulf deadline. But volume was very thin as the holiday approached, European dealers said.

"There's been very little movement," said currency analyst Martin Kay of the Lehman Brothers London branch. "The markets are dead at the moment."

In Frankfurt, the dollar rallied to 1.4785 German marks, but remained below Tuesday's close of 1.4785. The dollar also closed slightly lower in Zurich at 1.2680 Swiss francs, from 1.2685 on Tuesday.

In London, the pound fell on expectations of lower British interest rates, to end at $1.9330 compared with $1.9350.

In Paris, the dollar fell to 5.046 French francs from 5.0625. In Brussels, it edged down to 30.59 Belgian francs from 30.71. In Milan, the dollar gained a bit to finish at 1,124.35 lire vs. 1,123.10 Tuesday.

In Tokyo earlier, the dollar gained moderately as players looked for Japanese monetary authorities to follow suit on lower rates. It closed at 133.27 yen compared with 133.03 on Tuesday.

In Zurich, gold closed higher at $378.50 an ounce vs. $377.50, and in London gold finished at $380 an ounce, ahead from $377.50.

Silver in Zurich closed unchanged at $4.00 an ounce. Silver closed at $4.02 an ounce, up from $3.96 on Monday.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $384.75 an ounce, up $8.25 from $375.25 Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $386 an ounce, up $9.50 from $376.50.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.115 an ounce, up from $3.98. Comex silver finished at $4.095 an ounce, ahead from $3.96.

SANTIAGO, CHILE (DEC. 20) UPI - Latin America's gross domestic product dropped half a percentage point in 1990 and its per capita income fell 2.6 percent, according to a grim report released Wednesday by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean.

The commission, a branch of the United Nations based in Santiago, said that Latin Americans have the same income level now that they had in 1977 because of their failing national economies.

Gert Rosenthal, executive secretary of the comission, said that Latin America's foreign debt rose to $423 billion in 1990, with the region losing a net of $19 billion in capital outflow.

Exceptions in this regard were Mexico and Chile, which reentered capital markets because of economic improvements in recent years, he said. He estimated Latin America has lost a net capital outflow of $223 billion in the past nine years.

According to Rosenthal, the region's poor performance was influenced greatly by "the very big contraction in two of the biggest economies of the region (Brazil and Argentina). Nevertheless, another seven countries showed negative growth rates in their gross domestic product and six others grew at rates inferior to or equal to their rates of population growth."

Of 24 nations studied in the report, he said only three - Colombia, Costa Rica and Venezuela - had positive growth rates equal to or greater than 3.5 percent, a performance he called "mediocre."

Discussing efforts by many nations to cut their deficits and reduce inflation,

Rosenthal said that "governments and societies made a determined effort to correct their macro-economic disequilibriums in the short run." Despite "considerable sacrifices," Rosenthal said, the results were "unsatisfactory."

He said that while Brazil, Argentina, Nicaragua and Peru made gains in curbing hyperinflation - inflation of greater than 50 percent a month - other countries, such as Chile, Uruguay, Mexico, and Ecuador, lost ground to inflation.

Rosenthal said the Persian Gulf crisis hurt oil-importing nations like Chile and Brazil, which had to spend on a whole an additional $2 billion because of higher fuel prices.

"The evolution of the economies in 1990 shows once again the serious obstacles that impede development in Latin America and the Caribbean," Rosenthal said.

"Even those economies that advanced in adapting to the new and changing international circumstances had to sacrifice growth to achieve control over inflation."

Rosenthal said that while the volume of Latin American exports was increased, the economic benefits of this were reduced by "a fall in prices" for raw materials, with the exception of petroleum, whose price rise benefitted the oil-producing nations of Venezuela, Ecuador, Colombia and Mexico.

He said Latin America's obstacles to achieving growth were excessive debt, shrinking levels of incomes and purchasing power, insufficient investment, inflation and "fragile" state fiscal capabilities.

Latin America was also affected by a slow rate of growth experienced by the world economy as a whole this year, estimated by the commission estimated at one percent.

NEW YORK (DEC. 19) UPI - The stock market closed broadly higher Wednesday in active trading but the Dow industrials finished unchanged on the day in what analysts described as a listless session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which surged 33.41 Tuesday, closed unchanged at 2626.73.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index edged up 0.16 to 180.35 and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index added 0.15 to 330.20. The price of an average share rose three cents.

Advances outpaced declines 849-687 among the 2,036 NYSE issues traded. Big Board volume totaled 180,380,000 shares compared with the 176,460,000 traded Tuesday.

Stocks drifted aimlessly as the Federal Reserve, after cutting the discount rate by 0.5 percentage point Tuesday, followed up the easing by confirming it took another step to cut interest rates, nudging the key Federal funds rate lower.

The Fed funds rate, which banks charge each other for short-term borrowing of reserve system funds, is a bellwether of U.S. monetary policy. However, analysts noted the Fed's move did not prompt an immediate move by banks to lower the prime rate, now at ten percent.

"I'm going to be in the camp that says it's been a pretty good showing by the market today," said Sidney Dorr, vice president of institutional trading at Charles Schwab & Co. in San Francisco.

"The discount rate cut had been anticipated for weeks, but it was an extra quarter point than some thought it would be. It helped the market Tuesday, but today there was disappointment that the market didn't perform better yesterday and wasnt stronger this morning," he said in explaining what kept the Dow in check Wednesday.

Most other stocks ended higher, however. Dorr said he could not pinpoint one factor that boosted prices. "I don't think we're getting ready to go to the moon or anything like that but the path of least resistance seems to be to the upside," he said.

On the trading floor, Citicorp was the most active issue, off 7/8 to 13 1/4. The nation's No. 1 bank announced Tuesday it will lose more than $300 million this quarter due to mounting loan losses and urged directors to cut the annual common stock dividend almost in half.

Manufacturers Hanover followed, up 1 5/8 to 22 1/2. BankAmerica was third, up 1 5/8 to 26 5/8 as banks benefited from the improved interest rate environment.

IBM was next, off 3/4 to 112 3/4. According to published reports, IBM told consultants that it has fallen behind on a crucial piece of its Officevision software.

Digital Equipment eased 1 1/4 to 58. The computer company said it plans to invest $230 million in a joint company to be formed with Mannesmann AG of Germany.

Westvaco slipped one to 26 3/4 after its board voted to freeze compensation for its corporate officers at 1990 levels for 1991 and plans to review ways of reducing capital spending in 1991.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T lost 1/8 to 31 1/4, Philip Morris fell 1/2 to 51 1/8, and American Express gained 1/2 to 22 1/4.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 220,666,630 shares, compared with the 214,556,130 traded in the previous session.

Prices rose in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index gained 1.62 to close at 306.65. Advances led declines 327-274 among the 884 issues traded. The price of an average share rose six cents. Composite volume totaled 17,565,400 shares vs. 14,798,300 traded Tuesday. Jan Bell Marketing was up 3/8 to 7 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index rose 1.05 to close at 371.22.

ALBANY, NY (DEC. 19) UPI - The federal EPA issued a $78 million cleanup order Wednesday for the General Motors Central Foundry Superfund site in Massena that has despoiled fish and game at a nearby Mohawk reservation.

However, the EPA order falls $60 million short of a cleanup proposal handed up in March that estimated cleanup costs for the automotive giant at $138 million.

EPA spokesman Rich Cahill said the discrepancy came about when the agency deferred its decision to clean up two major portions of the Superfund site: a giant industrial landfill above an inlet of the St. Lawrence River known as "Contaminant Cove" and a smaller site known as the East Disposal Area.

EPA spokeswoman Mary Mears said the project ranks in the "top five" of Superfund sites in the nation, with No. 1 being Occidental Chemical's $117 million cleanup of Love Canal in Niagara Falls.

Traditional Mohawks living on the nearby St. Regis Indian Reservation complained bitterly that PCBs and other contaminants dumped for decades into area waterways by Detroit-based GM, Aluminum Company of America, of Pittsburgh and Reynolds Metals Co., of Richmond, Va., have poisoned the wildlife they depend on for sustenance. GM's industrial landfill alone is estimated to contain more than 100,000 tons of contaminated waste.

The EPA's record of decision comes nearly seven weeks after the state Department of Environmental Conservation ordered neighboring ALCOA to clean up 13 dumps at a cost of $100 million over 30 years. The GM Superfund site contains PCBs and other hazardous compounds known as furans.

EPA Regional Administrator Constantine Sidamon-Eristoff hailed the decision as one of EPA's "most significant Superfund cleanups." "It affects not only a major international waterway, the St. Lawrence River, but also the adjoining reservation of the St. Regis Mohawk Nation," he said.

"Our first priority in carrying out the remedy will be to have GM remove those contaminants that most directly threaten the reservation and the river," he said. Sidamon-Eristoff said a final decision on the remaining areas of contamination would be announced "in the coming months."

GM spokesman David Lippert said he has not seen the decision and would not immediately comment on the action. "This is a cleanup which the Mohawk people can live with - literally - and it came about through a strong cooperative effort of all parties concerned," said New York Mohawk Council Head Chief David Jacobs.

But Mohawk environmental scientist Ken Jock said his his problem with the decision is the cleanup level for the St. Lawrence River - one part per million - is not "low enough."

By comparison, the recommended cleanup for the Raquette River and other bodies of water on the reservation is .1 parts per million. But Jock added "I think we got as good a cleanup as we could out of this process."

The cleanup plan calls for containment and treatment of surface runoff from the East Disposal Area to prevent the movement of contamination from the site into waters flowing through the reservation.

It also calls for excavation of PCB-contaminated soil from areas on the reservation and dredging and treatment of contaminated sediments from the bed of the St. Lawrence River and other nearby waterways.

According to the plan, soils will be decontaminated using either biological treatment or other innovative technologies. If no innovative technology proves effective, incineration will be used.

The GM decision was nearly eight years in the making. GM was first listed on the Superfund National Priorities List in Sept. 1983 and is one of 83 federally listed hazardous waste sites in New York.

State Environmental Conservation Commissioner Thomas Jorling said his agency supports the federal cleanup plan and said it established "an important precedent for cleanups by ALCOA and Reynolds Metals nearby."

State wildlife pathologist Ward Stone, who was instrumental in exposing the pollution caused by the industrial giants, said it remains to be seen "whether GM will follow through on the cleanup plan over a period of time."

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (DEC. 19) UPI - El Salvador's annual inflation rate fell to 19 percent this year from 23.5 percent in 1989, registering one of the lowest rates in Latin America, a Central Bank official said.

Central Bank President Roberto Antonio Milla said Tuesday night that the government hopes to bring inflation down to 12 percent in 1991 and launch incentive programs to attract foreign investment.

Labor organizations, government opposition groups and the Catholic Church, however, said 1990 was one of the worst years for the people of strife-torn El Salvador. Labor unions say the inflation rate reached 36 percent this year, which they said was the highest ever registered in the country.

Milla told reporters that the country's economy was improving despite the sabotage of state-owned electric power plants and other infrastructure by rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, or FMLN. Rebels have fought government troops for 11 years in a civil war that has left more than 72,000 people dead.

Milla said El Salvador's economy grew by 3 percent this year, and the nation's foreign reserves remained steady at $70 million.

From January to October of 1990, the value of the country's exports was $517.6 million, an increase of 18 percent as compared with the same period of 1989, Milla said.

Milla credited foreign aid for much of the country's economic success and said the Inter-American Development Bank recently approved an additional $60 million credit to finance programs in El Salvador.

(DEC. 19) - Iraq's oil ministry asked people to stock up with domestic heating fuel Wednesday to confront shortages should a winter war erupt in the Persian Gulf, Baghdad Radio reported.

In another indication Iraq was preparing for war, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that Iraqi armored columns, tanks and artillery units were being withdrawn from the Syrian border and deployed in Kuwait.

The move was an apparent bid to reinforce the defenses of the occupied emirate against U.S.-led attack, according to the agency, which said some 430,000 Iraqi troops were already stationed in Kuwait and southern Iraq.

U.S. Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Colin Powell, meanwhile, arrived in Saudi Arabia to review U.S. troops and discuss strategy with Saudi and other military commanders.

In a further morale-booster, U.S. Vice President Dan Quayle said Wednesday he will spend New Year's Day with U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield. President and Mrs. Bush visited U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia for Thanksgiving.

Two senators who just returned from a visit to Saudi Arabia met with Bush in Washington and said they had been told by U.S. commanders that a war with Iraq would last no more than five days because of overwhelming U.S. air power.

When asked about the assessment given by Sens. Daniel Inouye, D- Hawaii, and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, ''Obviously our commanders feel confident about their strength and abilities, but we would be most reluctant to put days or minutes on it.''

On the diplomatic front, Fitzwater reported no progress in trying to set dates for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to visit Washington and Secretary of State James Baker to go to Baghdad.

Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan told Amman Radio that he did not think Saddam Hussein would withdraw from Kuwait before a Jan. 15 U.N. deadline, and that peace ''will require a miracle.''

The Soviet news agency Tass also quoted a Soviet spokesman as denying a report in the Washington Post that said the Soviet Union had supplied Iraq with SS-12 short-range ballistic missiles.

Other evidence of war preparations in Iraq included television programs on how to cope with bombing, fires and attacks from chemical and nuclear weapons as well as the radio appeal for citizens to stock up on home heating fuel.

The request to save oil came about two months after Former Oil Minister Issam Abdulrahim Chalabi ordered the rationing of gasoline in October. Saddam later fired Chalabi, saying the rationing order was unncessary.

Earlier in the day, Iraq issued a statement condemning the 12-nation European Community for its refusal Tuesday to meet with Iraqi Foreign Minister Aziz before Aziz had held talks in Washington with Bush.

Some EC countries wanted the meeting to go ahead, but British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd opposed it, pointing out that this would give Saddam the opportunity to say the alliance confronting him was crumbling.

In Cairo, Egyptian Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Ghali rejected in an interview published Wednesday that the Gulf crisis was a battle between haves and have-nots. Ghali also played down Iraq's military might and dismissed links between Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the Palestinian issue.

''It's a conflict between two rich countries,'' Boutros told World News Link of New York, in an interview published in the Egyptian Gazette. ''(Iraq is) the only country in the Gulf to possess oil plus water. They have two big rivers. This is an annexation of a rich country by another rich country.''

Ghali said, ''Iraq's military capacity has been very exaggerated,'' and added he did not think Palestinians were ''linking themselves (to the Gulf standoff) as much as it appears.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - President Bush, saying his war on drugs is ''paying off,'' issued a report Wednesday that showed a 44 percent plunge since 1985 in the number of people who use illegal drugs at least once a month from 23 million to 12.9 million.

The National Household Survey on Drug Abuse also found a stunning 72 percent drop in the past five years in the number of people who use cocaine at least once a month, from 5.8 million to 1.6 million. In addition, it showed a 13 percent decline, also to 1.6 million, the number of teenagers who get high.

There was some bad news, however. The survey of nearly 10,000 people by the Naitonal Institute on Drug Abuse found an estimated 15 percent rise since 1988 in the number of people who use cocaine daily, from 292, 000 to 336,000.

In addition, it estimated that the number of weekly users of crack, an inexpensive form of cocaine, held steady at 500,000. An accompanying study found cocaine-related emergency room cases fell by nearly 10 percent.

Bush said while it is premature to declare victory, ''virtually every piece of information we have tell us that drug use trends are are headed in the right direction - down.''

Democratic members of Congress promptly accused the president of offering an overly rosy assessment, and said his drug war has shortchanged those who need the most help, people in drug-ravaged inner- cities.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said: ''While the household survey is dramaitc proof that the Reagan and Bush administrations have succeeded in reducing casual use, it's equally dramatic proof that they have failed terribly in reducing hard-core addiction.''

Senate Judiciary Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., issued a report challenging the federal study's contention that the number of frequent cocaine users dropped in the past two years, from 862,000 to 662,000.

Frequent cocaine users are defined as those who use cocaine at least once a week, and Biden contended that this figure had actually increased, from 2.2 million to 2.4 million.

Biden's numbers, unlike those in the household survey, are based, in part, on projections from prison inmates, the homeless and those living in drug treatment centers.

''The NIDA study ... actually misses more addicts than it counts,'' said Biden.

A spokeswoman at the Office of National Drug Control Policy sought to dismiss the senator's criticism.

''Biden's figures are an overestimate. Ours (NIDA') are an underestimate. The truth lies somewhere in the middle,'' said a spokeswoman at the drug office. ''The important thing is the trend. Overall drug use is going down.''

An accompanying federal survey of emergency rooms found a 9.5 percent decline in cocaine-related hospital cases from the first quarter of 1990 to the second quarter of 1990. It fell 30 percent since the third quarter of 1989.

Bush, flanked at a news conference by Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan and John Walters, acting federal anti-drug director, said, ''The National Household Survey and the emergency room data are the latest and most compelling evidence that drug use in America is declining dramatically, and, more importantly, it's declining across the board.''

''Most importantly, we are seeing declines among the nation's teenagers, evidence that they are learning to 'say no,''' the president said.

The survey estimated that the overall number of ''current'' users of any drug - those who use illicit narcotics at least once a month - dropped 44 percent since 1985, from 23 million to 12.9 million.

In addition, the survey found:

DETROIT (DEC. 19) UPI - General Motors Corp.'s International Export Sales division said Wednesday that fleet contracts have been signed between a dealer in Dammam, Saudi Arabia, and three Saudi Arabian leasing contractors for 1,500 North American-built passenger and commercial vehicles.

Dale R. Hermiller, IES's executive-in-charge, said the contracts with its Arabian Motors & Engineering Co. are for the Arabian American Oil and represent their total annual lease vehicle order.

Last year, GM was awarded about a third of their fleet business.

''We enjoy and welcome this increase in business in Saudi Arabia for General Motors,'' said Hermiller. ''We are especially happy with this contract considering the aggressive competition we now face in this region.''

Orders to GM for the lease vehicles from AMECO are expected early next year, with the last vehicle scheduled to be shipped in June 1991.

A separate contract was recently signed between AMECO and Saudi Consolidated Electric Co. for 179 GM North American-produced vehicles.

CALGARY (DEC. 19) UPI - Tight supply in the United States is drawing cattle from both Canada and Mexico and the situation is not expected to ease until at least mid 1991, an analyst said Wednesday.

Anne Dunford, a market analyst for CANFAX, a branch of the Canadian Cattleman's Association, said the increase in exports of live cattle is a result of strong demand in the U.S. for Canadian feeder cattle.

Feeder cattle exports to the U.S. are forecast to be a record 193,97 head, up 230 percent from 1989, Dunford said. The feeder number easily tops the previous record of 108,000 set in 1985.

Dunford said exports of slaughter cattle are expected to rise to 453, 938 head up 14 percent from 1989.

Strong prices in the U.S. are a reflection of tight supply that's bringing in cattle from both Canada and Mexico, Dunford said.

She said the U.S. was still in the process of rebuilding its feeder cattle herd and would remain a strong buyer of Canadian feeder cattle at least until the first half of 1991.

Exports in 1991 are expected to remain at 1990 levels but could fluctuate depending on whether U.S. demand remains strong and if Canadian production, expected to fall slightly, keeps pace, Dunford said.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) UPI - Hughes Aircraft Co. said Wednesday that a $9.6 billion whistle-blower lawsuit brought against it by a former employee has been dismissed.

The suit, filed by Michael C. Denlinger in June 1988 in federal court in Santa Ana, Calif., alleged that the defense contractor had installed and tried to cover up defective integrated-circuit parts sold to the government for various defense systems.

Denlinger, an engineer who resigned from Hughes in January 1989, said that the defects occurred at Hughes' Ground Systems Group facility in Fullerton, Calif. Denlinger had charged Hughes, a unit of General Motors Corp., with $3.2 billion in fraud under the Civil False Claims Act, which automatically provides for trebled damages.

The U.S. Justice Department said last February that it would not join the suit. Hughes moved last month to dismiss the case, saying that the problem - involving cracking of a circuit - had been discovered in 1985 and subsequently solved through the development of new manufacturing techniques.

Hughes said it has also provided extended warranties on its equipment sold to the government.

On a separate matter, Hughes recently received a federal administrative subpoena for records on four of its tactical missile programs - the Navy air-to-air Phoenix, the Air Force air-to-ground Maverick, the Air Force AMRAAM and the Army anti-tank TOW. Most of the work on those missiles is performed at its facilities in Tucson, Ariz.

The basis for the subpoena is not known, but such moves usually come when the government believes it has been overcharged.

Hughes spokesman Richard Dore said the company has until Jan. 3 to respond to the subpoena.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - More drug makers will face corruption and fraud charges as part of an expanding probe into ''corporate greed, arrogance and deceit'' in the generic drug industry, a federal prosecutor told a congressional panel Wednesday.

Breckinridge Willcox, U.S. Attorney for Maryland and head of the Justice Department's investigation of the generic drug industry, said ''we have just scratched the surface'' in prosecutions relating to the scandal.

''We expect additional charges of other generic manufacturers and their executives,'' Willcox told a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee.

The prosecutor did not identify the firms or individuals who are targets of the probe. Willcox did say more charges will be filed ''in the near future'' against Bolar Pharmaceutical of Copiague, N.Y., a firm that has had two top executives plead guilty to felony counts stemming from a fraud that generated $100 million in revenues for the company.

Since 1988, the industry has been mired in a scandal stemming from revelations that company executives used cash, trips and gifts to bribe key Food and Drug Adminstration officials to obtain swift and unscrutinized approval for generic drugs. Investigators also found drug makers fraudulently substituted brand-name drugs for their own unproven formulas to subvert FDA tests and obstructed investigators examining the matter.

''I can tell you that the evidence we have amassed presents an astounding picture of corporate greed, arrogance and deceit coupled with a reckless disregard for the health and safety of the consuming public,'' Willcox said.

''I'm not aware of any industry that has been as broadly corrupted as the generic drug industry,'' he added.

Generic drugs are supposed to be chemically equivalent to brand-name drugs with expired patents and are less expensive than the brand-name versions. Generic medications account for up to one-third of the U.S. prescription drug market.

In the wake of the wrongdoing, about 250 generic drugs made by 27 firms have been recalled and more than 100 drug approvals have or are in the process of being withdrawn, the FDA said.

Five former FDA officials, including the former director of the generic drug division; five generic company executives, one industry consultant and three firms already have been convicted on corruption- related felony charges, including bribery and racketeering.

Willcox said the worst may be yet to come.

Committee member Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., asked Willcox: ''Are you saying that the subcommittee should expect more and even perhaps more serious disclosures regarding the conduct of a substantial portion of the (generic) drug industry?''

''Yes, sir,'' Willcox responded, adding the criminal activities were ''not unique'' to the companies already prosecuted and that the ''depth and breadth'' of wrongdoing is ''much, much bigger'' at other companies.

Willcox also criticized the industry as ''indifferent to the unknown risks'' posed by the availability of untested drugs on the market and the ''unknown safety factor on the consuming public.''

Daniel Michaels, the director of the FDA's office of compliance, and another FDA official faced close questioning on the pace of the agency's examination and its apparent willingness to allow companies to delay any enforcement actions.

Michaels said the agency also was expanding its own investigation into the industry.

''I am not satisfied that we have turned over every rock and our current plans are to intensively audit at least 15 more manufacturers of generic products,'' he told the committee. ''We'll see what we do after that.''

The subcommittee's chairman, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., said the panel will pursue legislation next term to reform the generic drug industry. He pointed out that one-third to one-half of the drug production from the industry comes from firms either convicted or under investigation.

ATLANTA (DEC. 19) UPI - BellSouth Corp. said Wednesday it has replaced its old electromechanical telephone switching system with a $6.2 billion technologically advanced electronic system for its nine-state region.

BellSouth became the first of the ''Baby Bells'' to reach the all- electronic milestone when the last two electromechanical central offices in the BellSouth region in Louisiana were retired and replaced with the new equipment, known as stored program control switching.

The new system was inaugurated in a conference call between Washington, Atlanta and Birmingham, Ala. Participating in the call were Alfred Sikes, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission; Carl F. Bailey, president of South Central Bell; B. Franklin Skinner, president of Southern Bell, and Hugh B. Jacks, president of BellSouth Services.

The new system enables BellSouth customers to do everything from automatically forwarding calls to conducting three-way conference calls. It also allows customers to reach their choice of interexchange carriers without having to dial extra numbers.

Customers served by BellSouth's 17.4 million lines will have access to services such as call forwarding and call waiting. They can have more than one number on a phone line, with each number producing a distinctive ring. By touching a few buttons, customers can have their phones automatically redial a busy number every 60 seconds for 30 minutes, with the system notifying the caller when the line is free.

Customers may block calls from up to six numbers, select up to six numbers to be forwarded to another number, and automatically return or trace incoming calls.

Among the other new services are telephone answering and voice messaging systems that enable customers to change their touch-tone phones into answering devices and an enhanced 911 service that provides police and fire departments with the address and number of the person calling.

Southern Bell serves parts of Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, while South Central Bell serves parts of Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) UPI - Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy announced on Wednesday a state campaign to win for California most of the $10 billion in potential investments generated by the new U.S. immigration law.

Besides encouraging the influx of skilled workers, the Immigration Act of 1990 sets aside 10,000 employment visas for those who invest at least $1 million apiece in a new enterprise in the United States and hire at least 10 workers.

McCarthy said at a news conference that many of those could be coming to California if the Commission for Economic Development, which he chairs, succeeds with its campaign.

''As we move into a recession, the business and jobs these new immigrants create would be a shot in the arm to protect California's economic health,'' he said.

McCarthy said the commission first will assess the Immigration Act's impact in California, then recommend ''what steps California should take to tap into that pool successfully.''

It also will work with California business people, especially those who are former immigrants themselves, to identify potential immigrants who should be encouraged to settle in the state.

McCarthy said the commission will become ''the state's clearinghouse'' and a ''matchmaker'' linking California business leaders and capital- seeking ventures with potential immigrants who are looking for a place to invest.

''The Immigration Act of 1990 opens the door of opportunity for investors wishing to come to the United States,'' McCarthy said. ''I intend to make sure that when they pass through that door, California is right there at the threshold.''

Signed by President Bush on Nov. 30, the act overhauls current law that stresses unification of immigrant families over admitting immigrants with needed skills, which critics say has worked against Europeans. Currently, about 85 percent of all immigration comes from Latin America and Asia.

The new law will increase total immigration from 540,000 per year in 1989 to 700,000 per year in 1992-94.

Immigration based on jobs will increase from the current 54,000 a year to 140,000 per year, with special emphasis on highly skilled workers in demand in the United States. Some of those include doctors, nurses, scientists, veterinarians, electrical engineers, computer experts and therapists.

CHICAGO (DEC. 19) UPI - A Chicago alderman, a state senator, a former judge and two other political figures who operated in the city's notorious 1st Ward were indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury on charges including taking bribes to fix murder cases.

Charged with bribery, extortion and other misconduct were a pantheon of influential political figures in the downtown ward, which law enforcement authorities say has been dominated by the mob for decades.

Named in the indictment were 22-year Alderman Fred Roti, 70; 13-year state Sen. John D'Arco Jr., 46, D-Chicago; political fixer Pat Marcy, 77; former Cook County Judge David Shields, 58; D'Arco's brother-in-law and law partner, Frank De Leo, 45. Shields lost his office in the November election.

''This was a group of highly sophisticated fixers who bound together as a unit '' U.S. Attorney Fred Foreman said in announcing the charges at a news conference also attended by Attorney General Richard Thornburgh.

''Whatever type of corruption you wanted you could get, whether it be zoning, fixing murder cases or various other forms of corruption. And this moveable feast went from the 1st Ward to Springfield to City Hall to the Circuit Court of Cook County and the highest levels of the Chancery Court,'' Foreman said.

Prosecutors said more indictments are possible in the case.

''There's no reference in the indictment to any organized crime connections but stay tuned,'' Thornburgh told reporters.

The indictments followed a long investigation that featured surveillance devices hidden in a restaurant frequented by 1st Ward politicians and alleged mobsters. The restaurant, Counselors Row, is across the street from City Hall.

The investigation, originally dubbed ''Kaffeeklatsch,'' now is known as ''Operation Gambat,'' prosecutors said Wednesday. Gambat is a contraction for gambling attorney, an FBI spokesman said.

As part of the investigation, FBI undercover agents posed as corrupt lawyers to feed phony cases into the court system.

''Judges who sell their public integrity for a few dollars disgrace themselves and in the process diminish the rule of the law and the conduct of representative government,'' said Thornburgh.

''Fortunately for the defendants, this case will be decided by an impartial jury rather than a corrupt public official who has been paid off to guarantee the outcome.''

Former police officer-turned-attorney Robert J. Cooley was a major factor in the investigation. He tape-recorded numerous conversations with politicians, businessmen and others, an investigator said.

Roti and Marcy are accused of racketeering, racketeering conspiracy, bribery, extortion and interstate travel in aid of racketeering.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Durkin said Roti is accused of taking bribes relating to a zoning change, fixing a chancery case and accepting $75,000 to fix a Chinatown murder case.

Marcy faced the same charges plus taking money to ''facilitate the appointment'' of an associate judge, fixing the murder trial of reputed mob hitman Harry Aleman in 1977 by paying the judge $10,000 and fixing the attempted murder case of Michael Colella.

Colella, Aleman and the defendant in the Chinatown case all were acquitted.

D'Arco, charged with extortion and tax fraud, is accused of accepting $7,500 in exchange for promising to introduce legislation that would allow a travel company to sell insurance without required state licenses. The legislation never was introduced.

Shields and De Leo were accused of extortion, fales statements and interstate travel in aid of racketering. The pair was accused of extorting $11,000 from Cooley in three payments between August and September 1988 for favorable treatment in a bogus civil case he had filed.

DETROIT (DEC. 19) UPI - The United Auto Workers on Wednesday called General Motors Corp. ''a scrooge'' this holiday season for once again delaying payment of negotiated increases to more than 240,000 company retirees until April 1991.

UAW Vice President Stephen P. Yokich, in a statement, called the giant automaker ''stingy'' for delaying the increases, which must first be approved by the IRS in April before being implemented.

''One of my holiday wishes is that General Motors would not act like such a scrooge in delaying the pension increases for UAW-GM retirees which were such an important concern of our membership in these recent negotiations,'' Yokich said. ''This is much-needed money that UAW-GM retirees are entitled to under the contract.''

GM said, however, that it has never advanced a pension increase payment prior to IRS approval, and that its contract with the UAW specifies that IRS approval is needed before they can be paid.

''We regret that Mr. Yokich views this matter as a calculated decision to delay such payments for our UAW retirees,'' GM said. ''UAW retirees were notified in their December pension checks that the impending increases would be retroactively paid beginning in the customary April to May timeframe.

But Yokich, head of the UAW's GM Department and the union's chief negotiator in this summer's bargaining for a new three-year labor pact, said approval by the IRS has never been withheld.

''GM is using the formality of the IRS approval of these increases as an excuse for their stingy behavior,'' Yokich said. ''They know that the IRS has routinely approved these increases without any problems.

A request by the UAW-GM Benefits Department for prompt payment of the increases was denied by GM, prompting Yokich to send a letter to GM Chairman Robert Stempel to reconsider the decision.

''For a retired person on a fixed income, these pension increases could make the holiday season very bright,'' he said.

UAW spokesman Reg McGhee said Ford Motor Co. paid its retirees pension increases this month under its contract with the union, and that Chrysler Corp. is expected to make similar payments in January.

For GM retirees with 30 years of service, those increases range from $37.50 to $300 a month, depending on age and retirement date. The pension increases for UAW retirees at GM were negotiated as part of the new 1990 agreement which took effect on Oct. 1, 1990.

For future retirees, the basic benefits were raised by $4.45 a month per year of credited service, with monthly benefits for those with 30 years of service rising to a total $1,800 a month.

The full package of pension increases negotiated under the latest GM- UAW contract will cost GM an extra $1.46 billion, the union said. In 1990, GM paid out more than $1.6 billion in pensions to its UAW retirees, the most for any corporation in the world.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 19) UPI - A new study released Wednesday said that 43 journalists were killed on the job in 1990 worldwide, including seven during political turmoil in the Philippines and six in the Colombian drug wars.

According to the Freedom House study, the number of journalists killed on the job this year did not include 16 others who were kidnapped and never heard from again.

The study said that there were 40 fewer journalists killed in 1990 than in 1989, but 18 more were kidnapped.

One of those killed was Farzad Bazoft, a British reporter arrested by the Iraqi government while investigating an explosion at a military complex. He was charged with spying and despite international protests, he was hanged.

The report also noted that 1990 was the year official government censorship ended in Eastern Europe.

When communism disappeared in countries like Poland there was little knowledge of how to operate a free press. As a result, journalists sometimes practice self-censorship.

The new papers, which have replaced the old Communist Party publications, are usually affiliated with the political groups and tend to follow a political viewpoint.

There are reminders that the central governments still haven't totally yielded their influence over the press.

In the Soviet Union, the Parliament passed a law abolioshing official censorship. But it also passed measures limiting press freedom, including one that carries a six-year prison term for slandering the Soviet president.

The report said the new press in Eastern Europe is financially frail and subject to government rules such as limits on newsprint for journals that become too independent.

The study reviwed 157 countries and determined that 61 operate with a free press, an improvement over last year's 56 countries.

One of the more dramatic improvements occurred in South Africa, which already had a partial free press. New papers have sprung up and Johannesburg now has six morning dailes, more than any city in the United States.

(DEC. 19) UPI - President Bush says a new federal study proves his war on drugs is ''paying off,'' but Senate Democrats released their own study which they say finds that the number of frequent cocaine users actually increased during the past year.

A federal grand jury today indicted a Chicago alderman, an Illinois state senator, a former judge and two other people caught in a major undercover investigation. The indictments charge bribery, extortion and other miscoduct.

AIDS activists are demanding that the government approve two promising drugs for treatment of the deadly syndrome. An F-D-A spokesman says ''AIDS drugs get top priority,'' but that the approval process takes several months.

A second crash involving a Greyhound bus. This time, at least two buses crashed on a highway near Yermo, California... about 10 miles north of Barstow on Interstate 15. Authorities say several people are injured.

That word comes one day after yesterday's accident in which a Greyhound bus and two big-rig trucks collided on Interstate 80 near Utah's border with Wyoming, killing seven people and injuring 41 others.

President Gorbachev says he's prepared to clamp down a state of emergency in any of the Soviet Union's rebellious republics if there is any ''serious threat to state security and lives.'' Most of the republics are fighting to run their own governments.

A company offering a telephone sweepstakes trip to the Soviet space station today produced letters from Soviet officials confirming the existence of a contract for such a trip. A Harris County grand jury is deciding whether the contest violates Texas lottery laws.

The N-double-A-C-P in Miami today filed an employment discrimination complaint against a Lord and Taylor department store. The rights group accused the store of illegally eliminating qualified blacks from its payroll.

A fur retailer in New York says animal rights activists are partly to blame for his filing bankruptcy. The company operates primarily through concessions at department stores and says it's more than 10-Million dollars in the hole.

PHOENIX (DEC. 19) UPI - Attorney General Bob Corbin, saying unspecified new evidence has been uncovered, announced Wednesday murder charges have been refiled against Max Dunlap in the 1976 slaying of newspaper reporter Don Bolles.

Dunlap, 61, a land developer, and James Robison, 68, were convicted of Bolles' murder in 1977, largely on testimony from John Harvey Adamson. The convictions were overturned on a technicality and when prosecutors sought a retrial, Adamson refused to testify.

Adamson was convicted of first-degree murder in the slaying and is serving a life sentence. He now has agreed to testify against Robison and Dunlap in return for a reduction of his sentence to 20 years and 2 months, Assistant Attorney General Judson Roberts said.

Robison was recharged in November 1989 with Bolles' murder. That case is still pending. He is in prison on an unrelated charge of assaulting a talent agent.

Corbin, while declining to discuss the new evidence, said he feels prosecutors have ''an excellent and a stronger case.''

Bolles, a reporter for the Arizona Republic, was gravely injured in the bombing of his car June 2, 1976, and died 11 days later. No motive has ever been disclosed in the murder.

Corbin said he also filed additional charges Wednesday involving an alleged plot for Dunlap to pay Robison not to testify against him in the Bolles case. The charges include conspiring to obstruct a criminal investigation, conspiring to influence a witness, and conspiracy to receive a bribe by a witness.

Robison and Dunlap were ordered to appear for arraignment Jan. 3.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 19) UPI - Automotive wheelmaker Superior Industries said Wednesday that it will close its plant in Newmarket, Ontario, idling about 180 workers within the next 90 days because the facility is outmoded.

Superior said that production at the plant, which it bought in 1983, would be transferred to ''state-of-the-art'' facilities in Rodgers, Ark. , and Pittsburg, Kan. Current production from the Ontario plant was 400, 000 wheels annually of the company's more than 7 million capacity.

Superior also announced it was halting several product lines, primarily in the recreation vehicle/light truck accessory line, where sales and profits have been declining for the past several years. As a result, Superior will report a fourth-quarter pre-tax charge of about $5 million.

Superior's stock rose 50 cents to $20.25 Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Superior earned $11.9 million on sales of $206 million for the first nine months of the year.

(DEC. 19) - With winter several days away, a brutally cold Arctic front swept the West Wednesday, bringing wind-chill factors of minus 45 degrees, while rivers flooded their banks in the Midwest following a day of heavy rain.

Winter weather advisories were up from Washington to South Dakota as snow and high winds hit Oregon, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Colorado and Nebraska, making driving dangerous.

Two people were killed east of Portland, Ore., when their car slid out of control on an icy road and struck a bus. The driver and passenger of the car were killed, but there were no serious injuries on the bus, police said.

Seattle, where residents are accustomed to getting their precipitation in the form of drops rather than flakes, was struggling after the cold front brought plunging temperatures, 75-mph gusts and more than a foot of snow.

Most major school systems were closed Wednesday to start the Christmas vacation early and many businesses were closed or operating with skeleton staffs. What little traffic there was slowed to a crawl on ice-coated thoroughfares.

''We are now hoping for a little sun to do some melting to clear the roads a bit,'' said Mark Murray, a spokesman for Mayor Norm Rice. ''The worst seems to be over but it has been quite a 24-hour period.''

Idaho and Montana also suffered through some of the harshest weather. In addition to 1 to 3 inches of new snow, Idaho residents had to contend with winds of 30 mph to 50 mph and temperatures in the zero to 20-degree range.

The cold was dangerous in Montana. The lowest overnight temperature was 23 below zero in Great Falls and a 50-mph gust was recorded in Kalispell. High temperatures Wednesday were expected to be only 10 below to 20 below with 35-mph winds driving the wind chill factor down to 70 below. In the southwestern part of the state, winds created visibility problems by swirling the fallen snow.

The National Weather Service said the worst snowfall in Washington was probably over but predicted temperatures would get no higher than in the mid-20s for at least two or three days. With winds gusting to 25 mph or more, wind chill factors would be below zero in may areas, the weather service said.

Normal winter temperatures on the west side of the Cascade Mountains usually range between 35 and 45 degrees, and most cities in the region are not well-equipped to handle severe winter conditions.

''I'm from Minneapolis, and I've never seen a city crippled by a few inches of snow,'' laughed a woman named Jenny at a Red Robin restaurant in downtown Seattle.

A Seattle city spokeswoman said by Wednesday morning the city had used about $90,000 of its $100,000 road-clearing budget, but said city officials would find money ''somewhere'' to continue plowing and sanding efforts.

Seattle City Light spokesman Scott Forslund said up to 18,000 customers were without power during the night when a number of major power lines were knocked out, but only about 1,500 customers were still without power by dawn. However, in Kitsap County west of Puget Sound, up to 45,000 people were without power.

The rough weather stretched as far east as South Dakota, where light snow was falling and temperatures dropped to minus 7 degrees with winds gusting to 30 mph.

Water rather than ice was the main concern in Ohio, West Virginia and Indiana where rivers flooded their banks, sending water flowing over low-lying areas.

The Ohio River along the Ohio-West Virgina border was over its banks in several places but the flooding was minor as engineers adjusted the flow to control heavy runoff and to help 20 barges in trouble at the Gallipolis Dam.

In Ohio, flood warnings were issued in several places along the Great Miami and Scioto rivers but water rose only slightly above flood stage.

(DEC. 19) UPI - At least 12 people were injured today in a crash involving at least 10 vehicles near Yerma, California. Authorities say Interstate 15 about 10 miles north of Barstow was shrouded by a desert sandstorm when the crash occurred, involving two Greyhound buses, a semi-truck and at least seven other vehicles. The buses were traveling north toward Las Vegas. A bus and truck accident in bad weather yesterday killed seven people near the Utah-Wyoming border.

The federal government today ordered the Immigration and Naturalization Services to stop the deportation of all Salvadoran and Guatemalan refugees in the United States. The order also calls for re- consideration of about one-half-Million claims for political asylum stemming back to 1980. A lawyer speaking on behalf of the refugees says today's agreement with the nation's sanctuary movement ''will severely limit the role of the State Department in future political asylum decisions.'' Another spokesman says ''Many of these people were forced to go home to face death and torture,'' and today's agreement is a ''victory for the Salvadoran and Guatamalan refugees who came here looking for freedom.''

White supremacist Byron De La Beckwith is free on bond in Tennessee today... vowing to fight ''tooth, nail and claw'' against extradition to Mississippi for a third trial on charges he killed civil rights leader Medgar Evers in 1963. The 70-year-old Beckwith was re-indicted on murder charges in Jackson, Mississippi, this week after witnesses provided UNdisclosed new evidence. Evers was working for the N-double-A-C-P in Jackson when a sniper shot him in the back. Beckwith says he was at a gas station in another town at the time of the slaying. An extradition hearing is set for February 22nd.

For a second straight day, demonstrators have been removed from a Missouri hospital where a comatose woman is being allowed to die. Half a dozen protesters entered the Mount Vernon hospital and laid down on hallway floors. Workers lifted the demonstrators into wheelchairs and rolled them back outdoors. Yesterday, 19 people were arrested after entering the hospital. Nancy Cruzan's parents last week won a court order allowing them to remove the feeding tube that has kept her alive in a vegetative state for nearly eight years since a car accident.

Researchers in France say the discovery of an enzyme linked to breast cancer's deadly spread may open new avenues of treatment against the disease that kills nearly 45-thousand American women each year. The scientists say the enzyme is produced by the tissue around invasive breast tumors, but is NOT present near tumors confined to a single, small area. They say the enzyme appears to ''eat through'' a breast tumor's connective tissue, allowing cancer cells to spread beyond the original tumor site and enabling blood vessels to feed tumor growth.

Vice President Quayle plans to spend New Year's Day in Saudi Arabia, and some of the troops already are offering their mixed reactions. 21 year-old Army Specialist Annette Bagwall of Charleston, South Carolina, says she thinks ''it's good for morale.'' And 30-year-old Private First Class Rob Pemberton of Denver says it'll probably be less exciting to see Quayle than it was to see President Bush, but- IN PEMBERTON'S WORDS- ''He didn't make it to Vietnam so at least he's making it here.'' Finally, 20-year-old, U-S-born Private John Thorne of St. Johns, Canada, says ''I'd prefer it was David Letterman.''

(DEC. 19) UPI - Two senators who recently traveled to Saudi Arabia say American military commanders told them a war with Iraq would last NO more than five days. Republican Senator Ted Stevens of Alaska says that assessment is ''based on complete air superiority.'' But White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater is NOT as optimistic. He says he ''would be most reluctant to put days or minutes on it.''

Indications that Iraq is preparing for war. Baghdad Radio quoted the oil ministry today asking people to stock up with domestic heating fuel so there WOULDN'T be any shortages should war break out. And Egypt's Middle East News Agency reports Iraqi armored columns, tanks and artillery units are being withdrawn from the Syrian border and deployed in occupied Kuwait.

The U-S Conference of Mayors reports that hunger and homelessness is on the rise. And the conference says the problem is expected to worsen with the economic recession now hitting most cities. At the same time, the survey of mayors of 30 major cities also reports that public sentiment is turning against the homeless. The report says officials in four out of five of the survey cities have seen evidence of change in public sentiment toward homeless people, and in the majority of these cities there are more negative attitudes.

Government prosecutors are targeting more firms in an expanding probe of fraud in the generic drug industry. Maryland U-S Attorney Breckinridge Willcox told a House subcommittee the government has ''just scratched the surface'' in prosecutions relating to the scandal. Willcox says the industry is ripe with ''corporate greed, arrogance and deceit.'' He says more charges will be filed ''in the near future'' against Bolar Pharmaceutical of Copiague, New York. Two top Bolar excecutives have pleaded guilty to felony counts in a fraud scheme that generated 100- Million dollars in revenues for the company.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency today issued a 78- Million-dollar cleanup order for a General Motors site in upstate New York. But the E-P-A order falls 60-Million dollars short of a cleanup proposal handed up in March that estimated cleanup costs for G-M's Central Foundry Superfund site in Massena at 138-Million dollars. The site has poisoned fish and game at a nearby Mohawk reservation.

AIDS activists around the country are demanding that the government give quick approval to two promising drugs. David Gold of the AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power says tens of thousands of people are failing A-Z-T- the only government-approved drug to fight the AIDS virus because it is either too toxic or not working for them. ACT UP and other groups today appealed for faster action from the government and the manufacturers of the two new drugs- D-D-I and D-D-C.

(DEC. 19) UPI - Iraqis reportedly are being told to stock up with domestic heating fuel in case war breaks out in the Persian Gulf. And another report says Iraqi armored columns, tanks and artillery units are being withdrawn from the Syrian border to reinforce the defenses of Kuwait.

In another development, U-S Defense Secretary Cheney and U-S Joint Chiefs of Staff chairman Colin Powell arrived in Saudi Arabia today. The officials will visit U-S troops and discuss strategy with Saudi and other military commanders.

(DEC. 19) UPI - White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater reports the administration is getting NOwhere in trying to set dates for high-level peace talks with Iraq. Fitzwater's report of NO progress comes amid signs Iraq is preparing for war. Baghdad radio says Iraq's oil ministry today asked people to stock up with domestic heating fuel to confront shortages in case a winter war erupts in the Persian Gulf. And it says Iraqi authorities have plans to evacuate more than one-Million people from the densely populated Baghdad suburb of Saddam beginning Friday.

In Chattanooga, Tennessee, white supremacist Byron De La Beckwith says he'll fight ''tooth, nail and claw'' his extradition to Mississippi to face trial a third time on charges he fatally shot civil rights leader Medgar Evers in the back 27 years ago. The 70-year-old Beckwith was reindicted on murder charges in Jackson, Mississippi, this week after witnesses provided new evidence in the 1963 case. Beckwith was arrested Monday but is free on bond.

Fast-food chain Carl's Jr. is banning smoking in all of its 426 restaurants starting January 1st... becoming the first fast-food chain to do so. Carl's operates restaurants in Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon and Japan. The chain says it's making the move because of the benefits of- quote- ''an improved dining experience and healthier atmosphere.'' The restaurant's parent company, Carl Karcher Enterprises Incorporated, says it's also encouraging its 142 franchised restaurants to adopt the ban.

Federal investigators say the brakes were applied before an Amtrak train derailed and slammed into a commuter train in Boston's Back Bay station last week. But investigators say technicians were unable to determine when or how many times the brakes had been applied. The rush- hour accident injured 264 people. Early reports indicated a brake valve on the Night Owl was broken.

A new study released today says 43 journalists worldwide were killed on the job in 1990. The Freedom House study says seven journalists died during political turmoil in the Philippines and six in the Colombian drug wars. The report did NOT include 16 others who were kidnapped and never heard from again. One of those killed was Farzad Bazoft, a British reporter arrested by the Iraqi government while investigating an explosion at a military complex. He was charged with spying and despite international protests, he was hanged.

KANSAS CITY, MO (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - For the first-time ever, families and holiday travelers across the country can be united instantly by phone through US Sprint's new conferencing service.

The service, Sprint QuickConference(sm), allows Sprint calling card customers to place an instant three-way conference call from touch-tone phones in the United States without advance scheduling or operator assistance.

Three-way conferencing can help bring families together who otherwise would be apart during the holidays. Families can talk to each other from home, or from any touch-tone phone whil the road.

Sprint QuickConference is the newest addition to Sprint's family of conferencing products. A simple dialing pattern allows customers to link three people together. Placing a QuickConference call is as easy as placing a calling card call.

To add another party, the customer simply presses 12, to put the first party on hold. Next, the customer dials the area code and phone number of the third party. To conference all three on the same line, the customer presses 13, and all three parties will be on one line. To return to the original call, the customer presses 14. For more information on QuickConference, or for operator assistance with rotary-dial phones, call US Sprint Customer Service at 1-800-877-4646.

US Sprint will continue to waive the 75 cent bridge charge throughout the holidays. Normal calling card charges apply to each segment of the call.

For families who would like to unite more than three locations, Sprint has announced a residential plan for its Sprint Conference Line(sm) service. The plan offers discounted rates which will apply to customers calling during evenings, weekends and holidays. ''For example, a four-location, 30-minute call can be made for under $25,'' Fuciu said.

For more information regarding Sprint Conference Line call 1-800-366-CONF.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint will save its largest customer the federal government, an additional $20-$30 million in 1991 from an approximate 10 percent price reduction on most voice services under FTS2000, the government's advanced, cost-beneficial telecommunications network.

The majority of the cost savings are from discounts offered by US Sprint for high-volume usage. With the discounts in effect, US Sprint estimates $180 million in total savings to the government for use of all US Sprint FTS2000 services in fiscal year 1991.

Since federal agencies began using the new network in October 1989, both switched voice and data traffic have exceeded original estimates, activating volume discount incentives built into Sprint's pricing.

These reductions also reflect ongoing changes in the commercial marketplace, against which FTS2000 prices must be competitive. Together with a planned reduction on FTS2000 voice prices that was part of US Sprint's original bid, the combined reductions amount to approximately 10 percent.

High-traffic volumes and aggressive marketing of new services also have allowed US Sprint to initiate price reductions on seven different non-voice services. The General Services Administration (GSA) has approved future volume discounts proposed by US Sprint based on additional increased usage.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company with $7.5 billion in revenues. US Sprint provides a comprehensive array of voice, data and video products and services on the only nationwide all-digital, all fiber-optic network.

NASHVILLE, TENN (DEC. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Shoney's Inc. (NYSE:SHN) reported record revenues and pretax income before interest expense for both the fourth quarter and the fiscal year ended Oct. 28, 1990.

Revenues for the fourth quarter increased 8 percent from $202,508,000 to $218,256,000. Income before extraordinary charges increased 56 percent from $4,329,000 to $6,744,000. Fully diluted earnings per share before extraordinary charges increased 42 percent from 12 cents to 17 cents per share. The extraordinary charges during 1989 resulted from early extinguishment of debt.

For the year ended Oct. 28, 1990, revenues increased 9 percent to $929,498,000. Income before extraordinary charges increased 56 percent from $18,947,000 to $29,582,000. Fully diluted earnings per share before extraordinary charges increased 46 percent from 50 cents to 73 cents per share.

Net income for 1989 included a gain from the sale of the company's investment in Restaurant Management Services Inc. of $1,833,000 or 5 cents per share.

During 1990, the company made $65 million of principal payments against the original $585 million of bank borrowings used to finance its 1988 recapitalization. Cumulative principal payments against these borrowings total $240 million, which included $95 million of scheduled payments and $145 million of prepayments.

The balance of such borrowings at the end of the year was $345 million with a weighted average interest rate of 10.5 percent. Interest expense declined by $12,013,000 from $83,095,000 to $71,082,000 in 1990.

In addition, 58 Shoney's Inns, which included four new Shoney's Inns opened during 1990, were in operation at the end of the year.

During fiscal 1991, the company plans to open 28 company-owned units, as compared with 23 in 1990 and 16 in 1989. Franchisees presently are expected to open an additional 105 units, which would result in systemwide openings of 133 units.

DENVER (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Grease Monkey International Inc. has signed a two year, $370,000 consulting agreement with Shell Canada Limited for the expansion and enhancement of their Rapid Lube quick oil change operations in Canada.

Shell Canada selected Grease Monkey following an in-depth review of other alternatives that could provide them with the expertise they needed for their growth plan.

This is the third international agreement for Grease Monkey in the past five years; they have provided training support for CEPSA, a Spanish oil company, and British Petroleum in France and Austria.

The $370,000 fee will be paid to Grease Monkey over the two year term of the agreement.

Joe Plens, manager of Shell Canada's Rapid Lube Division, said, ''We are pleased to be working with the Grease Monkey organization and are looking forward to a very productive and mutually beneficial relationship.''

Shell Canada has operated a successful but small chain of quick lubes for the past 12 years, primarily in the Toronto area.

Larry Baldwin, vice president for Grease Monkey, stated, ''We are also quite enthused about working with Shell Canada. Their Rapid Lube operations have done well and, although we will be assisting them in their growth and improvement program, we will be mutually sharing ideas and systems, thus expanding our ability to create, develop and implement new programs and enhance our existing systems in support of our franchisees.''

Grease Monkey is the nation's largest independent franchisor of automotive quick lubrication centers (the top 3 being owned by major oil companies).

Grease Monkey currently has 171 centers open.

MILPITAS, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Twinhead Corp., known for exceptional ASIC designs and original design manufacturing quality, Wednesday announced the newest addition to their networking product line, the Twinhead Netstation 20V.

This system is a compact yet powerful platform that will not only function as a stand-alone PC; with Twinhead's optional Netware remote boot PROM, it will serve as a high-powered, dedicated network workstation, and run with or without disks.

Twinhead's standard configuration, with 1 Mb of RAM, Super VGA controller, IDE hard disk interface, a 3.5-inch/1.44 Mb floppy disk, keyboard and MS-DOS 4.01, is $1,549.

The Netstation 20V, like the majority of Twinhead computer designs, incorporates the complete computer system onto the motherboard. Floppy drive controller, hard drive interface, high-performance 1024-by-768 Super VGA graphics controller, two serial ports, a parallel port, memory and the CPU are all located on a compact (8.5 inches by 13 inches) four-layer system board hardly larger than a sheet of paper.

This design leaves room for two drive bays in a ''slimline'' system case that measures 3.5 inches high by 15.75 inches wide by 15.75 inches deep. The Netstation also shares the horizontal card cage design common to other high-performance systems.

Two 16-bit ISA bus slots are available, and cards mount parallel to the motherboard, improving heat dissipation dynamics. With a VGA monitor, floppy and hard disk drive installed, all expansion I/O slots are still free.

The Netstation 20V is an addition to the two basic configurations of the Netstation already shipping. The Netstation 16V uses the Intel 80386SX running at 16MHz, while the Netstation 12V is built around a 12MHz 80286 processor.

Both of these systems take advantage of Twinhead's expertise in 80286-based board design, which was garnered, in part, by designing systems for other, larger companies.

The motherboards of these compact systems support 1, 2, or 5 megabytes of RAM in a rather unusual combination. The basic system board comes with 1Mb of DRAM installed in surface-mounted QFPs (Quad Flat Packs). Next to the chips these are four sockets for SIMMs. The SIMMs used may be either 256Kb by 9 or 1Mb by 9 configurations. Memory is paged and interleaved for zero wait state performance.

MONROE, LA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Century Telephone Enterprises Inc. (NYSE:CTL) announced Thursday the acquisition of additional ownership interests in five cellular telephone Rural Service Areas (RSAs) through its wholly owned subsidiary Century Cellunet Inc.

The additional interests increase Century's total pops, or Century's pro rata share of the population of the licensed areas, by 116,000 to approximately 5,038,000.

Century has acquired from GTE Mobilnet Inc. (GTE) a 25 percent partnership interest in Michigan RSA 10, representing 34,000 pops. RSA 10 is adjacent to Century's Saginaw, Michigan Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) market.

In Wisconsin RSA 6, Century acquired from GTE a 14.29 percent partnership interest. This market area is adjacent to Century's La Crosse MSA market. Century gained over 16,000 pops in this RSA which has a total of approximately 114,000 pops.

Century has acquired GTE's 20 percent partnership interest in Arkansas RSA 3. Arkansas 3 has been merged with Arkansas 2 to provide greater efficiencies and marketing advantages with Century being named the operating partner. Additional owned pops in these markets increased by 16,000 as a result of these transactions. Century owns an 82 percent interest in the partnership representing approximately 148,000 pops.

After a construction permit is granted, Century will acquire an additional 16.67 percent partnership interest in Michigan RSA 6 from GTE, representing 23,000 pops. Century will also acquire the Saginaw-Chippewa Indian Tribe's 16.67 percent partnership interest in this RSA in which Century will be the operator. After both acquisitions, Century will own 98 percent of the RSA, representing a gain of 46,000 pops. Total Century pops in the RSA are 135,000.

RSA pops are based on 1990 population estimates as obtained from Donnelley Marketing Information Services.

Century is continuing to pursue acquisitions of additional MSA and RSA cellular interests.

HOUSTON (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Powell Industries Inc. (NASDAQ: POWL) Thursday announced that its fiscal year ended Oct. 31, was a record year for both revenues and earnings.

Revenues for 1990 were a record for the third consecutive year. For the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990, revenues were $131 million, a 35 percent increase over the $97 million in 1989.

Net earnings increased to $7 million, or 68 cents per share, in 1990, from $2 million, or 21 cents per share, in 1989, an increase of 250 percent.

Backlog at Oct. 31, 1990 was also a record at $101 million, an increase of 51 percent from the $67 million backlog of orders at Oct. 31, 1989.

Revenues in the fourth quarter of 1990 were $32 million, approximately $200,000 more than the fourth quarter of 1989. Net earnings in the fourth quarter of 1990 were $2.2 million, or 22 cents per share, vs. $1.4 million, or 14 cents per share, in the fourth quarter of 1989, an increase of 57 percent.

Thomas W. Powell, president and chairman of the board of Powell Industries Inc. stated: ''1990 was an outstanding year for almost every unit of our company. The only disappointment was at our U.S. Turbine subsidiary, which improved its performance in revenues and margins in 1990, but remained unprofitable.

''With our record backlog as we begin fiscal 1991, we are optimistic the coming year will be another record year with increasing revenues and earnings despite the reported economic slowdown in some sections of the United States.''

SANTA CLARA, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Intel Corp. said Thursday that it has filed a suit against Cyrix Corp. of Richardson, Texas for patent infringement relating to the Intel 80387 math coprocessor.

The action was taken following months of discussion between the two companies.

In court documents filed in Dallas, Intel claims that the Cyrix coprocessor duplicates the function of U.S. patent number 4,338,675 which was granted to Intel in 1982. The patent relates to a floating-point arithmetic function. Math coprocessors perform mathematical operations and function as peripheral devices to Intel's family of microprocessors.

Intel is requesting an injunction to prevent Cyrix from continued infringement and is also requesting damages. No court date has been set.

Intel is an international manufacturer of microcomputer components, modules and systems.

ORANGE, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Retired Justice John K. Trotter has been named chairman of the board of Judicial Arbitration & Mediation Services Inc. (J.A.M.S.).

As chairman, Trotter will lead the firm's planned national expansion. Hon. Warren Knight becomes founder/chief judicial officer.

''The future of our firm is in the best possible hands with Justice Trotter,'' said Founder/Chief Judicial Officer H. Warren Knight. ''His vision and energy will insure that our planned expansion will be diligently and profitably accomplished,'' Knight added.

Justice Trotter has served as vice chairman and chief judicial officer of J.A.M.S. since August 1987. While holding an executive position with the firm he has also acted as a hearing officer for J.A.M.S.

Recently Justice Trotter served as a mediator and helped 770 homeowners reach a $62.5 million settlement with dozens of insurance companies, the city of Los Angeles and the Community Redevelopment Agency, in the Monterey Hills subsidence litigation. Justice Trotter saved the parties untold time and millions of dollars that would have been necessary had the case gone through traditional litigation in the Superior Court.

Prior to joining J.A.M.S. in 1987 Justice Trotter was presiding justice of the California 4th District Court of Appeals, Division III, in Orange County. He was elevated to the appellate bench in 1982 from the Orange County Superior Court to which he had been appointed in 1979.

Justice Trotter is a graduate of the University of Southern California Law School and was engaged in the practice of law specializing in civil litigation before his appointment to the bench.

J.A.M.S., which provides a private forum for the resolution of civil disputes, offers its services through a panel of over 140 retired trial and appellate court justices. With 15 offices in California, Oregon, Washington and Texas, J.A.M.S. is the nation's leading private dispute resolution services firm.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - URS Corp. (NYSE:URS), Thursday reported revenues of $31.7 million for the fiscal fourth quarter ended Oct. 31 1990, a 60 percent increase over revenues of $19.8 million in the like 1989 period.

Net income in the fourth quarter was $3.6 million, or 76 cents a share, compared with a loss of $11.3 million, or $13.04 a share, in the like 1989 period. Gains from discontinued operations, as well as a gain resulting from the renegotiation of a long-term lease, accounted for $3.4 million of net income.

Income from continuing operations, after giving effect to $200,000 in restructuring expenses, was $200,000. This marked URS' first profitable quarter since a corporate restructuring that began in mid-1989.

The unusual items were a $1.8 million gain from discontinued operations resulting primarily from a settlement in connection with the closure of the company's Mitchell Management Systems (MMS) subsidiary in May 1990. Additionally, the company realized a gain of $1.6 million resulting from renegotiations of the lease at its Cleveland, Ohio facility.

An additional $1.7 million in gains from the transaction have been deferred and will be recognized evenly over the next five years. The new lease will also result in material annual cost savings, the company noted.

Revenues for the year ended Oct. 31, 1990 were $105.2 million, 15 percent above the prior year's $91.5 million. The net loss in fiscal 1990 was $11.6 million, or $4.91 a share, which included a $7.9 million loss from discontinued opeations due primarily to the shutdown of MMS. This compared with a net loss of $100,000, or 10 cents a share, in 1989.

The 1989 results included an $11.7 million charge to discontinued operations offset by a $29.1 million extraordinary gain from the exchange of a new series of subordinated debentures and common shares for previously issued convertible subordinated debentures.

URS Corp., through its subsidiary, URS Consultants Inc., is a nationwide consulting firm with over 25 offices which provides planning, architectural, engineering and program and construction management services to a variety of public and private clients. Utilizing staff resources of more than 1,000 professionals, URS meets the challenges of today's complex hazardous waste/environmental, water resources, transportation, architectural and construction management projects.

AUSTIN, TX (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - SEMATECH Thursday announced it has awarded an equipment improvement contract to Integrated Process Equipment Corporation (IPEC) of San Jose, Calif.

Under terms of the agreement, SEMATECH will work with IPEC to enhance the AVANTI 8000, an integrated dry/wet photoresist stripper for single wafer processing. The strip clean system removes photoresist from wafers after all masking and patterning operations are completed, including the removal of even heavily implanted resist.

SEMATECH's equipment improvement program was established in order to improve America's competitive capability in semiconductor manufacturing. To accomplish this objective, SEMATECH works with U.S. suppliers to enhance new equipment, materials and processes that support manufacturing requirements for future generations of technology.

These programs focus on improving the function and reliability of the equipment in order to increase manufacturing uptime and decrease costs.

SEMATECH is a consortium of 14 U.S. semiconductor manufacturing firms partnered with the U.S. Department of Defense that is charged with the mission of restoring U.S. semiconductor manufacturing leadership capability.

IPEC is a member of SEMI/SEMATECH, an independent industry association headquartered at SEMATECH. SEMI/SEMATECH's 133 members consist of majority-owned American suppliers to the semiconductor manufacturing industry.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Wes Baumgardner, chairman of Standard Logic Inc. (SLI)(NASDAQ:STDL), and Larry Dingus, chairman of TouchStone Software Corp., announced Thursday the signing of a definitive merger agreement between the two companies.

Under the terms of the agreement, SLI will acquire all of the issued and outstanding shares of TouchStone in exchange for shares of SLI. The shareholders of TouchStone will receive approximately 80 percent of the resultant company, and the shareholders of SLI approximately 20 percent.

As previously announced, the combined company will change its name to TouchStone Software Corp., with its principal business the development and marketing of computer software utility products.

A group comprised of SLI management and outside investors will purchase substantially all of the assets and operations of SLI at a fair market value.

The completion of the merger is subject to, among other things, the filing of a registration statement with the appropriate government agencies, and stockholder approval from both companies. A.M. Razo & Co. Inc., an Orange-based investment banking company, acted as an advisor to this transaction.

TouchStone Software Corp. designs, develops and markets a line of computer software programs used for troubleshooting hardware and software problems on IBM-compatible PCs. The company's best-known product is CheckIt, the industry's leading PC diagnostic program.

Standard Logic is engaged principally in providing products and services to the electronic packaging industry. The company's electronic products include integrated circuit packaging systems, logic panels, back planes and contract engineering and manufacturing. HUNTINGTON BEACH, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - TouchStone Software Corp., publishers of CheckIt, the world's most popular PC diagnostic, announced a major co-publishing agreement with Markt&Technik AG, the leading publisher of computer magazines, books and software in Germany.

M&T ranks third among all computer publishers worldwide with 1989 sales of $175 million.

The exclusive co-publishing agreement with M&T provides for German translations of TouchStone's best-selling product, CheckIt 3.0, which was released in Germany on Nov. 30, 1990. The English version of CheckIt 3.0 was previously available in Germany, retailing for DM 279,00. The German version will retail for DM 359,00.

Those wishing to upgrade their English versions to German will pay DM 199,00. Purchasers of CheckIt in Germany and Austria should contact M&T to obtain these products.

Christiane Ritter of M&T stated: ''CheckIt 3.0 delivers powerful preventative maintenance capabilities at a level easy enough for the beginner to use, with operations sophisticated enough for the most demanding power user. CheckIt brings corporations, small offices and private users a means of expanding their PC support effectively and inexpensively.''

Darlene Kindstrand, director of international sales for TouchStone, added: ''Our sales in Europe are escalating right now and TouchStone expects significant revenues in the fourth quarter of 1990 as a result of the relationship with Markt&Technik.'' The agreement provides for technical support and aggressive marketing and sales to major distributors in Germany including Access Computer and DNS-Softsel.

M&T was the first German publisher to recognize the explosive potential in the software development and technical niche publishing market. In 1984 M&T expanded its business in the United States by acquiring Dr. Dobb's Journal.

M&T continues to grow by leading the computer publishing industry with a family of targeted, technical magazine titles such as DBMS for network-oriented database developers and LAN Technology for network integrators.

TouchStone Software designs, develops and markets a line of computer software programs used for troubleshooting hardware and software problems on IBM-compatible PCs.

SANTA CLARA, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - 3Com Corp. (NASDAQ:COMS) Thursday announced results for its second fiscal quarter ended Nov. 30.

The global data networking company reported net income of $4.9 million (17 cents per share) on sales of $107.1 million, as compared with net income of $5.3 million (18 cents per share) on sales of $105.9 million in the comparable quarter last year.

New product sales as measured by sales from products introduced during the last 12 months were 32 percent this quarter, nearly double the 17 percent posted for the comparable prior-year quarter.

On a sequential quarter basis, orders of $105.5 million this quarter increased 9 percent from the first quarter, while second quarter sales and net income were relatively flat with prior quarter results.

Balance sheet performance during the second quarter remained strong. Cash, cash equivalents and temporary cash investments increased $3.9 million to $96.2 million notwithstanding the company's repurchase of 487,000 shares of common stock on the open market during the quarter.

Second quarter's positive cash flow reflects continued improvements in asset management with accounts receivable and inventory balances decreasing 4 percent and 11 percent, respectively.

Sales for the six-month period were $213.3 million, 9 percent above the $195.0 million for the like period in fiscal 1990. Year-to-date net income was $9.9 million, or 34 cents per share, vs. $6.5 million, or 22 cents per share, last year.

Sales for the last four quarters were $437.4 million, a 6 percent increase from sales of $413.9 million for the year-earlier 12-month period. Net income of $23.9 million was 6 percent below the $25.4 million posted a year earlier for the like four quarters.

RICHARDSON, TX (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Cyrix Corp. Thursday announced the filing of a comprehensive anti-trust suit against Intel Corp. on Dec. 19, 1990 citing numerous violations of anti-trust laws in the past year.

Founded in 1988 to design, develop and market math coprocessors, Cyrix has developed an original, highly advanced way of performing complex mathematical calculations. Introduced in 1989, the new Cyrix math coprocessors perform math operations -- particularly complex operations -- faster, more accurately, and with less power consumption that Intel math coprocessors.

Independent industry analysts have confirmed that Cyrix math coprocessors are compatible with the Intel math coprocessors but significantly outperform them.

Beginning in January 1990, and continuing to the present, Intel has engaged in a campaign of unlawful exclusionary practices to protect its coprocessor monopoly from competition by Cyrix. These practices are the subject of Cyrix's complaint in both Federal and state courts.

VANCOUVER, WA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Pacific Telecom Inc. (NASDAQ:PTCM) announced Thursday that it had made an offer to the board of directors of Mid-Plains Telephone Inc. to acquire the company by exchanging $51 million in PTI's parent company common stock, PacifiCorp, in exchange for all of the common stock of Mid-Plains.

The closing price of PacifiCorp stock, which currently pays an annual dividend of $1.44 per common share, was $22-1/8 per share at Dec. 19, 1990.

Under the terms of the offer, a subsidiary of PacifiCorp would acquire in a merger Mid-Plains through an exchange in which Mid-Plains shareholders would receive approximately 1.19 shares of PacifiCorp common stock for each share of Mid-Plains common stock based upon Mid-Plains 1,933,467 currently outstanding shares. The transaction would be subject to approval by the board and shareholders of Mid-Plains and certain regulatory agencies.

The shares of PacifiCorp stock to be used in the merger would be acquired in the open market by a subsidiary of PacifiCorp in accordance with PacifiCorp's previously announced stock repurchase program. However, it is expected that ultimately Mid-Plains would become a subsidiary of Pacific Telecom. Pacific Telecom expects to provide the cash needed to fund the open-market purchase of the PacifiCorp stock primarily through a combination of debt and equity issuances and proceeds from the potential sale of non-core assets. This transaction would be similar to those recently used by Pacific Telecom to acquire North-West Telecommunications and other telephone company properties in the Midwest.

Mid-Plains Telephone Inc. provides local telephone service for the communities of Middleton, Cross Plains and the west side of Madison, Wis. At Dec. 31, 1989, Mid-Plains had over 18,000 access lines. As a limited partner, Mid-Plains also has minority ownership interests in cellular telephone service in the Madison, Wis., Janesville/Beloit MSA and a portion of Wisconsin RSA 9. At Sept. 30, 1990, Mid-Plains had total assets of $27.3 million and reported revenues and net income of $7.7 million and $1.2 million, respectively, for the nine months ended.

C.E. Robinson, chairman and chief executive officer of Pacific Telecom said: ''This offer is consistent with our commitment to expand our business of providing quality communication services in the rural and suburban areas of Wisconsin. We currently serve over 90,000 access lines in Wisconsin through the seven subsidiary telephone companies that we own in the state. We believe that Mid-Plains' operating philosophies and commitments to quality service are similar to ours. The combination of the strengths of Mid-Plains and our Wisconsin companies will help us better serve the communication needs of the people in the state of Wisconsin.''

LAS VEGAS, NEV (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Dunes Hotels and Casinos Inc. (''DHC'') announced Thursday that a Nevada state court judgment on a condemnation verdict was entered in favor of a subsidiary against the State of Nevada for approximately $14,500,000.

DHC also announced that the condemnation award has not been paid and that the State's appeal rights have not been waived or exhausted.

DHC believes that the State of Nevada is likely to appeal the judgment. Due to these uncertainties, DHC is unable to assess the impact of the judgment on its financial condition or results of operations, or accurately predict the time at which it may realize any part of the judgment or the amount which it may realize, if any.

Burten Cohen, president of the DHC subsidiary, stated that, ''While I am pleased with this result, I have been in this business long enough to know that an appeal can take years.''

DHC owns and operates agricultural property in Central California, and holds other land in Northern California for development and investment. Its principal offices are located in Las Vegas.

WESTBOROUGH, MA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - John J. Cullinane was elected today to the board of directors of Sentry Publishing Co. Inc., a privately held technology-based publishing and information services firm headquartered here.

Cullinane, a well-known entrepreneur and pioneer in the computer software products business, founded Cullinane Corp. in 1968, a year before IBM's historic unbundling of software prices. Buying software separately rather than paying for it as a hidden cost of the hardware quickly became the alternative form of buying, and it propelled the independent software business to its current annual volume of $30 billion.

A Cullinane-Sentry Publishing Co. joint venture plan was also announced today by Sentry president William A. Gannon. Under the plan, Cullinane will develop a new information technology division of Sentry to be called The Cullinane Group. The new division will produce information technology publications, conferences, and related services for senior information systems managers of large corporations.

For the past year, Cullinane served as a Fellow at Harvard University's Center for Business and Government at The John F. Kennedy School of Government. In this capacity, he authored a paper entitled ''Widows and Orphans'', examining the American financial system from the perspective of the CEO and entrepreneur. He also introduced the concept of a forum for CEOs at The Kennedy School, addressing issues of great importance to both business and government, including most recently, a conference on the credit crunch and its impact on American business.

Sentry publishes Software Magazine, a monthly magazine serving 100,000 corporate software managers worldwide, and Military & Aerospace Electronics, a newsmagazine serving 46,000 designers of advanced electronic systems for military and aerospace applications. Sentry also publishes newsletters which address highly focused niche areas in the software field, and it operates Sentry Market Research, a division which has a client list of over 400 software, computer, investment banking, and consulting firms.

COLLEGE POINT, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - EDO Corp.'s (NYSE:EDO) Government Systems Division announced Thursday that it had completed negotiations with McDonnell Aircraft Co., a division of the McDonnell Douglas Corp. (NYSE:MD), for an $11.4 million follow-on production contract for Ejection Release Units (ERUs) to be utilized on the U.S. Air Force F-15E ''Eagle.''

The contract represents the sixth year that EDO has been selected to provide ERUs to McDonnell's F-15E program. When completed, the contract will bring the total number of ERU units produced for the F-15E program to over 3,000.

Ira Kaplan, vice president and general manager of EDO's Government Systems Division, stated: ''EDO is recognized as a world leader in armament release technology, having produced ejection release units for a number of aircraft programs including the Navy F-14, Air Force F-15E and NATO Tornado.

''In addition to current ERU production contracts such as that for the F-15E, EDO has R&D programs working on next-generation stores release technology to meet the future needs of other advanced aircraft such as the ATF.''

The ERUs under this contract will be manufactured at EDO's College Point, N.Y. and Salt Lake City, Utah, facilities and will be delivered through the year 1992.

AKRON, OH (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank One, Akron, N.A. announced Thursday that it has reached an agreement in principle to acquire $19 million in deposits from two branches of the Citizens Banking Co. of Salineville, Ohio.

Under the agreement, Bank One, Akron will acquire the deposits of Citizens branches in Hartville and Belden Village in Jackson Township. Both locations were formerly Midland Buckeye Savings branches recently acquired by Citizens, along with seven other branches, from the Resolution Trust Corp. The purchase is subject to regulatory approval, expected within 90 days. Bank One, Akron, which currently has branches in both of these communities, anticipates an easy transition for Citizens customers.

''We are pleased to welcome our new customers and look forward to providing them with quality service in an atmosphere of financial security,'' said Richard D. Headley, chairman and chief executive officer for Bank One, Akron. ''In addition to a full range of personal and commercial banking services, Bank One offers customers the stability and strength of one of the largest and most successful banks in America,'' he said.

According to Senior Vice President Paul Greig, accounts at both locations will be serviced through nearby state-of-the-art Bank One branches. In Hartville, customers will be served by Bank One's full-service branch now being constructed at 901 West Maple Street. The branch will feature all consumer and business banking services, drive-up banking, 24-hour Automated Teller Machines (ATMs), as well as safe deposit boxes.

In Belden Village, customers will be serviced by Bank One's Financial Marketplace at 4600 Dressler Road, N.W. In addition to innovative consumer banking programs, the financial center features a travel bureau, safe deposit boxes, a trust department, business banking and investment services. The office is open seven days a week to better serve its customers.

Customers are advised to bank as usual, for the time being, said Greig. ''We will communicate with them on an individual basis very soon to discuss all the advantages of becoming a Bank One customer. We will also explain how Bank One will conveniently transfer their accounts without interruption of service,'' he said.

In the meantime, Bank One has established a toll-free hot line to answer all customer questions. The number to call is 1-800/388-8236. Bank One also will ahve representatigves available in the Hartville and Belden Village offices of Citizens Bank to answer questions and provide information to customers beginning Dec. 24.

SANTA ROSA, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Optical Coating Laboratory Inc. (OCLI) and Donnelly Corp., of Holland, Mich., announced Thursday that they have completed an agreement to form a joint venture for the complete commercialization of high technology, thin film, solid-state, electrochromic coatings.

The new company created by this agreement will be called Electrochromic Technology Co.

Both parent companies have been working together for a number of months since signing a letter of intent to finalize an agreement for the venture and continued development of solid-state electrochromic coatings.

The development of the technology and manufacturing process will be completed shortly and it is expected that small volume production will begin in a period of months. Initial production will take place at OCLI facilities in Santa Rosa. It is anticipated that a new production facility will be required in three to four years.

Rolf F. Illsley, chairman of the board for OCLI, stated: ''OCLI is looking forward to continuing our long-term relationship with Donnelly Corp. The development and manufacture of solid-state electrochromic technology which has been made possible through this joint venture will dramatically affect many products.''

Electrochromic Technology Co. expects to begin production of a solid-state exterior electrochromic mirror for heavy trucks within the next several months. This mirror can be manually actuated by the driver of the vehicle to reduce the glare of headlights from vehicles following the truck. The new mirrors have been very well received by truck drivers during trial runs.

Electrochromic Technology Co. will be owned on a 50/50 basis. Each parent company will have the right to purchase coated glass from the venture to serve customers in their respective markets. For OCLI, those markets include photographics, optical instruments, ophthalmics, copiers, passive display enhancement and aerospace.

For Donnelly, glass will be purchased for use in the automotive market. Both parties may purchase glass for other markets which they may develop.

Solid-state electrochromic coatings are thin film coatings on glass which are only a few millionths of an inch thick and can be changed from light to dark by subjecting the coating to an electric current. The coating darkness will be variable and controllable to meet the preferences of the user. These coatings are particularly well suited to products requiring large areas of glass (both flat and curved).

OCLI is the world's largest independent manufacturer of thin film coated products. The company also markets its processing technology and thin film coating equipment for specialized applications. Optical and electro-optical systems, such as computer displays, photocopiers, medical equipment, satellites and lighting systems depend on OCLI's precision coatings for accuracy and performance.

Donnelly Corp. is an international company dedicated to serving customers around the world with high quality fabricated, molded and coated glass products for the transportation and electronics markets.

ANTWERP, Belgium (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Shlomo Dovrat, president and chief executive officer of OSHAP TECHNOLOGIES LTD. (NASDAQ/NMS:OSHSF) Thursday announced that the company's TECNOMATIX MEDICAL subsidiary received an order from its distributor in Japan for an additional quantity of PRIMUS machines, valued at over US $2.2 million.

The order will be delivered in the fourth fiscal quarter of 1990 and the first half of fiscal year 1991. This order was placed by the TECNOMATIX distributor in Japan, a large trading company, reflecting its expectation that PRIMUS will obtain market approval by the Ministry of Health in Japan within the next few weeks. The order is not contingent upon approval of PRIMUS by the Ministry of Health in Japan. PRIMUS will be the only machine of its kind approved for sale in Japan.

Dovrat stated, ''The order from Japan is an indication of the potential contribution we anticipate TECNOMATIX MEDICAL to offer OSHAP in the future. The order further establishes the credibility of PRIMUS in the international marketplace and puts the medical division in a good position for significant growth in the coming years.''

The company also announced that MANOF SYSTEMS, an OSHAP subsidiary, signed a joint venture agreement with SUTER & SUTER of Switzerland. The agreement calls for SUTER & SUTER to invest SF 600,000 (approximately US $470,000) and MANOF SF 100,000 (approximately US $78,000) in a new company to be established in Switzerland for the purpose of marketing and selling MANOF's inter-bank communications software.

MANOF SYSTEMS will have a 50 percent interest in the new company and will receive a percentage on each sale.

Dovrat added, ''This agreement is an important milestone for MANOF in launching its new product MINT, an advanced software for inter-bank communications. The agreement reflects the belief by a major European company in the potential of this new product.''

AMHERST, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Mark IV Industries Inc. (NYSE:IV) Thursday announced income from continuing operations for its third quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990, of $6.1 million, compared with $6 million in the same period last year.

Per-share income from continuing operations increased 9.8 percent to 45 cents from 41 cents (37 and 34 cents fully diluted, respectively), due to both slightly higher income and 8.5 percent fewer shares outstanding in the current period. All per-share calculations have been adjusted for the company's 5 percent stock dividend paid on July 2, 1990.

Net income for the third fiscal quarter was $6.8 million, or 50 cents per share (41 cents fully diluted), including an extraordinary gain of $700,000, or 5 cents per share. Net income in last year's third quarter was $50.1 million, or $3.38 per share ($2.62 fully diluted).

Last year's third-quarter results included an extraordinary gain of $8.3 million, resulting from the repurchase of the company's debt securities and a $35.8 million gain from the sale of Blackstone Corp., which was accounted for as a discontinued operation.

Sales for the third quarter increased 11 percent to $228.4 million, from $204.9 million in the third quarter of fiscal 1990.

For the first nine months of fiscal 1991, Mark IV's income from continuing operations, before investment gains, was $19.6 million, or $1.40 per share, up from $18.8 million, or $1.20 per share in the same period last year ($1.17 and $1.03 fully diluted, respectively).

Mark IV reported net income of $20.9 million, or $1.49 per share, compared with $66.4 million, or $4.24 per share, in the same period last year ($1.24 and $3.39 fully diluted, respectively).

Net income for the first nine months of fiscal 1991 included investment gains of $600,000, or 4 cents per share, compared with $3.6 million, or 23 cents per share, for the same period a year earlier.

The first nine months of fiscal 1991 also included extraordinary gains of $700,000, or 5 cents per share, compared with $9.5 million, or 61 cents per share, in fiscal 1990. Income from discontinued operations for the first three quarters of fiscal 1990 was $34.5 million, or $2.20 per share.

Sales for the first nine months of fiscal 1991 were $673.5 million, an increase of 6 percent from $634.3 million in the same period last year.

Mark IV Industries, with headquarters in the Buffalo suburb of Amherst, is a diversified manufacturer of products in three business segments: Technical Products and Systems; Engineered Products and Systems; and Transportation Products and Systems.

SANTA ANA, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - TriCare Inc. (NASDAQ:TRCR), a leading occupational health care services company in California, announced record operating results for its fiscal 1991 second quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990.

For the three months ended Nov. 30, 1990, the company's net revenue increased 73 percent to $8.8 million from $5.1 million for the same period a year ago. Net income was $578,000, a 46 percent increase over net income of $397,000 reported in the second quarter of fiscal year 1990.

Earnings per share increased to 15 cents, a 15 percent increase over earnings per share of 13 cents in the same prior year period. The number of shares outstanding increased by 30 percent as a result of the company's initial public offering completed in February 1990.

For the six months ended Nov. 30, 1990, TriCare's net revenues increased 73 percent to $17.1 million from $9.9 million for the same period a year ago. Net income was $1,126,000, a 49 percent increase over net income of $759,000 reported for the same period a year ago.

Earnings per share increased to 29 cents per share, a 12 percent increase over earnings per share of 26 cents in the same prior year period.

Announcing the results for the second quarter, Steve Bullock, president and chief executive officer of TriCare, said, ''TriCare's continued growth results from the company's entry into new business and continued growth of the medical evaluation business.''

Larry Wasserman, chief financial officer of TriCare, said, ''The company's operating results were consistent with management's expectations.'' He also related that the occupational treatment acquisition completed in May 1990 has been fully integrated into TriCare.

Bullock added that: ''The company is evaluating growth opportunities through geographic expansion and new services. Future acquisitions will be evaluated as they present themselves.'' He added that, ''TriCare's progress toward becoming the leader in the occupational health care services industry is on schedule.''

HICKSVILLE, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Great Earth Vitamin Stores, part of the Evergood Products (OTC:EVGD) family of companies, has signed a multi-unit development agreement with a group of investors including Mitchel Feinglas to open as many as 10 retail locations, including at least three nutritional supplement and body care centers adjacent to Modell's Sporting Goods stores on Long Island.

The agreement gives the Hicksville-based 150-store chain its first retail locations in the northeast United States, according to Mel Rich, president of Great Earth. Retail locations are currently concentrated primarily in California, Texas and the Midwest, but Great Earth recently began recruiting franchisees for locations in 40 states.

Feinglas said his first Great Earth units will be located adjacent to Modell's stores in Centereach (at Route 25 and Middle Country), Bayshore (2040 Sunrise Highway) and Lake Success (150 Union Turnpike). He said construction is already under way and employees are being recruited for specialized Great Earth training. The new Great Earth stores are scheduled to open just before Christmas.

Great Earth Vitamin Stores has grown to become one of the nation's largest vitamin and nutritional supplement chains. Since beginning operations nearly 20 years ago, Great Earth has pioneered development of a number of proprietary nutritional formulations.

In addition to the Great Earth chain, Evergood Products encompasses Great Earth Distribution and Phoenix Laboratories, which manufactures pharmaceuticals as well as Great Earth and private-label nutritional supplements. Evergood Products reported gross sales of over $22.6 million in fiscal 1989.

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Coca-Cola Enterprises Inc. (NYSE:CCE) announced today the completion of the 25 million share repurchase program initiated in December of 1988. During the fourth quarter, CCE repurchased approximately 1.5 million shares from both public shareholders and The Coca-Cola Company, completing the program on schedule. ''CCE's ability to make this kind of strategic investment without increasing its debt leverage is a testimony to the strength of our Company's cash flow generation capabilities '' said Brian G. Dyson, president and chief executive officer.

CCE also announced that its Board of Directors has approved a new share repurchase program of up to 15 million shares of its common stock. The shares will be repurchased over time and funded from excess cash flow. The timing for execution of share repurchase transactions will be a function of relative share price and generation of cash flow that maintains CCE's debt as a percent of total capital within previously announced targets.

To the extent CCE's debt to total capital ratio is below 55 percent resources will be allocated to share repurchase after discretionary capital expenditures and strategic acquisitions. At this debt to total capital level CCE will use excess cash flow for share repurchase as long as the stock price remains at an attractive operating cash flow multiple. When CCE's debt to total capital ratio exceeds 55 percent, CCE will only repurchase shares if they are trading at a significantly more attractive multiple of operating cash flow. At the end of 1990, CCE expects its debt to total capital ratio to be approximately 56 percent. Therefore, CCE does not expect to repurchase shares until the second or third quarter of 1991.

The Coca-Cola Company has indicated its intent to participate in the share repurchase program in order to maintain its ownership interest in CCE at 49 percent, consistent with its participation in the share repurchase program just completed. As a result, CCE will repurchase shares from both public shareholders and The Coca-Cola Company in connection with the 15 million share repurchase program.

Separately, CCE indicated it has adopted a recently issued accounting principle relating to underground fuel storage tanks. The principle defines the criteria that allow certain remediation expenditures to be capitalized. The Company currently estimates it will capitalize approximately $16 million in 1990 and an aggregate of $43 million during 1991, 1992 and 1993 for expenditures related to federal and state requirements for maintenance and use of its underground fuel storage tanks.

SARASOTA, FL (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Elcotel Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:ECTL), manufacturer of public communications products, announced Thursday that C. Shelton James has been elected to the Board of Directors as the fourth outside director.

The addition of James increases the Elcotel Board to six members. James is executive vice president of Fundamental Management Corp. which is the beneficial owner of approximately 5 percent of the outstanding shares of Elcotel.

The company also announced today the election of Don C. Fletcher as senior vice president and chief engineer of Elcotel.

George C. Pierce, chief executive officer, commented, ''Mr. James is an excellent addition to our Board. He was Executive Vice President of Gould, Inc. and President of its Computer Systems Division from 1980 to 1989. Previously, Mr. James was Vice President of Finance and Secretary/Treasurer of Systems Engineering Laboratories. His top management experience with these high technology businesses will significantly benefit Elcotel as we proceed with our turn-around program.

''The addition of Don Fletcher to our senior staff is equally important. Mr. Fletcher holds a PhD in Engineering Science from the California Institute of Technology and an undergraduate degree from MIT in Applied Mathematics. Until he joined Elcotel, Mr. Fletcher provided consulting services through his company, Macroplex Corporation, in signal processing, computer systems, and wave propagation. He has held senior engineering positions with R&D Associates, RCA, and System Engineering Laboratories,'' Pierce concluded.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Damon Group Inc. (OTC:DMNG), formerly American Magnetics Corporation, announced the results of Damon Corporation, its principal business unit, for Damon Corporation's fiscal year ended August 31, 1990.

For fiscal 1990, Damon Corporation's sales were $216.4 million, representing an 18 percent increase over Damon Corporation's revenues from the clinical laboratory business for fiscal 1989. Damon Corporation's earnings before depreciation, amortization, interest and taxes, and after minority interests (''EBDIT'') were $30.1 million, which equaled 3.3 times 1990's net cash interest expense (excluding amortization of financing fees) and 1.2 times total 1990's interest expense (excluding amortization of financing fees).

For fiscal 1990 Damon Corporation reported a net loss of $10.9 million and a net loss applicable to common shareholders of $20.7 million. Included in the fiscal 1990 results are non-cash charges related to depreciation and the amortization of goodwill and financing fees incurred in the acquisition of Damon Corporation, totaling $15.7 million. As a result of the acquisition of Damon Corporation in May 1989 and the resulting changes in the basis of accounting, Damon Corporation's 1990 financial statements are not comparable to certain prior historical financial information.

Robert L. Rosen, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of both Damon Group and Damon Corporation stated, ''During fiscal 1990 Damon Corporation completed its transformation into a pure clinical laboratory company while continuing to achieve strong revenue and EBDIT growth.'' Rosen noted, ''Damon Corporation had repaid its $50 million Bridge Loan and at August 31, 1990 had over $15 million of cash and unused lines of credit.'' Rosen also stated, ''Based on current conditions in our industry, I am encouraged about the outlook for Damon Corporation's fiscal 1991.'' Damon Corporation is one of the leading clinical laboratory companies in the U.S.

MARIETTA, GA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - A key order for eight P-3C Orion aircraft and the rollout and flight test of the two YF-22 Advanced Tactical Fighter prototypes highlighted a dynamic year for Lockheed (NYSE:LK) Aeronautical Systems Co.

The order for eight P-3C maritime patrol aircraft by the Republic of Korea navy will allow the company to reopen the Orion assembly line in Marietta, with delivery of the aircraft slated for 1995. The restart of the line is a move company officials hope will result in sales to other customers.

The P-3 win provided a lift for the company following the U.S. Navy's July termination of the P-7 project. That aircraft was also slated for assembly in Marietta.

The first Lockheed team-designed ATF prototype made its public debut Aug. 29 and its first flight Sept. 29. Since then, both prototype airframes have made a number of flights gathering performance data in support of the team proposal to the Air Force, to be turned in Jan. 2, 1991.

Lockheed, teamed on the ATF project with Boeing and General Dynamics, will perform final assembly of the next-generation fighter here, should the team be awarded the contract May 1.

In internal activities, the Lockheed Corp. board of directors voted in May to reorganize the aeronautical group into two separate, complementary companies, with headquarters in Marietta. All large scale production and modification will be centered in Marietta, while the specialized, classified projects will be done by the Lockheed Advanced Development Co. -- commonly known as the Skunk Works -- in Palmdale, Calif.

After two years of declining employment figures, the level in Marietta stabilized at about 10,000 during 1990. Some 500-600 people will move to Georgia in early 1991 under the company's consolidation, with another 300 jobs waiting on the ATF win before moving here.

LASC's long-running aircraft production program, the C-130 Hercules, continued in Georgia at a rate of three aircraft a month. During 1991, 38 aircraft were delivered, bringing the total to 1,955 aircraft delivered to U.S. military and commercial customers, and to customers in 62 other countries since the program began in 1955. Some 30 aircraft are on order by U.S. and foreign customers.

In the commercial arena, Lockheed won an extension to a contract with Boeing to produce through 1995 a variety of aircraft parts for Boeing's 700-series aircraft. Some of the parts will require machining in LASC's long parts processing facility, a state-of-the-art center designed to fabricate parts well over 100 feet long.

Boeing also named LASC to its Supplier Hardware Acceptance Program, which means LASC-produced parts have been consistently at such high quality levels, they bypass acceptance inspection by Boeing.

BASKING RIDGE, NJ (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T Thursday predicted it will handle more than 90 million long-distance calls this Christmas, a record for holiday calling and an increase of nine percent over last Christmas.

AT&T's lower evening and night/weekend rates will be in effect all day on Christmas and apply to AT&T state-to-state calls from all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. From 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Christmas Day, AT&T's prices will be 32 percent lower on average than its daytime prices. A 20-minute, direct-dialed, state-to-state call to anywhere in the continental United States on Christmas Day will cost less than $3.00.

Subscribers to AT&T Reach Out (R) America plans will receive additional savings depending on which plan they have.

Although AT&T handles between 110 to 120 million calls on an average business day, many of those calls are made to toll-free 800 numbers or placed on WATS lines, which are typically used by businesses. Fewer calls may be made on a holiday, but callers tend to talk longer so network use is heavy.

To get the most benefit from their holiday calling, AT&T suggests customers:
o Call between 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. when calling within the United States. Calling volumes traditionally are lower. If calling internationally, consider calling Christmas Eve. o Be sure they've reached their chosen long-distance company at public phones while traveling over the holidays. AT&T customers need to listen for the AT&T name and, if they don't hear it, hang up and dial 10-ATT-0, then the number they're calling. o Dial directly, including international calls. Most customers can dial their own calls directly to more than 177 foreign countries and territories. Local telephone directories can help callers determine whether they can dial a specific country directly. If customers need international calling assistance, they can call 1-800-874-4000. o Callers who live in areas without international direct-dial service can make AT&T international calls at direct-dialed prices even though such calls must be placed by AT&T operators.

BURBANK, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - MATTHEWS STUDIO EQUIPMENT GROUP (NASDAQ Symbol: MATT) Thursday announced that for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1990 revenues were $19,986,000, and net income was $456,000, or $.06 per share.

Revenues increased over 35% from fiscal 1989's revenues of $14,711,000, and net income increased by more than 230% over the prior year's $138,000, or $.02 per share.

The per share amount for fiscal 1990 was based on a substantially greater number of average shares outstanding. Average shares outstanding in fiscal 1990 were 7,946,553 as compared to 5,843,333 in fiscal 1989.

The company noted that approximately two-thirds of the increase in revenues was attributable to the significant expansion of the operations of Hollywood Rental Co., MATTHEWS' equipment rental business. The remaining portion of the increase in revenues resulted from the operations of Innovative Television Equipment, a designer, manufacturer and marketer of camera support equipment used in film and television production, which was acquired during fiscal 1990, and from sales generated by other MATTHEWS manufacturing operations.

Commenting on the 1990 results, MATTHEWS Chief Executive Officers, Carlos De Mattos and Edward Phillips, stated that net income for the 1990 fiscal year was negatively impacted by significant first year costs and expenses associated with the expansion and added financial and administrative costs required to serve the needs of a growing company during its first year as a public company.

As MATTHEWS STUDIO EQUIPMENT GROUP enters its third decade, it is the preeminent provider of services to the worldwide motion picture, television and media production industries by supplying the professional equipment, accessories, supplies and other basic tools of the trade required in film, television, commercials, professional photography and theatrical productions.

These services are provided through MATTHEWS' manufacturing and rental ''one stop shop'' facilities.

RACINE, WI (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Modine Manufacturing Company expects to receive on Dec. 26 approximately $18.5 million in damages, including pre- and post-judgment interest, from its patent infringement lawsuit, Richard T. Savage, president and chief operating officer, announced today.

''We've been advised that the motion for a rehearing before the Appeals Court by the Allen Group's G&O Manufacturing Division has been denied,'' Savage said. ''Payment of the award is likely no later than December 26.''

In 1985, following many years of development, Modine obtained its basic patent on the Beta-Weld(R) radiator, which had its first and largest application on heavy trucks. The innovation became the first ''million-mile radiator,'' increasing structural durability and reliability by up to ten times over conventionally made radiators and also provided resistance to solder-coolant corrosion.

After the U.S. patent was issued, Modine filed the lawsuit in 1985 against the Allen Group's G&O Manufacturing Division, the largest infringer on the patent. A jury trial in 1989 in the Federal District Court for Northern California found that the patent was valid and that G&O had willfully infringed it. In January 1990, Modine accepted a judge's offer for damages of $14 million plus interest for lost profits because of the patent violation. This summer, Modine won an Appeals Court decision that upheld the validity of the patent and the willful infringement claim.

Modine, which is traded on the NASDAQ over-the-counter market as a National Market Issue, is an independent, worldwide leader in heat-transfer technology, serving vehicular, industrial, and building HVAC (heating, ventilating, air-conditioning) markets.

HAUPPAUGE, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Standard Microsystems Corp. (NASDAQ:SMSC) sales and revenues were $22,503,000 for the third quarter ended Nov. 30, an increase of 18.3 percent compared to $19,017,000 for the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year.

This represents the highest level of sales and revenues for any quarterly period in the history of Standard Microsystems Corp. Licensing revenues included in sales and revenues for the three month period ended Nov. 30 were $2,761,000, as compared to $3,975,000 for the comparable period ended Nov. 30, 1989 and, for the nine month period ended Nov. 30 increased to $8,218,000, compared to $7,654,000 for the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year.

Net income for this third quarter was $412,000 or 4 cents per share, compared to net income of $1,552,000, or 14 cents per share in the corresponding quarter of the previous fiscal year.

The decrease in net income was primarily the result of a decrease in licensing revenue of $1,214,000, reflecting certain non-recurring payments by one licensee in the corresponding quarter of the prior fiscal year and the continued downward price pressure on DRAM products manufactured by some of the company's patent licensees, increased costs incurred as a result of the legal proceedings initiated by Standard Microsystems Corp. against Texas Instruments Inc. (T.I.), which amounted to approximately $475,000, and higher levels of investment in research and development and publicity and advertising associated with the introduction of a more complete line of Ethernet (TM) products for the System Products Division.

For the nine months ended Nov. 30, sales and revenues were $63,825,000, compared to $56,063,000 for the corresponding period of the prior fiscal year. During this nine month period, the company recorded net income of $1,358,000, or 12 cents per share, compared to $3,270,000, or 29 cents per share for the comparable period of the previous fiscal year.

When comparing the nine month period ending Nov. 30 to the same period of the previous fiscal year, the primary items contributing to the overall decrease in net income are the cost associated with the T.I. litigation and the higher levels of investment in research and development and publicity and advertising for the System Products Division's new Ethernet products.

Standard Microsystems Corp. designs, develops, manufactures and sells standard custom and semicustom metal-oxide- semiconductor/very-large-scale-integrated (MOS/VLSI) circuits and System products (hardware and software) for use by original equipment manufacturers and end users.

The company's component products are focused primarily in the computer peripherals market with applications in Mass Storage, Communication and Networking. The company is a leading producer of Local Area Network products and is the largest manufacturer of ARCNET (R) coax, twisted pair and fiber optic System products. ARCNET is a registered trademark of the Datapoint Corp. Ethernet is a trademark of Xerox Corp.

HOUSTON (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - STARS (Satellite Transmission and Reception Specialists) announced Thursday that it has recently signed three major contracts for the construction, installation and maintenance of satellite communications systems to be deployed in Saudi Arabia.

The contracts call for the construction of eight transportable fully insulated shelters containing electronics and equipment for the satellite transmission of telephone communications. The units will enable STARS' customers to provide telephone communications to American service personnel between Saudi Arabia and the United States.

Customer commitments were obtained from mid-November through early December. In less than 30 days, STARS purchased and expedited delivery of component equipment from suppliers nationwide. STARS technicians and contract personnel worked around-the-clock to build the units to meet accelerated delivery deadlines.

STARS technicians and contract installation personnel are presently working on location in Saudi Arabia. Six of the units have been shipped from STARS' facility in Houston during the last 10 days. The two remaining units are scheduled to be shipped out of Houston this week. Additional STARS technicians will depart for the region shortly thereafter.

Security restrictions and contractual agreements prohibit the disclosure of specific terms and conditions of the transactions. However, STARS President and CEO David G. Olson said, ''The value of these equipment and service contracts will exceed several million dollars.''

Further, Olson stated, ''Our technical staff has done an outstanding job on the most demanding short-term project in which STRS has ever been involved. Once again, STARS employees have demonstrated the skill, teamwork, and dedication necessary to provide world-class service to our customers.

''We are all proud to be a part of providing telephone communication services to our American service personnel, and are particularly pleased with the commitment of the STARS technicians who volunteered for the on-location assignment in Saudi Arabia.''

STARS owns an international satellite communications network and maintains offices in Houston, Los Angeles, New York, Denver and Mexico City.

CLEVELAND, OH (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Cleveland-Cliffs Inc. today reported that it expects to receive $66.9 million in cash and stock from Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corporation's bankruptcy reorganization plan that was confirmed by the Bankruptcy Court on December 18, 1990. Wheeling's distributions will begin following a ten day appeal period. After income taxes, Cliffs' net proceeds are expected to be $44.2 million or $3.78 per share.

Cliffs' pre-tax receipts are expected to consist of $56.0 million in cash and 968,889 shares of new Wheeling common stock. The stock is valued at $10.9 million based on a right to convert the stock to cash for $11.25 per share at a later date, expected to be late May, 1991.

Wabush Mines, a Canadian iron ore joint venture managed by Cliffs, is expected to receive U.S. $39.7 million, consisting of $33.3 million in cash and 568,889 shares of Wheeling stock valued at $6.4 million based on the cash conversion right. Cliffs' indirect share will be $2.9 million after tax, which will be retained in Wabush to fund required capital expenditures including a major emission control project.

The combined claims recoveries are expected to result in an after tax gain for Cliffs of $47.1 million, or $4.03 per share in the fourth quarter of 1990. Expenses of $1.0 million after tax have been previously recorded for pursuit of the Wheeling claim since April, 1985. Cliffs may receive an undetermined amount of additional cash and stock when Wheeling eventually settles all contested claims from a Disputed Claims reserve fund.

Cliffs' allowed claim against Wheeling reflected damages incurred when Wheeling rejected certain ore purchase contracts and partnership obligations at the Tilden Mine, a Michigan iron ore facility managed by Cliffs, in 1985. Wheeling affirmed its 10-percent interest in the Empire Mine, also managed by Cliffs in Michigan, in 1989 which mitigated a substantial portion of Cliffs' original claims. Cliffs also has claims against Sharon Steel Corporation and LTV Steel Company which are in the process of reorganization under the bankruptcy laws. The Wabush claim arose from Wheeling's rejection of its interest in the venture.

In October, 1987, Cliffs initiated a plan to distribute to shareholders the net proceeds received from its bankruptcy claims in recognition of the losses incurred by shareholders in earlier years. The Board of Directors will consider the distribution of the Wheeling claim proceeds at its regular meeting on January 8, 1991.

Subsidiaries of Cleveland-Cliffs Inc manage six iron ore mines in North America and Australia. The Company holds a major iron ore reserve position in the United States and is a substantial iron ore merchant.

MIAMI (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - FRENCHTEX, INC., (NASDAQ Symbol:FRCH) Thursday announced the results of operations for the fiscal year end July 31, 1990, and unaudited first quarter results for the period ended October 31, 1990. The first quarter results reflect the major acquisition on July 31, 1990 by Frenchtex of 82 percent of Deritex, N.V., the second largest towel mill in Belgium.

Revenues for the first quarter ended October 31, 1990 increased 541% to $4,581,958 from $714,595 in the comparable quarter in fiscal 1989. The Company reported net income of $358,481, or $.20 per share, compared to net income of $47,313, or $.03 per share, for the same period last year. Net income in the first quarter of fiscal 1991 was untaxed because of tax loss carryforwards.

In commenting on the first quarter results, Don M. Waters, President of FRENCHTEX, Inc. stated, ''We are immediately profiting from Deritex, N.V.'s strong position and reputation in Europe as a quality towel manufacturer. New cost cutting programs have been and are continuing to be implemented to enhance profit performance. We anticipate that the Company will continue to increase its sales and profits for the next quarter and for the fiscal year.''

In view of the strong profit performance, the Board of Directors declared for the first time a cash dividend of $.10 per annum for all shareholders of record as of January 10, 1991. The cash dividend will be distributed on January 18, 1991.

For the year ended July 31, 1990, revenues increased 136 percent to $3,080,749 from $1,306,915 for the 1989 fiscal year. The Company reported a net loss of $100,707, or $.05 per share compared to net income of $127,521, or $.10 per share for 1989.

Don M. Waters stated, ''Last year's loss was attributed to a sluggish economy and a weak dollar. These factors coupled with last year's inventory writedowns of several large retail customers caused a disappointing profit performance. We are extremely excited, however, about the major acquisition of Deritex, N.V. and the financial impact that the European performance has already produced during the first quarter of fiscal 1991.''

NEWARK, NJ (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - New Jersey Bell introduced a number of new services, invested millions of dollars in its network to ensure quality and made a major new commitment to state education in 1990.

Answer Call, Send-A-Call and 900 number blocking are examples of the new services that were introduced.

With Answer Call, each member of a household may have a ''voice mailbox'' and record a personalized greeting for callers. If a caller gets a busy signal or no answer, he or she may leave a message in the voice mailbox for the specific person being called.

The called party hears a ''stutter'' dial tone and knows that a message is waiting. Messages are retrieved by dialing a personal password to reach the appropriate mailbox.

A trial of similar service for public telephones, called Send-A-Call, was begun in Plainfield, N.J.

With Send-A-Call, public telephone users may leave a message if they get a busy signal or no answer when making a local call. The service attempts to deliver the message every 15 minutes for up to two hours if the line is busy and every 30 minutes for up to four hours if there is no answer.

To meet the needs of people who do not want calls to 700 and 900 service numbers to be made from their phones, an optional 700/900 blocking service was introduced.

Residential and business customers may block calls to 700, 900 or both 700 and 900 numbers. A number of customer complaints about charges for calls to 900 numbers prompted New Jersey Bell to offer the blocking option.

Caller ID, the service that displays the number of the person calling before you answer the phone, continued to be very popular with customers. Nearly 100,000 people subscribed to the service. In addition, more than 60,000 people subscribed to the other CLASS Calling Service features like Return Call Call Block and Repeat Call.

A milestone was reached on March 18 when a digital electronic switch was installed on the Franklinville central switching offices, making New Jersey Bell's statewide network fully electronic.

Analog electronic and digital electronic switches make possible services such as the CLASS Calling Service features.

NAZARETH, PA (DEC. 10) BUSINESS WIRE - Nazareth National Bank, based in Nazareth, Thursday announced a $1.2 million contract with NCR to automate its network of seven branches.

The enterprise-wide solution includes branch/self-service, platform, teller and back-office NCR automation systems.

Nazareth National Bank is the first community bank in the United States to purchase the NCR System 3000, running NCR's Banker II software.

''This leading-edge computer system will enable us to provide our branch customers with faster service and remain competitive in today's rapidly changing marketplace,'' said S. Eric Beattie, president and chief executive officer of Nazareth National Bank. ''We selected NCR because of its open systems capabilities. The NCR System 3445 and related hardware/software will allow us to better serve our customers.''

Phase one of the bank's automation, scheduled for completion in May 1991, focuses on branch and teller automation, as well as updating the bank's back-office processing.

Nazareth National Bank is expanding its self-service capabilities and replacing its on-line teller systems. With the new NCR 5085 ATM features, customers can perform a wide range of financial transactions without the assistance of a customer service representative.

For example, customers will be able to instantly cash the entire amount of a check to the penny, or take a smaller sum and deposit the remainder. The NCR 5682 ATMs will allow customers to purchase Certificate of Deposits (CDs), and receive account statements and installment loan information. The new self-service system is scheduled for completion in first quarter 1991.

To enhance its back-office processing capabilities, Nazareth National Bank will install the NCR System 3445 running NCR's Banker-II software, a complete account processing system. It features a central database that enables the bank to generate complete customer profiles, combined statements, and unlimited automatic transfers between any accounts in the database.

Back office functions will be automated with 29 NCR 2900 CRT terminals, 26 NCR 386sx-based personal computers, 15 NCR 6417 printers and 3 NCR 6424 letter quality printers. The bank is also implementing an NCR Tower-based Check Reader Sorter system for processing checks.

Nazareth National Bank, a $215 million regional bank, has seven branches in the Lehigh Valley area. In its 92nd year in the banking business, Nazareth National Bank continues to pursue its objetive of growth and community contribution.

SAN MARCOS, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Natural Alternatives International Inc. (NASDAQ:NATA), manufacturer of specially formulated vitamins and minerals, anticipates a decline in revenues and a moderate loss in its fiscal second quarter ending Dec. 31, 1990, Mark A. LeDoux, president, said.

In the same quarter last year NAI had revenues of $2,694,052 and net income of $236,158 or six cents per share.

This year's second quarter was adversely affected by inventory adjustments among certain major customers which sharply reduced shipments during the period, LeDoux said. Indications are that previous order patterns will be restored in the third quarter, he added.

LeDoux said that NAI is negotiating with several large organizations for new private label distributing arrangements, and that he believes one of these programs will be consummated in time to contribute substantially to revenues and earnings in fiscal 1991's second half.

Founded in 1980, Natural Alternatives is a marketing-oriented company that formulates and encapsulates vitamins, micro nutrients and related nutritional supplements. The company provides innovative private-label vitamin products for specialty corporate or commercial customer accounts.

NAI's new Sonergy division markets the company's products to mass-market retailers such as supermarket and drug store chains.

DEER PARK, NY (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - As previously reported in Firecom's 10-Q (10-31-90) and as indicated in the second quarter earnings news release, Firecom's Capital And Surplus as of 10-31-90 was negative ($640,000).

This is despite the first six months net income of $461,000. The negative Capital And Surplus is due to prior year's losses associated with the operation and final sale of Firecom's Auth Company Division. NASD has a minimum Capital And Surplus requirement of $375,000 for continued listing on NASDAQ. Therefore, NASD has deleted Firecom from its Automated Quotation System.

Firecom stock will continue to be listed in the ''Pink Sheets''. Additionally Firecom's management had submitted a plan to NASD that called for the company to be in compliance of the minimum Capital & Surplus requirement by April 30, 1991. This plan included both operating earnings and raising new capital. While an exception by NASD was not granted to Firecom, if the company is able to implement these plans by March 15, 1991, then NASD will re-list Firecom on its Automated Quotation System.

QUINCY, MA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Clean Harbors Inc. (NASDAQ:CLHB) Thursday announced that a group of three banks has approved the terms of a new $40 million revolving credit facility which will be used to refinance the company's current bank debt, which was approximately $27.5 million at Nov. 30, 1990.

At present, the company is able to meet all its current obligations, including scheduled amortization of its debt, with funds generated from operations. The company expects to complete its refinancing without having to raise additional capital and plans to meet its cash requirements, including scheduled capital expenditures, with internally generated funds and future borrowings under the new bank credit facility.

The company has decided to postpone its planned offering of senior and subordinated debt, which was announced in July 1990, as a result of its improved cash position and its reduced cash requirements in light of the recent denial of the permit for the proposed hazardous waste incinerator at its Braintree, Massachusetts facility.

EVANSVILLE, IN (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of Old National Bancorp (NASDAQ:OLDB) has declared a stock dividend and authorized the repuchase of up to 5 percent of its outstanding common shares.

Old National Bancorp Chairman, Dan W. Mitchell, said, ''The plan to repurchase common shares on the market is a continuation of a long-standing buy-back program which has facilitated our many stock dividends and has enabled our stock to maintain high value.''

The 1-for-20 stock dividend is payable Jan. 31, 1991, to shareholders of record Jan. 17, 1991 (ex-dividend date for broker trading - Jan. 11, 1991). The stock dividend results in an effective increase in the cash dividend yield since Old National expects to continue paying its current 21 cents per share quarterly cash dividend in 1991.

This is the fifth successive year-end 5 percent stock dividend declaration and the 10th stock dividend or split declared by Old National Bancorp since the holding company was formed in 1982.

In other action the board appointed Phelps L. Lambert to the board of directors. Lambert is the chairman and chief executive officer of Farmers Bank & Trust Co., Old National's affiliate bank in Henderson, Ky. He has been with Farmers Bank since 1978 and was a practicing attorney prior to joining the bank.

An active supporter of the Henderson community, Lambert is a director of the Henderson/Henderson County Industrial Foundation and has served as director of the YMCA.

The Old National Bancorp board of directors also approved two promotions. Clyde W. Howlett and Steve H. Parker have been named senior vice presidents of the holding company.

Howlett has been with the Old National organization since 1962. He has managed the credit and commercial lending departments of Old National's lead bank in Evansville, and in 1987 was made vice president - chief credit officer for the holding company.

As such, he has been responsible for the lending divisions at all affiliate banks. A native of Louisville, Howlett earned an Associate of Arts Degree from Los Angeles Junior College and attended Los Angeles University. He is a 1968 graduate of the Stonier Graduate School of Banking.

Parker joined the holding company in 1985 as vice president - chief financial officer and has been responsible for financial management throughout Old National Bancorp since that time. He is a certified public accountant who began his career in 1973 with Arthur Andersen & Co. in Indianapolis, where he was the manager of the audit division.

Parker graduated from Ball State University in 1973 with a B.S. Degree in Accounting. He has an M.B.A. from Vanderbilt University.

In announcing the promotions, Mitchell noted, ''Both Mr. Howlett and Mr. Parker have played leading roles in building our holding company through numerous mergers and they have implemented important internal quality control programs which are serving us well currently and will be most useful in the company's future.''

OCONOMOWOC, WI (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Stokely USA Inc. announced Thursday that it has reached an agreement in principle with Del Monte Foods for the purchase of a Del Monte Foods processing plant located in Wells, Minn.

The plant, which processes peas and corn, currently has annual production capacity of approximately 2 million cases. An ongoing supply contract is part of the transaction. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

''The Wells plant will provide us with needed capacity and allow us increased production flexibility,'' Stokely Chairman Joseph B. Weix stated. ''It will be our first facility in the productive southern Minnesota growing area. The addition of this region to our already diverse base of growing areas will improve the stability of our raw product supplies, quality and pricing.''

Peter J. Krull, who is currently assistant plant manager at the Wells facility will assume the position of plant manager for Stokely. He has been with Del Monte for 16 years in various production and agricultural positions.

Stokely USA processes and markets a broad range of canned and frozen vegetables, fruits, tomato products and juices under the nationally recognized Stokely's Finest(R), Stokely's Singles(R) and other brand labels; under customer private labels; and to the food service industry. MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Allied Telesis Inc., ATI, has moved to a new, 29,000 sq. ft. manufacturing and marketing facility in Mountain View, Calif.

The three-year-old company grew consistently throughout 1990 and projects annual sales of its LAN (Local Area Network) building blocks to reach $34 million, with revenues expected to double in 1991.

Allied Telesis is also a leading supplier in Japan, and has recently established European subsidiaries in the U.K. and Germany. ATI supplies a broad array of computer networking products, which it markets as building blocks in the creation of local area and enterprise networks. The company operates on a global scale through distributors and dealers.

''In the simplest terms, the reason for our rapid growth is that we provide superior quality products at extremely competitive prices,'' says Takayoshi Oshima, president and founder of the company.

''Of course, we have also developed strong relationships with our channels of distribution, and we have been steadfast in introducing only products that conform with published standards -- the investments of both our customers and our resellers are therefore protected.''

Allied Telesis manufactures and markets transceivers, bridges, concentrators, network interface cards and a variety of other products used to create and manage computer networks.

CHICAGO (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - United Airlines' friendly skies are matched on the ground with donations of nearly 30 tons of surplus food every month to people in need in 10 U.S. cities where the airline's flight kitchens are located.

''United has strong connections to the communities that host our operations,'' said Stephen M. Wolf, chairman and president. ''We serve the traveling public but we also believe in supporting those who may not have the privilege of flying.''

The surplus food program, which started last summer in Denver, is working now in Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Honolulu, Newark, N.J., Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, and Washington (See note below).

United's flight kitchens prepare approximately 165,000 meals for more than 150,000 customers every day.

Donations consist of fresh trimmings from lettuce and tomatoes, surplus fruit, eggs and cheese, day-old breads, meat carvings, extra packaged snacks, crackers and cookies, as well as bulk items such as chocolate chips or canned mango slices that are no longer part of a current menu.

United employees package the surplus food, and local social service organizations pick up the donations on a regular basis. Larger kitchens, such as those in Denver and Chicago, contribute as much as 500 pounds of food each day to these agencies.

''If United stopped its donations,'' commented Elizabeth Horn, executive director of the Central Denver Community Service Center, ''nearly one-third of our clients would go unserved.''

In the San Francisco Bay area, United's donations are meeting an especially urgent need. According to the Second Helping food bank, 40 percent of all people seeking food assistance are children under the age of 12.

''Not only has United donated protein snacks that are perfect for an agency that caters to people forced to live on the streets, but, more importantly, United has donated milk for thousands of children who would otherwise be deprived of this important source of calcium,'' said Maria Sonnen, program coordinator.

FORT WAYNE, IN (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - The Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. and Dai-ichi Life Insurance Agency (U.S.A.) Inc. have signed agreements to market managed health care products and pension products to affiliates of Japanese companies in the United States.

These agreements are part of a series of reciprocal business relationships established between the two companies as the result of a strategic alliance announced in June between Lincoln National Corp., parent company of Lincoln National Life, and Dai-ichi Mutual Life, parent company of Dai-ichi Life (U.S.A.).

Under the agreement, Dai-ichi will work with Lincoln National's sales force and contracted brokers to provide Lincoln National products to Dai-ichi's Japanese customers who have business operations in the United States.

Signing the agreement for the group life-health products of Lincoln National Life and Lincoln National Administrative Services Corp. were John P. Cole, executive vice president and chief executive officer of the Employee Benefits Division, and Carolyn M. Nightingale, vice president of marketing. Signing for Dai-ichi Life (U.S.A.) were Shoichi (Steve) Tatsuta, president, and Kazunori Yamaguchi, executive vice president.

Signing the agreement for the Pension Investment Division of Lincoln National Life was Michael E. McMath, senior vice president of corporate pensions. Tatsuta signed for Dai-ichi Life (U.S.A.).

Under terms of the managed health care agreement, Dai-ichi will recommend and promote Lincoln National's products to its customers in those markets where Lincoln National operates provider networks. The agreement between the two companies also involves a reinsurance contract signed by Lincoln National and Dai-ichi on October 31.

Under similar terms of the pension investment agreement, Dai-ichi Life will recommend and promote Lincoln National's pension products to its U.S.-based customers.

Lincoln National's Pension Investment Division provides individual and commingled investment accounts as well as administrative services to sponsors of qualified retirement and savings plans. Assets under management exceed $4.6 billion.

Dai-ichi Mutual Life is the third largest insurer in the world. It reported assets of $110 billion and revenues of $33 billion at the end of its fiscal year in March.

The Employee Benefits Division of Lincoln National ranks among the nation's 10 largest health insurers and managed care companies. The company operates in nearly 40 major markets throughout the United States, managing provider networks in more than 115 cities. Lincoln National Administrative Services Corp. manages the company's health maintenance organizations, in addition to providing administrative services for self-insured employer groups.

Lincoln National Life is an affiliate of Lincoln National Corp. (NYSE:LNC), the nation's seventh largest multiline insurance holding company. With headquarters in Fort Wayne, Lincoln National provides property-casualty insurance, employee life-health benefits, individual life, reinsurance and investment products through its companies. The joint venture will be known as the ''Rio Chiquito Mining Co.'' Sunshine Mining Co. has the option to earn a 50 percent interest in and become the manager of the venture after complete analysis of all available data including a recently completed 13,000 foot drilling program.

If Sunshine elects to proceed, Mallon will retain a 35 percent interest in the project while Red Rock Ventures will retain 15 percent.

The 36-hole drilling program, designed to define a minimum of 300,000 ounces of gold which could be mined starting as early as mid-1991 by open pit methods was completed on Dec. 10. The preliminary assay results from the first 30 holes indicate that 16 holes contain ore grade mineralization across mineable widths, while 11 holes intersected mineralization in excess of .10 ounces per ton gold.

The widest intercept assayed .149 ounces per ton gold across 79 feet: the best grade intercept to date is 14.8 feet at .484 ounces per ton gold. This initial drilling program investigated only one of four major target areas on the 15,000 acre concession area. It is believed that the potential of the concession could exceed 1 million ounces of gold.

MEMPHIS, TENN (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Seven Oaks International Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:QPON) Thursday announced that it has obtained a new two-year, $12 million line of credit.

Funds from the new financing have been used to eliminate the company's other credit agreements and will be sufficient to provide additional working capital to support Seven Oaks' clearinghouse operations.

Frank J. Donato, chief executive officer, said that the company remains committed to reducing its borrowings further. He remarked, ''The projected trend in our coupon volume indicates that we will likely utilize at least a portion of the new credit facility through the close of fiscal 1991.

''Our intent, however, is to continue adjusting our customer base to minimize the level of borrowings and interest expense.''

Donato highlighted the results of the company's actions to date by noting that the borrowings at the end of October were down $20.1 million from the start of fiscal 1991 and represented a reduction of $46.2 million from the level outstanding less than two years ago at the beginning of fiscal 1990.

He said, ''The resulting benefit to Seven Oaks has been a sharp reduction in interest expense. In the second fiscal quarter, interest expense declined 58 percent from a year ago. The expected downward trend in this expense item over the remainder of fiscal 1991 will importantly support our efforts to restore Seven Oaks' profitability.''

Seven Oaks International operates as a clearinghouse between retailers and product manufacturers in processing cents-off coupons. The company's common shares are traded over-the-counter under the National Market System symbol QPON.

TUPELO, MS (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Bank of Mississippi (NASDAQ: BOMS) is the successful bidder for the building which formerly served as the main office of Unifirst Bank for Savings in Jackson.

The eight story brick and marble structure, located at Capitol and State Streets, was purchased from the Resolution Trust Corp.

Bank of Mississippi also purchased the building which housed a Unifirst branch on Pear Orchard just north of County Line Road in Madison County.

The bank has also purchased property at Crossgates in Brandon for a new branch location. That property was also owned by Unifirst.

Aubrey B. Patterson Jr., president and chief executive officer of Bank of Mississippi said, ''The acquisition of these two structures along with two United Mississippi branches purchased last month has positioned us to compete successfully and to increase our share of the Jackson metropolitan market.

Patterson added, ''The purchase price of the building at Capitol and State, the Pear Orchard location, the property in Brandon, plus associated renovation and construction, amounts to a total investment in excess of $6 million.

''We see this as a sound investment in Mississippi's largest financial market.'' Work on the renovations will begin immediately and should be completed in late spring.

The former Unifirst building, built in 1960, is located on the southwest corner of the intersection of Capitol and State streets. The banking and office space comprise 84,972 square feet, and there is an adjoining paved parking lot of approximately 32,280 square feet.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - Blount Inc. (ASE:BLT.A) Thursday reported net income of $4.2 million (35 cents per share) for the third quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990.

This compares to net income of $3.4 million (28 cents per share) during last year's third quarter. This year's results include a $1.2 million (10 cents per share) after-tax extraordinary gain from the repurchase of $13.8 million of the company's subordinated notes.

Last year's results included a $.5 million (4 cents per share) net loss from discontinued operations. Third quarter sales and revenues were $185.2 million compared to $165.2 million last year.

For the nine month period ended Nov. 30 Blount reported net income of $4.2 million (35 cents per share), compared to net income of $12.8 million ($1.06 per share) in the prior fiscal year's nine month period.

Last year's nine month results included $6.4 million (53 cents per share) income from the resolution of tax matters principally related to foreign tax credits and royalties and a $2.9 million (24 cents per share) loss from d)3conw3/42pPoperations. Year-to-date sales and revenues were $528.9 million compared to $528.2 million in the prior year.

R. William Van Sant, Blount Inc. president and chief executive officer, said: ''We are generally pleased with the quarter's results, especially given the state of the economy and current situation in the Persian Gulf. Our emphasis during the balance of the year will be to minimize the impact of a softening economy while maintaining longer-term programs for growth and building value.''

The Outdoor Products segment had a good quarter, reporting operating income of $8.6 million and sales of $55.9 million compared to $7.9 million in operating income and $47.1 million sales in last year's third quarter.

Nine month operating income was $14.9 million compared to $15.1 million last year while sales increased to $143.1 million from $125.1 million the prior year.

Current year results reflect increased expenditures related to new product development and the implementation of new manufacturing systems at the Oregon Cutting Systems Division. The division also experienced costs associated with a two-month shutdown of its Brazilian factory due to conditions affecting that country's economy. Contributions from Dixon Industries Inc., acquired April 1990, are consolidated in the segment's results.

Operating income from Industrial and Power Equipment was $.9 million compared to $1.6 million last year. Sales were $22 million compared to $24.5 million last year. For the nine month period sales were $68 million and operating income was $2.8 million compared to last year's sales of $69.3 million and operating income of $3.2 million.

Current year results reflect lower order levels due to economic conditions affecting the operation's principal markets, particularly pulp/paper and forestry products. The results also include increased expenditures related to the startup of manufacturing operations at the group's new facility in Owatonna, Minn.

RAHWAY, NJ (DEC. 20) BUSINESS WIRE - In response to inquiries Merck Thursday announced that it has entered two closely related compounds into very preliminary Phase I human studies as potential therapies for AIDS.

Both compounds are reverse transcriptase inhibitors -- that is, they interfere in the test tube and in cultured human cells, with the activity of an enzyme called reverse transcriptase which is produced by the virus and is necessary for its growth.

The purpose of these Phase I studies is to determine the safety, tolerability and the pharmacokinetics of the compounds. For example, how are the compounds absorbed, what are the safe doses, how often can they be given, and how should they be formulated so that they can be delivered in the body where needed? Until Merck has that information -- and that will take some time, even under the accelerated development schedule -- the company will not be able to determine whether the compounds actually have an antiviral effect in people.

While Merck is proceeding as expeditiously as possible, and in close cooperation with the National Institutes of Health and the Food and Drug Administration, company officials stress that most compounds at such an early stage of investigation fail. Indeed, during the past several years, Merck has had antiviral AIDS compounds which have failed in test tube or animal studies because they proved toxic, ineffective, or inadequate in terms of absorption or use.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows Triton Energy Corp.(TICKER: OIL) received a favorable arbitration award from the American Arbitration Association in a proceeding convened with respect to the Enim Oil Project in South Sumatra, Indonesia.

As a consequence of this award, Triton is owner of a 100% interest in Enim Oil Project, Triton reports.

Among the Arbitration Association's findings were the following:

On or before Jan. 21, 1991, Veronex Resources Ltd. must pay to Triton $930,821 including cash call deficits, as well as all of Triton's legal and arbitration costs.

Veronex's 40% participating interest in the Enim Oil Project (including the areas of mutual interest) has been converted into a 5% net profits interest.

Triton will remain as operator and its participating interest ownership has increased from 60% to 100%.

Veronex may not consult or deal with Pertamina, the Indonesian national oil company, on matters concerning the Enim Oil Project, except at Triton's request, and must refrain from participating in and interfering with the operations of the project.

Administrative fees and expenses of the arbitration association must be paid by Veronex, and the award is in full settlement of all claims and counterclaims by either party.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows in October, 1990, Traditional Industries Inc.(TICKER: TRAD) and several of its wholly-owned subsidiaries were the subject matter of a civil contempt citation filed by attorneys for the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC"), Seattle Regional Office.

On Aug. 16, 1989, Traditional agreed to a consent order in that court enjoining certain sales practices.

The FTC maintains Traditional and certain subsidiaries violated the injunctive and reporting provisions of the consent order by failure to pay $145,000 due to the FTC from unused consumer relief funds and failure to escrow consumer relief funds.

Traditional also, the FTC contends,violated the consent order by its failure to provide certain customers with cancellation questionnaires and to cancel all customers requesting cancellation under the decree; continuing to use for periods in 1989 and 1990 the terms "guaranteed," "custom" and "professional" in connection with its description of its photographic services to prospective customers when, under the definitions in the decree, the company was not entitled to utilize such terms; and failure to provide written instructions to sales personnel and receive from sales personnel an acknowledgement of receipt of such instructions and agreement to abide by them.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) COMTEX - The 8-K report filed at the SEC shows a wholly-owned subisidary of Insituform of North America Inc.(TICKER: INSU), NU-PIPE Inc., has entered into NuPipe Process License Agreements with its first four licensees: Insituform Mid-America Inc.(TICKER: INSM), NuPipe Southeast Inc., as subsidiary of ENVIROQ Corp., Naylor NuPipe Inc., a subsidiary of Insituform Gulf South Inc.(TICKER: IGSI), and NuPipe Midwest, a division of Midwest Environment Services Inc., an affiliate of Insituform Midwest Inc.

The agreements grant to such licensees the exclusive right to exploit the NuPipe Process in an assigned territory, covering, in the aggregate for such four licensees, 23 states and portions of two additional states, as well as Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

Insituform of North America reports the NuPipe Process is the company's second trenchless process for the rehabilitation of sewers, tunnels and pipelines, and utilizes a flattened and folded pipe manufactured from a thermoplastic material which is stored on a reel in the reduced shape and heated at the installation site to make the replacement pipe flexible.

The flexible pipe may then be inserted into an existing manhole, pulled into place, and then expanded to a round condition, fitting tightly against the pipe being repaired.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) - A senior general's statement that U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia will not be ready for war by the January 15 U.N. deadline for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait has irked U.S. officials bent on standing tough in the Gulf crisis.

The Defense Department sought to put its own spin on the comment by Lieutenant General Calvin Waller, the deputy commander of U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia, saying Thursday "he was talking about the whole package" of U.S. forces in the Gulf region.

"There is a difference between coming to the conclusion that some units won't be ready and saying that we don't have the capability to go on the offensive," said Bob Hall, a Pengtagon spokesman.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also tried to minimize the impact of Lt. Gen. Waller's remarks, made Wednesday in Saudi Arabia, saying, "What he really said is that they might not be as ready as they would like to be."

Other government officials expressed irritation at the remark, as did congressional supporters of President George Bush's policy in the Gulf.

"This is not the message we were trying to send now," an anonymous official told The New York Times. Other officials said the Waller remarks could lead Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to the wrong conclusion about U.S. determination to drive him out of Kuwait.

One backer of administration policy in the Gulf, Democratic Representative Robert Torricelli of New Jersey, said the president needed to "get his own military under control."

"The president has been saying that Saddam must not receive any comfort from the Congress, whatever our private hesitations. Now to have such hesitations being expressed publicly by our own military is really distrurbing," Mr. Torricelli said.

ROME (DEC. 20) - European Community foreign ministers and their counterparts from 11 Latin American countries signed a cooperation agreement here Thursday.

''We want to help the governments and the peoples of Latin America with the democratisation process,'' said Italy's foreign minister, Giannni de Michelis. He said the pact was ''the formal recognition of South American countries' return to the community of democratic nations''.

The agreement, called the Declaration of Rome, calls for annual meetings at the ministerial level. The signatories pledged to support liberal trade practices and to help developing countries with their foreign debt.

Latin American countries had been concerned that the single European market, due to take effect in 1993, would erect trade barriers with the rest of the world.

The E.C. has already signed similar agreements with the United States and Canada - in November - and with Central America - in 1984.

Attending the conference in the Italian capital were the foreign ministers of Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Equador, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela as well as their counterparts from seven of the 12 E.C. countries.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Japan's direct investment overseas in fiscal 1989, ending in March this year, soared 43.6 percent from the preceding fiscal year to 67.54 billion dollars, a semi-governmental body said Thursday.

It was the third year in a row that Japan's direct overseas investment had risen 40 percent or more, the Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) said in an annual report.

Such investment jumped 51.8 percent to 33.90 billion dollars in North America and soared 62.4 percent to 14.81 in the European Community, the report said.

But Japanese direct investment in foreign countries dropped 10.2 percent in the first half of fiscal 1990, which started in April this year, compared to a year earlier.

The amount, 27.68 billion dollars, reflected sagging stock prices and higher interest rates in Japan, JETRO said.

It said Japan should increase investment in the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Central and South American countries.

ACCRA (DEC. 20) - Palestine Liberation Organization (Plo) leader Yassir Arafat Thursday paid a one-day ''working visit'' to Ghana as part of an African tour to drum up support for the organization's stand linking the Gulf crisis with the Palestinian issue.

Arafat met with his host, Ghanaian leader Jerry Rawlings, for about one hour in private talks. No statement was issued.

He told reporters shortly before he left for an undisclosed destination that the Plo had ''offered some proposals'' towards finding a solution to the Gulf crisis to save and protect the lives of all the people in the region.

He denounced the ''double standards'' of the United States, saying that while it still supports Israel despite atrocities against the Palestinian people, the administration of President George Bush still dragged its feet on the implementation of United Nations Security Council resolutions regarding Palestinian rights.

PARIS (DEC. 20) - Credit Lyonnais bank has boosted its stake in Altus Finance (formerly Thomson CSF-Finance) by 15 percent, increasing it from 50.01 to 65 percent, the Thomson-CSF share declining to 35 percent, CL announced here on Thursday.

The bank said the move was strengthening its stockholders' equity by 1.5 billion francs (300 million dollars).

The deal was approved Thursday at a special CL stockholders' meeting.

Thomson-CSF is transferring 6,612,163 shares in Altus Finance to CL, receiving in exchange 1,322,570 new Credit Lyonnais shares, with dividend rights as of last October.

Thomson-CSF now holds, directly and indirectly, a total of 16.67 percent of the CL share capital.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) - U.S. Secretary of State James Baker said Thursday he still hoped that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would receive him for talks on one of the dates proposed by Washington.

Iraq could ''later regret'' not having held the talks, Baker said.

The U.S. has proposed that Baker and Saddam meet in Baghdad between December 20 and January 3. Iraq, meanwhile, insists that talks be held January 12, just three days before the United Nations' deadline for Baghdad to withdraw from Kuwait or face the use of military force.

Because of the stalemate, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz cancelled talks with U.S. President George Bush planned for this past Monday.

Baker said he was prepared to travel to Baghdad ''on a moment's notice'' even during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Asked if Aziz ought to come to Washington first, Baker said that Bush thought he should.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) - The U.S. government was non-committal Thursday over remarks by the deputy commander of U.S. forces in the Gulf that his troops would not be ready for combat on January 15.

Secretary of State James Baker said he would not comment on the statements, adding that when he was in the Marine Corps, ''it was considered critical to preserve the element of surprise''.

Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall neither confirmed nor denied remarks by Lieutenant-General Calvin Waller that major reinforcements were still en route and would not be combat-ready until sometime between January 15 and mid-February.

Waller made the remarks just after U.S. Defence Secretary Richard Cheney's arrival Wednesday in Riyadh on a five-day visit.

Cheney held more talks there Thursday with the Saudi defence minister, Prince Sultan bin Abdul-Aziz, on military coordination between the two countries and Operation Desert Shield, a Riyadh-based U.S. Central Command spokesman said.

BEIRUT (DEC. 20) - Lebanese President Elias Hrawi appointed Omar Karami as prime minister Thursday to form a new government entrusted with implementing law and order after nearly 16 years of civil war.

A statement by the presidential palace said Hrawi appointed 54-year-old Karami a lawyer from Tripoli, northern Lebanon, to form the new cabinet at the end of consultations with members of the parliament Thursday evening.

Karami replaces prime minister Salim al-Hoss, who resigned to make way Wednesday. The step was in line with a new constitution that was worked out by the Lebanese parliament in Taif, Saudi Arabia, in October last year so as to end the war.

It lays down that Moslems and Christians are to share cabinet and parliamentary seats equally with the prime minister being a Sunni Moslem. The formula kept the presidency in the hands of the Christians and the post of speaker of parliament for a Shiite Moslem.

Formation of a national unity cabinet is the second stage in the fullfillment of the Taif pact. The first stage was the reunification of the capital Beirut and suurounding areas under the authority of the central government and army after all militas had left the city.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 20) - The 12 nations of the European Community (E.C.) will force all new-model cars to be fitted with U.S.-standard catalytic converters from the middle of next year, ministers agreed here Thursday.

The recommendation has only to be approved by the European Parliament in Strasbourg in order to become law.

The tough car-emissions standards are roughly similar to those prevailing at present in the United States, though Washington is known to be planning to halve exhaust limits again in 1995.

Several Community countries such as France had previously resisted low-emission laws, saying their motor-car industries might lose sales, and pollution levels were not high enough to justify action.

Environment ministers agreed that the tough new rules will apply to all new cars from the start of 1992, but will take effect early for model changes in mid-1991. The standards can only be met by fitting the cars with three-channel catalytic converters.

Used cars may also be affected. The ministers gave their blessing to tax rebates for cars that continue to meet the standards while in use. A german-led group meanwhile persuaded the others to consider in the course of 1992 even tougher emissions standards.

RIYADH (DEC. 20) - A number of U.S. anti-tank aircraft will start deploying in the Gulf after the U.N. deadline of January 15 for Iraqi troops to withdraw from Kuwait, a U.S. military official said here Thursday.

The U.S. Air Force's 10th tactical fighter wing based at Alconbury, England, will begin deploying A-10 "tank killers" on January 23, he said, without disclosing how many would be sent and how long the deployment would take.

The announcement came a day after the deputy commander of U.S. forces in the Gulf, Lieutenant General Calvin Waller, said U.S. forces would not be combat-ready for possibly a month after the United Nations deadline.

The U.N. Security Council has endorsed the use of force unless Iraqi troops withdraw from Kuwait by January 15.

The general, who spoke to reporters visiting Saudi Arabia with U.S. Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, added he would oppose a U.S. military strike until such forces were ready.

Reacting to the statement, U.S. Defense Department spokesman Pete Williams said here that Mr. Cheney would not decide when the forces would be combat-ready until the end of his visit.

"And when he reaches a conclusion, he will convey it to the president," a statement from Mr. Williams said.

"As General (Colin) Powell said in his statement to Congress, some parts of the force become ready before others. The air part of the force, for example, reaches its level of readiness earlier than the others," Mr. Williams said.

Mr. Cheney and Chief of Staff General Powell arrived in Saudi Arabia on Wednesday to review military strategy with U.S. Gulf Forces Commander General Norman Schwarzkopf.

The two, who met with Gen. Schwarzkopf and other field commanders Wednesday and again on Thursday, are due to leave on Sunday.

TOKYO (DEC. 21) - The Japanese economy is still on an expansionary track, entering its 49th straight month of growth, but the grow rate is slowing down, the Economic Planning Agency said Friday.

The agency said in its monthly report that continued growth was powered by steady domestic demand led by high-level corporate fixed investment, strong personal consumption and brisk corporate profits.

But the report said that for the latter half of the current fiscal year, ending next March, the manufacturing sector will experience a 1.1 per cent sales decline while the non-manufacturing sector will see a 6.7 per cent decline.

Agency officials said the governemnt was confident of growth, but added that if industries took a more cautious view and cut back on plant investment, things could reach a peak.

Turning to prices, domestic wholesale prices were lifted by the rise in chemical products due to the Gulf crisis while consumer prices remained stable.

The report, however, confirmed the slowdown in economic growth, saying Japan's money supply in November showed the slowest pace of expansion in 11 months, from 11.8 per cent in October to 10 per cent in November, its third consecutive decline.

It also noted that Japan's gross national product (GNP) grew at an annual pace of 4.1 per cent in the July-September quarter, down from the previous quarter's 5.5 per cent.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Japanese trading firm Tomen Corp. said Thursday it had agreed to acquire 40 per cent of Australia's Wingham Abattoirs and Anvic Meat Exports Pty. Ltd. for six million Australian dollars (four million U.S.).

Tomen said the acquisition, making it the largest shareholder, would help it prepare for the opening of the Japanese beef market to imports in April.

The company said imports of chilled beef from Wingham would double from 3,000 tonnes a year to 6,000 tonnes over a five-year period. As a result,

Wingham's sales are expected to increase from 40 million dollars (30 million U.S.) to 100 million dollars (75 million U.S.) in the same period.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Japanese shipbuilders in the first eight months of fiscal 1990 received orders for 131 ship totalling 6.293 million gross tonnes, up 23 per cent from the same period last year, the Japan Ship Exporters' Association said Thursday.

Oil tankers accounted for 80 ships, or 5.237 million gross tonnes of the total during the April to November period. Orders for cargo ships totalled 31 ships (568,650 gross tonnes), and there were orders for 12 bulk cargo ships (427,030 gross tonnes) as well as for another eight vessels (60,910 gross tonnes).

But orders received in November totalled only four ships, aggregating 145,900 gross tonnes, plunging 81.8 per cent from a year earlier and registering a second consecutive year-on-year decline.

Association officials said shipping owners were taking a "wait-and-see" attitude towards ordering new ships in the wake of the Gulf crisis, reflecting their concern over the outlook for the world economy, inflation and the weakening yen.

HANOI (DEC. 20) - The Laotian government has approved 104 foreign investment projects worth more than 200 million dollurs in the past two years, the Vietnam News Agency (VNA) has reported.

Sectors boosted by foreign investment between 1988 and November this year included agriculture, tourism and hotels, import-export, banking, construction, timber and rattan, transport, aviation and mining, VNA said late Wednesday, citing the Laotian news agency KPL.

It said that eight of the 104 projects worth a total 226,314,000 dollars had been abandoned.

Investors came from Thailand, Vietnam, China, Taiwan, Hong Kong, Singapore, the United States, Japan, France, Canada, Australia, Sweden, Denmark, Britain, Portugal and the Soviet Union.

A separate KPL dispatch said that two-way trade between Vientiane and Moscow in the past five year had been worth 305 million roubles (555 million dollars), with Laos in deficit.

Laos exported some 43 million roubles (78 million dollars) worth of goods, mainly timber products, coffee and tin, and imported 262 million roubles (477 million dollars) worth including communications equipment, vehicles, spare parts, medical equipment, fuel, steel and cement.

In addition the Soviet Union granted Laos scientific and technical aid worth three million roubles (5.5 million dollars).

The current five-year economic cooperation pact between the two countries is due to end this month and economically battered Moscow is expected to cut back aid and ask for cash payment in future trade with Laos, one of the poorest countries in the world.

JAKARTA (DEC. 20) - Indonesia's national carrier, Garuda Indonesia, plans to begin flights to China, Singapore, Taiwan, Japan and Australia, the official Antara news agency reported Thursday.

Garuda is awaiting government approval to open twice-weekly flights from Jakarta to Singapore, Guangzhou and Beijing, Antara quoted Head of Commercial Division Max Sahulata as saying.

Airline industry sources say they expect the flights to China, with which Indonesia reopened diplomatic ties in August, to begin in April.

Mr. Sahulata said the state-run airline planned to concentrate more in the Asia-Pacific region in the coming years by opening new routes and increasing frequencies.

The airline had already placed orders worth over four billion dollars for 64 new jets to add to its current fleets of 74.

Beginning in February, the airline under a joint venture operation with China Airlines will begin a weekly direct flight between Taipei and Denpasar, capital of the Indonesian holiday island of Bali, he said.

Garuda was currently negotiating to up the frequencies of its flights to the Japanese cities of Fukuoka and Nagoya, he added.

The airline had also just clinched Australian government approval to open routes to Brisbane, Adelaide and Cairns, in addition to its existing services to Sydney, Melbourne, Perth and Darwin, Mr. Sahulata said, adding that some of these new routes could be opened before the middle of 1991.

Indonesia has declared 1991 as Visit Indonesia Year, during which the number of foreign tourists is expected to reach 2.4 million from 2.2 million this year and 1.63 million in 1989.

WELLINGTON (DEC. 20) - Minority shareholders of the ailing Bank of New Zealand Thursday voted to approve a rescue plan.

At the bank's annual meeting, 800 shareholders approved an issue of 250 million New Zealand dollars (150 million dollars U.S) in new capital to major shareholders: the government, which holds 58.2 per cent of the current shares, and merchant bank Fay Richwhite with 29.9 per cent.

The bank ran into trouble over its poorly performing Australian loans portfolio and the new share issue is part of a 620 million dollar (381 million U.S.) government-funded bailout.

Only one shareholder voted against the share placements, but many voiced their displeasure at the bank's past performance and periodic releases of bad news which have seen the value of their shares dive.

There were calls for an official inquiry into what one shareholder called the bank's "disastrous events" over the last few years.

Chief executive Lindsay Pyne said the bank had established integrity into its management system. "We are in the business of lending money. It is a risk business and we are establishing policies, procedures and practices that willstand the test of scrutiny of good banking practices", he said.

"It is important to note that none of the loans that have gone into this reconstruction of the bank have been written by the current board and management," he added.

The capital-raising, through the issue of 200 million new ordinary shares to the government at a subscription price of 70 cents (42 U.S.) a share and 130.95 million preference shares to Fay Richwhite at 84 cents (50 U.S.) each, is to satisfy Reserve Bank capital adequacy requirements following the removal of deferred tax assets from the bank's balance sheet.

It is the second part of a restructuring which also involves quarantining of 2.8 billion dollars (1.68 billion U.S.) of mostly under-performing loans into a new company, Adbro, owned by the government and Fay Richwhite.

JAKARTA (DEC. 20) - Indonesia's export growth slowed this year with earnings rising 6.2 per cent in the first eight months to 15.10 billion dollars, the Central Bureau of Statistics (CBS) said Thursday.

The CBS said in its latest report that earnings from oil and gas exports grew in January-August to 5.96 billion dollars, up 6.38 per cent compared to a year earlier, while revenues from non-oil commodities rose during the same period by 6.1 per cent to 9.14 billion dollars.

In contrast, oil and gas exports grew 13 per cent and non-oil exports by 17 per cent in the whole of 1989.

Official sources said they were pessimistic that non-oil commodities could repeat the impressive growth registered in 1989 but said the value of oil and gas exports was expected to leap because of hikes in world oil prices prompted by the Gulf crisis since August.

The CBS said imports grew nearly 26 per cent in the first eight months of this year to 12.87 billion dollars from 10.22 billion.

The report showed a significant reduction in export earnings from traditional commodities such as rubber and semi-processed rubber material and coffee, but major gains in revenues from shrimps, plywood, textiles and garments.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Japanese carmaker Toyota Motor Corp. said Thursday it had formed a measuring equipment venture with Yokogawa Electric Corp., the world's second-biggest manufacturer of industrial instruments.

The new company, capitalised at 100 million yen (750,000 dollars), is 65 per cent owned by Toyota with Yokogawa holding 30 per cent. Toyota Central Research and Development Laboratories holds the remaining five per cent.

Toyota said the new company would employ about 40 people to develop highly-specialised measuring equipment and control systems to test new vehicles. Operations are expected to start in February with sales in the first year targetted at 400 million yen (three million dollars).

The company also said it had begun work at a new biotechnology laboratory in Nagoya with a DNA sequencer, an environmentally-controlled greenhouse and automated equipment to measure electrophoresis and photosynthesis.

"Research will include protein engineering work on enzymes and natural materials as well as studies focussing on plant functions and possible engineering applications for them in the future," a statement said.

BEIJING (DEC. 20) - China is considering selling a portion of its record grain harvest to the Soviet Union to help it overcome food shortages, an official report said here Thursday.

The China Daily, citing Vice Minister of Agriculture Chen Yaobang, reported that the quantity would depend on how much money Moscow was willing to spend since trade between the two socialist states will be conducted with hard currency beginning next year.

Mr. Chen however did not rule out the possibility of a barter exchange of wheat for Soviet industrial equipment.

Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs Tian Zengpei said in a recent interview with the German economic daily Handelsblatt that China planned to provide food to the Soviet Union on a commercial basis and not as aid.

China harvested a record 420 million tonnes of grain in 1990, compared to 407 million tonnes last year.

This bumper crop however has caused a number of problems for the state, pushing grain prices down to the detriment of peasants while widening the shortfall in storage capacity.

In a bid to handle the situation, the state promised to buy as much grain as possible at fixed prices and in September it disbursed 42 million dollars for the construction of grain storage facilities.

DAR ES SALAAM (DEC. 20) - Tanzanian government has barred workers of the French clearing and forwarding company Notco from all customs points in the country because of Notco's alleged involvement in smuggling attempts, notably of ivory, authorities announced here Wednesday night.

The announcement said Notco's workers had become a ''big threat to the country's economy''.

Commissioner for customs and sales, Abdallah Kange said the ban followed Notco's suspension from the customs agency.

The tough action came barely a week after police intercepted at Notco's warehouse a container stuffed with 68 elephant tusks, worth 178,947 dollars destined for illegal export to Dubai by two South Koreans.

The impounding of the container followed a tip-off by an un-named person who trailed it from Morogoro town, 192 kilometers (120 miles) west of here, where it was loaded in a truck and transported to the Notco warehouse in Dar es salaam. The owners told port authorities that the container carried only bags of charcoal.

In his letter to Notco, Mr. Kange said the increased involvement of the firm's employees in export cheating posed a very serious danger to the Tanzanian economy.

The commissioner recalled two incidents this year involving Notco employees in aiding ivory smuggling attempts.

The first implicated Indonesian ambassador Hussein Joesoef, in an attempt to smuggle 184 elephant tusks. This attempt was foiled by police when a Notco tractor-trailer carrying the ivory broke down enroute to the port of Dar es salaam. Mr. Joesoef was subsequently expelled from Tanzania.

The second incident involved two Notco's godown and export managers who were interrogated by police in connection with ivory carvings found hidden in their office.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 20) - EC Fisheries Commissioner Manual Marin was expected to propose a compromise to solve fish disputes on Thursday following tough over-night negotiations to agree a common policy for 1991, a Commission spokesman said.

The compromise would cover the total amount of each type of fish which fishermen would be authorised to take from each zone of European Community (EC) waters with a view to conserving stocks.

A second element of the compromise would concern structural measures to provide assistance for the provision of fishing equipment, and a reduction of the total number of fishing boats.

The third, and most controversial element, would concern a ban on the use of particular fishing techniques, and particularly the use of close-mesh nets, which are held responsible for the reduction of stocks.

TIRANA (DEC. 20) - A group of intellectuals has founded a forum to investigate human rights violations in Albania, according to the writer Besnik Mustafaj.

The forum, founded late Wednesday, intends to "sensitize Albanian and international public opinion to the problems of human rights in Albania," Mr. Mustafaj said.

He indicated that the group, the first of its kind in Albania, would use the Helsinki agreement and the charter of the Conference for Security and Cooperation in Europe as its points of departure.

The founders of the forum said that they would request legal recognition from Albanian authorities and to be affiliated with the international Helsinki federation, headquartered in Paris.

Earlier, the government officially recognized the Democratic Party, the country's first opposition formation.

Also on Wednesday, the Central Committee Secretary of the Albanian Union of Working Youth (AUWY), Mimoza Jaze, said the organization's position must change in view of the "new situation in the country."

In an interview broadcast by albanian radio, Mr. Jaze described the AUWY as an independent social organization whose task would be to meet the specific interests of young people, regardless of their political convictions or beliefs.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) - Soviet foreign policy will not change because of Eduard Shevardnadze's resignation, Vitaly Ignatenko, President Mikhail Gorbachev's spokesman, told journalists here Thursday.

"Gorbachev has asked me to say that the foreign policy of the Soviet Union will not change, because it is not linked to one man but to a political choice " he said.

Mr. Shevardnadze will remain foreign minister for a few days, pending confirmation of his resignation by the Supreme Soviet, he added.

MANILA (DEC. 20) - Visiting Iranian deputy foreign minister Aladdin Boroujerdi has offered oil to the Philippines on "concessional terms," Foreign Affairs Secretary Raul Manglapus said here Thursday.

Mr. Manglapus said that Mr. Boroujerdi made the offer in a meeting after he arrived in this country Wednesday for a four-day visit on his first leg of a tour of Southeast Asia.

The Philippines previously sealed an agreement in August to acquire some 720,000 barrels of oil from Iran to replace the oil imports that were originally due from Kuwait and Iraq.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) - Lithuania's parliamentary leadership, in a statement received here Thursday, reasserted that the republic was no longer part of the Soviet federation and was not represented at the fourth congress of Soviet deputies, currently being held in Moscow.

The presidium of the Lithuanian parliament said that the republic "has not been a Soviet republic since March 11, 1990" (the date of the Lithuanian declaration of independence), and "is not represented at the fourth congress of Soviet deputies in Moscow."

The statement contested the assertion of Anatoli Lukyanov, the speaker of the Supreme Soviet, that "15 republics are participating in debates" at the congress.

Soviet authorities are "attempting to ignore reality", the presidium said.

On Wednesday, Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said that the declaration of a state of emergency in Lithuania would be a "new form of occupation".

Earlier, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev threatened to declare a state of emergency or impose direct presidential rule in troubled regions.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Foreign cars sales in Japan are expected to jump 13.3 per cent to a record 255,000 units in 1991, the Japan Automobile Importers Association said Thursday.

The forecast, marking the sixth consecutive increase, was down sharply from the estimated 24.7 per cent rise this year due to higher interest rates which are expected to affect car loans, the association said.

Sales were brisk in the first half of the year but slackened in the second half due to the combined impact of higher interest rates and rising oil prices sparked by the Gulf crisis, it added.

MANILA (DEC. 20) - A Gulf-bound U.S. navy helicopter has crashed in the Pacific ocean, leaving one person dead and three others missing, the U.S. Embassy here said Thursday.

A UH-1N helicopter which took off from U.S. Subic Naval Base, north of here, crashed Wednesday between the Philippines and Guam, a mission spokesmen said.

The cause of the crash was not known, the spokesman said, adding that search teams had recovered the wreckage and were still looking for the three missing crew members.

The helicopter belonged to U.S.S. Tripoli which is part of U.S. Amphibious Task Force Three heading for the Gulf.

U.S. officials have withheld the names of the dead and missing crewmen pending notification of their relatives.

HANOI (DEC. 20) - An expanded joint team of U.S. and Vietnamese experts have wrapped up a fresh search in the north and south of the country for American servicemen listed as missing in action (MIA).

"The results of the joint search have been good," Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Ho The Lan said, adding that nine sets of remains had been found in four northern provinces and 11 in two southern provinces during the 22-day search which ended Wednesday.

During the latest mission the two sides had expanded their team of experts from three each to six each.

The spokeswoman did not say if any positive identifications had been made.

But she said flak jackets and lifebuoys had been found "which proved the pilots were killed while they were in their planes," information which had been corroborated by witnesses.

Meanwhile, forensic experts from the two countries in Ho Chi Minh City had between December 7-19 examined 281 sets of human remains recovered from people who had stolen the bones, Mme. Lan said, without elaborating.

Washington says their are around 1,700 American MIAs still unaccounted for in this country since the Vietnam War ended in 1975.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Tokyo approved Thursday a 22.75 trillion yen (171 billion dollar) five-year national defense program showing the lowest rate of growth since Japan's medium-term defense estimate plans started in 1976.

The 1991-95 program's three per cent average annual increase in defense spending compares to a 5.4 per cent annual rate of increase in the current five-year plan, which expires March, government officials said.

Spending should not be more than one per cent of gross national product, exceeded for the first time in 1987, a foreign ministry official said.

The new program was designed to allay the fears of Asian neighbours, who are wary of a resurgence in Japanese militarism and it also made a gesture to appease the United States, observers said.

From 1991, Tokyo will pay wages "to persons working for the United States forces in Japan as well as expenses for electricity, gas, water supply, sewerage and fuels for heating," government spokesman Misoji Sakamoto said.

A Pentagon report released Tuesday and quoted by Japanese news agency Jiji Press called for a cut by the end of 1992 of nearly 5,000 troops in the U.S. military forces in Japan, now estimated at 49,900.

Tokyo currently pays some three billion dollars annually -- about 40 per cent of the U.S. troops upkeep costs -- and will contribute another 220 billion yen (1.6 billion dollars) in the 1991-95 defense program.

By 1995, it will pay "approximately" 50 per cent of the support costs, said a government official.

Under the defense plan, spending on front-line military equipment -- including tanks, fighter planes and warships -- is to be trimmed, while logistics, communication and research development are to be improved.

Of the total, 5.1 trillion yen (38 billion dollars) is earmarked for military equipment, up 2.1 per cent on the current plan.

Military equipment registered a 9.3 per cent rise in the 1986-1990 plan.

The plan aims to cut the total number of tanks from 1,205 to 1,130 in the next five years and destroyers from 63 to 58.

The Ground Self-Defense Force personnel numbers are to rise to 153,000, against 152,000 in active service, but still well down on the 180,000 called for in the current plan.

It also calls for the purchase of four Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) planes from the United States and 36 multiple launch rocket systems to upgrade defense capability.

NEW DELHI (DEC. 20) - India's tea exports slumped in the first 10 months of 1990 but earnings shot up compared to the same period last year, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said Thursday.

Tea exports fell from 161.8 million kilos (356 million pounds) to 148.9 million kilos (328 million pounds) between January and October PTI said.

Export earnings, however, increased during the same period by 70 million dollars to 423 million dollars, PTI quoted industry sources as saying.

PTI did not say what caused exports to decline but a separatist campaign in tea-rich Assam state in northeast India and increasing domestic consumption are believed to be responsible.

Tea is India's top foreign exchange earner but the country lost its position as the world's number one tea seller last year. The Soviet Union, Iran and Poland are among the major buyers of Indian tea.

LONDON (DEC. 20) - A sharper than expected fall in the money supply, announced Thursday by the Bank of England, is likely to exacerbate the British government's dilemma on the issue of interest-rate cuts.

A fall of 0.5 per cent in the total value of money circulating in the economy (the MO indicator) between October and November, and a drop in the annual growth of narrow money from 4.0 to 3.2 per cent (the lowest annual rate since 1986), will boost the government's claims that its anti-inflation strategy is working.

But it will also be taken as further evidence of the slide into harsher-than-anticipated recession and increase the pressure on government to reduce interest rates.

The continuing weakness of the pound within the ERM has significantly narrowed the government's room for maneouvre. At 1150 GMT Thursday the pound was slightly stronger against the German Mark at 2.863 DM, but it was still only four pfennigs above its ERM floor, and well below its central rate of 2.95 DM.

The figures on the money supply follow the announcement Wednesday that British GDP fell by 1.2 per cent between the second and third quarter of 1990, the largest drop since 1980. The Central Statistical Office (CSO)'s survey of investment intentions, also published Wednesday, which produced a forecast of a seven per cent fall in investment in manufacturing in 1991.

Only six months ago the CSO's survey was producing a forecast of one per cent investment growth in 1991.

The government's problem is that if it reduces interest rates to ameliorate the impact of recession, it risks a further weakening of sterling and even the possibility of a humiliating devaluation of the pound within the ERM.

HANOI (DEC. 20) - Inflation hit runaway levels this month in Vietnam and spread to an alarmingly wide range of goods, the army daily Quan Doi Nhan Dan said Thursday.

Rice has jumped from 1,500 to 2,200 dong (20 to 30 U.S. cents) a kilo since the start of the month, while other "strategic" products such as steel, cement, fertilizer and insecticides have been hit by price hikes of 20 to 100 per cent.

At the same time, the Vietnamese currency has tumbled from 6,800 to 7,280 dong per dollar on the black market, further widening the gap with the official exchange rate, which increased from 6,500 to 6,600 dong per dollar this month.

Officials say the devaluation of the dong is due to inflation, the government's need for hard currency to meet end-of-year payments, and the buying of gold and hard currency by individual Vietnamese as a hedge against inflation.

"The increase in prices of (strategic) products has pushed up the prices of other products," such as manufactured goods and food, said Quan Doi Nhan Dan.

Price hikes had previously been limited to a few items but now inflation had spread to a wide range of "important strategic items", the daily said, adding that "prices are now rising in a runaway manner."

The surge in rice prices is due to the higher costs of materials used in production -- fertilizer, insecticides, fuel -- as well as shortages caused by farmers setting aside large stockpiles in expectation of a poor harvest.

The price of gasoline (petrol) has tripled on the open market since the start of the Gulf crisis in August.

Vietnam has also been forced to make emergency purchases of fertilizer from Asian countries in the last few months after the Soviet Union -- which had been the main supplier -- failed to meet its supply schedule for 1990.

The brutal upturn in inflation has ended more than a year of price stability that had made Vietnam one of the most successful among poor countries in controlling inflation.

MANILA (DEC.20) - Failure to seal an agreement with the International Monetary Fund (IMF) may lead the Philippines into recession, economic officials here said Thursday.

However, if the Philippines succeeds in passing key deficit-reduction measures crucial to the completion of the agreement, the resulting inflow of five billion dollars in new credits would speed the country's economic recovery, the officials said.

Central Bank governor, Jose Cuisia, said failure to pass the measures "could result in a recession," adding that it would "certainly result in a slowdown."

"We are already seeing a slowdown in the economy. That would probably accelerate further," Mr. Cuisia said.

Economic Planning Secretary Cayetano Paderanga said a new agreement would lead to the inflow of as much as 5.067 billion dollars from multilateral and bilateral sources.

He said this would include tranches from World Bank programs totalling 200 million dollars as well as three Japanese assistance programs totalling 627 million dollars.

Mr. Cuisia said some 700 million dollars would come from the IMF itself but more credit programs that were still pending "could also be affected," including crucial foreign assistance funds.

Mr. Paderanga said the 1.5 per cent economic growth his agency forecast for next year would occur only if the government failed to implement its economic stabilization program, intended to shrink the deficit.

However, he said he was confident that economic growth would range from 2.5 to 3.9 per cent next year provided all sectors contributed to implementing the program.

A previous three-year IMF agreement with the Philippines collapsed in October after Manila's deficits exceeded levels set in the agreement. This led to the freezing of many foreign credit programs and contributed to a foreign exchange shortage.

The budget deficit was expected to total 59.8 billion pesos (2.13 billion dollars) this year.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 20) - Western nations Thursday expressed deep concern and alarm in response to the surprise resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze after five years in office.

A senior official of the North Atlantic Alliance said in a first reaction that apart from the Gulf crisis, the present political instability in the Soviet Union was Nato's greatest headache.

Shevardnadze cited the danger of an impending dictatorship as reason for his resignation.

The 12-member European Community said it was deeply concerned by the news. E.C. Commissioner for External Relations Frans Andriessen said Shevardnadze had played ''an important role in political and economic reforms in the Soviet Union''.

Bonn Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher praised Shevardnadze, 61, for the role he played in paving the way for the unification both of Germany and Europe. His move should be seen as yet another reason for the West to support reform forces in the Soviet Union, he said.

Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek expressed ''shock and concern'' in response to the news. He said he was alarmed by the reason Shevadnadze had given for his surprise move.

Danish Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen spoke of concern and deep regret, adding: ''It is too early to evaluate the repercussions. But in any case it is an alarming development''.

Pretoria Foreign Minister Roelof Botha hailed the ''positive role'' the Soviet foreign minister played in agreements leading to the independence of Namibia from South African rule.

BRUSSELS (DEC. 20) - The European Community (EC) has published a guide for businessmen in its 12 member countries on how to invest in Japan, The European Commission, the EC's executive arm, said here Thursday.

It said in a statement that the guide covers everything a potential European investor needs to know -- from making his first decision to go into the Japanese market on a small scale to making a considerable investment.

The guide grades the potential of each region in Japan, and lists incentives offered to investors by the various local authorities.

The EC statement said that patience and perseverance are needed for building a business in Japan, but rewards for high-quality products adapted to the Japanese market could be considerable.

"Nevertheless, one should not under-estimate the difficulties, particularly of a social and structural nature, in penetrating the Japanese market," the statement said.

SINGAPORE (DEC. 20) - Singapore's petroleum and petro-chemical industry remains buoyant and is likely to register more than 20 per cent annual growth in the 1990s, the Economic Development Board (EDB) said Thursday.

The EDB said the industry grew 15 per cent in 1989 to chalk up sales worth 14 billion Singapore dollars (8.2 billion U.S.).

Foreign investment from such firms as Royal Dutch Shell, Mobil, Exxon and Du Pont showed their "continuing confidence in the local petroleum and petrochemical sector."

For many of these corporations, Singapore was chosen as a strategic point for their business network in the fast-growing Asia-Pacific region, it said.

"One of Singapore's competitive advantages for the international chemical corporations has been her ability to anticipate their needs and to develop infrastructure ahead of demand," the EDB noted.

The EDB said its plan to develop six off-shore islands into a single "Chemical Island Complex" would create additional land for the chemical processing industry in future.

SYDNEY (DEC. 20) - Share prices of Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. Ltd. plunged in Thursday trading following a radio report that it would be described in a British television documentary as "teetering on the brink."

According to the report, the documentary, to be screened in Britain late Thursday, alleges News Corp. has been involved in questionable accounting practices and share transactions as well as in possible tax avoidance.

Australian government sources said later that new laws will force the company to pay tax which it has been able to avoid in the past through use of overseas tax havens.

At the same time an Australian newspaper reported News Corp. had fallen almost a week behind in its self-imposed timetable for rescheduling debts of almost nine billion dollars (6.92 billion U.S.).

Some brokers said that although much of the information was already known, it still had the effect of creating panic selling which affected the market in general, causing the Australian Stock Exchange to query the reasons.

At one stage in early trading, shares in News Corp. fell by 1.24 dollars reaching 4.20 dollars, the lowest point in its recent history, before recovering to 4.60.

About one million News Corp. shares, which had a 1990 year high of 14.90, changed hands during morning trade.

According to one dealer with Smith New Court, reports about News Corp.'s financial problems "shattered the confidence" of the sharemarket.

"The panic selling in News Corp. spread right throughout the market," he added.

News Corp. finance director Peter Chegwyn said in response to the stock exchange inquiry that the group knew no reason for the recent slump in its share price, and was "very pleased" with progress on its debt rescheduling proposals.

He said a large majority of banks and other lenders to News Corp. had already indicated agreement to the terms of the group's proposals to refinance its debt and News Corp. continued to "trade well."

TOKYO (DEC. 20) - Japan's Finance Ministry says the country's banking system is still healthy despite a dramatic plunge this year in Japanese stock prices and growing signs of financial weakness in the United States.

"We have no worries at all about the fundamental soundness of our banking system," said Makoto Utsumi, Vice Minister of Finance for International Affairs, in an interview with Agence France-Presse.

"My concern is that Japanese banks will become more inward-looking," he said, referring to new global standards for banks to improve their capital strength.

The new rules by the Bank for International Settlements (BIS), are likely to force banks to raise more capital, reduce assets, or both.

Mr. Utsumi, seen as Japan's most influential policymaker in international financial affairs, said it was "dangerous to make easy estimations" about the soundness of the global financial system.

But he expressed confidence in the United States coming to terms with the mounting problems in its financial sector.

"As in the past, U.S. monetary authorities will properly tackle these problems without causing a serious situation," he said.

For Japan, Mr. Utsumi said there is no question of extending the BIS capital deadline beyond 1993.

He offered three reasons for not worrying about the health of Japanese banks, whose profits are expected to tumble 40 per cent this year:

- He acknowledged that banks were suffering losses as a result of the plunge in stock prices, which at one point this year were almost 50 per cent below the peak they reached at the end of last year.

Such losses reflect declines in the value of stocks acquired in recent years when prices soared, he said.

But a "large part of their total stockholdings" were acquired a long time ago, when prices were often as low as 50 yen (38 cents) a share, compared with the current average of around 25,000 yen (181 dollars), he added.

"That means," he said, "there are still very thick hidden reserves."

MOSCOW (DEC 20) - A conservative Soviet colonel said Thursday that he did not take the resignation of Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze seriously and thought it would not be accepted by parliament.

"I am sure Shevardnadze was following orders from Gorbachev," Colonel Nikolai Petrushenko, a member of the conservative Soyuz parliamentary group, told reporters.

"I think that in Shevardnadze's speech there was a lot of political gamesmanship. I don't think he's going to let himself drown," he said, adding that he believed the resignation would be rejected by parliament.

However, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman said that Mr. Shevardnadze's decision was "final."

During his resignation speech, Mr. Shevardnadze strongly rebuked recent attacks against him in the press, including that by "two colonels."

They had boasted, he said, that after toppling Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin the time had come to "settle scores with the foreign minister."

Colonel Petrushenko said that he assumed he was one of the two officers referred to in the speech.

Colonel Viktor Alksnis, a leader of the Soyuz faction, told journalists that he believed that he was the second colonel mentioned by Mr. Shevardnadze.

"I never asked for the resignation of Bakatin or Shevardnadze, but I do find a lot wrong with our foreign policy," he said.

Vitaly Ignatenko, spokesman for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, said that Mr. Shevardnadze's resignation appeared to be due to "psychological pressure," but added "I don't think his political life is over."

Meanwhile, presidential adviser Alexander Yakovlev expressed concern over "signs that the extreme right has been set free and is raising its head," and criticized the indifference of "certain democratic forces."

Mr. Diouf, quoted by the Saudi newspaper Asharq al-Awsat, stressed that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein "must withdraw his troops from Kuwait unconditionally and compensate the Kuwaiti people."

"Iraq invaded Kuwait and caused heavy losses, and above all it must repair the damages," the Senegalese president said.

ISLAMABAD (DEC 20) - Iran is sending experts to join a probe into the murder of Iranian diplomat Sadiq Ganji in Pakistan, a Pakistani Foreign Ministry spokesman here said Thursday.

Mr. Ganji, 28, head of the Iranian cultural centre, was shot dead late Wednesday by unidentified assassins outside the International Hotel in Lahore, where he was to attend a farewell dinner in his honour.

The killing appeared to have been a "planned assassination," Foreign Secretary Shaharyar Mohammed Khan told reporters here.

The government had beefed up protection for Iranian diplomats throughout the country after the murder, he said.

He said Mr. Ganji's body was flown to Iran on Thursday in an aircraft provided by the Pakistan government and was accompanied by Punjab Governor Mian Mohammed Azhar.

Nothing definite could be said about the killers or their motives, but the killing was unlikely to have arisen from a personal vendetta against a "very active and very friendly diplomat," Mr. Shaharyar Khan said.

But some Iranian refugees who had fled the revolution in Iran were in Pakistan and the killing could be political, he said.

"The entire background will be known in the investigation," he said, adding that Islamabad had promised to cooperate fully with the Iranians and was determined to learn the facts and arrest those involved.

Police had captured a Pakistani youth who suffered critical injuries after he tried to commit suicide as police surrounded him, Mr. Shaharyar Khan said.

The youth had come to the hotel in a car and left on a motorcycle, he said.

Police said they had arrested four other suspects but gave no further details.

Mr. Ganji, who took part in the Iranian revolution and the Iran-Iraq war, is survived by his wife and two sons, aged three and two years.

An expert in Islamic studies, he wrote research papers on Pakistan's socio-political life and a history of the fundamentalist Jamaat-e-Islami party. He was fluent in Urdu, Pakistan's national language.

The official Associated Press of Pakistan said in an obituary that during Mr. Ganji's time here he invited about 3,000 people every year to visit Iran as guests of the Iranian government.

Mr. Ganji was also one of the Iranian youths who occupied the U.S. Embassy in Teheran after the revolution.

He reportedly referred to "CIA (the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) documents" seized at that time from the U.S. mission, while speaking at the launching here Tuesday of a book about executed former Pakistani prime minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto.

The Jang newspaper, which has the largest circulation in the country, quoted him as saying the CIA had plotted Bhutto's execution.

Mr. Ganji was killed only few days before his scheduled return to Iran to take up the editorship of a newspaper.

PARIS (DEC. 20) - Bank of France governor Jacques de Larosiere said Thursday that he has set the target for 1991 growth of the French M3 money supply at five to seven per cent, against a 7.2 per cent rise this year.

All three figures relate to M3 in its new definition, which differs from the older one in including funds held by "OPCVM" (securities mutual funds). Both the old and the new definition take in coins, banknotes, demand deposits, short-term bank deposits, and savings accounts.

Mr. de Larosiere said that the new definition will facilitate comparisons of French monetary policy with the policy of its partners within the European Monetary System (EMS).

In the old M3 definition, it would have increased by only three per cent this year.

The central bank governor said that French monetary policy next year "will remain guided by two objectives: the struggle against inflation and the franc's stability."

Meanwhile, the French National Assembly gave final approval to the 1991 finance (budget) law on Thursday, as no motion of no-confidence in the government had been filed in the wake of the government's use of a constitutional provision to have the bill passed without a formal vote.

The 1991 national budget calls for expenditures of 1.52 trillion francs (300 billion dollars), receipts of 1.44 trillion, and a deficit of 81 billion.

BRUSSELS (DEC 20) - European Community (EC) fisheries ministers reached agreement here Thursday on fishing quotas for 1991, after more than 25 hours of negotiations on how to preserve dwindling fish stocks, diplomatic sources said.

The sources said the accord on the quotas, along with conservation measures that needed to be taken, was unanimous. Most of the attention was focussed on the North Sea, where overfishing has threatened several species of fish.

The agreement capped hard negotiations on ways to limit fish catches so that dwindling stocks will not be fished into extinction.

An EC Commission source had said earlier that each minister agreed that "there are no more fish", but each wanted to protect the fishing interests of his own country.

The commission has proposed paying fishermen to take vessels out of service. Mr. Marin has said the fishing fleets of EC countries need to be cut by 40 per cent to permit fish stocks to recover.

The independent International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) said in a recent study that over 90 per cent of the main fish varieties in the Atlantic Ocean were overfished.

A recent EC study indicates that cod, haddock, plaice and herring are dying four times faster than they should be in the North Sea, and that the same applies to cod in the Baltic Sea.

LAGOS (DEC. 20) - Nigeria's Social Democratic Party (Sdp), one of two government-sponsored political parties that contested local government elections on December 8, led in the overall results officially released by the national electoral commission Thursday.

Although 12 days had passed since the polls, results from 15 councils were still not available, the Nec chairman Humphery Nwosu said.

According to the results, the Sdp won 232 of 453 council chairmanship positions, leaving the other government-sponsored party, the National Republican Convention (Nrc) with 206.

Of 5,575 council seats at stake nation-wide, the left-leaning Sdp captured 2,934 to the right-leaning Nrc's 2,558. Nigeria's military-backed government set up the twin parties to offer voters a choice while preventing a resurgence of tribal politics.

The success of the elections, the first of the polls that are to usher in civilian rule by 1992, has been attributed here to open balloting. Commentators said secret balloting in the past led to vote-rigging and violence.

TAIPEI (DEC. 20) - At least 42 people were killed and 14 others injured when a tour coach exploded in flames after colliding with a speeding train in southern Taiwan Thursday.

The crash occurred in the early evening when the coach, carrying 51 passengers apparently tried to beat the train to the railway crossing in the small town of Luchu, Klaohsiung County, about 321 kilometres south of Taipei. The coach was hit in the rear by the Tzuchiang Express train, police sources said.

Other sources said the bus was backing up from a narrow alley when it collided with the train at the crossing.

''After it was hit in the rear, the bus burst into flames when it struck a high-voltage power cable,'' an eyewitness said.

The bus exploded into a fiery ball, and screams for help and cries were heard from far away.

Police said all the dead were passengers on the coach, all members of a farm union in Pingtung, southern Taiwan.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) - The Supreme Soviet's foreign relations commission met in emergency session Thursday and decided to recommend rejection of the resignation of Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, political sources said.

Commission chairman Alexander Dzasokhov was quoted as saying "there are too many negative aspects in this (resignation) decision, especially when taking into account the summit between presidents George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev" scheduled to take place here February 11 to 13.

The commission's recommendation will go to the Supreme Soviet -- the legislative assembly -- and the Congress of People's Deputies -- the full-scale parliament.

The Supreme Soviet is scheduled to meet immediately after the congress ends its session, set for December 28.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (DEC. 20) - The U.N. Security Council approved by consensus Thursday a statement by its president endorsing the idea of an international Middle East peace conference to resolve the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The statement, read by Ambassador Abdalla Saleh Al-Ashtal of Yemen, said the "Arab-Israeli conflict is unique and must be addressed independently on its own merits."

Coming in a statement from the president, the endorsement was weaker than a full-fledged resolution from the 15-member council because the former is not binding on U.N. members.

JERUSALEM (DEC 20) EFE - Israeli security forces have arrested 70,000 Palestinians during the three-year-old intifada uprising in the Occupied Territories, officials said Thursday.

Armed Forces chief prosecutor Brig. Amnon Strasnow said that 45,000 of those arrested had been tried.

He added that 200 members of the Islamic fundamentalist group Hamas had been arrested in a recent round-up which came after three Jews were stabbed to death by suspected Hamas members last Friday.

Palestinian sources have said more than 1,000 suspected Hamas activists were detained in the crackdown, including 200 minors.

Strasnow added that there were currently 900 Palestinians under administrative arrest, a term used for detention without trial for renewable periods of six months.

He said that 35 per cent of those held under administrative arrest in the last three years had been freed after appealing to military courts.

Meanwhile, Palestinian sources said Israeli troops shot and wounded seven Arabs on Thursday at Khan Junis refugee camp in the Gaza Strip.

More than 1,000 Palestinians and some 50 Jews have been killed in the intifada.

GUATEMALA CITY (DEC. 20) EFE - The Organization of American States Thursday blamed leftist guerrillas for the massacre of 22 peasants in the western village of El Aguacate in November 1988.

A report of the Interamerican Commission on Human Rights (CIDH) concludes "after a lengthy and exhaustive enquiry" that rebels belonging to the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Union were responsible for the murders.

The government immediately blamed leftist guerrillas for the massacre, which sparked a wave of international protest, but opposition groups suggested the Army was responsible.

Some 100,000 people have died in three decades of civil war. Human rights groups have blamed the Army for killing most of the war's victims.

In its report, the CIDH said it "totally rejects accusations laid against the Guatemalan Armed Forces" in the El Aguacate case.

CANBERRA (DEC. 20) XINHUA - AUSTRALIAN DEFENSE MINISTER ROBERT RAY TODAY ANNOUNCED HERE THAT THE FEDERAL CABINET HAS APPROVED THE CONSTRUCTION OF A "JINDALEE" OVER-THE-HORIZON RADAR NETWORK (OTHR) IN NORTH AUSTRALIA.

RAY SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT THE NETWORK, WHICH WILL COST 970 MILLION AUSTRALIAN DOLLARS (748 MILLION U.S. DOLLARS), WOULD ENHANCE AUSTRALIA'S DEFENSE SELF-RELIANCE BY DETECTING SEA AND AIR TARGETS IN THE APPROACHES TO NORTH AUSTRALIA. "THIS IS IMPORTANT, GIVEN OUR EXTENSIVE COASTLINE AND LIMITED INFRASTRUCTURE IN THE NORTH," HE NOTED.

IN ADDITION TO ITS PRIME DEFENSE ROLE, THE SYSTEM WILL PROVIDE A DETERRENT TO ILLEGAL IMMIGRATION AND DRUG SMUGGLING, AS WELL AS PROVIDING VALUABLE WEATHER INFORMATION AND ASSISTANCE IN AIRCRAFT SAFETY AND SEARCH AND RESCUE OPERATIONS.

THE "JINDALEE" OTHR CONCEPT, DEVELOPED BY THE DEFENSE SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY ORGANIZATION AUSTRALIA, INCORPORATES STATE-OF-THE-ART TECHNOLOGY. UNLIKE TRADITIONAL GROUND-BASED RADARS, "JINDALEE" CAN SCAN OVER THE HORIZON BY BOUNCING SIGNALS OFF THE IONOSPHERE TO ILLUMINATE DISTANT TARGETS. ECHOES FROM THE TARGETS TRAVEL BACK TO THE RECEIVERS.

THE MINISTER SAID THE INITIAL NETWORK WOULD CONSIST OF TWO RADARS, ONE NEAR LAVERTON IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA AND THE OTHER NEAR LONGREACH IN QUEENSLAND, EACH WITH A SEPARATE TRANSMITTER AND RECEIVER SITES. A NETWORK-COORDINATION CENTER WOULD ALSO BE BUILT AT ROYAL AUSTRALIAN AIRFORCE EDINBURGH IN SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

A CONTRACT IS EXPECTED TO BE SIGNED EARLY NEXT YEAR, AND THE SYSTEM WILL BE OPERATIONAL BY THE MID-1990S. PHASED OVER FIVE YEARS, DEVELOPMENT OF THE OTHR NETWORK WILL INVOLVE NOT ONLY THE ERECTION OF SOPHISTICATED RADAR EQUIPMENT BUT ALSO CONSTRUCTION OF FACILITIES TO HOUSE THE EQUIPMENT AND OPERATIONS CENTERS AT EACH LOCATION AND AT ROYAL AUSTRALIAN AIR FORCE EDINBURGH.

HONG KONG (DEC. 20) XINHUA - INDONESIA HAS LOWERED THE PRICE OF ITS BENCHMARK OIL, MINAS, FOR THIS MONTH'S DELIVERIES BY 13.58 PERCENT TO 29.01 U.S. DOLLARS A BARREL FROM 33.57 U.S. DOLLARS LAST MONTH DUE TO PRICE DECLINES ON THE WORLD MARKET.

ACCORDING TO THE JAKARTA POST TODAY, INDONESIAN MINISTER OF MINES AND ENERGY GINANDJAR KARTASASMITA MADE THE DISCLOSURE TO REPORTERS IN JAKARTA WEDNESDAY AFTER MEETING WITH PRESIDENT SOEHARTO.

HOWEVER, HE SAID, THE AVERAGE OF INDONESIA'S CRUDE OIL PRICES DURING THE MARCH-DECEMBER PERIOD REACHED 22.48 U.S. DOLLARS A BARREL, 5.98 U.S. DOLLARS HIGHER THAN THE 16.50 U.S. DOLLAR AVERAGE PRICE PROJECTED BY THE GOVERNMENT FOR THIS FISCAL YEAR.

INDONESIA'S FISCAL YEAR STARTS IN APRIL, BUT REVENUES GAINED FROM OIL SALES IN MARCH ARE CALCULATED AS THE GOVERNMENT'S INCOME FOR APRIL.

BASED ON THE ACTUAL AVERAGE PRICE OF 22.48 U.S. DOLLARS, THE INDONESIAN GOVERNMENT'S REVENUES FROM THE OIL AND GAS SECTOR DURING THE FIRST 10 MONTHS OF 1990-91 WERE ESTIMATED TO EXCEED THE ORIGINAL TARGET OF 10,783.2 BILLION RUPIAH (ABOUT 5.73 BILLION U.S. DOLLARS) FOR THE WHOLE FISCAL YEAR BY NINE PERCENT.

THE MINISTER ADDED THAT THE EXPORT PRICE OF INDONESIA'S ARJUNA CRUDE OIL FOR DECEMBER DELIVERIES WAS SET AT 29.07 U.S. DOLLARS A BARREL (AS COMPARED TO 33.64 DOLLARS LAST MONTH), ARUN AT 28.78 DOLLARS (33.42 DOLLARS), HANDIL AT 28.86 DOLLARS (33.43 DOLLARS), CINTA AT 28.61 DOLLARS (33.15 DOLLARS), DURI AT 26.54 DOLLARS (31.29 DOLLARS), ATTAKA AT 29.70 DOLLARS (34.23 DOLLARS) AND LALANG AT 29.18 DOLLARS (33.73 DOLLARS).

THE JAKARTA POST REPORT SAID INDONESIA WAS INCREASING ITS CRUDE OIL PRODUCTION TO ALMOST 1.44 MILLION BARRELS PER DAY THIS MONTH FROM 1.33 MILLION BPD LAST MONTH, AND THE PRODUCTION WILL BE FURTHER INCREASED TO 1.5 MILLION BPD IN THE COMING MONTHS.

PHILIPPINES ON JANUARY 16-18 FOR TALKS WITH PRESIDENT CORAZON AQUINO AND SENIOR GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, FOREIGN SECRETARY RAUL MANGLAPUS SAID THURSDAY.

MANGLAPUS TOLD REPORTERS THE TALKS WOULD FOCUS ON JAPANESE ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE TO THE PHILIPPINES.

''I HOPE WE CAN LOOK FORWARD TO MR. KAIFU REASSURING US OF CONTINUED JAPANESE SUPPORT TO PHILIPPINE ECONOMIC PROBLEMS AND WE IN TURN WILL REASSURE THE JAPANESE (GOVERNMENT) OF OUR SUPPORT OF THEIR OWN DEMOCRATIC SYSTEM AND THEIR NONMILITARY PRESENCE IN SOUTHEAST ASIA,'' HE SAID.

MANGLAPUS SAID HE MAY BRIEF KAIFU ON DEVELOPMENTS IN PHILIPPINE-U.S. NEGOTIATIONS ON THE FUTURE OF AMERICAN MILITARY FACILITIES HERE SINCE HIS VISIT WILL COME BETWEEN THE LAST TWO ROUNDS OF BASES TALKS, WHICH ARE EXPECTED TO RESUME IN EARLY JANUARY.

ON WEDNESDAY JAPAN AND THE PHILIPPINES SIGNED DIPLOMATIC NOTES FOR A COMMODITY LOAN AMOUNTING TO 28.2 BILLION YEN FOR AN EARTHQUAKE DISASTER RELIEF AND REHABILITATION PROGRAM FOR SEVERAL NORTHERN PHILIPPINE PROVINCES DEVASTATED BY THE JULY 16 EARTHQUAKE THAT LEFT 1,600 DEAD.

JAPAN IS ONE OF THE TOP FOREIGN INVESTORS IN THE PHILIPPINES AND THE BIGGEST SOURCE OF OFFICIAL DEVELOPMENT AID FOR THE AQUINO GOVERNMENT.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - AJINOMOTO CO. SAID THURSDAY IT WILL SET UP A JOINT VENTURE FIRM WITH ITS SUBSIDIARY IN THAILAND BY THE YEAR-END TO PRODUCE AND MARKET FROZEN FOODS.

AJINOMOTO FROZEN FOODS (THAILAND) CO. WILL BE CAPITALIZED AT 440 MILLION YEN, OR 80 MILLION BAHT, AND OWNED 33 PERCENT BY ITS PARENT COMPANY. AJINOMOTO CO. (THAILAND) LTD., BASED IN BANGKOK, WILL HOLD THE OTHER 67 PERCENT, OFFICIALS SAID.

THE NEW BANGKOK COMPANY PLANS TO PRODUCE AND MARKET FROZEN SHAO-MAI, OR CHINESE DUMPLINGS, AND EGG ROLLS IN THE THAI MARKET, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

IT WILL ALSO BEGIN EXPORTING FROZEN FOOD PRODUCTS IN DECEMBER 1991, THEY ADDED.

THE COMPANY PLANS TO PRODUCE ABOUT 1,500 TONS OF FROZEN FOOD A YEAR. SALES ARE FORECAST TO REACH 800 MILLION YEN FOR THE INITIAL YEAR.

BANGKOK (DEC. 20) KYODO - THAILAND COULD HAVE TWO MILLION PEOPLE INFECTED

WITH THE VIRUS THAT CAUSES AIDS BY THE YEAR 2000, A POPULATION PLANNING GROUP SAID THURSDAY.

THAT FIGURE IS BASED ON THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE COUNTRY CAN SLOW DOWN THE ACCELERATION OF THE AIDS EPIDEMIC BY 1994, THE POPULATION AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION (PDA) SAID.

HOWEVER, IF THE EPIDEMIC'S ANNUAL RATE OF INCREASE CAN BE SLOWED BY 1992, JUST HALF AS MANY PEOPLE -- THOUGH THIS STILL COMES TO ONE MILLION -- WILL BE INFECTED WITH HUMAN IMMUNODEFICIENCY VIRUS (HIV) BY 2000, THE REPORT SAID.

PEOPLE WHO TEST POSITIVE FOR HIV HAVE BEEN EXPOSED TO THE VIRUS BUT HAVE NOT NECESSARILY DEVELOPED SYMPTOMS OF ACQUIRED IMMUNE DEFICIENCY SYNDROME, ALTHOUGH MANY OF THEM WILL WITHIN FIVE TO 10 YEARS.

THE PDA IS A PRIVATE ORGANIZATION KNOWN FOR ITS SUCCESS IN BIRTH CONTROL AND CAMPAIGNS AGAINST AIDS.

THE GROUP'S CALCULATIONS, WHICH IT CALLED PRELIMINARY, WERE BASED ON THE CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE THAT 150,000 THAIS ARE NOW INFECTED WITH HIV AND THAT RAPID TRANSMISSION OF HIV IN THAILAND BEGAN IN 1987.

THE LIKELIHOOD OF SLOWING THE EPIDEMIC'S GROWTH, THE REPORT SUGGESTED, DEPENDS UPON WHETHER THAIS STOP ENGAGING IN HIGH RISK BEHAVIOR -- AND HOW QUICKLY.

AIDS IS SPREAD THROUGH THE EXCHANGE OF BODILY FLUIDS, MOST COMMONLY THROUGH UNPROTECTED SEXUAL INTERCOURSE AND INTRAVENOUS DRUG ABUSE.

PDA STRONGLY URGED THE NATION TO DEAL WITH ITS MASSIVE COMMERCIAL SEX INDUSTRY AND CHANGE MALE SEXUAL BEHAVIOR.

FUKUI (DEC. 20) KYODO - THE SOVIET UNION'S SAKHALIN SHIPPING CO. WILL RESUME ITS TWICE-MONTHLY FREIGHTER SERVICE BETWEEN THE KHABAROVSK STATE PORT OF VANINO AND THE JAPAN SEA PORT OF TSURUGA IN FUKUI PREFECTURE EARLY NEXT MONTH, THE TSURUGA MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED THURSDAY.

THE 3,179-TON CARGO SHIP AYAN IS SCHEDULED TO ARRIVE AT TSURUGA PORT ON JANUARY 7.

ONLY ONE SHIP WILL BE ASSIGNED TO THE SERVICE TO CARRY MAINLY LOGS AND LUMBER FROM SIBERIA TO JAPAN, AND CHEMICAL PRODUCTS, CONSTRUCTION MACHINERY, CLOTHING AND OTHER SUNDRIES FROM JAPAN TO SIBERIA, THE MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT SAID.

THE CARGO LINER SERVICE BETWEEN VANINO AND TSURUGA WAS INAUGURATED IN 1977 AND WAS OPERATED TWICE A MONTH.

IT WAS SUSPENDED ABOUT THREE YEARS AGO, HOWEVER, BECAUSE OF A DECREASE IN LUMBER DEMAND, WHICH STEMMED FROM A RECESSION AT THE TIME IN JAPAN'S CONSTRUCTION BUSINESS.

BEIJING (DEC. 20) KYODO - THE EMIR OF KUWAIT, SHEIKH JABER AL-AHMAD AL-SABAH, WILL MAKE AN OFFICIAL VISIT TO CHINA NEXT WEEK AT THE INVITATION OF PRESIDENT YANG SHANGKUN, THE CHINESE FOREIGN MINISTRY ANNOUNCED THURSDAY.

CHINA APPARENTLY INTENDS TO INCREASE ITS DIPLOMATIC INFLUENCE OVER THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS BY INVITING THE KUWAITI EMIR, WHO HAS BEEN IN EXILE IN SAUDI ARABIA FOLLOWING THE IRAQI INVASION OF KUWAIT ON AUGUST 2.

CHINESE FOREIGN MINISTER QIAN QICHEN MET AL-SABAH AND KUWAITI CROWN PRINCE AND PRIME MINISTER SHEIKH SAAD WHEN HE VISITED SAUDI ARABIA IN EARLY NOVEMBER.

CHINA ABSTAINED FROM VOTING ON A RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING THE USE OF FORCE AGAINST IRAQ TO WITHDRAW TROOPS FROM KUWAIT AT THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL IN LATE NOVEMBER.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - IBM JAPAN LTD. SAID THURSDAY IT WILL SET UP AN OPEN ARCHITECTURE DEVELOPERS GROUP TO PROMOTE THE CONCEPT OF OPEN ARCHITECTURE FOR ITS PERSONAL COMPUTERS AMONG JAPANESE COMPUTER MAKERS, IN A BID TO CHALLENGE NEC CORP. FOR THE TITLE AS JAPAN'S TOP COMPUTER MAKER.

IBM OFFICIALS SAID DETAILS ON ITS PS-55 DISK OPERATING SYSTEM J4.0/V, DEVELOPED BY U.S.-BASED MICROSOFT CORP., VIDEO GRAPHIC CONTROL LOGIC MODULE, AND TECHNICAL REFERENCE GUIDE WILL BE PROVIDED TO GROUP MEMBERS FOR AN ENTRANCE FEE AND YEARLY-MEMBERSHIP CHARGE.

THE GROUP WOULD BE ESTABLISHED EARLY NEXT YEAR. OFFICIALS ALSO SAID THAT IBM WOULD PROVIDE MEMBERS WITH FULL TECHNICAL SUPPORT ON ALL ASPECTS OF PS-55 ARCHITECTURE SUCH AS PRODUCT INFORMATION AND THE GRAPHICS CONTROL CIRCUIT BOARD.

THE PS-55 SERIES COMPUTERS ARE BASED ON INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS MACHINES CO.'S PC-AT COMPUTERS, WHICH ARE MARKETED IN THE UNITED STATES.

AN OPEN ARCHITECTURE AND COMMON OPERATING SYSTEM WOULD ENABLE USERS TO HOOK UP DIFFERENT COMPUTERS MADE BY COMPANIES IN COMPETITION WITH IBM AND RUN THE SAME SOFTWARE APPLICATION PROGRAMS WITH COMPLETE COMPATIBILITY.

ACCORDING TO INDUSTRY ANALYSTS, IBM'S MOVE APPEARS TO BE AN ATTEMPT TO STRIKE A DIRECT BLOW AT NEC'S STRONGHOLD ON THE JAPANESE PERSONAL COMPUTER MARKET. IBM'S SHARE OF THE PC MARKET IS ONLY SEVERAL PERCENT WHEN COMPARED WITH NEC, WHICH HOLDS A MORE THAN 50 PERCENT SHARE IN THE MARKET.

BUT IBM MAY HAVE JUST FOUND THE RIGHT STUFF TO BREAK NEC'S GRIP ON THE MARKETPLACE.

HITACHI LTD. SAID IT WOULD JOIN THE OPEN ARCHITECTURE DEVELOPERS GROUP. SOME OF OTHER JAPANESE COMPUTER MAKERS ALSO SAID THAT THEY WERE STUDYING THEIR PARTICIPATION.

FURTHERMORE, IBM'S DRIVE TO CREATE AN OPEN ARCHITECTURE AMONG PERSONAL COMPUTER MAKERS ENHANCES ITS PROSPECTS TO ESTABLISH ITS GRAPHICS INTERFACE SYSTEM AS A FUTURE DE FACTO STANDARD WHEN THE NEXT GENERATION OF MULTIMEDIA APPLICATIONS HIT THE MARKET, ACCORDING TO INDUSTRY ANALYSTS.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - YAMANOUCHI PHARMACEUTICAL CO. SAID THURSDAY IT HAS AGREED TO BUY THE PHARMACEUTICAL DIVISION OF DUTCH FOODSTUFF AND CHEMICAL MAKER ROYAL GIST-BROCADES.

THOUGH THE COMPANY DID NOT DISCLOSE THE PRICE, ANALYSTS SAID YAMANOUCHI WILL PAY AROUND 30 BILLION YEN.

THE ACQUISITION IS THE SECOND BIG BUYOUT OF A FOREIGN ENTERPRISE FOR YAMANOUCHI, WHICH LAST YEAR BOUGHT SHAKLEE CORP., A U.S. HEALTH FOOD MAKER, AND ITS JAPANESE SUBSIDIARY FOR A TOTAL OF ABOUT 100 BILLION YEN.

THE LATEST ACQUISITION WILL HELP CEMENT YAMANOUCHI'S OPERATIONAL BASE IN EUROPE, WHERE IT ESTABLISHED A PLANT IN IRELAND IN 1988 AND OPENED A RESEARCH CENTER IN BRITAIN IN SEPTEMBER THIS YEAR.

THE DRUG DIVISION OF THE 68 MILLION GUILDER DUTCH COMPANY MANUFACTURES AND MARKETS ANTIBIOTICS AND MEDICINES FOR DISEASES OF THE AGED. IT HAS AN EXTENSIVE SALES NETWORK IN THE NETHERLANDS, FRANCE, GERMANY, AND FIVE OTHER EUROPEAN COUNTRIES, THROUGH WHICH YAMANOUCHI IS ALREADY DISTRIBUTING ITS PRODUCTS.

MANILA (DEC. 20) KYODO - JAPAN MORE THAN DOUBLED ITS INVESTMENTS TO THE PHILIPPINES THIS YEAR, EMERGING AS THE COUNTRY'S TOP FOREIGN INVESTOR FOR THE SECOND YEAR IN A ROW, BOARD OF INVESTMENTS (BOI) RECORDS SHOWED THURSDAY.

BOI FIGURES SHOWED JAPANESE EQUITY INVESTMENTS FROM JANUARY TO MID-DECEMBER THIS YEAR REACHED 7.34 BILLION PESOS, OR OVER 120 PERCENT HIGHER THAN LAST YEAR'S LEVEL OF 3.5 BILLION PESOS.

HONG KONG INVESTORS RANKED SECOND AMONG TOP INVESTORS, WITH EQUITY CONTRIBUTIONS OF 5.06 BILLION PESOS WHILE THE TAIWANESE CAME IN THIRD WITH INFUSED EQUITY OF 3.55 BILLION PESOS.

THE UNITED STATES RANKED FOURTH WITH 1.4 BILLION PESOS IN INVESTMENTS, FOLLOWED BY CANADA WITH CONTRIBUTED EQUITY OF 1 BILLION PESOS.

THE BIGGEST JAPANESE PROJECTS REGISTERED WITH THE BOI DURING THE PERIOD INCLUDE THE 3.2 BILLION PESO AUTOMOTIVE TRANSMISSION MANUFACTURING PROJECT OF TOYOTA T/M CORP., A FULLY OWNED SUBSIDIARY OF TOYOTA MOTOR CORP. OF JAPAN, AND THE 1.64 BILLION PESO MICROCHIPS RESISTORS PRODUCTION VENTURE OF ROHM ELECTRONICS PHILIPPINES, INC.

ALSO AMONG MAJOR JAPANESE INVESTMENTS WERE THE 650.8 MILLION PESO MISCELLANEOUS CHEMICAL PRODUCTS MANUFACTURING BUSINESS OF ASAHI-REPUBLIC CHEMICAL CORP. AND THE 240.3 MILLION PESO GASOLINE-FIRED ENGINE MANUFACTURING PROJECT OF HONDA ENGINE MANUFACTURING PHILIPPINES, INC., A FULLY OWNED SUBSIDIARY OF HONDA MOTOR CO. OF JAPAN.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - THE BANK OF JAPAN (BOJ) IS EXPECTED TO KEEP A TIGHT GRIP ON LENDING BY JAPAN'S COMMERCIAL BANKS IN THE FIRST QUARTER IN 1991, IN AN ATTEMPT TO SQUEEZE INFLATIONARY PRESSURE OUT OF THE ECONOMY, FINANCIAL SOURCES SAID THURSDAY.

THE SOURCES SAID THE CENTRAL BANK WILL DIRECT THE NATION'S 12 SO-CALLED ''CITY'' BANKS TO REDUCE THEIR LENDING GROWTH BY ABOUT 33 PERCENT FROM A YEAR EARLIER, THE SAME LEVEL OF RESTRAINT AS IN THE FOURTH QUARTER THIS YEAR.

THE TIGHT MONETARY STANCE REFLECTS THE BOJ'S DETERMINATION TO TOTALLY KILL ''THE BUBBLE'' EFFECT OF SOARING ASSET INFLATION NURTURED IN A PERIOD OF EASY-MONEY AMID LOW INTEREST RATES OVER THE PAST SEVERAL YEARS.

THE SOURCES SAID THE BOJ POLICY WILL BE WELCOMED BY THE MAJOR BANKS WHICH WANT TO CUT LENDING TO ACHIEVE THE CAPITAL-ADEQUENCY TARGET SET BY THE BANK FOR INTERNATIONAL SETTLEMENTS (BIS).

FACED WITH HIGHER INTEREST RATES AND THE FALTERING STOCK MARKET HERE, THE BANKS' CAPITAL BASE HAS BEEN RAPIDLY SHRINKING.

UNDER BIS RULES, JAPANESE BANKS NEED TO RAISE THEIR CAPITAL-TO-ASSET RATIO TO 8 PERCENT BY MARCH 1993.

SINCE THE THIRD QUARTER THIS YEAR, THE BOJ HAS TOLD BANKS TO CUT THEIR LOAN GROWTH IN A DETERMINED BATTLE AGAINST MOUNTING INFLATION FUELED BY THE HEATING ECONOMY AND SOARING CRUDE OIL PRICES AMID THE PERSIAN GULF CRISIS. IN THE OCTOBER-DECEMBER QUARTER, THE CENTRAL BANK ORDERED THEM TO SHAVE LENDING INCREASES BY 33.4 PERCENT, THE TIGHTEST IN 16 YEARS.

THOUGH SUCH A POLICY HAS SUCCESSFULLY CURBED THE PROPERTY PRICE SPIRAL SOMEWHAT, THE BOJ APPARENTLY CONSIDERS CURRENT PRIVATE-SECTOR LIQUIDITY AS STILL AT A THREATENING LEVEL, THE SOURCES SAID

THEY ALSO SAID THE RESTRAINT IS ALSO BASED ON THE BANK'S PERCEPTION THAT A FEW MONTHS MORE OF TIGHT CREDIT WILL LITTLE AFFECT CAPITAL SPENDING AND OTHER BUSINESS ACTIVITIES.

THE BOJ IS EXPECTED TO APPLY THE SAME GUIDANCE TO LONG-TERM CREDIT BANKS AND OTHER FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, THEY SAID.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - PRICES OF AUSTRALIAN AND CANADIAN COKING COAL WILL DECLINE 1 DOLLAR, OR ABOUT 2 PERCENT, PER TON IN FISCAL 1991, STARTING NEXT APRIL, THE FIRST PRICE CUT IN FOUR YEARS, INDUSTRY SOURCES SAID THURSDAY.

THE PRICE REDUCTION WAS AGREED UPON IN NEGOTIATIONS HERE BETWEEN AUSTRALIAN AND CANADIAN MINING FIRMS AND NIPPON STEEL CORP., NKK CORP., AND OTHER JAPANESE STEELMAKERS.

CITING THE EASING SUPPLY-AND-DEMAND BALANCE ON THE STEEL MARKET, THE JAPANESE SIDE DEMANDED LOWER PRICES.

THE AUSTRALIAN COAL SUPPLIER, BHP-UTAH, ACCEPTED THE REQUEST FOR A 1 DOLLAR-PER-TON PRICE CUT, AND THE CANADIAN SUPPLIER FORDING COAL LTD. FOLLOWED SUIT, THE SOURCES SAID.

OTHER FOREIGN COAL SUPPLIERS ARE EXPECTED TO AGREE ON A SIMILAR CUT IN UPCOMING NEGOTIATIONS, THE SOURCES SAID.

TOKYO (DEC. 20) KYODO - PRIME MINISTER TOSHIKI KAIFU PLANS TO CARRY OUT A CABINET RESHUFFLE EARLY NEXT YEAR BEFORE HE VISITS SOUTH KOREA ON JANUARY 9-10 POLITICAL SOURCES SAID THURSDAY.

KAIFU HAS DECIDED TO CHANGE THE CABINET LINE-UP FOLLOWING A SERIES OF INFORMAL MEETINGS WITH ICHIRO OZAWA, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE RULING LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY (LDP), FORMER PRIME MINISTER NOBORU TAKESHITA AND FORMER DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER SHIN KANEMARU, THE SOURCES SAID.

KAIFU PLANS TO HAVE KEY CABINET MINISTERS AND THREE TOP EXECUTIVES OF THE LDP REMAIN IN OFFICE, BUT TO KEEP OUT DIET MEMBERS TAINTED BY THE 1976 LOCKHEED PAYOFF SCANDAL AND THE INFLUENCE-BUYING RECRUIT SCANDAL FROM HIS NEW CABINET, EXPECTED TO BE ANNOUNCED SOMETIME BETWEEN JANUARY 4 AND 7, THE SOURCES SAID.

THE PRIME MINISTER DECIDED IT WAS SENSIBLE NOT TO RESIST THE GROWING CALLS FOR AN EARLY CABINET RESHUFFLE SINCE LDP FACTIONS ARE NO LONGER SUPPORTIVE OF HAVING SCANDAL-TAINTED FIGURES IN THE CABINET FOLLOWING QUESTIONING OF TOSHIYUKI INAMURA, AN LDP HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVE MEMBER, BY PROSECUTORS ON WEDNESDAY IN CONNECTION WITH SUSPECTED TAX EVASION, THE SOURCES SAID.

THREE MAIN LDP FACTIONS, ALONG WITH KANEMARU, HAVE CALLED FOR A CABINET RESHUFFLE WITHIN THIS YEAR, WHILE KAIFU AND TAKESHITA WERE RELUCTANT TO HAVE AN EARLY RESHUFFLE.

KANEMARU SAID KAIFU ORIGINALLY WANTED A CABINET RESHUFFLE IN MAY AFTER THE CURRENT REGULAR DIET SESSION ENDS.

KAIFU, WHO LACKS HIS OWN POWER BASE WITHIN THE LDP, TOOK OFFICE IN AUGUST 1989 FOLLOWING A SERIES OF SCANDALS IN THE PARTY, AND WAS SELECTED AS PRIME MINISTER MAINLY BECAUSE OF HIS ''CLEAN'' IMAGE.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 20) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

The Nikkei loses 352 points. ... Political uncertainty in the USSR sends European and British shares lower - the FTSE is off 24 points in early afternoon trading.

The dollar is up sharply against the mark. ... Bonds continue to slump in overnight trading, with the long yield back up to 8.20%. ... Brent crude is 19 cents cheaper at $26.21. ... Fixed-mortgage rates have hit their lowest levels since April 1987, but home sales remain depressed.

ALL NIPPON AIRWAYS plans to spend up to $4.1 billion for BOEING's new 777 jetliner and $1.7 billion for an AIRBUS INDUSTRIE plane. ... PEPSICO plans to enter the hamburger and drive-through restaurant business as its Taco Bell subsidiary agrees to acquire Hot 'n Now, a Michigan-based fast-food chain.

DIGITAL EQUIPMENT agrees to invest $230 million in a new company it will form with Germany's MANNESMANN AG. The move will give Digital a larger presence in Europe. ... SHEARSON LEHMAN told employees it was creating a two-tiered deferred compensation plan to reward the brokers who increase their production while keeping customer complaints low.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT is scheduled to release personal income for November at 10 a.m. EST. Analysts are predicting a 0.2% increase. Personal consumption is also expected to be up 0.2%

AT&T is negotiating with about 20 computer firms to sell off as much as 40% of its Unix operating system group. ... Northeast economic woes have made regulators fearful that several large banks in the region might fail and about a dozen smaller commercial and savings banks may be approaching insolvency.

FROM THE BULLS:

Resistance in the 2640-2650 area is even stronger than last month, says ANDREW ADDISON of the "Addison Report." But if the Dow can hold above 2550, Addison says he is sticking to his objective of 2700 by the end of January.

"Evidence continues to increase that 2350 will not be broken," says Addison, who looks for a 2450-2750 trading range through the first quarter. Positive action in his indicators "suggest the market is in transition from a bear to a bull." (CNBC "World Business", 12/20)

"I think the market will work higher before the year is over," says ALAN ACKERMAN, now at REICH & CO. After Tuesday's gains, yesterday was "more than a breather." Ackerman says he looks for interest rates to continue edging lower, "but I don't think you will see anything immediate."

Bank stocks could benefit from falling interest rates. "I think people looked at banks over the past several weeks. You've got to buy the ones with better balance sheets ... but I think banks can be bought now," says Ackerman. (FNN "Business Tonight", 12/20)

FROM THE BEARS:

It's "remarkable so many able technicians are becoming bullish as we near top patterns," says MICHAEL JENKINS of "Stock Cycles Forecast." "The next leg down could very well begin momentarily," says Jenkins.

When it comes, Jenkins sees at least another 600 points down, with a minimum target of 2100 on the Dow. He advises getting very defensive on any break of 80 points, and says big volume days are a sign that "big boys are getting ready to unload." (CNBC "World Business", 12/20)

"Has anything changed to make you more aggressive?" asks GERALD PERRITT, a Chicago newsletter writer and money manager. Mr. Perritt continues to be worried about the depth of the recession and about stock prices which, he says are well above the bargain basement. He is sitting tight with about 70% of his portfolios in cash. (WSJ, 12/20)

STOCK MARKET:

The "Bullish Consensus" reports that its weekly survey of futures traders showed that only 40% - the lowest this year - were bullish on stocks, according to its vice president of research RICHARD ISHIDA.

Since the market has rallied from its low in October, Mr. Ishida says the number "means that if you own blue-chip stocks, you're getting an early Christmas present and should get out at current prices." Mr. Ishida notes that the "Bullish Consensus" only works as a contrary indicator when the market is either near a high or low point. (NYT, 12/20)

"I thought it was very important for the market to renew its upside momentum. But it didn't," says KEN SPENCE of SALOMON BROTHERS. "The fact that the Dow was unable to break out of the top of its trading range at 2460 concerns me," according to Spence. He says the market may be losing its momentum. ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"The market can't make up its mind," says TIM HELLMAN at DREYFUS CORP. The discount rate cut "was good news ... but does this mean all the good news is behind us? I, myself, am looking for a sell-off." ("The Washington Post", 12/20)

"The discount rate was well discounted" by the stock market, says ROBERT RITTER, technical analyst at LADENBURG THALMANN, explaining Wednesday's sideward move. Mr. Ritter says this week's "triple witching hour" and year-end "window-dressing" will probably dominate trading activity for the rest of the week. (WSJ, 12/20)

"The market might have done a little better today [Wednesday] if not for the war fears," says HUGH JOHNSON, strategist at FIRST ALBANY CORP. "The outlook for the economy is not quite as dour as it was two days ago." ("USA Today", 12/20)

JOHN PHELAN, chairman of the NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE, expects the slump in the nation's financial markets to continue another six to 18 months. He calls the industry's three-year slump part of a business cycle and predicts the markets will be roaring again by the mid-1990s.

"We've got problems to get over," says Phelan referring to such excesses as the nation's debt binge in the '80s. "It's going to take us a while to digest that." ("USA Today", 12/20)

"I don't think it means anything for the overall market anymore when one stock gets hammered," says OPPENHEIMER & CO. portfolio manager ROBERT DOLL commenting on the possibility of earning laggards pulling down the market. "It just says more than ever, this is a stock picker's market." ("USA Today", 12/20)

"Some [earnings] expectations and forecasts are still too high," says MONTE GORDON, strategist at DREYFUS CORP. "And that contributes to the sense that the market is still in fragile shape." ("USA Today", 12/20)

Don't take capital gains until 1991 when gains will be taxed at a uniform 28% ... tax bracket, advises RICHARD ELLIOTT, investment strategist at BESSEMER TRUST. Investors should take capital losses to offset any earlier year gains and use the proceeds to buy stocks which are likely to do well into 1991, says Elliott. He doesn't expect tax factors to affect the market between now and year's end. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/20)

"Over time, cash is the worst possible investment," says JAMES SOLLOWAY, director of research at ARGUS RESEARCH CORP. Over the past several decades, cash equivalents have performed worse than longer-term bonds, and both cash and bonds have lagged far behind the 10% average annual return on stocks. (WSJ 12/20)

STOCK TIPS:

While most construction stocks are getting plastered, CLAYTON HOMES has, with the exception of one down quarter four years ago, a streak of ten years of profits. "It's rather remarkable that Clayton has turned in this kind of record," says GEORGE SHIPP of SCOTT & STRINGFELLOW. "If this were any other industry, this stock would have a much higher multiple." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"I've always wanted to get interested" in CBS stock, but "the prospects just seem so lackluster," says WILLIAM BAKER, who manages five mutual funds for OPPENHEIMER MANAGEMENT CORP. "As far as I can tell, [the tender offer] is just accommodating the estate" of Mr. Paley. (WSJ, 12/20)

FREDERIC E. RUSSELL, president of the investment management firm that bears his name, says that investors are missing opportunities by focusing on the domestic economy and the crisis in the Middle East.

He notes than many companies are growing much more quickly outside the U.S. than they are at home. "This growth isn't discounted by the U.S equity market " says Russell. Among his picks of firms benefitting from overseas growth are MINNESOTA MINING & MANUFACTURING, INTERNATIONAL FLAVORS & FRAGRANCES, BANDAQ and J.M. SMUCKER. (WSJ, 12/20)

MECA SOFTWARE fell three to 5 1/2 yesterday, after it was announced that shipment of their latest product would be delayed, and the product would not be available for the holiday selling season. "We think it's just a short-term [problem]," says ELLIOT PRINCE of NEEDHAM & CO. He calls the 35% decline an "overreaction." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"Telephones are very stable in a poor economy," says FREDERICK MORAN, who heads his own research and advisory firm in Greenwich, Conn. He says that cellular phone companies are among the most recession-proof. "It's a business tool rather than a luxury item," according to Moran. ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (DEC. 20) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

The timing of the discount may have been aggressive, says MARC COHEN, vice president at FUJI BANK in New York. "But when you look at the [U.S.] economy ... then you think, maybe drastic times call for drastic measures," so that softening of U.S. rates doesn't have to trigger a broad dollar sell-off. (WSJ, 12/20)

"Concerns about the Persian Gulf are discouraging dollar-bears from selling," says MARC CHANDLER of IDEA. The dollar also drew strength from the fact that "the yen was very weak," according to Chandler. ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"The banks are being Scrooge at Christmastime," says AUBREY G. LANSTON & CO. chief economist DAVID JONES. "They're holding consumer rates high at the same time the Fed is giving banks a Christmas present in terms of lower costs of money." (CNN "Moneyline", 12/19)

"Under normal circumstances we would have had a prime rate cut already," says JAMES ROSENBERG of SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. "It is overdue." He says the prime rate will be slow in falling because "banks need profits," and by keeping the prime high, they can increase their profit margin. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/19)

"There isn't any easy policy solution," says RAY STONE of STONE & McCARTHY. He says the Fed will need to ease again and "keep their fingers crossed" that banks will ease their own lending policies. "If banks don't lend, the Fed is impotent." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"In terms of the consumer sector, I think the banks will be very hesitant to lower rates," says JAMES FRALICK of MORGAN STANLEY. "These loans are very profitable." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/19)

"If [the lag time between the Fed's easing and the banks' lowering of rates] is longer, the Fed will have to act more aggressively," says DARWIN BECK of FIRST BOSTON. "It's a matter of degree and time." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"The next time that we can expect the Fed to do something in particular would be sometime around January 4," says BRIAN FABBRI of MIDLAND MONTAGU. Whatever the Fed does, Fabbri's "guess is [the banks] will not lower the prime rate this month." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/19)

DAVID HORNER at MERRILL LYNCH says, "The Fed will either lower rates [further] or jawbone the banks so that they give at least some of that, or pass at least some of that reduction along to the consumer and to borrowers." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/19)

"I'm not terribly worried about [yesterday's] bond market action," says BILL WOLMAN, chief economist at "BusinessWeek" and "CNBC." "I think the Fed is going to ease some more and I think the financial markets, particularly the bond market, will respond to that.

"We can't panic at this point about the Fed deciding not to ease [more]. I think it's unrealistic to think that way. ... I think bond prices will rally some more and rates will go down some more." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/19)

"I think you have three to six months of further declines in interest rates, so bonds look attractive," says RICHARD ELLIOTT, investment strategist at BESSEMER TRUST.

But Elliott is not shifting much of his clients' funds into bonds: "One has got to get positioned to begin buying equities for the economic pickup we see coming late in 1991." When buying bonds, pay careful to quality including the credit worthiness of municipalities, warns Elliott. (CNN "Business Morning", 12/20)

"Speculators [in the bond market] saw a reward for their correct anticipation that the Fed would ease, and they chose to take their profits rather than carry them over into the new year," say BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist for MIDLAND MONTAGU in New York. (WSJ, 12/10)

People "really ought to be moving their money to intermediate-term Treasurys," says HUGH R. LAMLE, executive vice president of M.D. SASS INVESTORS SERVICES, INC. Yields on the Treasury notes with four-to-seven year maturities are around 7.5% to 7.9% which is under the yield on the long-term Treasury bonds, but there's a lot less price volatility, says Mr. Lamle. (WSJ, 12/20)

THE ECONOMY:

"The markets seem to want to consolidate here," says MARSHALL ACUFF at SMITH BARNEY. "Our feeling is that this quarter actually will be the worst quarter of this recessionary period and by the second quarter of next year we should start to see some stability.

"I think by the time we get into the spring [interest] rates will be low enough to begin to stimulate some - and I underscore some - recovery in the housing and auto sectors. But it won't be the degree of recovery that we've seen coming out of past recessions. ... If we can get this Iraqi situation out of the way we might start to see some recovery sooner." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up" 12/19)

"It is clear from fourth-quarter statistics so far that growth has turned negative," says ROBERT McGEE, economist at TOKAI BANK LTD. He termed yesterday's downward revision of third-quarter GNP as "ancient history." (NYT, 12/20)

"In the short run, [the easing will do] very little" for the economy, says BRIAN FABBRI of MIDLAND MONTAGU. "The economy has to be viewed as very risky right now." (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/19)

"The world doesn't turn on a dime once it starts moving," says ROBERT DEDERICK chief economist for NORTHERN TRUST. He warns that the public should be patient in waiting for the economy to turn around. ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

"With exports not roaring and the consumer pulling back, that takes out the twin engines of growth that were keeping things moving," say JEAN SUNDRLA of EVANS ECONOMICS INC. (NYT, 12/20)

While many have criticized the Fed for waiting too long to ease, "that's always the fear in a recession," says DONALD STRASZHEIM, chief economist at MERRILL LYNCH. "The economy will respond. But we don't know when." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

The most recent economic figures suggest that "the economy has been sliding from a very moderate level at the end of the third quarter, into a slump in the fourth quarter," says DAVID BLITZER, chief economist at STANDARD & POOR'S. He says the strengths in areas like consumer spending "have probably been erased," while the areas of weakness "probably have been maintained." ("Nightly Business Report", 12/19)

"I draw comfort from the fact that the Fed has clearly turned aggressive fighting the downside of recession," says MORGAN STANLEY economist STEVE ROACH. While many economists are worried about the high levels of debt across the U.S., Roach says there are more pressing matters. "What concerns me is the fragility of the lenders and not the fragility of the borrowers." ("Investor's Daily", 12/20)

Housing starts rose 9.3% in November. "It's simply an anomaly," says THOMAS HOLLOWAY, senior economist with the MORTGAGE BANKERS ASSOCIATION. "I am confident that that number won't stand." The October rate, he says, had been abnormally low. He adds, "The bottom is in sight, and we see improvement in the spring of the year." (WSJ and NYT, 12/20)

BARBARA ALLEN at KIDDER PEABODY says the housing market may take some time to turn around. "We probably won't get a truly positive comparison on housing starts until probably next spring although the deterioration in the comparison should stop and we should start sort of moving up in a more positive vein after January or February." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 12/19)

"The declines in single-family starts and permits suggest we haven't hit bottom yet, and there may be further deterioration in the coming months," says JOHN TUCCILLO, an economist with the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS. (NYT, 12/20)

IN WASHINGTON:

"We estimated that the three-year cost of bank failures [would be] somewhere in the neighborhood of $25-35 billion," says ROBERT LITAN of THE BROOKING INSTITUTION. Such a cost would almost certainly require some added income for the FDIC. (FNN "Marketwrap", 12/19)

BOULDER, CO (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Satellite Information Systems Co. (SISCOM) (NASDAQ: SATI) today announced a contract to provide CBS affiliate KWTV-9 in Oklahoma City with a NewsPro(TM) newsroom automation system. Value of the contract was not disclosed.

KWTV is the number one ranked news station in Oklahoma City and the most watched news program in the state. The station is owned by Oklahoma-based Griffin Enterprises Inc., a diversified company whose holdings include several television properties.

"The selection of NewsPro by KWTV is particularly gratifying because of the highly competitive procurement environment in which it took place," said Bob Turner, SISCOM's director of marketing. "Their selection process was highly structured, analytical and exhaustive, and it validates that SISCOM's approach to the market is on target."

Rick Buchanan, marketing director of KWTV, said, "We met with all the other newsroom computer companies in the business and determined that SISCOM could provide us with the best product, best service and best commitment."

SISCOM will provide KWTV with twin Digital Equipment Corp. VAX processors, disk drives, high speed script printers, closed captioning, prompting, multiwindow production terminals and 32 journalist terminals. Additional machine control elements are planned.

The addition of KWTV gives SISCOM its second CBS affiliate since March -- the other being KMGH-TV in Denver. SISCOM has customers affiliated with all three major networks as well as with cable-based television, radio broadcasters and independent broadcast organizations. SISCOM has 24 installations worldwide.

SISCOM's NewsPro automates the editorial and production control aspects of broadcast news operations and provides information management facilities for use by organizations in the print media, public affairs, press relations and image industries.

SUNNYVALE, CALIF. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Trimble Navigation Ltd. (NASDAQ: TRMB) today announced that it has received contracts for the delivery of "Trimpack" hand-held GPS receivers totaling more than $12 million from GPS Joint Program office of the U.S. Government. This order is to be delivered during the first six months of 1991 and is a follow-up order to the $7 million contract which was awarded in August and is currently being completed.

In addition, the company has been awarded contracts totaling $3.9 million from the United Kingdom for other hand-held GPS units which are a variation of the "Trimpack." This order is also to be delivered during the first half of 1991.

"These orders illustrate that Trimble Navigation is the preferred military supplier of GPS receivers in the Persian Gulf due to the low cost, reliability and accuracy of our products," stated Charles Trimble, chairman and chief executive officer. "In anticipation of these additional military orders, we have taken the necessary steps to meet the increased production."

Trimble is the world leader in the emerging commercial market for satellite-based navigation and position data products using the U.S. Government funded Global Positioning System (GPS). Trimble designs, manufactures and markets electronic instruments and systems for determining precise geographic location. These products are sold in a variety of markets including survey and mapping, Geographic Information Systems (GIS), marine, aviation, vehicle tracking, military applications, and differential GPS systems. The company, founded in 1987 and located in Silicon Valley, Calif., has been selling GPS to world markets since 1984.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - International Multifoods Corp. (NYSE: IMC) today reported a strong increase in net earnings for its third quarter and nine months ended Nov. 30, 1990.

For the quarter, net earnings rose 53 percent to $14.0 million, or $1.08 per common share. Excluding a $4.7 million pre-tax writeoff last year, this year's net earnings were up about 20 percent. Net sales rose 5 percent to $577.2 million.

For the nine months, net earnings increased 26 percent to $26.8 million, or $2.07 per share, on a net sales gain of 7 percent to $1.65 billion.

"Our results for the quarter and the nine months reflect the good fundamental progress we're making toward improving the returns of our core businesses," said Tony Luiso, chairman, president and chief executive officer. "The improvements in our operations have been broad- based. We've improved operating efficiencies, introduced value-added products to meet customer needs and increased production and distribution capacity. We continue to expect solid earnings improvements for the remainder of this fiscal year."

For the third quarter, earnings of U.S. Foodservice rose 28 percent to $13. 1 million with gains in foodservice manufacturing and specialty distribution businesses. Contributing to the increase were productivity gains, lower costs and further market penetration. U.S. Foodservice sales were up 7 percent to $396.1 million.

Canada Food Products reported an 11-percent increase in earnings to $8.7 million, led by volume and margin improvements in branded retail foods. A strike, settled the end of October at one of the company's flour mills, lowered Canada's overall sales for the quarter.

North American Agriculture achieved a 35-percent increase in earnings to $4.7 million on a 5-percent improvement in sales to $63.5 million. The business benefited from higher grain merchandising volume and improved market conditions for animal feeds in both the U.S. and Canada.

Venezuelan earnings were down 8 percent to $6.5 million compared with last year when the timing of government-granted price increases benefited margins.

This year's earnings were also adversely impacted by the currency translation rate. Sales increased 7 percent to $47.6 million, the result of volume and price increases.

Minneapolis-based International Multifoods, with fiscal 1990 net sales of $2.1 billion, is a diversified food company with major operations in the United States, Canada and Venezuela.

PRINCETON, NJ (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of UJB Financial (NYSE: UJB) yesterday declared a quarterly dividend on its common stock of $.15 per common share, payable Feb. 1, 1991 to shareholders of record Jan. 8, 1991.

This is a reduction from the $.29 per share which had been paid for the previous five quarters, reflecting concern for the effects the weak real estate market and economic slowdown will have on the earnings performance of UJB Financial and the banking industry moving forward into 1991. Management expects to break even or report a modest loss for all of 1990.

UJB Financial's board also declared a quarterly dividend of $.93 per share on its Series B adjustable-rate cumulative preferred stock, based on a rate of 7.45 percent per annum, for the period of Nov. 1, 1990 to Jan. 31, 1991. This dividend is also payable Feb. 1, 1991 to shareholders of record Jan. 8, 1991.

PRINCETON, NJ (DEC. 19) PR NEWSWIRE - Cytogen Corp. (NASDAQ: CYTO), of Princeton, announced today it has filed an Investigational New Drug (IND) application with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) seeking authorization to initiate human clinical trials of ThromboScan(R) -- a blood clot imaging agent.

ThromboScan is the company's first molecular recognition unit (MRU) to reach the clinical phase of its development and is the first MRU that will be evaluated in humans anywhere in the world.

MRUs are peptides which represent a new generation of targeted delivery agents. These proprietary agents are based on monoclonal antibodies, laboratory generated replicas of immune system molecules, and will be used to target diagnostic and therapeutic substances to sites of disease within the human body. Cytogen researchers have used "molecular surgery" to reduce the targeting vehicle to the minimal molecular structure needed for locating and binding to specific antigen targets, and have used this structure as a template for creating MRUs. Whole IgG antibodies are comprised of approximately 1,320 amino acids and have a molecular weight of 150,000 daltons. The company's first MRU is comprised of just 17 amino acids and has a molecular weight of 1,878 daltons, which is less than 2 percent of the weight of its parent monoclonal antibody.

The small size of the MRU may allow it to reach areas within the body previously inaccessible to monoclonal antibodies. MRUs will diffuse through body tissues more quickly and will be eliminated faster than their full-sized antibody counterparts. This means that diagnostic or therapeutic substances linked to the MRU may reach their targets more efficiently, allowing a more rapid effect. Cytogen predicted that the design and manufacture of MRUs will be simpler and less expensive than current antibody technologies.

The ThromboScan MRU has reliably detected blood clots in preclinical model systems within minutes after infusion. In addition to being able to quickly generate images, the process for patient administration will be very straightforward and user friendly.

Cytogen Executive Vice President Thomas J. McKearn, M.D., Ph.D., said, "Filing the ThromboScan IND not only marks the completion of our product development objectives for 1990, but represents a quantum leap forward in using molecular engineering to design targeted delivery systems. Our MRU program is a major focus of the research and development efforts at Cytogen and when combined with our current OncoScint(R) and OncoRad(R) programs already in the clinic, we feel that Cytogen is meeting its mandate of providing better diagnostic and therapeutic products for the physician and more hope for the patient."

Cytogen Corp. is a biopharmaceutical company which has developed proprietary systems for linking drugs and diagnostic agents to monoclonal antibodies in order to optimize the function of the antibody as a delivery vehicle. With major emphasis on human cancer, current product development efforts at Cytogen are focused on improved cancer diagnostic imaging agents and the targeted delivery of cancer therapeutic agents directly to tumor sites.

STAMFORD, CT (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Asea Brown Boveri Inc. (ABB) announced today a unit had entered into an amendment to the sale and purchase agreement with ECC Group PLC (ECC) for the Georgia Kaolin business.

The amendment was entered into following discussion with the Department of Justice as it had been concluded that a more limited acquisition of Georgia Kaolin would facilitate completion of the transaction.

Under the amendment ABB will sell the major part of the Georgia Kaolin business to ECC for approximately $340 million. ABB will retain one facility known as Dry Branch.

Dry Branch will be an independent fully integrated kaolin producer with a capacity of up to 800,000 tons per year and prime crude reserves lasting in excess of 30 years at current levels of production. Its 1991 revenues are estimated to be about $80 million. Profitability is expected to increase when the plant is operated as an independent unit.

ABB had previously announced in May that a unit had entered into a sale and purchase agreement with ECC Group PLC (ECC), under which ECC would purchase the Georgia Kaolin business for approximately $520 million. Revenues in 1989 were $170 million. The acquisition was subject to, among other things, approval by U.S. regulatory authorities.

Asea Brown Boveri provides products and services for the power, process, industrial automation, environmental control, transit and other markets. The company and its subsidiaries have sales of approximately $6 billion and some 30,000 employees in the United States. They are part of the ABB Group, Zurich the world's leading electrical engineering company with total annual sales of about $25 billion and 215,000 employees in 140 countries.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Fiat Group and Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) have signed definitive agreements to form a new company which will merge Fiat's subsidiary FiatGeotech and Ford New Holland, Ford's tractor and farm and industrial equipment subsidiary.

The two firms had announced on July 31 that an agreement had been reached to form the new company, that Fiat would have an 80-percent majority interest, and that Ford would receive a cash payment and would hold 20 percent of the new company.

The transaction is subject to approvals by appropriate regulatory authorities in Europe and the United States.

The new company intends to preserve the individual market and product identities of both FiatGeotech and Ford New Holland.

Cesare Romiti, president and chief executive officer of Fiat, said, "This major transaction, as in the case of many others announced by our company this year, reaffirms Fiat's objective of strengthening our international position in our core businesses to better prepare ourselves for the increasingly harsh global competitive environment in the nineties."

Philip E. Benton Jr., Ford Motor Company president and chief operating officer said, "This agreement will ensure that there is continued development of best-in-class products of the highest quality available to consumers on a global basis. The new company will be able to draw on the expertise of two combined organizations to make this a reality."

Corporate headquarters of the new company will be in London. "The choice of a city outside Italy or the U.S.," said Giorgio Garuzzo, Fiat's chief operating officer, "is proof of the new company's intent to blend Ford New Holland and FiatGeotech's remarkable strengths on a truly global scale, using the best management talents available in the two companies."

The new company will establish an Advisory Committee under the chairmanship of Garuzzo. The committee, to include senior executives of GeoTech and Ford New Holland, will advise the new company on key issues affecting the new firm.

Garuzzo also reaffirmed the new company's commitment to maintaining separate product and market identities developed over almost a century by Ford, New Holland, FiatAgri, FiatAllis and other subsidiary brands.

TAMPA, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - First Florida Banks, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: FFBK) announced today it anticipates that its financial results will reflect a loss of approximately $ 8 million for the year 1990.

The anticipated loss is a result of management's decision to strengthen the bank's reserve position by taking a fourth quarter provision for loan losses of approximately $70 million to reflect the continuing economic downturn and softness in the real estate market. It is estimated that the year-end total reserve for loan losses will be $120 million.

First Florida Chairman A. Bronson Thayer said, "We believe this step is prudent and decisive in response to the operational and financial challenges this environment poses. We will continue to monitor the level of our reserves in order to remain well-capitalized, strengthen our balance sheet, and be prepared to respond to economic developments in our marketplace as we move forward into 1991."

First Florida Banks estimated that risk-based capital ratios at year-end 1990 will be approximately 8.20 percent for Tier I capital and 9.70 percent for total capital, as compared with the minimum Federal required ratios of 3.625 percent and 7.25 percent, respectively.

Thayer stated, "Our capital ratios remain strong and will continue to exceed all required levels. However, the continued uncertainty of the economy raises questions about the payment of dividends within the banking industry. Therefore, management is recommending that the board of directors of First Florida Bank suspend payment of the dividend in the first quarter of 1991. This decision will be reviewed in subsequent quarters."

First Florida Banks, Inc., a Tampa-based company with $5.9 billion in assets, operates 155 banking offices along Florida's West Coast from Pensacola to Naples/Marco Island and across the central Florida corridor to the Atlantic Coast. First Florida Banks' common stock is traded in the national over-the-counter market under NASDAQ symbol FFBK.

OMAHA, NE (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - ValCom, Inc. (NASDAQ: VLCM) today announced an agreement to provide computer products and services to iLAN, Inc. of Columbus, Ohio -- a systems integrator with offices in Columbus and Cleveland, Raleigh, N.C. and Kansas City, Mo.

ValCom has signed a total of 35 systems integrators and VARs -- 18 of which are Banyan VARs -- as part of its Premier Partner Program, which is designed to strengthen ValCom's systems integration capabilities through strategic partnerships with integration consultants. iLAN designs and implements local- and wide-area networks within a variety of operating systems and topologies.

"The agreement will allow iLAN to access ValCom's broad range of high-performance systems and networking products," said Michael Steffan, vice president of corporate development for ValCom. "At the same time, systems engineers from both companies will gain expertise working together and using ValCom's Communications Research Center -- a multi- vendor lab for testing connectivity solutions.

According to Greg Boyd, iLAN president and chief technology officer, the agreement creates a strong alliance. "ValCom is one of the largest resellers in the country, but unlike many of its competitors it is debt- free, profitable and growing."

Boyd adds that ValCom will provide better availability of iLAN's mainstream products from Banyan, 3Com, Synoptics, Compaq, IBM, HP, NEC and AT&T. "Our customers said they need faster delivery of network products. We listened and pursued ValCom for its state-of-the-art on- line order processing and warehousing system."

ValCom's on-line system allows customers direct access to crucial information concerning a product's availability, price and shipping schedule. ValCom provides 24-hour turnaround on most orders from its centrally located warehouse in Omaha, Neb.

The agreement with iLAN typifies ValCom's ongoing focus on selling and supporting high-end products. In addition to marketing advanced machines like the COMPAQ SYSTEMPRO, ValCom recently expanded its line of connectivity products with agreements to sell Synoptics' LattisNet(R) product family and Network General's Sniffer(TM) line of network analysis products.

"We're glad to see ValCom expanding their reach into the growing systems integration market," said Ross A. Cooley, vice president, sales and service, Compaq Computer Corporation. "PC systems like the COMPAQ SYSTEMPRO are accelerating the growth of the networking and client- server markets, and the relationship between ValCom and iLAN is an excellent example of the dealer channel's ability to address end-user requirements."

According to ValCom's Steffan, "ValCom can deliver all of the pieces -- hardware, software and technical support -- essential for systems integration and advanced network management."

ValCom serves business customers through over 300 locations in 46 states. That network includes franchised and company-owned business computer centers, systems integrators and other specialized providers of computer systems and support services. Major computer lines include IBM, Compaq, NEC, and Epson, along with related products from Banyan, Oracle, Novell, 3Com, Hewlett-Packard Synoptics, Network General, and others.

PASADENA, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacobs Engineering Group Inc. (NYSE: JEC) announced today that its subsidiary -- Robert E. McKee Inc. -- was awarded a $20 million contract to provide construction services for the new C.E. Perkins Public Service building for the City of Glendale, Calif.

The announcement was made by Andrew E. Carlson, McKee president, who said the new four-story municipal building will take 23 months to construct, with completion scheduled for October 1992.

The building, named in honor of former Glendale City manager C.E. (Gene) Perkins, will become a part of the city's civic center complex. It will contain 100,300 square feet of space to be used by various government departments. As part of its contract, McKee will construct a bridge to connect the new building with an existing parking structure.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held recently at the C.E. Perkins Building site at Glendale and Wilson Avenues. In attendance were Glendale Mayor Larry Zarian, the city's Director of Public Service Michael P. Hopkins, the building's namesake, C.E. Perkins, and other local dignitaries. Representing Robert E. McKee were J.D. Owens, senior vice president, operations; Phil Shipley, director of projects; Karl Kostellic construction manager; Jim Herzog, superintendent; Mike Lowrimore, project engineer and Bob Hutto, director of business development.

Robert E. McKee, a wholly owned subsidiary of Jacobs, provides construction and construction management services on projects from high tech facilities, hospitals and high-rise office buildings to industrial and manufacturing plants, water treatment plants and airports.

Jacobs Engineering Group Inc. provides single source consulting, engineering, design, architectural, environmental and hazardous waste management, procurement, construction, construction management, contract maintenance and operations services to government and industry worldwide.

OTTAWA, ONTARIO (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - SHL Systemhouse Inc. (NASDAQ: SHKIF; TSE, ME: SHK) of Ottawa today announced the financial results for its first quarter of its current fiscal year.

Revenues for the three months ended Nov. 30, 1990, were $177.1 million compared with $166.7 million for the same period last year (all figures expressed in Canadian dollars).

Net income before interest and taxes for the period just ended was $4.6 million compared with $5.6 million one year ago.

Net income for the quarter ended Nov. 30 was $2.5 million or 7 cents per share compared with $3.4 million or 10 cents per share last year.

The value of contracts signed by Systemhouse operations exceeded $100 million in the first quarter -- a record for the company. Approximately $90 million of this value is for delivery within 24 months, and is recorded in published backlog figures. Also in the quarter, the company reduced 24-month backlog by some $15 million to reflect expected later delivery under some U.S. federal government contracts.

Consolidated backlog for SHL Systemhouse increased in the quarter to $206 million from $180.3 million at the end of August.

Rod Bryden, chairman of SHL Systemhouse Inc., said, "All SHL Systemhouse Inc. operations -- Systemhouse, ComputerLand and ComputerGroup in the U.K. -- were profitable for the quarter. Margins and order rates improved during the course of the first quarter and we expect that all operations will continue to be profitable throughout the second quarter and the balance of the fiscal year."

SLOUGH, Berks, UK (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Xenova Limited, the novel pharmaceuticals business based in Slough, has secured additional finance from major venture capital and institutional sources in Europe, U.S.A. and Japan, the company announced today.

Following approaches to selected prospective investors, more than 7 million pounds sterling has been raised, valuing the business (post- financing) at around 20 million pounds. The existing investors, led by Schroder Venture, London, and supported by INCO Venture Capital, New York, together subscribed a total of 2 million pounds.

The new investors are Standard Life and Norwich Union in the United Kingdom and Jafco of Japan, via its European office in London, which have together invested 5 million pounds.

The brokers to the issue were Oakes, Fitzwilliams & Co. of London. Xenova has made pharmaceutical advances in several fields including arthritis, thrombosis and auto-immune diseases. These have come from both internal and collaborative research programs. The company will now accelerate the development of these discoveries and will expand into additional premises close to its existing facilities.

"It is rewarding to be going into this next stage of corporate development with strong institutional backing and the sustained commitment of our earlier investors. Japan is a rapidly growing market for truly novel drugs and the investment by Jafco should help us to consolidate our developing relationships with selected Japanese partners," commented Louis Nisbet, chief executive.

Xenova is a pharmaceutical discovery company that isolates and identifies novel, biologically active small molecules derived from microorganisms and other natural systems using sophisticated and proprietary screening technologies. It was founded in 1986 by Louis Nisbet, a microbiologist of international repute.

The value of natural products screening is that it provides a unique starting point in the search for new drugs. Many diseases ranging from immune disorders, viral disease and cancer to crop infestation are highly amenable to this approach. The company has an extensive proprietary natural chemicals resource derived from its collection of over 18,000 microorganisms. Great emphasis is placed on the collection of unusual organisms with fungi currently representing approximately two-thirds of the culture collection.

Xenova was founded in 1986 with seed finance from Korda and Company and Celltech. In 1987 a group of capital investors led by Schroder Ventures invested 1.5 million pounds to finance the equipping of laboratories and the recruitment of the research team. Other investors at this stage included Guinness Mahon Venture Founders, Newmarket Venture Capital, the Lazard Medical Fund and the Dutch investor Atlas Ventures.

SCOTRUN, PA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Caesars Pocono Resorts, the luxury, non-gaming properties of Caesars World Inc., proudly announce their latest "masterpiece" accommodation, the Roman Towers.

Cove Haven, Paradise Stream, Pocono Palace and Brookdale-On-The- Lake, the Caesars resorts known for their unique and romantic accommodations, are currently taking reservations for the new suites, in planning since 1986, and scheduled for completion in January 1991.

The first four Roman Towers will be available on Jan. 18, 1991, with additional suites completed throughout the month, for a total of 16 new accommodations at Brookdale-On-The-Lake.

Caesars Pocono Resorts report spending approximately $3 million on the new accommodations, and as with the Champagne Towers before them, expect for the Roman Towers to exceed a 90 percent occupancy rate over the next five years.

Construction of additional Roman Towers suites is planned for the unspecified future at Cove Haven, Paradise Stream and Pocono Palace.

The Roman Towers, billed as Caesars Pocono Resorts' "latest triumph," is decorated in royal shades of lavender and white with brass accents. The accommodation abounds with lavish amenities.

Upon entering the suite, you will encounter a spacious, majestic living room surrounded by a series of 18-foot, floor-to-ceiling marble- ized Corinthian columns. Directly ahead is the now-famous seven-foot champagne glass whirlpool. The living room is complete with a remote- control television and a log-burning fireplace. You ascend a staircase to the glass-enclosed, heart-shaped, tiled pool, then descend another set of stairs into an open, furnished exercise room. Directly off of this room is a glass-enclosed dry sauna.

A circular staircase ascends to the fourth and top level where you'll find a breathtaking bedroom with a king-size bed and a second remote-control television, complete with a built-in video cassette recorder. The ambiance of this room is further enhanced by a "celestial ceiling," a black reflective ceiling, glistening with a galaxy, star- studded night sky effect. This room, like an open balcony, overlooks the living room and pool area below. The bathroom area, which adjoins to the bedroom, features a bath and steam shower for two. It is from this area that you descend into the champagne glass whirlpool.

The Roman Towers are the newest accommodations to be built at Caesars Pocono Resorts since the world-renowned Champagne Towers were unveiled in 1984. When asked why the Roman Towers are being constructed, Douglas J. Wilkins, vice president of sales, said, "Our couples have come to expect from us new and innovative accommodations and have, on thousands of occasions, requested that we continue to add to our long list of exciting suites. We are simply giving our clientele that for which they are asking."

The rates for the Roman Towers are $610 per couple for a weekend. Included in this cost are breakfast and dinner daily, use of the many and varied facilities, and nightly entertainment in million-dollar nightclubs.

LONGMONT, CO (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Discovery Technologies (NASDAQ: DSCV) today announced that it has sold its FilmFax Teleradiology System to Kanakanak Hospital in Dillingham, Alaska. Kanakanak Hospital, part of the Bristol Bay Health Corp., is staffed by five full-time, board certified physicians. It provides health care services for 32 villages in southwestern Alaska, a service area of nearly 45,000 square miles accessible only by air and water.

Because of the remoteness of Kanakanak Hospital, it has been difficult for physicians to consult with large hospitals on complicated radiology cases, thus creating delays in treatment which are difficult for both patients and physicians. The FilmFax Teleradiology system enables physicians at Kanakanak to transmit laser-scanned, diagnostic quality images over standard telephone lines to radiologists at major Anchorage healthcare facilities. Telephone diagnoses can be made within ten minutes and written reports sent back within a half hour, in sharp contrast to the days or even weeks it took to send an X-ray through the mail to get a second opinion.

"We are finding that the FilmFax System is extremely adaptable to a wide range of specialized diagnostic needs," said Ralph Patitucci, president and chief executive officer of Discovery Technologies, "Healthcare industry experts predict that teleradiology will become a vital medical communications tool in the years to come and we feel that Discovery's products are at the forefront of that technology."

Based in Longmont, Discovery Technologies Inc. is a leader in providing innovative solutions in image management and communications to physicians, scientists, engineers and quality control experts throughout the world.

MIAMI LAKES, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - A preliminary unaudited sales and earnings report and forecast was issued today by Oak Tree Construction Computers, Inc. (NASDAQ: AOAK) for its wholly owned subsidiary, First Security Funding, Inc. (FSF) in Fort Worth, Texas.

For the the two month period ending Nov. 30, 1990 First Security processed and/or funded medical insurance receivables totaling approximately $14,000,000 reflecting a pre-tax operating profit of approximately $95,789. However, based on signed contracts in hand, the company anticipates increasing their processing/funding volume over 200 percent, with anticipated revenues exceeding $1,000,000, for the three month period ending Feb. 28, 1991; and volumes increasing 250 percent for the last quarter ending May 31, 1991, reflecting proportionately higher revenues against which a tax loss carry forward will be applied.

"Our projected growth rate, based solely on signed agreements, does not accommodate any potential new business we may enjoy between now and our May year end," stated D.R. Smith, president of Oak Tree. "First Security is already staffed and prepared to service volumes in excess of the anticipated $200,000,000 in contract volume now in hand," he concluded.

The acquisition of FSF by Oak Tree, which was finalized on Dec. 4, called for a two step exchange of Oak shares totaling 11,960,000 for 100 percent of FSF. On a fully diluted basis, it is anticipated that net after tax earnings for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1991, when consolidated with Oak Tree, will reflect the first positive earnings per share in almost three years.

STAMFORD, CT (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Sprague Technologies, Inc. (NYSE: SPG) today reported that the sale of its Semiconductor Group to Sanken Electric Co. Ltd., for $58 million cash had closed.

Edward F. Kosnik, president and chief executive officer, stated, "The Semiconductor sale completes the company's previously announced plans to divest certain nonstrategic or unprofitable businesses. Through the divestments Sprague has reconfigured its activities around its profitable passive component business where the company has market leadership positions."

"Significant investments have been made in tantalum and aluminum capacitor and thick film network technology, capacity and automated processes over the past several years to capitalize on the industry's transition to surface mount devices. Sprague is one of the few U.S. electronic component manufacturers with manufacturing facilities in Europe, the Far East and the United States and is well situated to serve multinational OEMs on a worldwide basis," Kosnik continued.

The company intends to use a portion of the proceeds to repay its bank credit facility borrowings. In addition, about $30 to $40 million of cash and the company's debt capacity will be available for further investment in new products, chip capacity and process improvements for the core businesses, possible acquisitions, and other corporate purposes including open-market purchases of the company's common stock pursuant to a previously announced program.

The Semiconductor Group sale is expected to produce an accounting loss from discontinued operations of about $49 million which will be recognized in the fourth quarter. The tax loss from the sale will give Sprague a U.S. net operating loss carryforward (NOL) that is estimated to be about $145 million at year-end 1990.

"The cash proceeds from the sale further strengthen Sprague's financial position, and the company is well positioned for the future with a leading components business, cash and an attractive tax situation," Kosnik commented.

WOBURN, MA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - ThermedeTec Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Thermedics Inc. (AMEX: TMD), has introduced Nitrolite(tm), a new system designed to detect trace amounts of two types of N-nitroso compounds.

The Nitrolite system is used in conjunction with ThermedeTec's TEA Analyzer(R) a specialized instrument capable of detecting and measuring nitrosamines, a group of N-nitroso compounds that are known to cause cancer. These nitrogen-based compounds are found in food, tobacco, cosmetics, and certain pharmaceutical drugs. The Nitrolite, developed at Cornell University by Dr. Joseph Hotchkiss, consists of a patented photolytic interface that has been licensed exclusively to Thermedics.

The addition of the Nitrolite interface to the TEA Analyzer will provide scientists with a method to detect and measure two additional classes of N-nitroso compounds, N-nitrosamides and N-nitrosoamino acids, which were previously very difficult to detect by conventional methods. Researchers know very little about these compounds. With the introduction of the Nitrolite, researchers will now be able to determine the prevalence of N-nitrosamides and N-nitrosoamino acids and assess the risk they pose to human health.

Several of the N-nitrosamides and N-nitrosoamino acids have been listed as carcinogens to be monitored by the state of California according to California's Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65). California's standards are believed to be the most comprehensive in the United States.

"After more than a year of product development, we are pleased to introduce such a valuable analytical tool to the scientific community," said Dr. David Fine, vice president of Thermedics. Dr. Fine added that several systems are scheduled for shipment before the end of the year.

Thermedics develops, manufactures, and markets biomaterials, biomedical products, analytical instruments, and explosives- and drug-detection devices, and provides analytical laboratory services. Thermedics is a public subsidiary of Thermo Electron Corporation (NYSE: TMO).

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division, which operates as United Express, announced today that it will begin daily, non-stop service to Washington's Dulles International Airport from both Dayton and Cincinnati, Ohio. This new service is scheduled to begin Feb. 15.

In the Dayton-Dulles market, United Express will provide four daily non-stops, with three daily non-stops being offered in the Cincinnati-Dulles market.

"Our new service from both Dayton and Cincinnati further strengthens our presence in the Ohio Valley. Passengers in both new markets will quickly discover, as those in Columbus already have, the ease with which they now have access to the nation's capital, as well as numerous domestic and international connections at Washington's Dulles Airport on United Airlines," said Kerry Skeen, president of WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division.

United Express first began service from Washington-Dulles to Ohio last September, with the commencement of service to Columbus. With the addition of Dayton and Cincinnati, the airline will literally triple its presence in the Ohio Valley. Also, on Feb. 1, United Express will add an additional roundtrip in the Columbus-Dulles market, bringing to five the number of flights offered each day.

United Express will serve both Dayton and Cincinnati with its new pressurized Embraer Brasilia jet-props. The Brasilia is the fastest and one of the most technologically advanced aircraft in regional airline service today, with a cruising speed of 350 mph. In addition to a complimentary snack and beverage service, an extensive cocktail selection is offered onboard the 30-passenger aircraft.

As a marketing partner with United Airlines, United Express offers its customers many United Airlines benefits, including worldwide reservations, advance seat selection and boarding passes. Members of United's popular Mileage Plus frequent flier program earn a minimum of 500 miles on all United Express flights, and senior citizens may participate in United's Silver Wings program which offers a variety of travel-related discounts.

WestAir's Atlantic Coast Division, which operates as United Express, began service from Washington-Dulles in December 1989 with 48 daily departures to six cities. Since that time, Atlantic Coast has more than tripled in size and inclusive of today's announcement, will serve 25 cities in eight states, with a total of 195 daily departures.

WestAir, a subsidiary of WestAir Holding, Inc. (AMEX: WAH) operates as United Express and consists of two divisions -- the Atlantic Coast Division, with hub operations at Washington-Dulles, and the Pacific Coast Division, with hubs at Los Angeles; San Francisco; Portland, Ore.; Seattle; Sacramento and Fresno, Calif. Headquartered in Fresno, WestAir Holding, Inc. is one of the largest regional airlines in the United States, operating over 800 daily flights to 64 cities in 14 states and the District of Columbia. In early 1989, the company was named "Regional Airline of the Year" by Air Transport World Magazine.

BURLINGTON, NC (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. (NASDAQ: EDIT) announced today that it has submitted its recently developed EZ-SCREEN: AMPHETAMINES test to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for pre-market clearance.

The Company also announced that the new test for the detection of amphetamines in human urine samples has been launched, on a limited basis, pending FDA pre-market clearance, for forensic use to law enforcement agencies in the United States.

James D. Skinner, EDI President and Chief Executive Officer, said "The availability of the EZ-SCREEN: AMPHETAMINES test represents another major milestone in our comprehensive product offering for substance abuse detection. This new test complements EZ-SCREEN tests for the urinary metabolites of marijuana, crack/cocaine, opiates (heroin) and barbiturates. The major business opportunity for EZ-SCREEN substance abuse tests is with law enforcement agencies. However, following clearance by the FDA, EDI will be marketing the EZ-SCREEN: AMPHETAMINES test to our full range of customers."

ROCHESTER, NY (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Ronald L. Heidke, a Kodak (NYSE: EK) vice-president, today was named director of corporate quality at Eastman Kodak Company, a position that reports directly to Kay R. Whitmore, the company's chairman, president and chief executive officer.

Heidke replaces Ralph J. Rosati, Kodak's current director of corporate quality, who announced he will leave the company February 1, 1991 after more than 30 years of service. Rosati, recognized internationally as an authority in the quality area, will join a leading consulting firm as senior quality management consultant.

As director of corporate quality, Heidke will oversee Kodak's corporate quality group and will spearhead the company's drive to extend quality processes and procedures to all units in the organization.

Whitmore said Heidke, who has served since 1986 as general manager of the Rochester Sensitized Products Manufacturing Division, is "highly qualified for the top quality job at Kodak."

"Quality leadership will drive our initiatives as we compete in an intense world marketplace," Whitmore explained. "We will focus more sharply than ever before on customer satisfaction and continuous improvement. Few people in our organization have the breadth of business experience of Ron Heidke. His background in manufacturing, marketing and product development, particularly in the photographic area, and his overall knowledge of Kodak's structure and culture, will play a key role as we move forward to broaden quality efforts throughout the entire company."

Whitmore credited Rosati for establishing the foundation that will make such advances possible. Rosati, who joined Kodak in 1956, became the company's first director of corporate quality in 1986. He serves on the board of examiners for the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award and is widely regarded as one of the top quality professionals worldwide.

As Rosati leaves and Heidke takes charge, Richard T. Bourns, Kodak senior vice-president and general manager of Worldwide Manufacturing, will assume additional responsibility as Rochester Sensitized Products Manufacturing Division general manager. Bourns, thus, will serve in a dual capacity.

Heidke joined Kodak as a senior research chemist in 1964. He has served in a number of managerial positions in Kodak's manufacturing organization. He has also served as director of Kodak's Quality Services Organization and as general manager of the Consumer Products Division. Heidke was elected a company vice-president in 1984 and was appointed to his current position in the sensitized manufacturing area in 1986.

A native of Barrington, Ill., Heidke holds a B.S. in chemistry from the University of Illinois, a Ph.D in physical-organic chemistry from the University of Rochester, and an M.S. in business management from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), where he completed the Sloan Fellowship program.

Heidke is a board member and vice-president of the National Association of Photographic Manufacturers, and a member of the board of the University of North Carolina's Center for Manufacturing Excellence.

FORT WASHINGTON, PA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - McNeil Consumer Products Company, a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson (NYSE: JNJ), came to the aid of a seven-year-old Soviet boy, Kirill Putenis, who suffers from a congenital bowel disorder and presented him with a gift that will help him enjoy an active childhood. The gift -- a year's supply of Imodium A-D, a non-prescription anti-diarrhea medication -- was prescribed for Kirill by U.S. surgeon Alberto Pena, M.D., as part of a treatment regimen that doctors believe will enable Kirill to attend school and lead a normal life.

"We are delighted to play a role in helping Kirill return home for the holidays with renewed freedom and confidence to live an active, healthy and more normal life," noted Carol Kahrs, group product director, McNeil Consumer Products Company.

Kirill, accompanied by his mother Natalia Markova, arrived in the U.S. this past fall to meet with Dr. Pena, chief of surgery at Schneiders Children's Hospital, Long Island Jewish Medical Center. Dr. Pena operated on Kirill, free of charge, to repair the damage of previous operations and prescribed a medical treatment program which includes Imodium A-D.

While readily available in retail outlets throughout the United States, Imodium A-D is not available in the Soviet Union.

According to Markova, as a result of the surgery and the treatment program Kirill is able to wear normal clothes and play with other children for the first time in his life, and, upon their return home, Kirill will finally be able to attend school.

Imodium(R) A-D, marketed by McNeil Consumer Products Company, is the most effective anti-diarrheal medication available to consumers. Imodium A-D contains the active ingredient loperamide and is the first anti-diarrheal prescription medication approved as a non-prescription product. Imodium was introduced as a prescription product in capsule form in 1977, and later as a non-prescription medication in liquid form in 1988. The Imodium A-D caplet was approved as a non-prescription remedy in 1989.

YORK, PA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - KBA-Motter Corp. today announced the largest flexographic newspaper press order of the year. The order for 36 printing couples was given to KBA-Motter by The Providence Journal Co. of Providence, R.I.

The agreement signed Dec. 14, 1990 concludes intensive research and analysis by the Providence Journal of competitive flexo press technologies and their compatibility with the Journal's existing 18 web flexo press.

"The new flexo equipment consists of multiple color towers and is of great significance for several reasons," stated Evans Kostas, president of KBA-Motter Corp. "First, the order of more than $13 million reaffirms the commitment by The Providence Journal Co. to the flexo process and recognizes their confidence in KBA-Motter to supply the latest in flexo technologies through the combined resources of our newly restructured international company."

Additionally, Kostas continued, "The Providence sale combined with our Colormax (5 couple unit) flexo installations at Louisville, Ky., and Reading, Pa. establishes KBA-Motter Corp. unquestionably as the leading supplier of advanced and innovative flexo technologies to both the newspaper and commercial printing industries today."

The Providence order along with orders for commercial gravure units, folders and reels for Arcata Graphics, additional Colormax newspaper flexo units, a flexo decorator press for Procter & Gamble and 10 newspaper jaw folders destined for delivery to the European marketplace in mid 1991 add to the growing backlog of work in progress.

The expanding base of diversified press orders puts KBA-Motter Corp. in a position to offer an ever increasing variety of press technologies while strengthening its position as a world class press supplier to the newspaper and commercial printing industries.

KBA-Motter Corp. with headquarters in York, Pa. is a member of the Koenig & Bauer-Albert Group and an operating unit of Publishers Equipment Corporation of Dallas.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Syncor International Corporation announced today record sales and earnings for the second quarter and the first six months ended Nov. 30, 1990.

Sales in the second quarter of fiscal 1991 increased 19 percent to a record $37 million, up from $31 million in the second quarter of fiscal 1990. Net income for the current quarter was $1 million or 10 cents per share compared to $1 million or 10 cents per share for the same period last year which included an extraordinary item of 2 cents. Income before extraordinary item increased to $1,030,000 or 10 cents per share compared to $788,000 or 8 cents per share, for last year, an increase of 30 percent.

For the six months of fiscal 1991, sales increased 19 percent to a record $73 million up from $62 million for the six months of fiscal 1990. Net income reached $2.1 million or 21 cents per share compared to $2.1 million or 21 cents per share for the last fiscal year which included an extraordinary item of 5 cents per share. Again, for the six months, income before extraordinary item increased 30 percent to $2.1 million or 21 cents per share, up from $1.6 million or 16 cents per share in fiscal 1990.

McGrevin also indicated that the company has initiated several new projects for the remainder of the current fiscal year which will ensure continued growth:

-- The building of marketing and sales support for the first in a series of anticipated new products for the nuclear medicine community;

-- The acquisitions of several nuclear pharmacies located in geographic areas not previously serviced by the company. These new pharmacies will allow Syncor to continue to build market share;

-- The continued repositioning of the Home Care business which may involve the closing of a few unprofitable individual operations. The remainder of its centers will be profitable and contribute to the company's growth, and;

-- The net financial impact of these projects is not expected to significantly effect the company's performance for the balance of the current fiscal year.

Syncor operates a nationwide network of 84 nuclear pharmacy service centers and 16 home care pharmacies. They prepare and deliver patient specific intravenous drugs and solutions for use in diagnostic imaging, and a complete range of products for home infusion therapy. Syncor services over 5,000 hospitals, clinics, physicians' offices, nursing facilities, and home based patients. Syncor is the only national pharmacy of its king that provides this combination of diagnostic and therapy services to the hospital and alternate site markets.

YPSILANTI, MI (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - GM Powertrain Division, formerly Hydra-matic Division, today presented the Federal-Mogul facility in St. Johns, Mich., and Ganton Technologies of Sturtevant, Wis., with supplier awards under the General Motors "Targets for Excellence" program.

"Quality is the key to success in this very competitive marketplace. These two organizations' truly exemplary efforts help the Powertrain Division produce world-class transmissions, and we're glad to have you on the team," said William J. Boskey, general director of Materials Management.

The St. Johns plant -- the sixth Federal-Mogul facility to receive an award -- produces precision bushings and thrust washers used in all of Hydra-matic's transmissions, as well as other GM products.

"We are very proud of our partnership with the Powertrain Division and are thrilled about receiving the 'Mark of Excellence' award," said Bob Claycomb, plant manager of the St. Johns plant. "This achievement has truly been a team effort by all our employees at this facility and throughout Federal-Mogul."

Headquartered in Southfield, Mich., Federal-Mogul operates 42 plants, more than 70 distribution centers and four major research centers throughout the world. Its products range from a variety of precision parts for the transportation, farm equipment, construction and manufacturing industries to aerospace components.

Ganton Technologies produces diecast aluminum components used in all of Hydra-matic's transmissions.

The awards are part of the GM "Targets for Excellence" supplier development process, which is widely respected both inside and outside of the supplier community. The program was begun in 1987 and applies to GM suppliers of productive materials and service parts, including GM manufacturing locations.

The assessments are conducted by GM teams from purchasing, product engineering manufacturing and quality control activities. The teams assess suppliers in five key areas: quality, cost, delivery, management and technology. The "Mark of Excellence" is the top award available in the process.

GM Powertrain Division was formed last week through the integration of GM's transmission and engine operations, formerly known as Hydra- matic Division and GM Engine Division.

DEARBORN, MI (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS) announced today that its principal subsidiary, Consumers Power Company, received this morning a Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) Administrative Law Judge's (ALJ) proposal for decision relating to the recovery in the Step 3B Midland nuclear plant abandonment case.

In his proposal, ALJ Robert E. Hollenshead recommends that the MPSC permit Consumers Power to recover $1.34 billion of the requested $2.14 billion related to the abandoned nuclear assets. The MPSC staff had also previously recommended recovery of $1.34 billion.

The ALJ's recommended recovery would occur over a 10-year period and would provide the company an annual electric rate increase of $111.5 million during this period.

The company is studying the ALJ's proposal and will be filing its exceptions to the ALJ's proposal in February 1991. As a result of the ALJ's proposal for decision, the company expects to reserve against income in the fourth quarter approximately $450 million on an after tax basis.

If the 3B case that is the subject of today's ALJ's proposal for decision is not settled, it is expected that the MPSC would issue its final order in mid- to late 1991.

CMS Energy Corporation is a $3 billion (sales) diversified energy company with businesses engaged in the distribution of electricity and natural gas, interstate storage and transmission of natural gas, oil and gas exploration and production, independent power generation and utility services. PHILADELPHIA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Philadelphia Electric Co. (NYSE: PE) said today that Unit 1 at the Limerick Generating Station in Montgomery County has returned to service from a three-month outage for refueling and maintenance.

PE said the unit was connected to the regional power grid on Tuesday, Dec. 18, after completing its third refueling outage which began on Sept. 8.

Today is operating at 50 percent power and is expected to gradually ascend to full power by this weekend.

During the outage, one-third of the unit's 764 fuel elements were replaced and some 2,000 maintenance tasks were performed of which approximately 1,500 were preventive maintenance.

Approximately 1,200 persons worked on the outage, including PE personnel and outside contractors. The total cost of the outage was more than 10 percent under the $27 million budget.

After returning from its second refueling outage on May 22, 1989, Unit 1 operated for 378 consecutive days, becoming one of only nine General Electric units worldwide to run continuously for more than 365 days. Of the 470 days between the second and third refueling outages the unit was out of service for only 29 days.

As a result of this exemplary operating record, General Electric Co. awarded Limerick its Outstanding Performance Award.

Graham M. Leitch, PE vice president, Limerick, said, "This award is the result of quality operation, an outstanding preventative maintenance program, and dedication on the part of the entire staff at Limerick. As we embark on this operating cycle, everyone at Limerick will continue to maintain public safety and quality of operation as our top goals."

For the first nine months of the year, 65.3 percent of PE's 27.5 billion kilowatt hours of electricity was generated by nuclear power.

The fuel cost to generate the electricity produced by nuclear power during the first nine months of the year was approximately $490 million less than the fuel cost to produce the same amount of electricity through oil-fired generation.

Through September just 5 percent of PE's power was produced by oil, a significant change from 1972 when PE relied on oil for 46 percent of its total output and PE customers were subject to dramatic increases in the cost of electricity caused by the first Arab oil embargo.

SEATTLE (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Boeing Commercial Airplane Group today announced it had reached agreements with three aerospace suppliers for the production of components and systems for the new Boeing 777 twinjet.

Boeing estimates that the initial orders with these firms have a combined value of about $130 million, and that this amount will be significantly higher when measured against the life of the 777 program.

The suppliers and their responsibilities under the new contracts: -- Garrett Auxiliary Power Division of Allied-Signal Aerospace Company will design and build the 777's auxiliary power unit. This unit, which provides power for electrical and air conditioning needs during ground operations, will be produced at Garrett's plant in Phoenix, Ariz.

-- AiResearch Group of Allied-Signal Aerospace Company will produce the 777's cabin pressure control system and air supply control system. Development and manufacture of these systems will take place at AiResearch Group plants in Torrance, Calif.; Tucson, Ariz.; Tempe, Ariz. and Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

-- Hamilton Standard Division of United Technologies will be responsible for the cabin air conditioning and temperature control system, as well as the ice protection system for the wing and engine cowling. Production will take place at Hamilton Standard's facilities in Windsor Locks, Conn.

Earlier, Boeing announced contracts with Honeywell Inc., for flight deck avionics and with Sundstrand Corp. for the primary electrical power generating system.

All of these firms are working with Boeing 777 design/build teams in Seattle. The design/build concept brings together representatives from engineering, manufacturing, customer support and other disciplines to help assure designs are cost-effective, fully integrated and meet customer needs before they are released for production.

The Boeing 777 is a medium-to-long-range jetliner seating 360 to 390 passengers in a two-class configuration. It features an advanced wing design, the widest fuselage in its class and the latest high-efficiency turbofan engines. First delivery is scheduled for May 1995 to United Airlines.

CLEVELAND (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) is playing Santa Claus in Cleveland again, donating $9,000 to help feed needy people during the holidays.

The funds, contributed by Ford's Cleveland Community Relations Committee, will be used by the Inter Church Council of Greater Cleveland for its Hunger Task Force, which provides canned goods and other staples to less fortunate families in the city.

Members of the Ford committee and UAW hourly employees from Ford's area plants will unload food cases at the Church Council's Community Corner, 8607 Madison Ave., starting at 10:30 a.m. Friday (Dec. 21). They also will help distribute the food to families at that location.

"Once again, Ford, which is the largest private-sector employer in the Cleveland area, is pleased to be able to help needy people in the city at holiday time," said Bill Smith, chairman of the committee. He also is manager of Ford's Walton Hills Stamping Plant.

In another holiday contribution to the community, Ford's Community Relations Committee again will sponsor two Christmas concerts by the Cleveland Orchestra Saturday (Dec. 22) at Severance Hall.

OMAHA, NE (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - ConAgra Inc. (NYSE: CAG) today reported record earnings for fiscal year 1991's second quarter and first half ended

Nov. 25.

Second quarter earnings per share rose 15 percent to 60 cents from 52 cents in the previous year's second quarter. Net income was up 38 percent to $88.3 million from $63.9 million. Pretax earnings increased 53 percent to $152.4 million from $99.9 million. Net sales gained 38 percent to $5.33 billion from $3.86 billion.

On an operating basis excluding nonrecurring items in last year's first quarter, fiscal 1991 first half earnings per share rose 18 percent to $1.06 from 90 cents a year ago; net income was up 31 percent to $146.2 million from $111.8 million; and pretax earnings increased 44 percent to $249.1 million from $173.1 million. Net sales gained 25 percent to $9.82 billion from $7.86 billion.

Including nonrecurring items in fiscal 1990's first quarter, the results in last year's first half were earnings per share 92 cents, net income $113.9 million and pretax earnings $179.2 million. Net sales in last year's first quarter and half were not affected by the nonrecurring items.

During the second quarter and first half, ConAgra's largest industry segment, Prepared Foods, registered a major increase in operating profit.

The Beatrice businesses -- Hunt-Wesson, Swift-Eckrich and Beatrice Cheese -- were the key source of the Prepared Foods profit increase. ConAgra acquired Beatrice Company on Aug. 14; Beatrice operations were include in ConAgra's results for two weeks of fiscal 1991's first quarter and all of the second quarter. Beatrice earnings to date have been ahead of plan.

ConAgra's consumer frozen food business achieved exceptional double-digit unit volume growth in fiscal 1991's second quarter and first half. Successful new products and brands such as Healthy Choice and Kid Cuisine and established Banquet, Morton and Patio brands supported the surge. Over 50 new products were introduced during the second quarter. They included additions to the national Health Choice and Kid Cuisine lines and new frozen and shelf-stable lines in test markets. Despite heavy marketing spending, earnings were up significantly in the second quarter and well ahead in the first half.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - MCI Communications Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC) and British Telecom plc today announced they are soliciting bids from potential contractors to construct the world's largest undersea fiber optic cable that will link Europe with North America.

The TAT-X Cable Consortium has decided to issue a request for quotations (RFQ) with a target of awarding contracts by May 1991.

"Earlier this month, 18 carriers representing 11 countries gathered to discuss the details concerning the cable," said Seth Blumenfeld, president, MCI International.

The consortium is planning to use the advanced Synchronous Digital Hierarchy (SDH) international transmission standard. SDH enhances fiber optic cable systems by providing sophisticated management capabilities including centralized control of circuit provisioning, maintenance testing and cable restoration.

TAT-X, with SDH, is expected to operate at transmission speeds as high as 2.4 gigabits per second, providing the capability to handle 150,000 simultaneous phone calls per fiber pair. It will have at least three operating fiber pairs with one serving as a backup.

TAT-8 and PTAT are already installed and in service. TAT-9 is due to be in operation by the end of 1991. TAT-X, scheduled to be operational during 1993, will provide five times the capacity of TAT-9.

"TAT-X Cable Consortium members met recently to discuss the role envisioned for the cable in the developing North Atlantic fiber optic cable network, as well as the planning and implementation required to make the cable a reality," said Blumenfeld.

The growing telecommunications needs between the United States and Europe are expected to result in a 50 percent increase in voice traffic by the time TAT-X is in service by the end of 1993. Private line demands of international business also will further increase the requirement for additional capacity.

British Telecommunications plc is a leading world player in telecommunications. It operates one of the largest networks in the world and offers a wide range of international services. British Telecom has annual revenue of over $20 billion and employs 240,000 in 30 countries.

MCI Communications Corporation had 1989 revenue of $6.5 billion and is one of the world's largest telecom companies with offices in 50 countries. Headquartered in Washington, MCI offers a full range of domestic and international communications services for residential, government and business users. International services include direct dialing, telex, facsimile, electronic mail, private voice and data networks and television transmission.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - HEM Research, Inc., announced today the commencement of clinical trials with the investigational drug Ampligen in the treatment of patients with Chronic Fatigue Syndrome (CFS). The company believes that Ampligen is the only drug currently announced as being cleared by the FDA for expanded testing with CFS patients that seeks to treat the viral and immune system facets of the disease.

The protocol for the expanded double-blind study of CFS patients calls for a study group of approximately 120 patients. Since FDA clearance was given, investigators have been selected at five local test sites across the country, patients have been screened and enrolled at each site, and Ampligen administration has begun at all sites. Initial results are expected to be reported in the fall of 1991.

One key measure in the trials will be to test patients for increased physical endurance. CFS leaves many patients unable to stand or to take more than a few steps on a treadmill. In their worst condition, patients often are unable to roll over in bed, chew their food, or brush their teeth without severe pain and fatigue.

Another key measure will be the evaluation of the patients' mental capabilities using standard I.Q. and other cognitive tests. CFS impairs many patients' mental faculties, often resulting in a drop from above- average I.Q. scores to levels approaching retardation. Patients are often left unable to read, do simple math, or understand what people are saying.

There is not yet a definitive blood test to detect CFS, but there are markers in the blood which will be studied in these trials. One marker is an increased production of certain cytokines, agents that build up the immune system to fight off disease. CFS patients tend to have a unique imbalance of certain cytokines.

Another marker that will be tracked in a nested study at one test site measures the dysfunctioning in the chain of reactions known as the anti-viral pathway that results in response to a viral infection. The chain normally begins when a double-stranded RNA fits like a key into the enzyme 2-5A synthetase. The 2-5A synthetase triggers the production of bioactive 2-5A. This in turn produces RNase L, which degrades cellular and viral RNA, inhibiting viruses from reproducing and spreading. CFS patients show an alteration of 2-5A either due to an up or down regulation of RNase L. Ampligen appears to restore balance to the anti-viral pathway by modulating RNase L production to normal levels.

The test to evaluate this antiviral pathway was developed by a research team led by Dr. Robert Suhadolnik at the Temple University School of Medicine. The nested clinical study will be conducted by Dr. Daniel Peterson, the trial investigator at the Lake Tahoe, Nev. site.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The number of serious strike- related incidents across the tri-state area since the walkout began at the Daily News on Oct. 25 has now reached 1,008, with eight incidents recorded in the last 24 hours, the newspaper announced today.

A striking pressman was arrested at 4:50 a.m. this morning and charged with two counts -- one a felony.

No arrests have been made in an incident where at 2:30 a.m. this morning a bomb was reported at Laconia and 230th Street in the Bronx. A package was removed by the Police Department bomb squad consisting of "sticks tied together with a clock" giving the appearance of a time- bomb.

As of 8 a.m. this morning: Serious incidents: 1,008 Arrests: 147 Personal injuries: 73 People hospitalized: 11 Vehicles damaged or destroyed: 177

Thus, according to the paper, an average of almost 18 serious incidents have occurred per day in the unions' efforts to obstruct by force the production and distribution of the Daily News in the tri-state area since the strike began on Oct. 25.

The record of serious incidents over the now 57-day-old strike includes attempted murder, kidnapping, robbery, criminal use of explosives, arson, criminal menacing, etc.

"There continues to be an orchestrated campaign of violence by striking employees, all in violation of the law, the aim of which is to destroy the Daily News' business," said News spokesman John Sloan.

WATERTOWN, Mass. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Ionics, Incorporated (NYSE: ION) announced today that Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) has selected Ionics as the company with which it intends to finalize a contract for the supply of desalted and purified water for use at its Diablo Canyon Power Plant. Under the contract, Ionics will design, build, own and operate a 400-gallon-per-minute (gpm) seawater desalination facility and a 600-gpm ultrapure water facility.

The two facilities will be leased to PG&E and operated by Ionics under a 10-year contract. Based on anticipated water requirements, the contract is expected to generate revenues totaling approximately $20 million over the contract term. Start-up of both facilities is scheduled for early 1992.

The seawater desalination facility will supplement the plant's process water supply and the ultrapure water facility will provide highly purified water for the plant's steam generator system. The facilities will utilize advanced membrane techniques which are based upon the reverse osmosis, ultrafiltration and electrodialysis reversal processes.

Ionics is a separations technology company involved worldwide in the manufacture and sale of membranes and related equipment for the purification of water, in the supply of purified water and water treatment chemicals, and in the sale of bottled water and home water purifiers.

FAIRFAX, Va. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Mobil Corporation announced today that Mobil Gas Marketing, a Mobil unit in the United Kingdom, has signed a 15-year contract to supply 400 billion cubic feet of natural gas to an electric power station to be built by PowerGen in Hertfordshire, Great Britain.

PowerGen will build a 680 megawatt station at Rye House, near Hoddesdon. The natural gas will be supplied from a pool assembled from a number of fields.

The managing director of Mobil Gas Marketing, Ted Trafford, said the contract is a significant step forward in marketing efforts initiated by the company.

"We are privileged to have PowerGen as one of our major long term customers," he said. "We agree with PowerGen that natural gas will play an ever-increasing role in power generation and we look forward to increasing our participation as a supplier to this sector of the market."

Mobil is the third largest natural gas producer worldwide. The company formed Mobil Gas Marketing to penetrate the direct sales market in the United Kingdom. This is in keeping with recent government initiatives to foster competition in the marketplace. The unit is currently the dominant marketer of gas being supplied to industry from sellers other than British Gas. PowerGen has just received consent from the U.K. Secretary of State for Energy to build a combined cycle gas turbine power station in Hertfordshire.

The executive director for the company, Alf Roberts, said natural gas used in such power stations produces virtually no sulphur dioxide, a quarter of the nitrogen oxides and half of the carbon dioxide compared to an equivalent capacity coal-fired station.

"We are delighted to have signed this contract with Mobil Gas Marketing as it represents another important step forward towards our objective of developing natural gas generating capacity and securing long term access to gas supplies " he said.

SOMERVILLE, NJ (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - UNIMED, Inc. (NASDAQ: UMED) reported revenues for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990 of $4,499,750, compared with $4,250,911 for the prior year. Consolidated net loss for the year totaled $1,600,579, or 50 cents per share, compared with a year earlier net loss of $1,908,418, or 59 cents per share.

Net sales of Marinol(R) (dronabinol), UNIMED's antinausea pharmaceutical for cancer chemotherapy patients, increased 28 percent in the 1990 fourth quarter over the level achieved in the same quarter of fiscal 1989. Sales of Serc(R) (betahistine HCl) in Canada grew 10 percent. These increases were offset by a decrease of 79 percent in research contract revenue, a decrease of 61 percent in shipments of Serc to foreign licensees and an unfavorable shift in reserves for returns, allowances and discounts. Chemical segment revenues increase 22 percent over the prior year.

Commenting on the company's operation, Harold J. Tenoso, Ph.D., UNIMED's president and chief executive officer, said, "In early 1990 we initiated a program to reduce our operating losses while ensuring the progress of our major programs. This, combined with sales growth led by Marinol, has resulted in the improved bottom line performance we predicted for the latter half of the year."

Tenoso went on to say, "Marinol represents our most exciting opportunity for continued near-term growth. Realizing its growth is UNIMED's highest priority. We'll continue to control our expenditures as we seek to establish key alliances to advance our product portfolio. With continued success in these efforts, we expect to achieve our objective of breakeven during fiscal 1991."

UNIMED also reported continued progress in clinical studies for Spiro-32 (spirogermanium HCl) in rheumatoid arthritis and G-6-M in cancer. Contract research projects utilizing the Medisperse drug deliver technology expanded to twelve during the year.

UNIMED, Inc. specializes in the development and marketing of pharmaceuticals, with emphasis on cancer therapy and supportive care of cancer patients. The company has already brought two pharmaceuticals to market and has a portfolio of drugs in various stages of development.

DALLAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Dresser Industries, Inc. (NYSE: DI) today reported higher sales and earnings for fiscal 1990 than the previous year.

For the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990, Dresser's consolidated sales and service revenues were $4.48 billion, compared to $3.96 billion in fiscal 1989. Additionally, the company's three major unconsolidated joint ventures had sales revenues of $3.35 billion vs. $3.04 billion in 1989. Dresser has a 50 percent ownership position in two of the joint ventures and a 30 percent interest in the other one.

Net earnings of $184.4 million increased 8 percent from $170 million in fiscal 1989, and earnings per share of $1.36 compared to $1.26 per share (split basis) the prior year.

Gains from pension plan liability settlements declined $10.9 million to $11.1 million in 1990 from $22 million in 1989.

In the fourth fiscal quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990, consolidated sales and service revenues were $1.37 billion, up from $1.09 billion in the same period of 1989. The company had net earnings of $73.9 million, or $0.55 per share, which compared to $67.9 million, or $0.50 per share (split basis), in the fourth quarter a year earlier.

John J. Murphy, chairman and president, said Dresser's improved 1990 earnings were "attributable primarily to the strong performance of the company's upstream (oilfield) product and service operations and the excellent results from the Dresser-Rand joint venture."

At the end of the fiscal year, Dresser's consolidated backlog of unshipped manufacturing orders was $2.61 billion, up from $2.59 billion a year earlier. In addition to the consolidated backlog, Dresser-Rand had a backlog of $898 million, which rose 23 percent from $732 million at Oct. 31, 1989.

In discussing Dresser's outlook, Murphy said, "The 1990's should prove to be a decade of very favorable opportunities for companies involved in supplying products and services for not only exploration, drilling, and production but the transmission, processing, and marketing of oil and gas after it is extracted from geological reservoirs."

Headquartered in Dallas, Dresser is a major supplier of highly engineered products and services primarily utilized in energy-related activities throughout the world.

CLIFTON, NJ (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Vertex Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: VETX) has been selected by the Bell Atlantic Company to provide a hardware/software solution to automate its pay phone coin collection operations in the Bell Atlantic region covering New Jersey south to Virginia.

Vertex will supply a significant number of portable data collection devices and intelligent bridge transaction processor configurations. The initial release is approximately $200,000 for the first phase with the total initial contract expected to be approximately $650,000.

Remote upload and download links will be handled automatically on a daily basis from multiple sites to a central VAX host within each state. Vertex support of Kermit file transfer protocols resident in the portables, the bridge transaction processor, and the VAX enable unattended automatic bi-directional communication with both redundancy and fall back capabilities. Vertex was selected on the merits of its Bridge Data Collection software in conjunction with the hardware solution offered. Bridge is currently being ported to UNIX System V Release 4.0 for future enhancement. Initial deliveries to Bell Atlantic began in December 1990.

Vertex Industries, organized in 1974, manufactures complete data collection systems which include bar code scanners, portable and fixed data collection terminals, optical readers, label generators, transaction processors, multiplexers, and data collection software, used mainly in factories, warehouses, offices, hospitals and transportation. In addition to bar code products, Vertex is a major supplier of magnetic stripe technology. Vertex is a publicly held company.

GERMANTOWN, MD (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Microlog Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MLOG) today announced reduced sales and a net loss for the fiscal year and quarter ended Oct. 31, 1990. Revenues decreased 6 percent to $14.6 million for fiscal 1990 as compared with $15.5 million last year. The net loss for fiscal 1990 was $475,000, or a loss of 14 14 cents per share, as compared to net income of $1.1 million and 46 cents per share for fiscal 1989.

Revenues for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 represented a decrease of 43 percent to $3.3 million from $5.7 million for the corresponding quarter of fiscal 1989. During the fourth quarter, the company had a net loss of $564,102 as compared to net income of $974,940 in the fourth quarter of 1989, or a loss of 16 cents per share for the fourth quarter of 1990 versus earnings per share of 40 cents for the same quarter last year.

J. G. Hartwell, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Microlog, stated: "Microlog's results for the past fiscal year were considerably worse than anticipated. Microlog was not able to develop a national distribution network as planned, and sales to major customers were well below last year's levels. However, Microlog finally completed its acquisition of Genesis Electronics Corporation, a voice-mail company with an extensive distribution network including approximately five major distributors. Microlog believes that this distribution network provides significant potential for increasing revenues in the 1991 fiscal year."

As an indication of management's continued belief in Microlog's potential, Hartwell also announced today that Microlog plans to repurchase shares of its outstanding common stock from time to time over the next three months for an aggregate purchase price not to exceed $1 million.

Hartwell indicated that "the board of directors of the company has determined that Microlog's common stock is an attractive investment at the present time. The repurchase program will also increase earnings per share of the remaining shares.

"Shares would be purchased in unsolicited negotiated transactions and in the open market. No shares will be purchased from officers or directors of Microlog or from persons who hold in excess of 5 percent of its outstanding shares of common stock."

Microlog Corporation designs, assembles, markets and services voice processing systems and other communications products. Its new subsidiary, Genesis Electronics Corporation, produces voice mail systems for small and mid-sized businesses. Through its subsidiaries, Old Dominion Services, Inc. and Old Dominion Systems Incorporated of Maryland, it also provides performance analysis and technical and administrative support services under contracts with government and commercial customers.

EAST HARTFORD, CT (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - A clock running continuously would take more than 50,000 years to tick away a half-billion hours.

By comparison, it has taken just 27 years for Pratt & Whitney's current fleet of 18,000 commercial turbofan engines to surpass the half-billion hour mark. The unprecedented industry milestone was achieved in November, according to recently compiled company data.

The record number is a tally of the flight hours accumulated in airline revenue service by the company's mainline commercial turbofan engines -- the JT8D, JT9D, PW2000 and PW4000.

Since the beginning of the commercial jet age, Pratt & Whitney has shipped nearly 27,000 engines (all models) to some 370 customers around the world -- more than its competitors combined.

Pratt & Whitney engines currently power a fleet of 5,250 commercial aircraft, or 68 percent of all jet transports operated by major U.S. and international carriers. It is estimated that every three seconds a Pratt & Whitney-powered aircraft takes off somewhere in the world.

CORPUS CHRISTI, TX (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Hitox Corporation of America (NASDAQ-NMS: HTXA), producer of buff-colored titanium dioxide pigment used in the manufacture of paints, industrial coatings and plastics, has received required government operating permits at its newly refurbished synthetic rutile plant in Malaysia and is expected to begin commercial operation on or about Dec. 26, 1990, Richard L. Bowers, chairman and president, announced today.

According to Bowers, initial production from the Malaysian operation will be shipped to the company's plant in Corpus Christi as raw material for the company's core HITOX pigment.

"While we expect the facility to have some normal start-up problems, acceptable levels of production are anticipated within the first two to three months. It should reach its design capacity of 50,000 tons per year in approximately 12 months. When fully operational, output from the Malaysian plant will virtually eliminate outside sourcing and materially reduce our raw material costs," Bowers said.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - First Bank System, Inc. (NYSE: FBS) today announced that James L. Reissner, market director in charge of the company's banks in outstate Minnesota, has elected to take early retirement effective Dec. 31, 1990.

"I've had a number of challenging and rewarding positions at First Bank over the past 26 years," Reissner reflected, "not the least of which has been my most recent job working with the outstate Minnesota banks. The bankers at these locations have turned in a banner performance for the last two years and I'm proud to have been part of their success."

Reissner, 50, joined First Bank in 1964 as a commercial banking trainee. In 1970 he was appointed vice president and manager of commercial loans for contractors and manufacturers. In 1979 he was promoted to senior vice president of Midwest corporate banking, a position he held until 1982 when he was named senior vice president of retail/metropolitan banking. Reissner was appointed managing director for the Minneapolis/St. Paul area First Banks in 1984 and in 1987 assumed responsibility for small business banking, sales finance and student loans. He held a position in the company's credit services area prior to being named market director of the Minnesota region in 1989.

"Jim has made significant contributions in all of the positions he has held with FBS," said William W. Str3/82Ed, general manager of the Regional Banking Group. "He is a banking veteran who has had a positive influence in implementing and managing change at FBS."

FREMONT, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Sunrise Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: SNRS) today announced that they have received clearance from the United States Food and Drug Administration to market the Model gLase 210 Holmium laser system for use in treatment of glaucoma.

Glaucoma is one of the leading causes of blindness in the United States and the world. It is fairly common in adults over 35, and the incidence of glaucoma increases with age. Two out of every 100 adults over 35 have vision threatened by this disease.

Glaucoma results when the fluids normally produced by the eye do not drain through the eye's normal drainage system. When this happens, the pressure inside the eye can increase to abnormally high levels, a condition identified as glaucoma. This increased pressure inside the eye can lead to damage of the optic nerve, which takes visual signals to the brain, and can eventually result in blindness.

Glaucoma is usually controlled with eye drops given two to four times a day, or by pills given in various combinations. If these medications are poorly tolerated or not effective in controlling the disease, surgery becomes necessary.

Several surgical procedures are used in treating glaucoma. An example is a filtering procedure whereby a permanent drainage duct is created in order to relieve the pressure in the eye. A laser procedure called trabeculoplasty has been used since the early 1980s. However, studies conducted in 1987 and reported in "Ophthalmology" and other sources have shown that this procedure fails in a high percentage of cases after three to five years.

According to Arthur Vassiliadis, chairman and chief executive officer of Sunrise Technologies, "This approach taken with the new Sunrise Holmium laser system is very different from existing laser and other surgical procedures and was developed to replace conventional, full surgical approaches done in the operating room with a procedure that can be done in an office, outpatient basis." The gLase 210 emits radiation that is highly absorbed by water and, with the use of a special probe, makes a small hole in the sclera to provide drainage."

The Sunrise Holmium system makes use of a Thulmium Holmium Chromium:Yttrium Aluminum Garnet (THC:YAG) crystal, whose active element is Holmium and emits radiation at about 2.1 micrometers. The system was specifically designed to perform a sclerostomy, or filtering procedure, a procedure that can be used to lower the intraocular pressure in the eye.

The system wavelength, delivery system, surgical approach, and other parameters were selected in order to optimize the application of the system to perform surgery that is minimally traumatic to the eye. For this reason, the procedure can be performed on an office outpatient basis, instead of in the operating room, as current conventional surgery requires. Many patients in the clinical study were treated in an office setting.

Earlier this year, Sunrise Technologies, Inc. received FDA clearance to market its dLase 300 dental laser, a system that is currently being used for soft tissue surgery in the mouth. The company designs, manufactures and markets laser systems and products for use in a variety of dental and medical applications.

HERZLIA, ISRAEL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Scitex Corporation Ltd. (NASDAQ: SCIXF) announced today the acquisition of Unda Oy, a company based in Helsinki Finland. Unda develops and markets a line of text and color graphics pre-press systems, running on Sun workstations. Over 120 such workstations have been installed worldwide, primarily in Europe. The acquisition price is under U.S.$4 million.

"Unda is an important addition to Scitex," said Arie Rosenfeld, president and CEO of Scitex. "The company's experience in PostScript(R) color systems and its proven skills in integrating text and graphics, position Unda as a strong vendor to the emerging mid-range color market. Unda will provide Scitex additional development capacity for PostScript(R) color products. The acquisition will also allow the integration of Scitex PostScript(R) scanners, proofers and Imagesetters with Unda workstations."

Unda will benefit from Scitex distribution and customer support network worldwide which has been expanded recently in America and Europe to also serve the color PostScript(R) market.

The Unda acquisition is another step in Scitex's strategy to maintain leadership in the high-end professional segment of color pore- press market while expanding into new growth opportunities in the mid- range color PostScript(R) markets.

"The marketplace has high regard for the pioneering work done in Unda under the technology leadership of Professor E. Byckling, the founder of Unda," said Rosenfeld. Professor Byckling has in the past assisted Scitex in the development of the Raystar(TM) flatbed imagesetter.

Unda is managed by Reijo Maihaniemi, an executive with many years of experience in international business at Nokia, Finland's largest electronics enterprise.

"Through internal resources and acquisitions, Scitex has become the worldwide vendor of choice for the full spectrum of pre-press applications, from design to production," concluded Rosenfeld.

Scitex Corporation Ltd. designs, develops, manufactures, markets and services interactive computer imaging systems used primarily in the color printing and publishing industries. Scitex operates through marketing, sales and service subsidiaries in North America, Europe and Japan. Scitex systems are sold and serviced in other areas through regional distributors.

HOUSTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Powell Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: POWL) announced today that its fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990 was a record year for both revenues and earnings. Revenues for 1990 were a record for the third consecutive year. For the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1990, revenues were $131 million, a 35 percent increase over the $97 million in 1989.

Net earnings increased to $7 million or $.68 per share in 1990, from $2 million or $.21 per share in 1989, an increase of 250 percent.

Backlog at Oct. 31, 1990 was also a record at $101 million, an increase of 51 percent from the $67 million backlog of orders at Oct. 31, 1989.

Revenues in the fourth quarter of 1990 were $32 million, approximately $200,000 more than the fourth quarter of 1989. Net earnings in the fourth quarter of 1990 were $2.2 million or $.22 per share, versus $1.4 million or $.14 per share in the fourth quarter of 1989, an increase of 57 percent.

Thos. W. Powell, president and chairman of the board of Powell Industries, Inc. stated: "1990 was an outstanding year for almost every unit of our company. The only disappointment was at our U.S. Turbine subsidiary, which improved its performance in revenues and margins in 1990, but remained unprofitable. With our record backlog as we begin fiscal 1991, we are optimistic the coming year will be another record year with increasing revenues and earnings despite the reported economic slowdown in some sections of the United States."

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The May Department Stores Company (NYSE: MA) today named Roy R. Paulson chairman of its Thalhimers department store division headquartered in Richmond, Va., and Clarence O. "Bud" Reynolds chairman of its L.S. Ayres department store division in Indianapolis.

Robert J. Rieland and Anthony J. Torcasio continue as president and chief executive officer of Thalhimers and L.S. Ayres, respectively. Paulson, currently chairman of L.S. Ayres, succeeds William B. Thalhimer Jr., who previously announced his decision to retire. Reynolds, currently senior vice president, operations, for the company's Foley's division in Houston, succeeds Paulson. Both appointments are effective immediately.

In making the Thalhimers announcement, May Vice Chairman Lawrence E. Honig said, "We are very pleased that Roy will be joining Thalhimers. He is a veteran of 43 years in retailing, 18 of those with May Company, including the chairmanship of three May divisions. Roy brings to Thalhimers a broad range of skills and tremendous experience."

In making the L.S. Ayres announcement, May Vice Chairman Richard L. Battram said, "We are delighted to have a person of Bud Reynolds' experience and tenure join L.S. Ayres as chairman. He has been a career employee with May Company for 21 years and has accumulated valuable experience in both operations and merchandising. Bud is an outstanding businessman and a superb leader."

Paulson joined May Company in 1972 as vice president, operations, for May D&F in Denver. In 1974, he joined May Company's corporate office in St. Louis in the same position and in 1975 he was named executive vice president, operations and personnel. Paulson was named president and chief executive officer of Eagle Stamp Company in St. Louis in 1978, and he assumed the chairmanship of May Cohens in Jacksonville, Fla., in 1985. He was named chairman of O'Neil's in Akron, Ohio, in 1986 and chairman of L.S. Ayres earlier this year.

Paulson graduated from Miami Jacobs College, Dayton, Ohio, in 1951. He and his wife, the former Jane Haines, are natives of Dayton and they have two children.

Reynolds joined May Company's Foley's division in 1969 as an assistant buyer. He served in several operations and merchandising positions, including buyer, director of sales and store manager, and was named operating vice president of Foley's distribution center in 1983. Reynolds was named senior vice president, operations, in 1987.

A native of Houston, Reynolds received a B.A. degree in history from Harvard University in 1964. He is married to the former Susan Keith of Melrose, Mass. and they have two children.

BERKELEY, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - XOMA Corp. (NASDAQ: XOMA) today filed with the U.S. International Trade Commission (ITC) in Washington, D.C., a complaint against Centocor Inc., Centocor Partners II, L.P., and Centocor, B.V. (Centocor), asking the ITC to commence an investigation under Section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930 relating to Centocor's importation of its anti-endotoxin monoclonal antibody, known as Centoxin, used in the treatment of gram-negative sepsis and/or septic shock in humans.

The complaint alleges that Centocor's importation and distribution of Centoxin for use in the method of treating gram-negative sepsis and/or septic shock covered by U.S. Patent No. 4,918,163 constitutes acts of unfair competition in violation of Section 337. XOMA seeks an exclusion order from the ITC preventing the importation by Centocor of their monoclonal antibodies.

XOMA filed a Product License Application for its anti-endotoxin monoclonal antibody, E5(R), with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in March 1989. Following FDA approval, E5 will be marketed in the United States by the Roerig Division of Pfizer Inc.

XOMA is a leading biotechnology company in the development of therapeutic monoclonal antibody-based products. NEW YORK (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Stephen F. Anfang, a long term stockholder in Benihana National Corp., said today in a letter to Rocky H. Aoki, chairman of the board of Benihana National Corp. (NASDAQ: BNHN), which was read today at the company's annual stockholders' meeting in Miami, that "the company should have its own management and its own staff and their interests should be solely that of the company and not of Benihana of Tokyo, Inc. ("BOT") or any other person." The shares of BOT are subject to a voting trust agreement under which Aoki, his mother and the corporate secretary/general counsel of Benihana National Corp. serve as trustees. Anfang also stated that "unless management is immediately restructured and the relationship with BOT eliminated, the company should be sold."

In the letter, which Anfang distributed as a news release, Anfang said he was greatly concerned that "the company's stock price had deteriorated to its current price of less than $1.00." He went on to say that he looks to "management and the management structure it adheres to as bearing the ultimate responsibility for the company's continuing poor performance."

Anfang also wrote that he believes "the Company has undervalued and underutilized assets, including real estate and an internationally recognized 'franchise' name." He stated that "the company is similar to Restaurant Associates Industries, which was once public, taken private by management and then resold again."

Anfang did not disclose his stake in Benihana National Corp. The text of Anfang's letter follows: "We have communicated previously concerning my disappointment as a long term stockholder with the company's performance. The company's stock price has also deteriorated to its current price of less than $1.00. As you know, I and, I believe, other unaffiliated stockholders look to management and the management structure it adheres to as bearing the ultimate responsibility for the company's continuing poor performance.

"I believe the company has undervalued and underutilized assets, including real estate and an internationally recognized 'franchise' name. I view this company as being similar to Restaurant Associates Industries, which was once public, taken private by management and then resold again.

"The company should have its own management and its own staff and their interests should be solely that of the company and not of Benihana of Tokyo, Inc. ('BOT') or any other person. BOSTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Ares-Serono Group today announced the appointments of Thomas G. Wiggans as managing director of Serono Laboratories, Ltd., Welwyn Garden, United Kingdom, and Jules Musing, who will succeed Wiggans as president of Serono Laboratories Inc., Norwell, Mass. Wiggans' nomination will be effective Jan. 14, 1991, and Musing's on Jan. 7, 1991.

Commenting on these appointments, Fabio Bertarelli, CEO of the Ares-Serono Group, declared, "Thanks to Tom Wiggans' outstanding leadership, Serono Laboratories has been one of the most rapidly growing pharmaceutical companies in the U.S. We are asking Wiggans to repeat his success by building our U.K. organization into a major pharmaceutical company. His depth of experience in the areas of marketing and regulatory affairs will be critical as we move into the open market environment of Europe '92."

Bertarelli further explained, "We believe that Jules Musing and Serono's management will continue Serono Laboratories' growth. Given the globalization of the pharmaceutical industry, we find it critical to have executives with experience in a variety of markets."

Wiggans joined Serono Laboratories in 1980 when the U.S. subsidiary had revenues of under $1 million. Revenues for the subsidiary in 1990 are expected to exceed $100 million. He holds a masters degree in business from Southern Methodist University and a degree in Pharmacy from Kansas University.

Musing, who will head Ares-Serono's second-largest subsidiary, joined the Group in May 1990 as vice president of acquisitions. For the past 14 years, he held various executive positions at Janssen Pharmaceutica, a division of Johnson & Johnson, including that of vice president of worldwide marketing, president of the animal health company in the United States and, most recently managing director for Portugal. Musing holds an undergraduate degree in biology from the University of Antwerp, Belgium, and a masters degree in commercial and financial sciences.

Czapor, director of the division of Solid Waste Management of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection (NJDEP) will be joining Conti Environmental as director of Environmental Affairs.

Conti, in making the announcement, said, "We are pleased to have someone of Czapor's talent and reputation joining our firm. He will add a great deal of energy, enthusiasm and knowledge to our professional staff as we continue to expand our environmental construction services."

Czapor in commenting on his appointment, said, "I am thrilled at the opportunity to work with a firm with as strong a record in environmental mitigation as Conti Environmental. I look forward to helping Conti Environmental expand its efforts in cleaning up hazardous waste sites in the region."

In his new capacity, Czapor will be responsible for providing technical environmental construction consultation to clients and for assisting the firm's field engineering and construction departments.

Czapor has been the director of the NJDEP division of Solid Waste since 1988, and during that time served nine months as the Acting Assistant Commissioner for Environmental Management and Control for the NJDEP.

Prior to joining the NJDEP, Czapor served in a variety of roles at the New York regional office of the United States Environmental Protection Agency, from 1976-1988. His roles included work in enforcement, hazardous waste cleanup and policy planning and management.

Conti Environmental, Inc. is one of a family of Conti companies. Conti Construction is one of New Jersey's oldest and most prestigious heavy civil construction companies. Conti Environmental is engaged in the business of providing for remedial action and cleanup activities at hazardous waste sites in the region. Since 1980 Conti has completed over $150,000,000 worth of environmental construction projects throughout the area.

Czapor is a graduate of Rutgers University with a bachelor of science degree in environmental science (1974), a master of science in environmental science (1978), and a master of business administration (1990). He lives in Manalapan with his wife Cindy, and their two children, Jeffrey (3 years) and Laura (1 Year).

HOUSTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Egypt Oil Company today announced it is producing some 9,500 barrels of oil per day from a new discovery well recently completed in the Gulf of Suez.

The GS-172-2 well was drilled from the October "J" platform, an existing platform in the North October field. During flow tests, the well produced approximately 10,370 barrels of 28-degree API oil per day with a wellhead pressure of 225 pounds per square inch from ASL sands of the Miocene Rudeis formation between 10,280 and 10,590 feet.

According to Dave Work, president and general manager of Amoco Egypt Oil Company, additional drilling will test the extent of ASL sands in the area of the October fields. A well is being drilled now from the October "D" platform which is located approximately three miles southeast of the new discovery. Further plans to develop ASL reserves are pending results of this well. Additionally, plans call for at least two more wells to be drilled from the October "J" platform to further delineate and develop the Cretaceous Nubia formation reservoir.

There are now nine platforms in the October area which produce about 180,000 barrels of oil per day from 38 active wells. The operator of the October fields is the Gulf of Suez Petroleum Company (GUPCO), which is jointly owned by Amoco Egypt and the Egyptian General Petroleum Corporation. Amoco Egypt is a subsidiary of Amoco Production Company, the worldwide petroleum exploration and production subsidiary of Amoco Corporation (NYSE: AN).

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The United Steelworkers of America (USW) today announced that leaders of its negotiating committee signed the labor agreement at Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. (NYSE: QWHX) that will release nearly $70 million in wages and benefits due active and retired Steelworkers.

The contract signing follows Wednesday's announcement that federal bankruptcy court Judge Warren W. Bentz had approved an order confirming the company's amended plan of reorganization. There are about 5,500 active USW members employed at six plant locations of Wheeling-Pittsburgh and 8,000 retirees. The plants are in Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

Andrew "Lefty" Palm, chairman of the union's negotiating committee at Wheeling-Pittsburgh and director of USW District 15 in Pittsburgh, hailed the contract signing as "a new beginning of a long struggle for giving Steelworkers at Wheeling-Pittsburgh their payback for helping this company survive bankruptcy."

The director of USW District 23, Jim Bowen, in Wheeling, W.Va., who also led the negotiations, declared, "This signing represents a long overdue dividend to the major stakeholders of this company that will be felt for years to come."

According to the USW, the new labor agreement under the confirmed plan for reorganization will permit the active and retired workers at Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. to recover $35 million from a profit sharing plan negotiated in 1983. Similarly, Steelworkers and retirees will receive 2.2 million shares, or roughly 11 percent of the common stock in the now re-organized company. The USW said other members' claims totalling nearly $20 million will be paid at about 70 percent on the dollar.

If no party appeals the court order by Dec. 28, the company will proceed to make the cash and stock distributions required by its plan of reorganization. Moreover, the new labor agreement will go into effect and return the steel company to the industry's pattern labor agreement now in effect with other major steel producers.

Steelworker employees and retirees supported the company's amended plan of reorganization in overwhelming numbers. An official tally of ballots on file in the bankruptcy court showed Steelworkers holding claims and stock in Wheeling-Pittsburgh had voted 95 percent in favor of the plan.

Under the company's new labor agreement, active employees will receive a $1.50 per hour wage increase retroactive to July 1, 1990, and a cash payment equal to an extra week of 1990 vacation.

Other benefits to go into effect under the new labor agreement include additional holidays, a new profit sharing program, increased shift differentials, additional premium Sunday pay, new cost-of-living protections, enhanced insurance benefits, and increased protections against contracting out of bargaining unit work.

Retirees will be eligible to enroll in major medical insurance coverage with 50 percent of its cost to be paid by the company. In addition, certain surviving spouses of Steelworkers will be eligible for new annual cash benefits.

The USW and Wheeling-Pittsburgh reached agreement on the contract Aug. 14, 1990, averting a strike that had been scheduled to begin two days later. The ratification vote of the agreement signed last night was 4,615 to 329. Members were told in the ratification process, that terms of the new agreement would become effective upon confirmation of a new plan of reorganizaiton by the bankruptcy court.

The new agreement will expire March 1, 1994.

LANSDALE, PA. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - AEL Industries Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: AELNA) reported improved earnings on higher revenues in its third quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990.

Net income for the quarter was $490,000 or $.12 per share on revenues of $34,090,000 compared to revenues of $27,258,000 and a loss of $1,755,000 or $.45 per share in the third quarter of last year.

For the nine months, net income rose to $2,232,000 or $.57 per share on revenues of $106,880,000 compared to a loss of $6,617,000 or $1.70 per share on revenues of $88,092,000 for the comparative period last year. Last year's results in the third quarter and for the nine months were impacted by special contract provisions to cover investment commitments and cost growth on several long-term government programs.

George King, chief financial officer, said, "We continue to show positive results in both revenues and profits through the first nine months and we remain confident that the trend will be maintained through the end of the fiscal year." King indicated that AEL's long-term strategy is to seek out new investment opportunities to further strengthen the company's long-range business potential. Bidding activity was moderately active in the third quarter and the trend should continue into the new year. The company's backlog at the end of the third quarter was $179 million compared to $167 million a year ago.

AEL is a leading supplier of electronic defense systems and subsystems. The company designs and manufactures sophisticated countermeasures, simulation and radar warning receiving systems, engages in the installation and integration of electronic and avionics equipment into military aircraft and provides state-of-the-art antenna systems, microwave integrated components and hybrid microelectronic circuits.

The Class A common stock of AEL Industries Inc. is traded in the Over-the-Counter market on the NASDAQ National Market System under the symbol AELNA.

FOUNTAIN VALLEY, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Hyundai Motor America today announced the formation of its new Key Dealer Program.

The Hyundai Key Dealer Program was developed to increase communications between the dealer and Hyundai's technical personnel as a means to improve Hyundai's ability to detect production and warranty problems, vehicle trends and assist in solutions.

"This program will help improve the quality of current and future vehicles and address our customers high expectations," said Bruce Campbell, Group Vice President, Parts and Service for Hyundai Motor America.

The objective is to report product quality field issues on a timely basis directly to National Dealer Support instead of going through the normal channels consisting of District Parts and Service Managers, the Region and then National Operations. Several key dealers will be chosen in each of Hyundai's four regions to participate in active field information exchange programs. The choices will be made on the basis of geographical, climatic and road conditions.

Key Dealers will submit repair orders of specified repairs and sample parts directly to National Dealer Support. They will evaluate prototype parts for effectiveness, host Hyundai importer and manufacturer survey teams and meet quarterly with Hyundai staff. They will also direct 800 toll-free number contacts to the Hyundai National Service Department.

Benefits of the Key Dealer Program include early warning of technical issues, rapid recovery of defective parts, evaluation of test parts and climatic conditions on vehicle performance. In addition to improving product quality and customer satisfaction, it will develop a "spirit" of cooperation with regions and dealers and establish a dealer network for U.S. and Korean team visits.

In order to meet the dealer selection criteria, dealers must have highly trained Hyundai technicians, moderate to high vehicle sales, and be from a specific geographical area (temperature exremes, dry, wet and high altitude).

Incentives for Key Dealers include participation in quarterly product quality review meetings, a meeting at the Bromont (Canada) plant at the beginning of model year production, awards for outstanding performance and a trip to Hyundai Motor Company in Ulsan, South Korea, for the top performing Key Dealer.

Hyundai Motor America recently celebrated its millionth sale in the United States. The line-up includes the economical Excel, sporty Scoupe and midsize Sonata. Soon to be previewed at selected auto shows is the subcompact sedan, Elantra. Hyundai has 425 dealers.

NAPERVILLE, IL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Nalco Chemical Company (NYSE: NLC) and Imperial Chemical Industries, PLC (ICI) announced earlier today that they have reached an agreement for the purchase by Nalco of ICI's interests in three joint ventures: Alchem, Catoleum and Nalfloc, and their subsidiaries. These three joint ventures are based in Canada, Australia and the United Kingdom, respectively. The purchase price was announced as being US$168 million, in cash.

The three companies will become wholly owned subsidiaries of Nalco when the transactions are finalized. Two additional companies, Nalco South East Asia Pte. Ltd. (Singapore) and P.T. Nalco Perkasa (Indonesia), which are currently subsidiaries of Catoleum and/or Nalfloc, are also included in the transaction.

Nalco is extremely pleased with the purchase of these companies and their subsidiaries. Each company is in the same markets and provides products and services to customers virtually identical to those served by Nalco. The management teams and employees of each company are expected to make a smooth transition to Nalco as a result of the many years of Nalco influence on their operations. The addition of these companies fits into Nalco's strategic plan of being the best specialty chemical company in the world.

Alchem was incorporated in 1936 and is headquartered in Burlington, Ontario. It operates plants in Edmonton, Alberta and at the headquarters site. The major markets served include industrial water and waste treatment, mining and mineral processing, oil production and refining, steelmaking, as well as pulp and paper manufacturing.

Catoleum was formed in 1963 and is headquartered in Botany, NSW, Australia. It operates plants in Perth, WA and Auckland, New Zealand. The mining industry is a major market for Catoleum specialty chemical products and services, however, waste treatment for customers in Australia, Fiji, Indonesia, New Caledonia, New Guinea and New Zealand continues to develop good business for Catoleum.

Nalfloc was formed in 1967. Nalfloc's predecessor companies date back to the 1930s. Its headquarters and plant are in Northwich, England. Industrial water and waste treatment, mining and mineral processing, oil production and refining, steelmaking, pulp and paper production, and the transportation industry are major markets for its specialty chemical products and services.

P.T. Nalco Perkasa, currently owned by Catoleum and P.T. Astenia, will remain a subsidiary of Catoleum. P.T. Perkasa is headquartered in Jakarta, Indonesia with manufacturing operations in Citeureup, Java. It serves markets in Indonesia. Nalco South East Asia is owned jointly by Catoleum and Nalfloc and has its headquarters and plant in Jurong Town, Singapore. It operates in Malaysia, Brunei, Thailand, Sri Lanka and Burma. Both P.T. Perkasa and Nalco South East Asia serve the industrial water and waste treatment, mining and mineral processing, pollution control and process application markets.

Nalco and ICI will continue as joint venture partners in Nalco Chemicals India Ltd. and Anikem (Pty) Ltd. (South Africa). Nalco also expects that existing business relationships between Nalco and ICI will continue to be very close in the future.

Nalco's sales in 1989 were $1,070,754, which do not include sales of these joint venture companies. The joint ventures have aggregate annual sales of approximately $185 million.

ATLANTA, (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - "As we near the end of 1990, our financial condition remains sound. But the results we're reporting for the first 11 months of this year are down significantly, largely because of a previously announced charge against earnings related to our investment in Plant Vogtle," Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said today.

The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) is the parent firm of five electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, Mississippi Power, and Savannah Electric. The Southern Company's common stock is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Addison reported that net income for the first 11 months of this year was $573 million or $1.81 per share -- down $232 million or 74 cents per share from the corresponding period in 1989.

For the 12 months ended Nov. 30, earnings totaled $615 million or $1.95 per share -- off $253 million or 80 cents per share from the comparable 12 months a year ago.

Without the after-tax charge -- which totaled $218 million or 69 cents per share -- Southern Company earnings for the latest 12 months would have been $833 million or $2.64 per share.

The decision to take the charge against earnings was announced in October after the Georgia Supreme Court refused to review a decision by the state public service commission disallowing a portion of the company's investment in the Vogtle nuclear plant. The resulting write-off totaled $180 million. An addition $38 million charge stems from a management decision to cancel construction of a facility to process radioactive waste at the plant site.

Discussing recent rate developments, Addison said the Florida Public Service Commission has denied a request from Gulf Power to delay the effect of a rate penalty for alleged mismanagement while the company appeals to the state supreme court. The penalty was part of the commission's decision to grant Gulf Power an annual rate increase of $14.1 million effective Sept. 13. For each of the first two years the increase is in effect, the penalty would reduce that amount by $2.3 million.

In other rate matters, Addison reported that the Georgia Public Service Commission has approved a request by Savannah Electric to reduce base rates by $2.99 million, effective Jan. 1, 1991. This marks the company's second reduction in base rates in less than a year.

Addison also said that the Mississippi Public Service Commission has completed hearings on a new performance evaluation plan for Mississippi Power. A decision is expected shortly. The new plan -- like the original version that was approved in 1986 -- would require quarterly reviews of the company's performance. Rates could remain the same or be adjusted up or down each quarter. But the total increase or decrease in any given year could not exceed 4 percent.

Reviewing system operations, Addison said that electricity sales to retail customers in the four-state area rose 4.5 percent during the first 11 months of 1990. In-home electricity needs were up 6.9 percent to 30.6 billion kilowatthours. Electricity sales to commercial customers -- offices, stores and other non-manufacturing firms -- gained 5.1 percent to 27.4 billion kilowatthours. Industrial energy use rose 2.5 percent to 42.3 billion kilowatthours.

Energy sales under long-term contracts with neighboring utilities totaled 19.8 billion kilowatthours during the first 11 months of this year -- an increase of 10.8 percent.

The energy needs of wholesale customers -- municipalities and cooperatives in the service area -- were down less than 1 percent.

Overall, sales of electricity to customers of The Southern Company grew 5 percent in the first 11 months of 1990 as compared with the same period in 1989.

NORTH PALM BEACH, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - FPL Group, Inc. (NYSE: FPL) today said that it has issued and sold 12.4 million shares of common stock to the trust of the employee thrift plans of FPL Group and its wholly owned subsidiary, Florida Power & Light Company. The stock was issued in connection with the employee stock ownership plan (ESOP) feature of the thrift plans.

Proceeds from the sale, based on yesterday's closing price of FPL Group common stock of $29 per share, amounted to $360 million. The proceeds will be used to help fund Florida Power & Light Company's construction program and for equity contributions to certain of FPL Group's non-utility subsidiaries. The shares will be used to satisfy the employer matching contribution requirements under the plans.

The trust funded the purchase of the common stock by borrowing $360 million from FPL Group Capital Inc., also a wholly owned subsidiary of FPL Group, at a fixed interest rate of 9.69 percent for a term of 20 years. The trust intends to repay the loan with dividends received on the FPL Group common stock it holds, and with certain employer matching contributions made in accordance with the terms of the thrift plans.

FPL Group Capital funded $260 million of the loan to the trust through bank borrowings at a variable interest rate based upon market conditions and maturing in two years. FPL Group Capital anticipates repayment of the loans, in whole or in part, from the sale of certain of its subsidiaries and assets.

STILLWATER, OK. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Improved revenues for the first three months for fiscal 1991 were announced today by TMS Inc.

Revenues for the first quarter ending Nov. 30, 1990, increased to $720,622 compared to $623,244 for the same period in the prior fiscal year, according to Dr. J. Richard Phillips, TMS president. Net income was $76,837 or $.01 per share.

During the first quarter, t hcompany signed a licensing agreement with a division of a major computer manufacturer. Dr. Phillips commented, "The agreement provides for the company's InnerView software product to be included with a suite of other products from the computer manufacturer once development and testing is completed." This could result in substantial revenues in the future years for the company."

Revenues for fiscal 1990, ended Aug. 31, 1990, were $2,543,704. This was approximately the same as the previous fiscal year. The company reported a net loss for the year of $573,674. "If the unusual item for non-cash stock options of $587,429 were deducted from operating expenses, the company would have a net income of $13,755," said Phillips.

In discussing the company's business, Phillips said the company continues to broaden its worldwide customer base and now has approximately 150 firms licensing its software products. The primary markets are electronic publishing on CD-ROM discs and electronic imaging applications. Both markets, according to industry analysts, are experiencing strong growth.

GAINESVILLE, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Pharmatec Inc. (NASDAQ: PHTC) today announced it received a $400,000 research contract from a major U.S. pharmaceutical company to develop a new form of a drug to treat cerebral hemorrhages stroke and its consequence, conditions which affect more than 400,000 persons annually in the United States.

The brain is separated from the systemic circulation by the blood-brain barrier. This barrier prevents bacteria and certain molecules, including many polar drugs, from reaching the brain. Pharmatec has developed a chemical carrier system which acts to improve delivery of drugs to the brain. The system is designed to decrease drug toxicity and result in sustained therapeutic action of the medicinal agents in brain tissue.

Under the research contract, Pharmatec will develop various carrier systems for a drug to treat strokes which is under development by the large pharmaceutical company.

If Pharmatec's work is successful, the pharmaceutical company will have the option to acquire an exclusive, worldwide license to use Pharmatec's carrier with its drug. In such an event, substantial progress payments will be paid to Pharmatec as the drug-carrier combination proceeds through the testing and regulatory process. If and when the drug is approved for sale, Pharmatec will receive a royalty based on worldwide sales of the drug-carrier combination.

Pharmatec is a research-based drug development company specializing in two novel technologies -- a carrier system for increasing the delivery of drugs to the brain and MOLECUSOL(R) brand cyclodextrins for increasing the solubility and stability of drugs.

BRANCHBURG, N.J. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Air & Water Technologies Corporation (AMEX: AWT), a leading environmental treatment and services company, has announced the award of a major asbestos abatement contract to one of its subsidiaries, Falcon Associates, Inc. Falcon has been selected by the city of Cincinnati to provide asbestos abatement services for the Fountain Square West project, located in downtown Cincinnati. At a value of over $6 million, the contract is one of the largest in Falcon's history.

Under the terms of the agreement, Falcon is responsible for the removal of asbestos from 12 locations and demolition of four buildings.

Falcon Associates was acquired by AWT in 1989. Speaking of the Cincinnati contract award, Eckardt C. Beck, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Air & Water Technologies, said, "Falcon continues to be a strong performer. The Cincinnati contract follows other visible and important 1990 projects, such as Boston City Hall and the Manville Sales Corporation. This latest award is also indicative of Falcon's success in broadening its asbestos abatement services beyond its historical area of strength, the East Coast."

Falcon is a component of AWT's Residuals Management Group. Air & Water Technologies Corporation, through its operating units -- Residuals Management, Research-Cottrell, Inc., and Metcalf & Eddy Companies Inc. (NASDAQ: METC) -- provides a broad range of environmental services and technologies in the areas of waste by-product disposal and reuse, pollution control, and water resources management.

LAS VEGAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - American Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: APFC) today announced that its Pepcon Systems Inc. (PSI) subsidiary has been selected as the qualified supplier for a contract valued at $5.8 million to install odor control systems at a composting facility in Akron, Ohio.

Owing to the importance of the odor control systems to the project, the City of Akron conducted a detailed qualification competition, resulting in PSI's selection.

The city has now awarded the general contract, and the general contractor has issued a purchase order to PSI pursuant to the city's selection and direction. PSI is currently negotiating final terms of the contract with the general contractor for the work which is expected to take about two years to complete. This new business brings PSI's backlog to $9 million.

Fred D. Gibson Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of American Pacific, commented: "The revenues from this contract will be reflected over the next two years. Our success in this major project is another sign of the technical superiority of PSI's OdorMaster(TM) system in providing an effective solution to the problem of odors from gases not only at composting facilities, but also sewage treatment plants, pumping stations and at chemical, food processing and other industrial plants.

American Pacific's proposed sodium azide project, intended to support the requirements of the U.S. automotive airbag industry is progressing. A letter of intent has been received from one major user, and discussions continue with the other principal user. Dynamit Nobel, the company's venture partner, has agreed to extend to March 31, 1991, the payment of $1.42 million previously due on Dec. 15, 1990. Gibson emphasized that "The company is pursuing this project aggressively and is committed to its successful conclusion."

American Pacific also announced that escrow has closed on its previously announced sale of 4.24 acres at Gibson Business Park in Clark County, Nev., to a consumer products manufacturer.

American Pacific's principal business activities consist of the production of ammonium perchlorate, the oxidizer utilized in composite solid rocket propellants employed by a large number of space and military systems.

Through direct and indirect subsidiaries, the company is engaged in the manufacture of chlorate and perchlorate chemicals, the design and manufacture of electrolytic systems and electrodes, the design and manufacture of pollution control systems, and industrial real estate development.

AUSTIN, Texas (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - SEMATECH (AMEX: SMH) announced today it has awarded an equipment improvement contract to Integrated Process Equipment Corp. (IPEC) of San Jose, Calif. Under terms of the agreement, SEMATECH will work with IPEC to enhance the AVANTI 8000, an integrated dry/wet photoresist stripper for single wafer processing. The strip clean system removes photoresist from wafers after all masking and patterning operations are completed, including the removal of even heavily implanted resist.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., commented that, "SEMATECH has a vital role in America today because of its efforts to strengthen the U.S. semiconductor equipment and materials infrastructure. It is good to see that SEMATECH is continuing to make aggressive advances in technology and equipment improvement.

"IPEC's AVANTI 8000 replaces three current stand-alone processes and pieces of equipment with one unit, thus reducing capital equipment and processing costs " said W.J. Spencer, president and CEO of SEMATECH. "We believe this kind of tool development could provide a key addition to U.S. manufacturing capability."

"IPEC will offer a total integrated solution for resist stripping and cleaning with the development of the AVANTI 8000," said Ralph Miller, president of IPEC. "We are working closely with SEMATECH to incorporate existing, proven dry and wet process sub modules. The end product will offer semiconductor manufacturers significant potential for yield improvement and lower operating costs."

SEMATECH's equipment improvement program was established in order to improve America's competitive capability in semiconductor manufacturing. To accomplish this objective, SEMATECH works with U.S. suppliers to enhance new equipment, materials and processes that support manufacturing requirements for future generations of technology. These programs focus on improving the function and reliability of the equipment in order to increase manufacturing uptime and decrease costs.

SEMATECH is a consortium of 14 U.S. semiconductor manufacturing firms partnered with the U.S. Department of Defense that is charged with the mission of restoring U.S. semiconductor manufacturing leadership capability.

IPEC is a member of SEMI/SEMATECH, an independent industry association headquartered at SEMATECH. SEMI/SEMATECH's 133 members consist of majority-owned American suppliers to the semiconductor manufacturing industry.

Avg. shrs. outstdg.	4,828,334	4,575,941	4,828,334	4,017,970

Alan R. Steiner, president, noted that Showcase's sales attained a record high for the six-month period ended Oct. 31, 1990. Income for the same period as compared to the six months reported for Oct. 31, 1989, dropped moderately, primarily due to increased costs of materials and increased overhead expenses. Steiner added that the company anticipates continued progress and possible record sales for the current year based on recent developments.

These developments include: initial orders from major national and regional drug store chains of Showcase's extensive line of products; growing consumer acceptance of the company's products; and the introduction of new products.

For the year ended April 30, 1990, Showcase Cosmetics reported sales of $3,562,076 and a loss of $510,942.

BOSTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Boston Five Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: BFCS) has announced the closing of two Pope Mortgage Corporation offices located in Columbia, S.C., and Raleigh, N.C. These were the last two residential loan production offices operated by the bank under the name Pope Mortgage Corporation.

"This step will focus our efforts more closely on the areas in which we generate 97 percent of our business," said Peter J. Blampied, president and CEO of The Boston Five. "We have just completed our second consecutive year with more than $1 billion in total residential originations. Our challenge, as fiscal year 1991 begins, is to continue as a high volume originator," he stated.

Commenting on the bank's current production, Blampied noted, "Our November production of $66.4 million is slightly under our target. Over the past two years, however, our monthly production has ranged from less than $50 million to almost $125 million."

In 1990, the bank's residential loan originations totalled $1.05 billion compared with $1.02 billion in 1989. As the majority of the bank's loan production is originated primarily in the Northeast, the closing of the Carolina offices reflects the bank's focus on its primary market area. The two offices closed were responsible for approximately 3 percent of residential loan originations for The Boston Five.

The Boston Five recently announced a decline in interest rates on mortgages, some below 9 percent. Blampied concluded, "It remains to be seen whether 1991 housing sales will be as strong as in 1990. While the economic climate is uncertain, declines in interest rates may stimulate mortgage activity. Given our improved market share, a stronger residential real estate market would help us reach our goals."

A 165-year-old institution, The Boston Five has total assets of approximately $2.4 billion. It is the largest savings bank headquartered in Massachusetts. The Boston Five has a network of nine loan centers in Massachusetts. It also operates six loan centers in four other New England states through its subsidiary, The Boston Five Mortgage Corporation. Deposits of The Boston Five are insured by the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC).

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - A special calling plan for those who want to make conference calls with far away families and friends during the holidays was announced today by MCI Communications Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: MCIC).

MCI's new Family Reunion plan, available 24 hours a day from Dec. 22 through midnight on Jan. 13, 1991, offers a personal conference call service at special holiday rates. Calls may be linked from anywhere in the United States to any domestic and most direct dial international destinations. Callers do not have to be MCI customers.

To use the MCI Family Reunion plan, callers contact an MCI operator by dialing 1-800-444-REUNION, 24 hours in advance to schedule a time for the call. MCI operators will arrange the conference call for the exact time requested.

Calls may be billed to Visa, MasterCard or the Discover Card. Family Reunion rates are 50 cents per minute per location for domestic calls and calls to Canada. Rates for calls to MCI's international locations are $1.50 per minute per location. There is no set-up charge for either domestic or international calls. The originating or "host" caller will receive a charge card bill for the call.

"MCI's Family Reunion calling is an easy, economic way for families and friends to connect during the busy holiday period," said Timothy Price, senior vice president of sales and marketing for MCI's Consumer Division. "This holiday season, due to rising travel costs and a softer economy, more and more families are expected to use the telephone as a way of staying in touch."

Normally, the conference calling service is geared to the needs of businesses, Price said. "This promotional offering is unique in that residential consumers can take advantage of MCI's audio conferencing capabilities at reduced rates," he added.

MCI, with 1989 revenue of approximately $6.5 billion, is the nation's second largest long-distance provider. MCI supplies a full range of voice and data telecommunications services to business and residential customers and government agencies.

DENVER, (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Manville Corp. (NYSE: MVL) today announced the signing of new long-term license agreements with Nippon Electric Glass (NEG) of Japan, according to Richard A. Kashnow, president of Manville's Engineered Products Group. This builds on previous agreements between NEG and Manville to share chopped strand and yarn technologies. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed.

"These agreements provide Manville with all NEG fiber glass reinforcement technologies and the rights to produce and market reinforcement products based on these technologies in both Europe and North America," Kashnow said.

Reinforced plastics are used primarily for transportation, construction, corrosion and marine applications.

"We are pleased to sign these additional agreements with NEG because of their excellent worldwide reputation for manufacturing products of the highest quality," added Kashnow. The new license agreements signed today strengthen Manville's growing distribution position by expanding the product line with "spray-up roving, among other products." According to Kashnow, the timing of these agreements fits well with the approaching start-up of the new $65 million expansion at Manville's Waterville, Ohio facility.

Located in Otsu Shiga, Japan, NEG is one of the world's leading manufacturers of technical glass products. In addition to glass fiber for reinforcements, NEG is a leading producer of glass bulbs for television picture tubes, technical glass for electronic components, glass building materials, glass tubing for lighting and medical uses, glass products for kitchenware, and glass sheets for liquid crystal displays.

"NEG is pleased to have a strong association with Manville, given their capability and commitment to the fiber glass reinforced plastics market," said Toshio Nakayama, senior executive vice president of NEG.

Manville is the world's largest producer of fiber glass mats and is a leading producer of fiber glass insulation and continuous filament glass fibers. Manville serves the continuous filament glass fiber and non-woven glass mat markets worldwide from its operations in Waterville, Ohio; Etowah, Tenn.; Ennis, Texas; and two plants in Germany under Manville's Glaswerk Schuller subsidiary.

Manville is an international manufacturing and natural resources company headquartered in Denver. The company's primary businesses include building and engineered products, fiber glass and industrial insulation products, paper and wood products, packaging, roofing systems and filtration and minerals. Founded in 1858, Manville has more than 18,000 people at more than 50 plants and seven mining interests worldwide. Manville and its subsidiaries have more than $2.5 billion in assets as of Dec. 31, 1989.

ST. LOUIS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - McDonnell Aircraft Co. today said it will notify approximately 4,000 employees that they could be laid off as soon as Jan. 2, 1991, if the U.S. Navy's A-12 Avenger program is canceled.

People identified for notification will be selected on an across-the-board basis from McDonnell Aircraft's total employee population. Notifications will not be limited to people working on the A-12 program.

McDonnell Aircraft personnel associated with the A-12 program total approximately 6,000, with the majority in St. Louis. There are approximately 150 people on the A-12 program in Tulsa, Okla., where the A-12 final assembly plant is located. More than 10,000 people in 42 states work for A-12 suppliers and subcontractors.

The U.S. Government has not decided whether the program will be canceled, but is considering that option because of its view that McDonnell Douglas is in default on the A-12's fixed-price full-scale development contract. A decision on the program's status could come as early as Jan. 2, 1991.

McDonnell Douglas maintains that it is not in default on the contract. It earlier proposed that the contract be restructured. The McDonnell Douglas-General Dynamics team also believes it has solved the major technical problems that have come up on the program.

Officials from the A-12 team will continue to hold discussions with the Navy and the Office of the Secretary of Defense to resolve difficulties and assure continuation of this vital national defense program on a mutually satisfactory basis.

MONROEVILLE, PA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Community Bancorp Inc. (NASDAQ: CBPA) announced today that it had net income of $1,023,809 or $.68 per share for the year ended Sept. 30, 1990, compared to $866,765 or $.58 per share for the year ended Sept. 30, 1989.

Kenneth J. Tyson, president of Community Bancorp Inc., stated that the $157,044 or 18.1 percent increase in net income was primarily due to the $886,769 increase in other income and the $357,974 increase in net interest income after provision for loan losses. These increases were partially offset by the $810,289 increase in other expenses.

Tyson further stated that the increase in other expense was primarily due to the write-off of an intangible asset of $667,000 ($435,000, net of tax, representing $.30 per share) during the quarter ended Sept. 30, 1990. This asset related to a noncompete agreement entered into in conjunction with the purchase of a branch in May of 1987.

During 1990, the association with which the noncompete agreement was executed came under the management of the Resolution Trust Corp. As a result, this asset's value has been impaired and the remaining net book value was written off. The write-off of the asset will have a positive impact on future operations of the association by reducing amortization expense, net of tax, by approximately $60,000 each year for the next six years, which was the remaining amortization period.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The USS division of USX Corp. (NYSE: X) confirmed today it has reached a settlement in negotiations with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of the U.S. Department of Labor involving a series of alleged health and safety violations at two of the company's plants in Pennsylvania.

The plants are the Clairton Works, near Pittsburgh, and Fairless Works, near Philadelphia.

Thomas W. Sterling, vice president-employee relations for USS, said the settlement came following lengthy negotiations between the company and OSHA.

"These were very tough negotiations," Sterling said. "There were many areas of substantial disagreement over the OSHA allegations."

"We continue to believe that both Clairton Works and Fairless Works are safe plants, consistent with our long-standing commitment to provide a safe and healthy workplace for all our employees. Throughout our organization, there is no higher priority than the safety and health of our people. Over the years, we have established a superb safety record and we continue in a safety leadership position in the steel industry."

Sterling, noting that OSHA originally sought $7.4 million in penalties for the alleged violations, said USS agreed to today's $3.25 million settlement, in part, to avoid lengthy and costly litigation.

During the negotiations, USS and OSHA agreed that certain conditions cited by OSHA should be corrected at the two plants. Sterling said these conditions either have been corrected or are being corrected. Many other items were withdrawn by OSHA during the negotiations.

In addition to steps taken at the two plants, Sterling said USS has agreed to take certain safety and health actions at its other steel plants. This will include placing renewed emphasis on existing company programs in the areas of hazard communication, hearing conservation, recordkeeping and crane inspection.

EATONTOWN, NJ (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Roberts Pharmaceutical Corporation (NASDAQ: RPCX) and its U.K. subsidiary, Monmouth Pharmaceuticals Ltd. of Guildford, England, jointly announced today that the U.K. regulatory authorities have advised the company of the approvability of Somagard(R) (deslorelin; LHRHa) for central precocious puberty (CPP). CPP is a disorder in which young children, often five years or less, prematurely undergo the sex changes of puberty, resulting in psychosocial and sexual problems and abnormally short adult stature. Somagard reverses this derangement and delays puberty until an appropriate chronological age. Somagard is a potent agonist of LHRH and has been in clinical trials in North America and Europe since 1979 for precocious puberty, prostate cancer and endometriosis, a common gynecologic condition. The latter two indications for Somagard are the subject of continued clinical investigation.

The firm anticipates a final U.K. approval and launch of Somagard in the near future. "Monmouth currently markets a line of ethical pharmaceuticals in the U.K. and Ireland through a national sales and distribution network," said Roberts CEO, Robert Vukovich. "This national system will allow wide availability of Somagard to patients," he stated.

Roberts plans to file an EEC product license application for Somagard in precocious puberty through the common market procedure during 1991. Approval of the drug through this procedure will provide common market approvals and access to local European pharmaceutical markets. The firm is in discussions with potential EEC licensing partners and expects to identify one or more licensees during 1991. Somagard was licensed to Roberts by the Salk Institute.

Monmouth is currently marketing kidney stone and gall stone therapy products, Rowachol(R) and Rowatinex(R) in the U.K.; the cardiovascular MIDON(R), and the broad based Sinclair product line in Ireland. Two new cardiovascular products Betadur(TM) and Isomide(TM), are expected to be launched in the U.K. next year.

In the U.S., Roberts makes Somagard available to patients under an FDA approved cost recovery protocol. In addition, the firm sells a line of established OTC products recently acquired from the Upjohn Company.

Roberts Pharmaceutical Corporation, founded in 1983, is engaged in the business of acquiring, developing and marketing human pharmaceuticals in the United States and abroad for the treatment of cancer, respiratory disorders, cardiovascular diseases, endocrine and metabolic disorders, acute and chronic pain and urologic conditions. Roberts has a portfolio of pharmaceutical products in late stages of development which have significant therapeutic and commercial potential. In addition, the company has a range of products which it sells in the United States and abroad.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - NCNB Corp. (NYSE: NCB) announced today that it will increase its allowance for loan and lease losses in the fourth quarter by $55 million to $65 million due to continuing weak economic conditions. At this time the company also expects net charge-offs to increase to approximately $125 million to $135 million in the fourth quarter, compared to $79 million in the previous quarter this year. This action is consistent with the company's statement last quarter that further increases in charge-offs and additions to the allowance might be necessary. If current economic conditions continue to deteriorate in 1991, the company would anticipate further additions to the allowance.

As a result of these increases, preliminary estimates for NCNB's net income for the year are in the range of $360 million to $370 million.

NCNB anticipates that the allowance at December 31, 1990 will total approximately $650 million to $660 million, compared to an allowance of $593 million at the end of the third quarter.

Nonperforming assets are expected to rise to $970 million to $1 billion at December 31, 1990. Included in this total are nonperforming loans of approximately $750 million, of which more than $350 million are paying interest. Nonperforming assets stood at $847 million at September 30, 1990.

NCNB Corp. is a bank holding company with approximately $66 billion in assets and more than 900 banking offices in seven states.

CRYSTAL LAKE, IL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Sun Electric Corp. (NYSE: SE) announced today a plan to restructure its United States automotive diagnostic and test equipment business which will result in a charge of $2.2 million to the company's 1990 fourth quarter results.

Craig A. Loomis, executive vice president and president of Sun Electric North America, stated, "This restructuring, which will take approximately nine months to fully implement, is designed to accomplish two major objectives: improve the level of service and responsiveness to our markets and reduce the level of fixed overhead required to do so.

Included actions are a reorganization of our manufacturing and distribution operations so as to reduce product lead times, improve the efficiency of inventory investment and lower costs, and a restructuring of our field sales, service and training organization in order to increase our capability to respond to our customers' needs while, at the same time, reducing associated administrative costs."

The company anticipates that expected productivity improvements and cost reduction measures should help to offset the effects of competitive pricing pressure in the domestic marketplace. However, as the result of current competitive pressures on margins, expenses associated with establishing the company's new service industry training program and start-up activities associated with the company's recently acquired line of air conditioning freon recovery equipment, the company expects a net loss in the fourth quarter prior to the inclusion of the aforementioned $2.2 million restructuring charge and the previously disclosed fourth quarter tax expense of $0.7 million associated with certain foreign dividend remittances.

Sun Electric Corp. is primarily engaged in the design, manufacture, marketing and service of diagnostic, test and service equipment for the motor vehicle service industry and motor vehicle manufacturers in more than 100 countries.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Ziff Communications Co. announced today that it will acquire Interop, Inc., the leading provider of seminars and trade shows that address strategic computer connectivity issues. Interop will continue to be headed by Dan Lynch, an internetworking pioneer who founded the company in 1985.

The acquisition of Interop positions Ziff, the nation's largest computer publishing firm, at the heart of an issue that is of acute concern to most corporate decision makers. Many of them spent the 1980s assembling a disparate mix of mainframe, mini- and micro-computers. Now they must link these myriad systems to form enterprise-wide networks that will transform the ways in which employees of the '90s work with each other and with suppliers and customers.

"The power of the applications that will be unleashed when computing is delivered from its current Tower of Babel will be truly remarkable," said William B. Ziff, Jr., chairman of Ziff Communications Co. "What the emergence of standard operating systems did for personal computing 10 years ago, the advent of interoperability will do for computer networking today. And Interop thanks to Dan Lynch's vision, provides the ideal forum for new connectivity applications to be unveiled, tried and tested."

Interop is best known as sponsor of the flourishing Interop(R) trade show, which has been growing at a more than 50 percent annual rate since its debut as a conference five years ago. The October 1991 exposition in San Jose, Calif. attracted 22,000 attendees and 190 exhibitors. Interop is unique among shows for its focus on demonstrating real-world internetworking solutions -- thus its insistence that appropriate exhibitors hook into a live show network to demonstrate the ability of their products to work with other systems. In 1990 the Interop staff, aided by dozens of industry volunteers, spent a marathon session stringing some 31 miles of cabling to build the show network.

Interop attracts managers, executives and engineers responsible for finding connectivity solutions for their companies. Attendees scrutinize actual applications of the Interop exhibition floor and about 5,000 of them sign up for concurrent in-depth seminars to learn more about such things as fiber-optic networking, network design and management, open systems and PC LAN and WAN network connectivity.

Ziff Communications, through Ziff-Davis Publishing Company, is the leading publisher of computer publications; titles include PC Magazine, PC Week, PC/computing, Computer Shopper, PC Sources, MacWeek and MacUser. Ziff also provides detailed computer market statistics through its Computer Intelligence unit and produces computer Library, a desktop reference source that compiles information from some 120 computer magazines. Information Access Company, another Ziff firm, is a leading supplier of indexed and full text periodicals to libraries and corporate researchers.

In October 1990, Ziff announced that it had acquired the four Seybold companies, producers of newsletters, conferences and expositions on the use of computers in publishing and multimedia applications.

WASHINGTON, DC (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - A special calling plan for those who want to make conference calls with far away families and friends during the holidays was announced today by MCI Communications Corp.

MCI's new Family Reunion plan, available 24 hours a day from Dec. 22 through midnight on Jan. 13, 1991, offers a personal conference call service at special holiday rates. Calls may be linked from anywhere in the United States to any domestic and most direct dial international destinations. Callers do not have to be MCI customers.

To use the MCI Family Reunion plan, callers contact an MCI operator by dialing 1-800-444-REUNION 24 hours in advance to schedule a time for the call. MCI operators will arrange the conference call for the exact time requested.

Calls may be billed to Visa, MasterCard or the Discover Card. Family Reunion rates are 50 cents per minute per location for domestic calls and calls to Canada. Rates for calls to MCI's international locations are $1.50 per minute per location. There is no set-up charge for either domestic or international calls. The originating or "host" caller will receive a charge card bill for the call.

"MCI's Family Reunion calling is an easy, economic way for families and friends to connect during the busy holiday period," said Timothy Price, senior vice president of sales and marketing for MCI's Consumer Division. "This holiday season, due to rising travel costs and a softer economy, more and more families are expected to use the telephone as a way of staying in touch."

Normally, the conference calling service is geared to the needs of businesses, Price said. "This promotional offering is unique in that residential consumers can take advantage of MCI's audio conferencing capabilities at reduced rates," he added.

MCI, with 1989 revenue of approximately $6.5 billion, is the nation's second largest long-distance provider. MCI supplies a full range of voice and data telecommunications services to business and residential customers and government agencies.

TAMPA, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Belmac Corporation (AMEX: BLM) announced today that it is purchasing the rights to a new advanced form of erythromycin antibiotic through the settlement of litigation with Pharmacin Corporation and certain of its shareholders.

This new second generation erythromycin, which has been approved for sale in France, is licensed to Bristol Myers Squibb for marketing and distribution in 26 countries under the trade name, Odocine(R).

A letter agreement has been signed by Belmac and all the stockholders of Pharmacin that sets forth the terms on which the settlement of the litigation is to be consummated. All of the outstanding common stock of Pharmacin is to be purchased by Belmac for a combination of cash and common stock of Belmac.

The letter agreement requires that definitive agreements be executed and the settlement be effected on or prior to Jan. 22, 1991.

Erythromycins typically are used for the treatment of common bacterial infections such as bronchitis, pneumonia, skin infections, ear nose and throat infections, and sexually transmitted diseases. The new product provides improved absorption, thus reducing the required dosage level and side effects associated with other forms of erythromycin. The worldwide market for the macrolide class of antibiotics, of which this product is one, is reported by IMS to exceed $1.5 billion annually. Belmac expects marketing of the drug to commence in 1991 in France and certain third world countries.

In a joint statement, Dr. Jean-Francois Rossignol, Belmac's chief executive officer, and John A. Macleod, Pharmacin's chief executive officer, stated that "the agreement represents a fair settlement of the litigation for all parties and that our differences are now behind us." Dr. Rossignol added that Belmac "looks forward to the successful marketing of Odocine(R)."

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - James E. Rohr, chairman and chief executive officer of Pittsburgh National Bank, a PNC (NYSE: PNC) bank, today announced the appointment of two new members to the bank's board of directors.

Thomas A. McConomy, president and chairman of the board of Calgon Carbon Corp. (NASDAQ: CRBN), and Thomas J. Usher, president of the USS division of USX Corp. (NYSE: X), became directors effective immediately.

The directors also voted to increase the size of the board from 21 to 23 members.

Rohr said, "We welcome Tom McConomy and Tom Usher to our board of directors. Pittsburgh National is fortunate to have the benefit of their extensive business experience and broad perspective."

McConomy, prior to becoming president and chairman, was vice president and general manager of the Activated Carbon Division of Calgon Corp., a subsidiary of Merck & Co. Inc.

During McConomy's 35-year association with Calgon operations, he has held a variety of positions, including business director of the environmental group and director of Calgon Adsorption Systems.

Usher began his career with USS in the industrial engineering department in Pittsburgh in 1966. He was named executive vice president-heavy products in July 1986, when USS became the steelmaking and domestic ore producing unit of the newly formed USX Corp., and he assumed his current post in 1990.

Usher is currently president of the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers.

PNC Financial Corp, headquartered in Pittsburgh, is the nation's 15th-largest bank holding company with assets of $45.7 billion. PNC was formed in 1983 with the consolidation of Pittsburgh National Corp., Pittsburgh, and Provident National Corp., Philadelphia. PASADENA, CA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacobs Engineering Group Inc. (NYSE: JEC) today announced that its board of directors has adopted a Stockholder Rights Plan designed to assure that all stockholders would receive fair and equal treatment in any takeover of the company and to protect stockholders from partial tender offers and other abusive takeover tactics to gain control of the company without paying all stockholders a fair price. The plan provides for the distribution of the right for each share of common stock outstanding on Jan. 4, 1991.

In making the announcement, Joseph J. Jacobs, chairman of the board, stated that "the Jacobs Engineering Group Rights Plan will not, and is not intended to, prevent a takeover of the company on terms that are fair to and in the best interest of all stockholders. It will, however, encourage any person seeking to acquire the company to negotiate with the board prior to attempting a takeover."

The Rights Plan provides that in the event any person becomes the beneficial owner of 15 percent or more of the outstanding common shares, each right (other than a right held by the 15 percent stockholder) will be exercisable, on and after the close of business on the 10th day of business day following such event, to purchase Jacobs Engineering Group common shares having a market value equal to two times the then current exercise price (initially $90). The plan further provides that if, on or after the occurrence of such event, the company is merged into any other corporation or 50 percent or more of the company's assets or earning power are sold, each right (other than a right held by the 15 percent stockholder) will be exercisable to purchase common shares of the acquiring corporation having a market value equal to two times the exercise price.

The Rights expire on Dec. 20, 2000, and are subject to redemption by the board of directors at $.01 per right at any time prior to the first date upon which they become exercisable to purchase common shares.

Jacobs Engineering Group will provide stockholders with further details of the Rights Plan in a letter to be mailed in January.

DENVER (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Atlas Corp. (NYSE: AZ) announced today the successful transition of mining and milling from the company's original Gold Bar deposit to ores mined from the Goldstone satellite deposit. Goldstone is the first of three satellite deposits in the area to be brought on-line. This represents the culmination of five months of pre-development work.

Richard R. Weaver, president and chief executive officer of Atlas, stated, "After a difficult beginning to our fiscal year resulting from reduced gold production from refractory ores, output from our Gold Bar Mill is once again at planned levels. The second quarter has seen a number of operational accomplishments: record monthly production of over 8,600 ounces in November, completion of pre-development activities at the Goldstone and Gold Ridge mining areas, and the commencement of treatment of lower-cost oxide ores from the Goldstone deposit. Our plans for production of approximately 80,000 ounces of gold in fiscal 1991 remain unchanged. Because of the higher ore haulage costs and lower head grades associated with the satellite deposits, Atlas expects production costs to increase compared to fiscal 1990, but to remain favorable when compared to the industry average." The three satellite deposits -- Goldstone, Gold Ridge and Gold Pick -- contain 550,000 ounces of proven and probable mineable gold reserves and represent continued production for the company into 1996.

The program for permitting at the company's Grassy Mountain project is proceeding as scheduled. Atlas has reviewed, with the assistance of Kilborn Engineering (B.C.) Ltd. and Dynatec Mining Contractors, the possibility of developing an underground mine to allow early access to a high grade ore zone in the deposit. These studies show that this underground mine, developed in conjunction with the open-pit operation, would provide for mining of the total deposit, approximately 996,000 ounces of proven and probable gold reserves, and improve project economics.

Atlas is a mining company whose primary business is gold exploration and production. The company has exploration efforts underway in several western states, with significant gold discoveries in Nevada and Oregon. The company currently has the capacity to produce approximately 80,000 ounces of gold per year from its Gold Bar Mill in Nevada and is planning to produce approximately 100,000 additional ounces of gold per year from its Grassy Mountain deposit, beginning by mid-1993.

ANN ARBOR, MI (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Directors of Great Lakes Bancorp (NASDAQ-NMS: GLBC) declared fourth-quarter dividends on the bank's common and preferred stock.

Holders of common stock will received 20 cents per share. Holders of preferred stock will receive $2.50 per share. Both dividends will be paid Jan. 15 to recordholders as of Jan. 1, 1991.

It will be Great Lakes' 24th consecutive dividend on its common stock since the bank began paying dividends in April 1985. Owners of preferred stock will receive their second quarterly dividend following the issuance of those shares in June. That offering generated $27 million in capital for the bank.

Under regulations issued this summer, Great Lakes has filed the customary request asking the Office of Thrift Supervision for approval of the payment of the dividends.

Great Lakes Bancorp has 52 branches in Michigan and operates Dollar Federal Savings Bank, a subsidiary in the north-Cincinnati area. Great Lakes also operates Great Lakes Mortgage Co., a mortgage banking subsidiary. With $3.7 billion in assets, Great Lakes Bancorp is Michigan's second-largest savings bank.

DENVER (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The former creditors of Kaiser Steel Corp. filed a brief in federal appeals court which re-asserts their right to recover payments made to shareowners in connection with the 1984 leveraged buyout of the company. They claim that these payments were fraudulent under California law.

The former creditors are represented by KSC Recovery Inc., a subsidiary of Kaiser Steel Resources which is the successor of Kaiser Steel. In early 1987, Kaiser Steel filed for Chapter 11 protection under the federal Bankruptcy Code and emerged from bankruptcy in late 1988 as Kaiser Steel Resources.

KSC Recovery is pursuing claims in excess of $200 million related to the 1984 LBO. All funds recovered will be returned to the former creditors. The two largest creditor groups are the nearly 7,000 former steelworkers and the federal government. The employees lost almost half a billion dollars in medical and other benefits following the LBO. The Federal Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp. has unpaid claims in excess of $200 million.

Kaiser's brief challenges the position taken last week before the same court by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The agency asserted that permitting Kaiser to recover such payments would cause potential investors to shy away from buying stock in potential leveraged buyout companies or selling their stock before an LBO takes effect.

In its court filing Kaiser said that recovering fraudulent conveyances from beneficial shareowners has nothing to do with the market mechanisms Congress sought to protect in Section 546 (e) of the federal Bankruptcy Code.

Kaiser said that its attempt to recover fraudulent payments from the corporation's beneficial shareowners in no way implicates the securities market because it does not seek recovery from a stockbroker who was acting in his capacity as a stockholder.

Kaiser's brief was filed this week with the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

BETHPAGE, NY (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Grumman Corporation (NYSE: GQ) announced today that Thomas A. Guarino has resigned as president of Grumman Systems Group effective immediately. No replacement has been announced.

Guarino stated, "Although I am innocent of any wrong doing, suggestions created by Newsday articles may undermine the confidence people must feel in me as president of the Systems Group. I reached this painful decision out of the respect that I feel for the people of Grumman and others, in government and industry, with whom I have worked. I have always sought the constructive solution; in this case, I believe that requires my resignation."

The Systems Group is a combination of three Grumman operating divisions under a single senior management team. The units are Electronics Systems, Great River, N.Y.; Melbourne Systems, Melbourne, Fla.; and Space Systems, Bethpage, N.Y. Systems Group was established in April 1989. Its three divisions apply many of the same technologies to integrate complex electronics and software systems. Programs range from manufacturing electronic components and automatic test equipment for sophisticated military hardware to developing state-of-the-art airborne and space-based surveillance platforms.

The presidents of these divisions now report to Renso L. Caporali, chairman and chief executive officer.

Grumman Corporation is best known as a leading maker of military aircraft and aerospace systems. Other businesses include integrated information processing systems, emergency vehicles and aluminum truck bodies. The company has headquarters at Bethpage, and employs 26,100 worldwide. Sales in 1989 were $3.56 billion.

MINNEAPOLIS, (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - FSI International, Inc. (NASDAQ: FSII) today reported lower sales and a loss for the fiscal 1991 first quarter ended Nov. 24, 1990. The company had previously announced that it expected a loss for the period.

First-quarter sales decreased to $9.8 million from $14.0 million in the year-earlier period. The company had a net loss of $1.8 million, or $.45 per share, versus net income of $.5 million, or $.12 per share, last year.

According to FSI President and Chief Executive Officer Richard H. Jackson, "The sales decline occurred primarily in our spray processor product line, combined with the delay of some shipments into the second quarter. Because of the current semiconductor industry softness, many manufacturers are delaying expansion programs, which resulted in fewer multiple-system shipments compared with the first quarter of fiscal 1990. We continue to receive one- and two-unit orders, however, from a broad customer base."

During the quarter, FSI further lowered its breakeven point by reducing staff and cutting operating expense. This led to a one-time, after-tax charge of approximately $130,000, or $.03 per share.

"We are seeing results from our strong sales and marketing efforts," continued Jackson. "First-quarter orders rose significantly, compared with the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990. The improvement included a $3.5 million order for our chemical management and delivery system. Due to stronger order and shipment activity, we anticipate that FSI's 1991 second quarter will show marked improvement over the first-quarter loss."

FSI International, Inc. is a leader in producing automated surface conditioning equipment for processing silicon wafers. The company develops, manufactures, markets and services centrifugal spray processing systems, photoresist processing equipment, gas processing systems, and chemical management and delivery systems for use in the fabrication of advanced semiconductor integrated circuits. FSI's customers include semiconductor manufacturers located throughout North America, Europe, Japan and the Far East.

WESTBOROUGH, MA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - New England Electric System (NEES) (NYSE: NES) today reported earnings for the 11 months ended Nov. 1990 of $3.70 per average share. This compares to $1.90 earned in the corresponding period last year on fewer average shares. NEES earnings for the first 11 months of this year were increased by approximately $1.75 per share due to the reversal of a portion of a 1988 write-down, which amounted to $1.80 per share, offset by a 5 cents per share loss from the sale of NEES' energy management subsidiary, NEES Energy, Inc., in Nov. 1990. The 1988 write-down resulted from a rate settlement involving the Seabrook I nuclear unit. In addition, earnings for the first 11 months of 1990 were decreased by 7 cents per share due to a seasonal rate design implemented by NEES' wholesale generation subsidiary, New England Power Company (NEP). This seasonal rate design involves higher rates during peak months and lower rates during off-peak months. It was designed to have no significant impact on earnings during a full year.

As previously reported, the adjustments related to Seabrook I reflect the terms of a 1988 NEP rate settlement approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Under the settlement, in 1988 NEP took a $179 million after-tax write down of its Seabrook I investment, assuming that the unit would be cancelled. In fact, Seabrook I entered commercial service. Accordingly, NEP reversed a portion of the 1988 write-down, which increased net income by $115 million, or $1.80 per share.

Many decisions made during the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's licensing of Seabrook I are being appealed and investigated. The Seabrook plant and nuclear power remain controversial, and challenges to both continue. NEP does not believe that pending appeals will result in the permanent withdrawal from service or cancellation of Seabrook I. However, if this should occur, NEP could be required to cease collecting revenue permitted by its 1988 rate settlement and/or make refunds and lower rates for five years depending upon the circumstances. A write-down could be required at that time.

(a) As previously discussed, earnings per average share for the 11 and 12 months ended November 1990 were increased by $1.80 and $1.81, respectively, due to a reversal of a portion of the 1988 Seabrook rate settlement write-down. Partially offsetting these amounts was a 5 cents per share loss from the sale of NEES Energy, Inc.

As previously reported, earnings per average share for the 12 months ended November 1990 were also increased by 17 cents due to the December 1989 sale of a subsidiary's interest in a joint venture that owned and operated a coal-carrying ship.

WARREN, OH (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - CSC Industries, Inc. announced today the completion of a transaction whereby the company will receive $17.5 million of new equity. Of this figure, $14.5 million is in the form of cash in exchange for 11.6 million newly issued shares of common stock. Daido Steel Co., Ltd., a principal shareholder of CSC, purchased 5,840,000 shares, and each of C.Itoh & Co., Ltd., Marubeni Corporation, and Okaya & Co., Ltd., purchased 1,920,000 shares. The remaining $3.0 million of equity infusion came from IMETAL of Paris through the conversion of $3.0 million of debt into 2.4 million shares of new common stock.

This transaction increases the total outstanding shares of common stock from 8,744,915 to 22,744,915. Daido's ownership percent has now increased from 32.5 percent to 38.2 percent; each of the three Japanese Trading Companies owns 8.4 percent; IMETAL's ownership reduced from 32.5 percent to 23 percent; and the ownership by other shareholders decreased from 35.0 percent to 13.5 percent.

It is anticipated that the additional equity would be used to finance a capital spending program designed to complement the newly modernized 12-inch bar mill by increasing the melt shop teeming capacity by 18 percent and providing facilities that improve the surface and internal quality inspection of billets for the mill. The spending plan includes improvements to the company's 35-inch rolling mill complex to provide improved surface quality, material handling, and metallurgical cooling of the products of this mill. A non- destructive testing facility for finished bar products, as well as finishing material handling improvements for manufacturing cost reductions, are also included in the plan.

Application of the proceeds from the proposed equity financing would bring the total capital spending for the Warren plant of CSC Industries, Inc. to $38.3 million over an 18-month period, and reaffirms Copperweld Steel's commitment to producing excellent quality for its customers.

DALLAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Sunshine Mining Co. (NYSE: SSC) announced today that its wholly owned subsidiary, Sunshine International Exploration Co. has entered into a joint venture agreement with Mallon Mining Co., a wholly owned subsidiary of Mallon Resources Corp., and with Red Rock Ventures Inc., for the conduct of gold mining operations and exploration in the Guanacaste Province of Costa Rica.

The joint venture will be known as the "Rio Chiquito Mining Company." Sunshine Mining Co. has the option to earn a 50 percent interest in and become the manager of the venture after complete analysis of all available data including a recently completed 13,000 foot drilling program. If Sunshine elects to proceed, Mallon will retain a 35 percent interest in the project while Red Rock Ventures will retain 15 percent.

The 36 hole drilling program, designed to define a minimum of 300,000 ounces of gold which could be mined starting as early as mid-1991 by open pit methods was completed on Dec. 10. The preliminary assay results from the first 30 holes indicate that 16 holes contain ore grade mineralization across mineable widths, while 11 holes intersected mineralization in excess of .10 ounces per ton gold. The widest intercept assayed .149 ounces per ton gold across 79 feet: the best grade intercept to date is 14.8 feet at .484 ounces per ton gold. This initial drilling program investigated only one of four major target areas on the 15,000 acre concession area. It is believed that the potential of the concession could exceed 1 million ounces of gold.

MINNEAPOLIS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Investors Savings Corp. (NASDAQ: INVS) and its subsidiary, Investors Savings Bank, F.S.B., has named James M. Burkholder chairman of the board. Burkholder, 47, became president and chief executive officer of Investors Savings Corp. in September and will retain those positions. He replaced Thomas R. Fritz, who resigned in August. Burkholder is a co-founder of Investors Savings Bank, which he joined in 1984.

The board of directors also elected E. Thomas Binger to the board. Binger fills a vacancy on the board resulting from Fritz's resignation. Binger, 67, is a general partner in Pittsburg Pacific Company, Ltd., a general partnership with interests in the iron ore business. Binger also serves as director on the boards of MTS Systems, Inc. and Bemis Company, Inc.

"Tom is one of our major shareholders and we are pleased he accepted our invitation to join the Investors Savings Corp. board," said Burkholder.

Investor Savings Corp. is a savings and loan holding company whose principal asset is Investors Savings Bank, F.S.B., a federally chartered savings bank with seven savings offices and six residential mortgage production offices in the Twin Cities and three residential mortgage production offices in Chicago.

TOWSON, MD. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The Black & Decker Corp. (NYSE: BDK) announced today that it has agreed to sell its North American Mallory Controls business to Emerson Electric Co. (NYSE: EMR) for approximately $90 million in cash.

The Brazilian portion of the business is being offered for sale separately. Black & Decker acquired the controls business in 1989 as part of its acquisition of Emhart Corp.

Commenting on the sale, Nolan D. Archibald, chairman and chief executive officer, said, "We continue to make steady progress on our divestiture and debt reduction program. With this transaction and the pending GardenAmerica sale, we will have divested eight non-strategic businesses and raised approximately $800 million toward our $1 billion near-term debt reduction target. As has been our experience to date, strategic buyers who have strong financial and operating resources continue to be interested in acquiring assets compatible with their businesses."

Black & Decker also reported that business conditions in Brazil have deteriorated and that U.S. sales have been below expectations in the fourth quarter. Archibald commented, "While we expect to offset most of the sluggishness in the U.S. through aggressive cost containment programs, the difficulties in Brazil will result in lower than expected earnings in the fourth quarter. However, we still expect to report a solidly profitable quarter versus the loss in the December quarter a year ago. At this point, we are anticipating that results for our Brazilian operations will be approximately 20 cents per share below our previous estimate. We are actively pursuing the sale of the Brazilian Mallory Controls business. Also, we are implementing major cost reductions in all of our operations in Brazil and are closing our export operations there. Provisions to cover the cost of these actions are included in our revised estimate for Brazil."

Black & Decker is the world's leading marketer and manufacturer of power tools and other quality products used in and around the home and for commercial applications.

TAMPA, FL (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The international accounting firm of Price Waterhouse, one of the industry's Big Six, has formed a Sports and Convention Facilities Advisory Group. The new practice area will be based in Tampa, according to Jerry Dingle, managing partner of the north Florida offices.

"This move broadens Price Waterhouse's service base to embrace a rapidly growing industry with a critical need for developmental, operational, funding and marketing assistance. Florida's expanding market in purpose-specific assembly facilities makes it the logical site for the firm's new service," said Dingle.

He announced that David C. Petersen, a nationally recognized expert in facilities advisory services, will head the new practice group. He and his staff will make Price Waterhouse the only firm among its competitors with a practice group devoted exclusively to sports and convention facilities advisory services.

Petersen, a widely published writer on the subject, has provided consultation in municipal financial planning, central city revitalization strategies, and financial services for sports and convention facilities development and operations throughout the United States.

A graduate of San Jose State College, Petersen is the author of Convention Centers, Stadiums and Arenas, published by the Urban Land Institute, of which he is a full member. He has written numerous articles which have appeared in such publications as Conferences and Exhibitions International, Urban Land, Amusement Business, Practicing Planner and Tradeshow Week.

He has addressed the Japanese National Tourist Organization, the International City Manager Association, the International Convention Center Conference, the International Association of Auditorium Managers, the Stadium Managers Annual Seminar Association, and the Association Internationale des Palais de Congres.

HARTFORD, CT (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - The proposed merger of Northeast Utilities (NYSE: NU) and Public Service of New Hampshire took two major steps forward this morning with decisions coming from two of the three key federal regulatory bodies that have authority over the merger.

In a voice vote, the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) approved a draft order permitting the merger. The final written order is not expected to be issued for a few days. In discussing the order, the four commission members who were present determined that the merger met the standards of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, under which NU is regulated. The approval delegated to SEC staff the task of approving specific financings that need to be accomplished to complete the merger.

Separately, an administrative law judge of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approved the merger subject to several conditions. Nearly all of the significant conditions were proposed by NU itself.

Under FERC rules, NU and supporting and opposing intervenors have 20 days, or until Jan. 9, to comment on Judge Nelson's decision and urge any suggested changes to the full commission. NU officials said that with such a positive decision from Judge Nelson, it expects a final decision to be issued no later than this spring. A prompt decision will be extremely beneficial to New Hampshire's efforts in combating a recent economic downturn.

Under the proposed two-step reorganization plan valued at $2.3 billion, NU will acquire PSNH. In the first step, now estimated to occur around March 1, PSNH will reorganize itself from bankruptcy as a stand-alone company. The major steps holding up that reorganization are resolution of certain claims before the United States Bankruptcy Court in Manchester, N.H., and a pending New Hampshire Supreme Court appeal.

Reorganization financing is expected to be aided by the New Hampshire Governor and Executive Council's approval yesterday of tax-exempt bonding for PSNH. Those bonds are expected to save PSNH and its customers around $200 million over the next 30 years.

The second step involves the merger. Major approvals required from the federal government include in addition to the SEC approval received today, final approval from the FERC and the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Applications with the NRC, related to NU's acquisition of PSNH's 35.6 percent share of the Seabrook nuclear power plant and proposal to manage the plant, were filed in November and are pending.

NU hopes to complete the merger in early summer 1991.

CHATHAM, NJ (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - At a presentation for the investment community held today, management of The Summit Bancorporation (NASDAQ-NMS: SUBN) (Summit) announced that, as previously indicated, Summit anticipates it will be modestly profitable in the fourth quarter but will experience a loss for the year. For the first nine months of 1990, Summit reported a loss of $13.9 million.

Summit expects that by year-end its nonperforming assets will have increased from $114 million at Sept. 30, 1990 to the $140 million to $150 million range. After fourth quarter net charge-offs, Summit foresees that its fourth quarter provision for loan losses will be greater than historic norms, but considerably less than the special provision taken in the third quarter. The anticipated fourth quarter provision, less net charge-offs, should maintain the allowance for loan losses at approximately 60 percent of nonperforming loans. Summit's capital position remains strong and it expects to end the year with a primary capital ratio in excess of 8.5 percent.

Summit's Chairman, Thomas D. Sayles, Jr., confirmed that the deterioration of New Jersey's economy and, particularly, its real estate market during 1990 has continued to have an adverse effect on Summit's asset quality and earnings.

Looking forward to 1991, Summit will proceed with its operations consolidation program, its cost controls and its added emphasis on noninterest income. Assuming the economy does not get significantly worse than it is now, 1991 is expected to bring a return to profitability. However, in 1991, Summit does not expect to regain the same earnings levels it had reached in prior years.

"In any event," cautioned Sayles, "1991 is going to be a very difficult year for the financial services industry generally, and for banks in particular."

Summit is a $3.7 billion financial services organization operating 82 banking offices throughout 11 New Jersey counties. Summit's banking subsidiaries include The Summit Trust Company, The Chatham Trust Company, The Maplewood Bank and Trust Company, Ocean National Bank, Bay State Bank, The Trust Company of Princeton, and Somerset Trust Company. Other Summit affiliates include The Summit Mortgage Company, Inc. and Beechwood Insurance Agency, Inc.

BRYN MAWR, PA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Bryn Mawr Bank Corp. (NASDAQ: BMTC) said today it expects a fourth quarter loss of approximately $1.4 million.

Net income for the year 1990 is estimated to be $200,000, about 18 cents per share. Based on earnings, the poor economic outlook and to conserve capital, the regular quarterly dividend is being reduced to 15 cents from 38 cents.

The corporation's main subsidiary, The Bryn Mawr Trust Co., has been affected by the continued sluggish residential real estate market. In response to this slowdown, the bank has lowered its costs and increased its reserve for loan losses.

LOAN LOSS RESERVES INCREASED The fourth quarter provision for possible loan losses is expected to be $2.4 million. After giving effect to loans charged off and recoveries made during the year, the loan loss reserve is estimated to be $3.9 million at year-end 1990.

Management said it believes that the increased loan loss reserve is adequate to meet estimated potential loan losses.

NON-PERFORMING LOANS Non-performing assets, which include loans with principal and interest payments past due 90 days or more and other real estate owned, are estimated to be $18 million at year-end, an increase from $11.4 million at Sept. 30, 1990.

DIVIDEND DECLARED The board of directors declared a regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share, payable on Feb. 1, 1991, to shareholders of record at the close of business Jan. 4, a reduction from 38 cents declared the previous quarter.

CAPITAL STRENGTH After accounting for increased revenues, loans charged off, earnings, and dividends paid, the bank's capital is expected to be $21 million at year-end 1990, $4 million in excess of the capital required under regulatory guidelines scheduled to become effective at year-end 1992, guidelines more rigorous than current requirements.

Bryn Mawr Bank Corp.'s capital is estimated to be $23 million at Dec. 31, 1990.

More detailed information will be available when the year-end results are released in late January.

MCLEAN, VA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - BDM International, Inc. and Corabi International Telemetrics, Inc. today announced plans to offer telemedicine systems to the military which will enable military physicians located anywhere in the world to consult with experts here in the United States. Medical personnel can be linked by such systems to remote hospitals in real-time even during emergency situations, according to BDM Corporate Vice President Michael G. Stolarik.

Corabi-developed telemedicine systems are already in use in the United States, linking large medical centers to rural communities. Originally built to provide access to pathologists, the telepathology system sends a high-resolution video image from a robotically-controlled microscope to an expert sitting at a monitor thousands of miles away. The expert can control the microscope and render a diagnosis. A smaller portable version of the telepathology system can also be used to send X-rays or pictures of the patient.

Broad potential defense applications of the system have been foreseen ever since the first test of real-time telepathology in 1986 when a patient at William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, Texas, was diagnosed by a group of pathologists from the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C. Recently, the system has been perceived as particularly important during emergency situations such as that which might occur in Desert Shield, Stolarik said.

Corabi President Beth W. Newburger said, in announcing the teaming agreement, that the alliance between the two companies will provide the technical know-how and ability to perform which is necessary in implementing telemedicine systems on a broad scale. Corabi, a five-year-old telemedicine company headquartered in Alexandria, Va., has an established reputation as the pioneer in telepathology.

Stolarik explained that BDM sees Corabi as the developer of a breakthrough technology in the medical arena which fits with technologies that BDM has integrated in other fields. The Companies expect to announce their first contract award in January 1991.

BDM is headquartered in McLean, (metropolitan Washington, D.C.) with offices and operations in 50 world-wide locations. BDM provides professional and technical services to public and private sector clients in national defense and security, communications, energy, logistics, space, information systems, advanced technology, manufacturing technology, and certain other areas.

WASHINGTON, (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir flight attendants, represented by the Association of Flight Attendants (AFA), today rejected an 18-month tentative agreement with the airline's management. Eighty percent of those flight attendants eligible to vote returned ballots and 53 percent voted against the agreement.

At union meetings held by AFA prior to the ballot count, flight attendants expressed strong dissatisfaction with the concessionary nature of the contract.

AFA and the company reached a tentative agreement on Oct. 12. The decision of the union's leadership was to send the tentative agreement out to the flight attendants for a vote, but with no recommendation for approval.

"Our plan is to return to the negotiating table, and we hope that we can reach an agreement quickly in mediation," said Carol Austin, AFA MEC president at USAir. "No tentative agreement in recent memory has been rejected by the USAir flight attendants," Austin added. "We hope the company understands the message it just received."

Airline unions are governed by the Railway Labor Act, which stipulates that union contracts become amendable rather than expire. The USAir flight attendants will continue to work under their contract, which became amendable Aug. 31, 1989.

The Association of Flight Attendants, AFL-CIO, represents 30,000 flight attendants on 18 airlines, including 10,000 USAir flight attendants, and is the largest flight attendant union in the world.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - American Savings Bank (NYSE: ASB) reported today that William G. Lillis, president, chief executive officer and a director, announced that he will retire from the bank at the end of October 1991. Lillis conveyed his decision to the board of directors at its regular December meeting.

The bank also reported that the board of directors has appointed a committee to begin an immediate search for a successor. The committee will consist of the following directors: Henry Salzhauer, who will serve as committee chairman; John Lundberg, the bank's chairman; John Thornton, and Philip Winterer.

The October date was selected to allow sufficient time for the board to find a new president and to ensure an orderly transition. Lundberg will continue to serve as chairman of the board.

"Having served as president of this institution for 10 years, I feel it's an appropriate time to step down next October," Lillis said. "In addition, I believe our 'Back to Basics' strategy -- focusing on our core businesses of retail banking and income-property lending, while at the same time reducing expenses -- will be implemented substantially by the fall of 1991. That will be the right time for a new person to take on the leadership of the bank," he said.

DARIEN, CONN. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Bowater Incorporated (NYSE: BOW) announced today that agreement has been reached with Advance Publications Inc. to exchange the assets of Catawba Newsprint Company located at Catawba, S.C., for similar assets at the Bowater newsprint mill in Calhoun, Tenn. Catawba Newsprint Company is owned 51 percent by Bowater and 49 percent by Advance.

The asset exchange will take place effective Jan. 1, 1991, and the company will be renamed Calhoun Newsprint Company. The ownership interests of Bowater and Advance will remain the same after the exchange.

The Bowater partnership with Advance, a Newhouse company, has operated successfully for more than 20 years and has involved a high degree of mutual cooperation. The transfer of assets from Catawba to Calhoun accommodates the desire of Advance to have their newsprint operational interest connected with appropriate recycling facilities.

Calhoun Newsprint Company will own No. 5 paper machine, a portion of the TMP facilities, and the deinking plant now under construction.

The new deinking plant will start up in the fourth quarter of 1991 and will help Bowater to meet the requirements of Advance and Bowater's other customers for newsprint with a recycled fiber content. When completed, the plant will consume some 380 tons per day of old newsprint and coated magazine stock and will deliver 300 tons per day of recycled fiber to the newsprint mill. Construction of the plant remains on schedule and within budget.

Bowater Incorporated is a major manufacturer of newsprint, coated publication papers and bleached kraft market pulp, and a converter of communication papers for business.

SEATTLE, (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Delta Air Lines has ordered 26 Boeing jetliners, Boeing announced today.

Six 767-300 twinjets are new orders; Boeing also confirmed three extended range 767-300s, one 767-300, nine 757-200s and seven 737-300s that previously had not been announced.

Total value upon delivery of the combined order is approximately $1.8 billion. This order establishes a new one-year record for the dollar value of announced orders at $47.7 billion. The previous record, set in 1989, was $46.62 billion.

Delta, a kickoff customer for the 767 in 1978, has ordered a total of 57 of the widebody twinjets from Boeing; 37 of which have been delivered. It operates the twin-aisle airplanes on both domestic and international routes.

Since its first order for 757s in 1980, Delta has taken delivery of 60 of the quiet, fuel-efficient twinjets. Today's announcement brings to 20 the number of 757-200s still on order.

Delta now has 57 Boeing 737-300s on order. One of Boeing's largest customers, Delta has ordered 354 of the company's jetliners over the past 23 years. Delta today operates 298 Boeing jets.

The orders announced today bring total 767 orders to 526 from 44 customers, 757 orders to 724 from 34 customers and 737 orders to 2,885 from 149 customers.

For 1990, Boeing has announced orders for 543 jetliners.

LANHAM, MD (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Schwartz Brothers, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: SWAR) the nation's leading independent distributor of recorded music and one of the largest distributors of videocassettes, reported that results for the third quarter and first nine months of the current fiscal year were significantly impacted by the provision for doubtful accounts on its trade receivables.

For the third quarter, the company had a net loss of $3,065,000, or $1.72 per share, compared to net earnings of $425,000, or 23 cents per share, in the same period last year. This year's results included a provision for doubtful accounts of $3,894,000 compared to $214,000 last year caused by adverse payment experience and bankruptcies of several of the company's customers, the slowing of the national economy and the imposition of more stringent and aggressive collection procedures by the company. Revenues for the quarter were $26,859,000 compared to $34,392,000 last year. The weakened economy, the lack of major hit audio and video releases and tighter credit granting policies had an adverse effect on sales for the quarter.

For the first nine months of the year, revenues were $83,031,000 compared to $79,624,000 in the first three quarters last year. Because of the provision for doubtful accounts, the company sustained a loss of $2,883,000, or $1.62 per share, compared to net income of $697,000, or 38 cents per share, in the same period a year ago.

Schwartz Brothers officials said, "Many of the company's customers were severely affected by the downturn of the economy in the early part of this year and our third-quarter results reflect this problem. During the year, we have strengthened our management and operations. Patrick A. Labriola, who joined us a few months ago as senior vice president- operations and chief financial officer, has already made a significant, positive contribution to our organization. The last half of this year is a time for restructuring. We are taking the opportunity to assess the needs of our organization and responding accordingly. With this restructuring and the losses for doubtful accounts behind us, we are better positioned to be stronger and profitable in the coming year."

The financial position of the company is strong with total assets of $41,425,000, shareholders' equity of $5,455,000 and working capital of $4,765,000 as of Oct. 31, 1990. The company is actively seeking a replacement to its bank line of credit facility which has been extended by the bank month-to-month since October 1990.

MEMPHIS, TN. (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Federal Express Corporation (NYSE: FDX) announced today that net income for the quarter ended Nov. 30, 1990, increased to $37.5 million from $37 million in last year's second quarter. Earnings per share rose to $.71 from $.70 in the same period a year ago.

Revenues in the quarter increased 16 percent to $1.99 billion from $1.72 billion the previous year. Operating income decreased slightly from $127.9 million to $125.8 million, primarily reflecting higher fuel prices.

The company said its average cost per gallon for jet fuel in the second quarter was up 55 percent compared with last year's second quarter and up 62 percent vs. the first quarter of this fiscal year. Total fuel expenses increased $73 million from the same period a year ago and $77 million compared to this year's first quarter.

Commenting on the results, Chief Executive Officer Frederick W. Smith said, "Our second quarter results reflect the concerted efforts of all of our employees to improve productivity and reduce expenses in a very difficult environment. Strict adherence to cost-cutting programs provided a partial offset to significantly higher fuel prices, continuing international losses, a weak economy, and slower volume growth."

Smith added that the company recorded the highest service levels in its history during the quarter while concurrently achieving record low levels of cost per package. "The Federal Express commitment to quality," Smith said, "remains the cornerstone of our cost reduction program. We continue to confirm that the best way to cut costs is by improving the quality of all aspects of our operations."

On Thursday of last week, Federal Express was presented the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award by President Bush, marking the first time a service company has won the coveted award.

SAN DIEGO (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - BSD Bancorp Inc. (AMEX: BSD) today announced that it anticipates reporting minimal earnings for the fourth quarter ending Dec. 31, 1990, due to the provision of approximately $1 million in additional loan loss reserves in December.

The decision to provide additional reserves results primarily from $721,000 in commercial loan charge-offs at The Bank of San Diego, with special reserves being set aside at each of BSD Bancorp's three major banks to provide additional cushion for the anticipated recessionary environment in 1991.

Each of BSD Bancorp's three major banks -- The Bank of San Diego, American Valley Bank and Coast Bank -- have had regulatory examinations which concluded mid- and late-fourth quarter of 1990, and all charge-offs directed by the regulators have been taken.

James S. Brown, chairman of BSD Bancorp, stated, "The Bank of San Diego does not agree with all of the charge-offs directed by the regulators, but all charge-offs have been taken and the bank anticipates that a portion of the loans charged off will be recoverable next year. It should be noted that prior to the examination, the bank had set aside reserves covering 50 percent of the balances on these particular loans.

"Given the decision to add reserves in 1990," added Brown, "BSD Bancorp will be going into the economic downturn in a stronger reserve position. Also, non-performing loans continue to be less than 2 percent of total loans, which is a very healthy level for the banking industry."

Due to the minimal level of earnings anticipated for the fourth quarter, BSD Bancorp also indicated that its earnings for the full year will be comparable to the level reported for the nine-month period ended Sept. 30, 1990, which was $3,426,000.

MIAMI (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Florida's largest commuter airline, Eastern Express, reached a definitive agreement last night with BHA Aviation, Inc. to sell the commuter for an undisclosed amount. BHA Aviation is an investor group led by the commuter's former president, Jack E. Robinson.

If approval is granted by the bankruptcy judge overseeing actions of the commuter's parent company, Eastern Airlines, ownership of Bar Harbor Airways, d.b.a. as Eastern Express, will change hands by mid-January 1991.

No major changes in existing operations are expected. Eastern Express opened a Tampa hub on Oct. 15, and at the same time almost doubled its daily flights throughout Florida and the Bahamas to number 184, including hourly flights between Tampa and Miami. The commuter's existing fleet of 22 aircraft serves 14 cities in Florida and six in the Bahamas.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Team Bank, as Trustee of the San Juan Basin Royalty Trust (NYSE: SJT), today declared a cash distribution to the holders of its units of beneficial interest of $.009511 per unit, payable Jan. 16, 1991, to Unit Holders of record on Dec. 31, 1990.

Royalty income for December 1990 was approximately $1,068,400. Administrative expenses were approximately $31,000, and excess production expenses from prior months were approximately $539,800, resulting in distributable income of $497,600. In accordance with the Royalty Conveyance, the excess of expenses over income in any month must be recovered from subsequent months' royalty income. Additionally, in order for the Trust to pay administrative expenses for September through November, the Trustee borrowed funds totaling $53,400. The deferred charge created by this borrowing, plus approximately $1,000 in interest, was repaid. Therefore, total cash to be distributed to Unit Holders on Jan. 16, 1991, is approximately $443,000, or $.009511 per Unit.

Capital costs for the month were lower primarily due to accrual revisions. Production from the properties from which the Royalty was carved totaled approximately $1,319,000 Mcf. The average gas price was $1.80 per Mcf.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Chambers Development Company Inc. (AMEX: CDVB) and its president, John G. Rangos Sr., today donated $201,000 to Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, a spokesman said.

The money was raised through Chambers' second annual riverboat "Cruise for Kids" that was held aboard the Gateway Clipper Fleet's "Majestic" earlier this year. In addition, Chambers employees sponsored a spaghetti dinner and held several raffles to help raise additional funds.

Rangos presented the check to Edwin D. Zechman Jr., president of Children's Hospital at the Rangos Research Center.

"I want to express my appreciation to the people of western Pennsylvania, the Pittsburgh corporate community, Children's Hospital employees and Chambers' employees for helping us exceed last year's total and meet this year's goal," Rangos said. "Because of their outstanding efforts, many children will now be able to receive health care they so desperately need."

"John Rangos and the employees of Chambers Development are loyal friends of Children's Hospital and the families we serve," Zechman said. "Through John's leadership, the Chambers campaign has been more successful than ever. The children, families and staff of Children's Hospital are deeply grateful to John and to Chambers Development for helping to see to it that no child from our region will ever be denied medical care because of a family's inability to pay."

A Pittsburgh Press Old Newsboy, Rangos raised the most money for the hospital in 1989.

Rangos and Chambers have been supporters of Children's Hospital since the chairman devised a program to use recycled aluminum to fund the Free Care Fund at the hospital. He again spearheaded this year's "Cruise for Kids" campaign.

Chambers Development Company, headquartered in Pittsburgh, is one of the fastest growing U.S. companies with rankings on the Forbes list of the 200 Best Small Companies in America and on the Business Week Top 1000 U.S. Companies. Chambers is a leading environmental firm offering services in recycling, collection, hauling, disposal and landfill development.

The company also provides security through its wholly owned subsidiary, Security Bureau Inc., the 12th largest U.S. security firm.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Snyder Oil Corp. (NYSE: SNY) today reported a series of developments related to its exploration program. The Willit 2H horizontal well, located in Laramie County, Wyo. and which targeted the Niobrara formation has been completed. The well was production tested on pump at the rate of 216 barrels or oil per day in a 24 hour test. However, subsequent production and pressure tests have been disappointing and some form of stimulation on the well is expected to be attempted shortly. However, results from the well are sufficiently encouraging that a futher horizontal well in the North Silo area, the Hutton 10-21H, should be spudded within the week. SOCO holds 25 percent and 15 percent working interests, respectively, in these wells. The company also indicated that the initial location in the Pawnee project has just been staked. Drilling on the well is expected to begin in January. The Pawnee project encompasses 165,000 gross acres considered prospective for horizontal drilling in the Niobrara Chalk. SOCO holds 57,000 net acres in the project.

Separately, SOCO announced the status of several other of its exploration projects. In the Bakken formation of Roosevelt County, Montana, drilling on the company's initial horizontal well, the Big Muddy 1, has just concluded and testing should be initiated shortly. A second well in the Bakken, the Baineville State 36-1, will spud within the week to 10 days. SOCO holds a 25 percent interest in both of these wells. Finally, the SOCO Federal No. 1, a vertical well seeking to test the Painted Rock formation in the Cuyama Valley of Santa Barbara County, Calif., is currently drilling and is expected to reach total depth within the next few weeks. SOCO holds a 25 percent carried interest in the Cuyama well.

SOCO is an independent oil company engaged in the acquisition, production, development and exploration of oil and gas properties and in natural gas processing and transportation. The company's common stock is traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol SNY.

DALLAS (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Halliburton Co. (NYSE: HAL) announced that it has received from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) notices asserting deficiencies in federal corporate income taxes in the amount of approximately $247 million, excluding interest, for its 1980-86 taxable years. The IRS has proposed over 200 separate adjustments to Halliburton's tax returns. Halliburton believes that the majority of these adjustments and the asserted deficiencies are without merit. The IRS has not asserted that any penalties are due with respect to the alleged deficiencies.

Halliburton has filed claims for the refund of federal income taxes paid with respect to its 1980-86 taxable years in the approximate total amount of $115 million, excluding interest. The IRS has denied some of these claims and taken no action with respect to others.

Halliburton has filed petitions in the United States Tax Court challenging the entire amount of the proposed deficiencies and requesting the payment of the $115 million in refund claims. Halliburton believes it is entitled to the refunds, it has meritorious defenses, both procedural and substantive, to the proposed deficiencies and that the ultimate resolution of the case will result in no material impact on its consolidated results of operations or consolidated financial condition.

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) PR NEWSWIRE - Directors of Golden Poultry Company, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: CHIK) and Gold Kist Inc. today approved formation of a partnership company to purchase a Campbell Soup Company (NYSE: CPB) plant at Sumter, S.C., according to Don W. Sands, chairman of Golden Poultry, and D.C. Herlong, chairman of Gold Kist.

The partnership will be named Carolina Golden Products Company. Golden Poultry will own 51 percent and Gold Kist will own 49 percent, Sands said.

Campbell announced Nov. 5 that it had signed a letter of intent to sell its Sumter frozen food and poultry processing plant and related assets to Gold Kist or a subsidiary. Negotiations are proceeding on the final sale agreement which is expected to result in ownership changing in late January 1991.

Gold Kist Inc. is a diversified farm cooperative with poultry processing, grain, peanut, farm supply and retail store operations in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida. It currently owns 67 percent of the common stock of Golden Poultry, which has operations in Georgia, Alabama and North Carolina.

Establishing the partnership will increase Gold Kist ownership of Golden Poultry common stock through the purchase, by a Gold Kist subsidiary, of a new issue of common stock at the market price at the time the Campbell purchase is completed.

Commenting on Carolina Golden Product's plans, Sands said the Sumter plant and related operations would be converted to produce fresh and further processed chicken for sale to fast food chains and supermarkets. Campbell produced frozen chicken and turkey dinners at the plant. Gold Kist plants would supply a portion of the meat, which will be further processed at Sumter.

Golden Poultry produces fresh and further processed chicken for fast food customers at its new Russellville, Ala., plant and supplies supermarket chains and commercial accounts from its Douglas, Ga., and Sanford, N.C., plants. It also operates a food distribution center at Pompano Beach, Fla., which supplies more than 2,500 perishable food items to commercial and cruise ship line customers in the south Florida market.

Its 10.7 million shares of common stock outstanding are traded on the NASDAQ National Market System.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) TASS - "THE WITHDRAWAL OF SOVIET HARDWARE TO BEYOND THE URALS, PARTICULARLY TANKS, SHOULD IN NO WAY CAUSE CONCERN AMONG WESTERN EXPERTS," COLONEL-GENERAL NIKOLAI CHERVOV, ASSISTANT TO THE CHIEF OF THE SOVIET ARMED FORCES' GENERAL STAFF, TOLD TASS HERE TODAY.

HE WAS RESPONDING TO A CAMPAIGN BEING STEPPED UP BY WESTERN MEDIA TO BRING ABOUT AN ATMOSPHERE OF DISTRUST OF PEACE MOVES BY THE SOVIET UNION, WHICH IS WITHDRAWING ITS HARDWARE FROM EUROPE TO BEYOND THE URALS.

AS OF JULY 1, THIS YEAR, THE SOVIET UNION HAD 41,500 TANKS IN ITS EUROPEAN SECTION, CHERVOV SAID. BY THE TIME THE PARIS CONVENTIONAL FORCES IN EUROPE (CFE) TREATY WAS SIGNED (NOVEMBER 19, 1990), THE SOVIET UNION HAD ONLY 20,725 TANKS IN ITS EUROPEAN SECTION.

CHERVOV SAID THAT DURING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE SOVIET DEFENSIVE MILITARY DOCTRINE, 10,000 TANKS WERE SUBJECT TO CUTBACKS. DURING THE UNILATERAL REDUCTION IN THE SOVIET ARMED FORCES BY 500,000 MEN, ANOTHER 10,000 TANKS WERE CUT. AS A RESULT, CHEROV SAID, 20,000 TANKS WERE WITHDRAWN FROM EUROPE BY THE BEGINNING OF THE CSCE SUMMIT.

CHERVOV SAID THAT 8,000 NEW TANKS OUT OF THE AMOUNT WERE TRANSFERRED TO REAR TROOPS IN THE ASIAN PART OF THE USSR. ANOTHER 8,000 TANKS ARE, FOR THE TIME BEING, AT SIBERIAN STORAGE DEPOTS. YET ANOTHER 4,000 TANKS HAVE ALREADY BEEN SCRAPPED OR CONVERTED INTO AUXILIARY VEHICLES.

"THE MAIN THING NOW IS TO ATTAIN THE ULTIMATE LEVELS OF ARMS RECORDED IN THE CFE TREATY FOR EACH GROUP OF STATES AND FOR EACH INDIVIDUAL COUNTRY," HE SAID.

THE REST DEPENDS ON EXPERTS AND INSPECTORS, HE ADDED. EVERYTHING MAY BE INSPECTED: BASIC DATA ON ARMAMENTS, VERIFIED FIGURES FOLLOWING RATIFICATION, CUTBACKS (THE PLACES OF ELIMINATION AND CONVERSION AND PLACES OF PERMANENT STORAGE), AND ULTIMATE LEVELS OF ARMS THROUGHOUT THE TENURE OF THE CFE TREATY.

"IN THE EUROPEAN PART OF THE USSR, EVERY DAY THERE WILL BE AT LEAST ONE INSPECTION BY WESTERN EXPERTS. THEREFORE IT WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE TO CONCEAL ANYTHING IN DISARMAMENT MATTERS UNDER THESE CONDITIONS. FEARS CONCERNING THE SOVIET UNION'S STEPS TO REDUCE ITS ARMAMENTS ARE ABSOLUTELY UNFOUNDED," CHERVOV SAID.

(DEC. 20) UPI - President Bush reportedly says he's come to terms on the use of force to get Iraq out of Kuwait, but has made NO decision on whether a military solution will be ordered. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says Bush reached that decision ''when he sent the first troops'' to the Persian Gulf in August.

Bush met with a group of congressmen today and they say the president reiterated his desire to avoid conflict in the five-month standoff. But they quoted Bush as saying in graphic terms that if war does break out, Iraq's Saddam Hussein- quote- is ''going to get his butt kicked.''

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the sudden resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is NOT expected to affect Soviet support for the international coalition alligned against Iraq in the Gulf.

Shevardnadze said he resigned to protest conservative attacks and to warn of an ''impending dictatorship'' in the Soviet Union. Soviet President Gorbachev condemned the decision and told Soviet lawmakers he had planned to recommend Shevardnadze for appointment as vice president.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - At least 250 million sexually transmitted infections occur worldwide annually and the growing epidemic is creating ''a public health nightmare,'' the World Health Organization reported Wednesday.

Young adults account for the largest share of the 250 million infections, with the highest incidence reported among people ages 20 through 24, WHO said.

''Sexually transmitted infections and diseases have reached epidemic proportions globally. And if sexual behavior is not modified and effective new prevention and control programs are not implemented immediately, the resulting disease and mortality rates will be even more staggering,'' WHO Director General Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima warned.

WHO emphasized that diseases spread by sex are not harmless and can cause serious health problems, such as sterility, blindness, brain damage, cancer and even death. In addition, there is evidence the sores and inflammation caused by sexually transmitted infections boosts the risk of contracting the deadly AIDS virus during sex.

Trichomoniasis, a parasitic infection, is the most common sexually transmitted infection - making up about 120 million of the 250 million new cases that occur each year. About 50 million cases stem from chlamydia, a bacterial infection that can cause infertility. In some inner city ares of the United States, 10 percent to 30 percent of sexually active teenage girls have the infection.

Genital warts account for about 30 million cases; gonorrhea, about 25 million; genital herpes, 20 mllion; syphillis, 3.5 million; hepatitis B, 2.5 million; chancroid, 2 million, and the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, 1 million.

''In many countries, sexually transmitted infections have become a public health nightmare,'' Nakajima said in a statement.

Dr. Andre Meheus, head of WHO's sexually transmitted disease program, noted that the infection rate in industrial countries is rising faster than those reported in the 1960s and 1970s. In many Third World nations, recent migration to cities often leads to new sexual habits that increase the risk of such infections, he said.

''Sexually transmitted infections are not under control either in the developed or the developing world,'' Meheus said.

In addition to people failing to take protective measures like using condoms during sex, WHO said the incidence of some sexually transmitted diseases appears to be increasing due to development of microbe strains that are resistant to antibiotic drugs.

(DEC. 20) UPI - President Bush says his war on drugs is ''paying off,'' but declaring victory would be premature. BOSTON (DEC. 20) UPI - A Massachusetts defense contractor skipped or faked tests on key components of a Navy missile that may be used in the event of war in the Persian Gulf, it was reported Thursday.

The Boston Herald quoted two former executives of Micro-Dynamics Inc. as saying the company ''pressured employees'' for several years to omit tests or alter the results on electronic switches used on the Navy's HARM anti-radar missile.

''If a pilot (in combat) needs these weapons, any switch that fails to function because it was not tested could lead to the loss of pilot life,'' Stephen Rocci, who was the HARM program coordinator for Micro- Dynamics, told the newspaper.

Micro-Dynamics, headquartered in suburban Woburn, has already pleaded guilty to federal charges of falsifying similar test data on components of three other weapons systems - the B-1B bomber, AWACs radar planes and ALR-67 radar devices installed on various Navy aircraft - in 1985 and 1986.

The newspaper quoted a federal investigator as saying the failure of Micro-Dynamics-manufactured parts could cripple the radar system of an AWAC jet and ground the aircraft.

The Air Force issued a warning Oct. 31 to all contractors and Pentagon officials dealing with weapons containing parts manufactured by the company, after it reached an out-of-court settlement with the government, the Herald said.

Texas Instruments, the HARM missile's prime contractor, said it ''has not experienced any significant problems'' with parts supplied by Micro- Dynamics, and said its own testing would detect any flaws in the components.

However, Rocci told the Herald, ''With the quantity of untested switches out there, it's practically impossible for the contractor to catch all the failures.''

Rocci and another unidentified former Micro-Dynamics employee said the bogus tests occurred for several years prior to late 1989, when they said Texas Instruments became aware of the government's investigation into the company's other defense contracts.

Rocci, who worked for Micro-Dynamics for seven years before resigning in 1989, said he could not estimate how many HARM missiles containing Micro-Dynamics parts might currently be in the Persian Gulf. But he told the Herald the HARM ''is standard ordnance'' for Navy fighter jets.

The switches in question are part of the missile's ''seeker section'' which help it to detect radiation that signals an enemy anti-aircraft radar installation, the newspaper said.

It said Rocci cited ''detailed technical data'' to back up his claims and painted a ''portrait of a company so pressured to fill its contract that it cut testing corners on a regular basis.''

''I went to them time after time after time to get them on track,'' Rocci said. ''The company became so infected with this way of (skipping and falsifying tests) that it became a normal way of business.''

SANTIAGO, Chile (DEC. 20) UPI - Chilean army troops went on alert and were confined to quarters around the country following a report that Armed Forces Commander in Chief General Augusto Pinochet was asked to resign, news reports said late Wednesday.

Two top officials confirmed the troop activity but declared it was not jeopardizing democracy in Chile.

The reports of the troop alert followed Pinochet's denial earlier in the day to journalists that he had been asked to resign during a morning meeting with President Patricio Aylwin and top government officials.

Catholic University's television Channel 13 and private TV channel Megavision reported Wednesday that Defense Minister Patricio Rojas had requested Pinochet's resignation.

Other sources say that top military officials had requested Pinochet resign, arguing that a financial scandal under investigation by a civil judge could implicate former generals and some officers still on active duty.

However, when asked by reporters if the government had requested his resignation, Pinochet on leaving the Presidential Palace after a lunch with Rojas, acted surprised and denied he had been asked to resign.

Channel 13 and ''Megavision'' then reported the military was placed on alert. However, state-owned television said the military units were merely holding ''meetings'' in their various headquarters.

The troop alert reports also came after sources close to a civil judge said the magistrate had received a list from Pinochet of 150 military officers - former army generals and some active duty officers - allegedly involved in the financial scandal.

Witnesses said army trucks were circulating throughout the capital picking up all personnel on leave or at home, and army sources acknowledged the troops were on alert, adding the state of alert was in support of Pinochet.

Assistant Secretary of State Belisario Velasco confirmed the military was on alert and confined to quarters, but assured ''all was in calm, and the democracy in the country was not at stake''.

Defense Minister Patricio Rojas, when asked during a military graduation ceremony if the troops were on alert, acknowledged the current situation within the army was ''abnormal.''

But he said the situation was due only to a ''misunderstanding'' regarding a financial scandal within the armed forces currently in the hands of the judge.

House of Representatives President Jose Antonio Viera-Gallo said, ''We were briefed on the military alert and confinement. Chileans can be calm because the country's democracy is not in play.''

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said the department had no information on the reported troop alert or confinement.

Aylwin succeeded Pinochet as president after winning election Dec. 14, 1989.

Until Aylwin's election, Pinochet ruled Chile with an iron hand since taking office following the death of President Salvador Allende, who was elected the continent's first Marxist president in 1970 and died in a Sept. 11, 1973 coup that was covertly encouraged by the United States.

(DEC. 20) UPI - American forces in the Persian Gulf will not be ready to fight for at least a month after the U.N. deadline for Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, and Iraq told its citizens to stock up on heating oil in case of war.

The second in command of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia told a group of eight journalists, including representatives of The Washington Post and The New York Times, that American forces might not be ready until the middle of February.

Lt. Gen. Calvin A.H. Waller made the comments Wednesday as Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, arrived in Saudi Arabia for briefings.

''I'm like a football coach,'' Waller said. ''I want everything I can possibly get and have at my side of the field when I get ready to go into the Super Bowl.''

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater played down the comments saying, ''What he really said is they might not be as ready as they would like to be ... for all the contingencies.''

Waller, who ranks behind Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf in Operation Desert Shield said major reinforcements ordered Nov. 8 by President Bush were still in transit from Europe and the United States and would not be ready to fight possibly until the middle of February.

But Waller himself hinted the troops might be more prepared than he was letting on. ''One of the last things I want to do is to give Saddam Hussein what our plans consist of.''

The Iraqi oil ministry proved again it was taking the threat seriously by asking people to stock up with domestic heating fuel to confront shortages should a winter war erupt in the Gulf, Baghdad Radio said.

In another indication Iraq was preparing for war, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported that Iraqi armored columns, tanks and artillery units were being withdrawn from the Syrian border and deployed in Kuwait.

The move was an apparent bid to reinforce the defenses of the occupied emirate against U.S.-led attack, according to the agency, which said some 430,000 Iraqi troops were already stationed in Kuwait and southern Iraq.

Two senators who just returned from a visit to Saudi Arabia met with Bush in Washington and said they had been told by U.S. commanders that a war with Iraq would last no more than five days because of overwhelming U.S. air power.

When asked about the assessment given by Sens. Daniel Inouye, D- Hawaii, and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, Fitzwater said, ''Obviously our commanders feel confident about their strength and abilities, but we would be most reluctant to put days or minutes on it.''

On the diplomatic front, Fitzwater reported no progress in trying to set dates for Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to visit Washington and Secretary of State James Baker to go to Baghdad.

Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan told Amman Radio that he did not think Saddam Hussein would withdraw from Kuwait before a Jan. 15 U.N. deadline, and that peace ''will require a miracle.''

In an interview with Turkish television aired by Cable News Network, Saddam said Wednesday there is ''still a chance of peace instead of war. '' He said a diplomatic solution must address the Arab-Israeli dispute and the Palestinian question. Bush has refused to link the gulf crisis with any outside issue.

The Soviet news agency Tass also quoted a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman as denying a report in The Washington Post that said the Soviet Union had supplied Iraq with SS-12 short-range ballistic missiles.

Baghdad radio said authorities in Iraq had plans to evacuate more than 1 million people from the densely populated Baghdad suburb of Saddam beginning Friday.

Other evidence of war preparations included Iraqi television programs on how to cope with bombing, fires and attacks from chemical and nuclear weapons.

The request to stock up on home heating fuel came about two months after Former Oil Minister Issam Abdulrahim Chalabi ordered the rationing of gasoline. Saddam later fired Chalabi, saying the rationing order was unncessary.

In other developments Wednesday:

-Iranian leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei told theology students that U. S. troops in the Gulf were serving the interests of oil companies and multinationals, and only Iran was treading the path of virtue.

-Saudi Arabia has suspended exports of aircraft fuel and is busy stockpiling it for the 2,000 allied fighter jets in the region in case of war, Cairo Radio reported.

-U.S. Vice President Dan Quayle said he will spend New Year's Day with U.S. troops stationed in Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield. President and Mrs. Bush visited U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia for Thanksgiving.

TAIPEI, TAIWAN (DEC. 20) UPI - An earthquake measuring 6.19 on the open-ended Richter scale jolted eastern Taiwan Thursday, the 153th tremor to strike the island within one week.

Officials at the Seismology Research Center in Taipei said the quake, which hit at 7:38 a.m., was centered 18 miles southeast of Hualin, a city on the east coast of Taiwan.

One highway in the central part of the island was slightly damaged but was quickly repaired and traffic resumed. There were no immediate reports of casualties or severe property damage from the quake, according to authorities.

The quake was the 153rd tremor recorded this week, the Central Weather Bureau said.

Aftershocks following a major quake last Friday now total 2,087 and three people have died in the temblors, which also caused landslides and damage to property, officials said.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (DEC. 20) UPI - The government is expected to scrap all but one of the remaining apartheid laws at the opening of parliament Feb. 1, desegregating residential areas and ending racial restrictions on land ownership, the authoritative Business Day newspaper reported Thursday.

The repeal of the legislation would come exactly one year after President Frederik de Klerk launched his racial reforms, opening the way to a further easing of anti-apartheid sanctions from abroad and satisfying important demands of the black opposition.

De Klerk, in his speech to parliament, is expected to announce the scrapping of the Group Areas Act, which has segregated residential areas since 1966, and the Free Settlement Areas Act and various Land Acts, designed to conserve some 87 percent of land for whites, the newspaper quoted unnamed government sources as saying.

But the Population Registration Act of 1950, which classifies every South African by race at birth, will remain in force until a post- apartheid constitution is introduced, the newspaper said.

The repeal of the laws would satisfy most conditions imposed by the United States for the lifting of its economic sanctions package imposed in 1988 and also the majority of conditions laid down by the European Community for the scrapping of its own sanctions, introduced in 1985 and 1986.

To bring an end to sanctions, De Klerk would have to release all of an estimated 1,500 prisoners held for politically motivated crimes and allow some 20,000 political exiles to return - conditions he has already agreed to fulfill by the end of April 1991.

The repeal of the discriminatory laws, release of prisoners and return of exiles would also largely satisfy conditions laid down by the African National Congress for substantive talks with Pretoria on ending apartheid.

De Klerk already has legalized the ANC and other black opposition groups after 30 years, released Nelson Mandela from prison, and introduced further reforms.

These included the scrapping of the Separate Amenities Act, which segregated public facilities, and agreements in principle on the release of political prisoners and the return of exiles.

BANGKOK, THAILAND (DEC. 20) UPI - A Thai court sentenced a 19-year-old British teenager to 25 years in prison Thursday for trafficking in more than 57 pounds of high-grade heroin, citing her age and confession as reasons to lighten the normal sentence of death.

''The evidence showed without doubt that the defendant is guilty of the charges,'' said the ruling by the two-judge court.

When the judges announced the sentence at 25 years in prison defendant Karyn Joanne Smith, 19, from Birmingham, burst into tears.

''We were prepared, but it was still a shock,'' said the teenager's mother, Marilyn.

The defendant, dressed in a brown prison uniform, had appeared in good spirits chatting with her parents before the session, but succumbed to tears when the reality of the sentence sunk in.

She was still crying as she was led away by court bailiffs.

The judges, reading alternately from the written judgment in a courtroom packed with reporters, said the normal death sentence for narcotics trafficking in Thailand had been reduced to life imprisonment because Smith was under 20 years old at the time of the crime.

The judges further reduced the sentence to 25 years in prison because Smith had confessed to the charges and cooperated with the investigation.

''It was what we expected,'' said Eric Smith, the girl's father. ''We estimated it could be about 30 or 35 years.''

He said there would be no appeal. He said his daughter hoped she would be out of prison well before the full 25 years.

Legal sources said that with good behavior Smith might serve less than half of her sentence because Thailand has a tradition of periodic amnesties and reductions in sentence for auspicious holidays such as the king's birthday.

Smith was arrested on July 18 with a girlfriend, Patricia Ann Cahill, 17, with a suitcase filled with special containers holding 57.8 pounds of high-grade heroin.

Cahill, the youngest foreigner ever tried for heroin smuggling in Thailand, is being tried separately in juvenile court.

A court session held Thursday heard testimony from one of the officers who arrested the pair. Under Thai procedures juvenile court hearings are not open to the public.

Lawyers said that Cahill's case, because of her innocent plea, would take much longer to hear than Smith's and was unlikely to conclude until mid-1991.

Lawyers have described both teens as in good health and adapting as well as can be expected to their detention.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Nevada-Las Vegas Coach Jerry Tarkanian, weighed down with more bad news from the NCAA infractions committee, Wednesday night got the surprising good news he needed before Christmas: No. 22 Princeton gift-wrapped by one of the Rebels' best defensive performances.

''I was really surprised by the score,'' Tarkanian said after the top-ranked defending champions mauled the Tigers 69-35. ''Princeton did not have a good game. They're better than that.''

The Tigers had definitely been better, running up a 7-0 record, the best start ever by Coach Pete Carril teams in 24 years. But 22 turnovers and a frigid 29 percent second-half field goal percentage presented UNLV with a team record for fewest points allowed.

''I thought our defense was absolutely great tonight,'' Tarkanian said, after his club held Princeton scoreless for 10 minutes, 21 seconds in the second half.

''They're real good,'' Carril said of the Rebels, now 4-0 this year. ''Everything they do is so aggressive. I can see why they beat Duke by more than 30 points last year (in the NCAA championship game).''

While the Tigers tried to key on All-America forward Larry Johnson, guard Anderson Hunt hit five of six from 3-point range, leading the Rebels with 19 points.

Stacey Augmon scored 13 points, and Johnson added 11 and pulled down nine rebounds for the Rebels.

Chris Marquardt, hitting three of six from three-point range, led the Tigers with 11.

The Rebels had pulled out to a 13-0 lead in the first six minutes of the game and led 33-20 at the half.

The Tigers are known for their slow-down offense, but against the Runnin' Rebels they ground to a halt. They didn't get their first field goal until nearly seven minutes were gone in the first half, and they were given that one on a goaltending call.

Princeton was briefly in the game after back-to-back layups by Kit Mueller, a 3-pointer each by Marquardt, Sean Jackson and Matt Henshon helped pull the Tigers to 19-17 with 7:25 remaining.

But Hunt drilled a 3-point goal that keyed a 7-0 Rebel burst over the next three minutes to open it up again.

Hunt nailed three 3-pointers in the opening minutes of the second half, and the Rebels held the Tigers scoreless for 10 minutes, 21 seconds.

In other games involving ranked teams Wednesday night, No. 5 UCLA routed Pepperdine 103-78, ninth-ranked Duke blew out Harvard 103-61, Georgia Tech upset No. 13 Georgia and 16th-ranked Pittsburgh

At Los Angeles, junior forward Don MacLean pumped in 23 points and Keith Owens added 17, leading the Bruins to their eighth straight victory. Freshman forward Rodney Zimmerman blocked six shots, helping UCLA to its best start in 16 years. The Waves were led by junior Geoff Christie's 24 points.

At Cambridge, Mass., Christian Laettner led five Duke players in double figures, scoring 24 points and grabbing 14 boards as the Blue Devils improved to 7-2. Harvard committed 19 turnovers and shot just 34 percent for the game. Ron Mitchell's 17 points were the high for The Crimson.

At Atlanta, Kenny Anderson scored 7 points in the third overtime and finished with a career-high 40 to lead Georgia Tech. After tying the game at 98-98 with a short jumper at the end of the second overtime, Anderson hit a field goal and five free throws in the next five-minute period to give the Yellow Jackets the win.

At Pittsburgh, Brian Shorter and Bobby Martin combined for 36 points to lead the Panthers. Martin and Shorter had 18 points each and Jason Matthews added 15 points to help Pitt improve to 8-1. James Hargrove led the Dukes with 17 points.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Chicago still has some catching up to do if it is serious about contending with Detroit for the Eastern Conference crown this season.

''Today the Pistons played like world champs,'' Chicago's Michael Jordan said Wednesday night after the Pistons hammered the Bulls 105-84 in Auburn Hills, Mich. ''This is the team to beat, and we are all frustrated because we cannot win here.''

Isiah Thomas and Joe Dumars had 19 points apiece to help the Pistons snap a three-game losing streak.

The Bulls, who received 33 points from Jordan, already are calling a Christmas Day rematch in Chicago a must win.

''We have to work on the Detroit type of play,'' said Chicago Coach Phil Jackson, whose team lost for the first time in its last four games. ''Over Christmas we have to beat this team. If we don't, we will have to adjust our team one way or another.''

The Pistons, who won for only the second time in their last nine games, played like the team that beat the Bulls 4-3 in last year's Eastern Conference playoffs.

''The Pistons returned,'' said Detroit Coach Chuck Daly. ''When we play with that kind of intensity, we're some kind of basketball team. We showed why we were the NBA champions last year.''

The Pistons, who led by as many as 29, took control at the end of the first quarter and cruised to the final buzzer. Chicago hit just 35 of 99 field goals including only four of 27 in the second quarter.

The Pistons blew the game open in the second quarter, outscoring the Bulls 24-10 and holding Chicago to 15 percent field goal shooting.

Dumars, who had 10 points in the first quarter, hit two long-range jumpers and Mark Aguirre added a layup as Detroit closed the quarter with a 23-20 edge.

Detroit built its lead to 31-22 at the start of the second period before Jordan connected on two 15-foot shots to pull Chicago within 31- 26 with 6:36 to play. The Bulls were held to one field goal in the last 3:26 of the opening quarter and in the first 4:20 of the second period.

The Pistons exploded for a 15-4 run over the last 5:56 of the second quarter to take a 46-30 halftime advantage. Jordan scored all but two of the Bulls' 10 points in the quarter.

''We found something that worked and we stayed with it,'' Dumars said of the Pistons' game plan. ''If we play as well as we did tonight, nobody can say that there is anything wrong with the Pistons.''

Detroit continued to dominate in the second half, allowing Chicago no closer than 13 points.

Elsewhere, Washington nipped Indiana 114-112 in overtime, New York defeated Miami 104-94, New Jersey topped the Los Angeles Clippers 118- 105, Boston beat Philadelphia 115-105, Cleveland clipped the Los Angeles Lakers 84-74, San Antonio trounced Denver 144-109, and Phoenix pounded Minnesota 112-96.

-- AROUND THE NBA --

Bullets 114, Pacers 112 (OT)

At Indianapolis, Bernard King scored 37 points and Harvey Grant added 26 to help Washington snap a four-game road losing streak. Reggie Miller led Indiana with 34 points.

Knicks 104, Heat 94

At Miami, Patrick Ewing took control late in the game, scoring 9 straight points, to power New York and even John MacLeod's record as coach to 4-4. Ewing finished with 26 points, the first time in four games he has been held under 30.

Nets 118, Clippers 105

At East Rutherford, N.J., Derrick Gervin scored a game-high 27 points, rookie Derrick Coleman had 26 and Mookie Blaylock 25 to fuel New Jersey, which snapped a three-game losing streak. The Nets outscored the Clippers 75-55 in the second half. Charles Smith had 25 points to pace the Clippers.

Celtics 115, 76ers 105

At Boston, Larry Bird scored 24 points, including 6 in a critical stretch of the fourth quarter, and added a season-high 6 steals for the Celtics, who won their fifth straight. Charles Barkley led the 76ers with 35 points, 17 in the fourth quarter.

Cavaliers 84, Lakers 74

At Richfield, Ohio, Larry Nance scored 16 of his game-high 26 points in the second half to help Cleveland outscore the Lakers 44-29 after intermission. Nance also pulled down 15 rebounds as the Cavaliers snapped a six-game losing streak. It was the Lakers' lowest point total of the season.

Spurs 144, Nuggets 109

At San Antonio, Sean Elliott scored 18 points to help the Spurs to their seventh straight victory. Terry Cummings and David Robinson added 17 points apiece as the Spurs placed eight players in double figures. Denver rookie Chris Jackson scored 27 for the Nuggets, who dropped to 1- 11 on the road.

Suns 112, Timberwolves 96

At Phoenix, Jeff Hornacek scored a game-high 23 points and dished out 16 assists to lead the Suns. Xavier McDaniel added 18 points to help the Suns win their seventh straight since acquiring him from Seattle. Gerald Glass led the Timberwolves with 27 points.

(DEC, 20) UPI - A blue-collar work ethic is paying off for Chicago Blackhawks captain Dirk Graham.

Graham's short-handed goal with 4:25 remaining Wednesday night lifted his league-leading team to a 3-2 triumph over the Washington Capitals. The short-handed tally was Graham's fourth of the season. He had 10 in 1988-89 and three in an injury-plagued 1989-90 campaign.

''He just works so hard,'' said Washington goalie Don Beaupre, victimized for the game-winner this time after a strong performance himself. ''He earns it. You want to lead by example, and he's one of the players that does. He's been like that as long as I've known him.''

The teams played to a 2-2 draw for two and a half periods until Washington defenseman Bob Rouse cut Bob McGill with a high-stick with 11:18 remaining, giving Chicago a five-minute power play. The Blackhawks began to pressure Beaupre, but a hooking penalty to the Blackhawks' Wayne Presley put the teams back at even strength.

For a while, it appeared as if the Capitals might snap their club record of 35 straight games without a tie. They are still the only team in the NHL to not play a tie this season.

But Steve Larmer presented the opportunity this time, stealing an errant pass in the Washington zone. He dished off to Graham, who moved straight in on Beaupre and beat him with a short wrist shot after faking a shot with his backhand.

The goal, Graham's 10th of the season, came just 28 seconds after Chicago center Jeremy Roenick was whistled off for boarding.

''I missed on a couple good opportunities earlier in the game, and I was fortunate enough to get another one,'' Graham said.

''The first thing you want to do is to kill the penalty off,'' he said. ''You don't want to take a chance and give up an opportunity, especially when you're a man down. But, if the opportunity is there ... we like to jump on it.''

Capitals Coach Terry Murray, who has seen his team lose four of its last five outings, was very displeased with opportunities lost.

''A stupid play. Just a stupid giveaway,'' Murray said. ''A lack of intensity is exactly what we talked about this afternoon at our team meeting. When we get an opportunity late in the game - same thing against the New York Rangers - when we got a power play and intensity drops off like this. There's no excuse for that kind of play whatsoever. ''

Chicago has won four of its last five games and now has 50 points with three games left until the halfway point.

''It's nice to get to that plateau, but we set our goals a lot higher,'' Graham said.

Soviet Dimitri Khristich made his NHL debut for Washington, two days after being called up from Baltimore. Khristich, signed away from the Soviet club Sokol Kiev on Dec. 11, had two good scoring chances in the opening period but failed to cash in.

Elsewhere, Montreal and Quebec tied 1-1 and Toronto topped the NY Rangers 4-1.

-- AROUND THE NHL --

Canadiens 1, Nordiques 1

At Montreal, Shayne Corson scored late in the third period to lift Montreal to a 1-1 tie. Joe Sakic scored midway through the second period for Quebec, collecting his 22nd goal of the season.

Maple Leafs 4, Rangers 1

At New York, Aaron Broten scored twice to lead the last-place Maple Leafs to a 4-1 victory over the New York Rangers. The loss snapped a three-game winning streak for the lackluster Rangers, who were taunted throughout the game by their irate fans.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Around the world... Around the clock... U-P-I brings the latest news.

Saudi Arabia wants to make sure it will be ready to supply all allied aircraft tanks and ships with enough fuel if they have to liberate Kuwait by force. Cairo Radio reports that the Saudi government has suspended all exports of aircraft fuel and ordered it stockpiled to ensure the supply for allied military aircraft in the Persian Gulf.

U-S troops in Operation Desert Shield are doing what they can to make this Christmas a merry... but modest... one. Some 270-thousand servicemen and women plan to observe the holiday the way they remember at home... from caroling aboard aircraft carriers in the Persian Gulf to planting Christmas trees in the sand.

News reports from Chile last night said that the nation's army went on alert and troops were confined to quarters following a report that Armed Forces Commander in Chief General Augusto Pinochet was asked to resign. Two top officials confirmed the troop activity, but said it was not jeopardizing democracy in Chile.

Soviet President Gorbachev says he'll impose a state of emergency in rebellious republics if that's what it takes to prevent a ''serious threat to state security and lives.'' Gorbachev cited ethnic strife sweeping Moldavia and Georgia. He reminded opponents that he holds special presidential powers that he has so far refrained from using.

In Poland, a government source says President-elect Lech Walesa will nominate as his new prime minister a 39-year-old economist who heads a small party that favors quick privatization of the economy. The source says Walesa has asked Jan Bielecki to form a government after Walesa takes office.

A Wisconsin judge has dismissed charges against a man convicted of sexually assaulting a woman who claims to have 46 personalities. Mark Peterson was convicted last month, but a judge overturned the conviction. Prosecutors say putting the woman through the ordeal of another trial could worsen her condition.

KATMANDU, NEPAL (DEC. 20) UPI - More than 136,000 Nepalese civil servants demanding pay increases staged a general work stoppage for the second straight day Thursday, paralyzing the administration of the Himalayan kingdom.

The civil servants refused to work for a second day after talks with the government failed to resolve outstanding issues. It was the eighth day of wage protests by civil servant.s

The government has said it cannot meet the demand of civil servants for increased salaries following an across-the-board 20 percent salary hike in July.

Mail delivery was hampered for the second day and minimal staff were working at the immigration office at Katmandu International Airport, slowing inbound and outbound travelers. Only emergency services operated at government hospitals.

The first round of formal talks between the government, represented by two ministers, and six union representatives Wednesday failed to resolve the issue and the meetings continued Thursday.

Civil servants began their job action Dec. 13 with a one-hour strike that has progressivly increased to the total stop-work of Wednesday and Thursday.

The civil servants have vowed to continue the protest that began Dec. 13 until their demands are met and have warned that threatened official reprisals against them would be resisted.

''If any action is taken against any employees in connection with the protest demonstrations, the association will not initate a dialogue until the actions are withdrawn,'' said the general secretariat of the Nepal Civil Servants Association.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, architect of Mikhail Gorbachev's foreign policy reform that freed Eastern Europe and ended the Cold War, resigned Thursday to protest conservative attacks and ''an impending dictatorship.''

The resignation, announced by Shevardnadze in a brief, emotional speech to stunned delegates to the Congress of People's Deputies, took Gorbachev by surprise, and a spokesman for the president said Shevardnadze had been asked to stay on the job.

''In any case, the political life of Shevardnadze will be long,'' presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko told reporters after the speech. ''He may occupy any other post.''

Shevardnadze said he was ''deeply hurt'' by the personal attacks from critics of his foreign policy. More importantly, he said, conservative ''reactionary'' forces in the country were being allowed to move against the ideals of perestroika with little resistance.

In Washington, the White House and the State Department had no immediate comment on the announcement.

Shevardnadze recalled conservative attacks on him for ''giving away Eastern Europe'' at July's 28th Communist Party Congress and at recent sessions of the Supreme Soviet or standing parliament.

''There was not one person besides the chairman who could be found who would say this was dishonorable, this is not the way to act, this is not the way things are done in a civilized government,'' Shevardnadze said.

He said the conservative backlash was continuing almost unimpeded, mentioning a publication by the right-wing Russian nationalist movement Pamyat that said ''down with the clique of Gorbachev.''

''I say to you democrats, in the broadest sense of the word, you ran off,'' he said. ''The reformers fled to the bushes.''

Shevardnadze said unless something was done he feared the recent upsurge of criticism from the right would lead to the return of a dictatorship in the country.

''No one knows what kind of dictatorship it will be and who will come to power who will be the dictator and what kind of regime it will be,'' Shevardnadze said.

''(Therefore), I would like to make the following announcement. I am resigning '' he said. ''Don't dare make any reactions. Don't try to dissuade me. Don't scold me.

''Let this be my contribution if you wish, my protest against the impending dictatorship.

''I consider it my duty as a man, as a citizen and as a Communist. I cannot reconcile myself to all the events that are occurring in our country, and all the trials that are awaiting our people.

''I am nevertheless sure that a dictatorship will not happen, that our future is one of democracy, of freedom.''

The delegates to the fourth Congress of People's Deputies listened to the resignation speech in stunned silence, then rose at the end and gave him a standing ovation.

The official Soviet news agency Tass quoted two of Shevardnadze's deputies, Vladimir Petrovsky and Anatoly Kovalev, as saying he had not discussed the decision with the Foreign Ministry board.

Shevardnadze has been mentioned as a key candidate for prime minister or vice president under a government restructuring Gorbachev hopes will be approved at the Congress, but he made no mention of a new job in his resignation speech.

Shevardnadze said he would like to give his ''deepest thanks'' to Gorbachev. ''I am his friend and we think alike,'' he said.

''I support now and I will support to the end of my days the ideals of perestroika, the idea of the renewal of our society, the idea of democratization,'' Shevardndaze said. ''We accomplished marvels.''

Shevardnadze, 62, was appointed foreign minister by Gorbachev on July 2, 1985, as the Soviet leader was launching the perestroika and glasnost reforms that opened up the Soviet system and led to the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the end of the Cold War.

As foreign minister, Shevardnadze has traveled around the world to carry out the new Soviet foreign policy. He was responsible for the negotiations that led to the Soviet withdrawal of Afghanistan and was instrumental in the changes in Eastern Europe and the reunification of Germany.

Recently he has been a key to the diplomatic maneuvering in the Gulf crisis, meeting frequently with his American counterpart James Baker as the two superpowers formulated a common strategy in a conflict situation for the first time since World War II.

The son of a teacher in the southern republic of Georgia, Shevardnadze's first job was as an instructor at the Georgian Young Communist League Central Committee.

He worked his way up through a series of party posts until he became leader of the party in the republic in 1972, a post he held for 13 years.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze dropped a bombshell at today's meeting of the Congress of People's Deputies in Moscow, when he announced his resignation. Shevardnadze said he's afraid that the recent upsurge of criticism from the right will result in the return of a ''dictatorship'' in the country.

He said ''Let this be my contribution if you wish, my protest against the impending dictatorship.'' Shevardnadze said he would like to give his ''deepest thanks'' to Soviet President Gorbachev, whom he called his ''friend.''

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, architect of Mikhail Gorbachev's foreign policy that freed Eastern Europe and ended the Cold War, resigned Thursday to protest conservative attacks and warn of the danger of an ''impending dictatorship.''

The resignation, announced by Shevardnadze in a brief, emotional speech to stunned delegates to the Congress of People's Deputies, took Gorbachev by surprise, and a spokesman for the president said Shevardnadze had been asked to stay on the job.

Shevardnadze aide and Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said the decision to step down was ''final.''

But presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said Shevardnadze indicated he would remain at the Foreign Ministry to provide a smooth transition and allow the Parliament to accept his resignation.

''In any case, the political life of Shevardnadze will be long,'' Ignatenko said. ''He may occupy any other post.''

In Washingtonm White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said there would be no immediate from the administration comment because ''it's not entirely clear yet'' what the situation is in the Soviet Union.

Shevardnadze said he was ''deeply hurt'' by the personal attacks from critics of his foreign policy. More importantly, he said, conservative ''reactionary'' forces in the country were being allowed to move against the ideals of perestroika with little resistance.

Shevardnadze recalled conservative attacks on him for ''giving away Eastern Europe'' at July's 28th Communist Party Congress and at recent sessions of the Supreme Soviet or standing parliament.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed lower Thursday as drops in the value of the Japanese yen and bond prices dampened investor enthusiam.

The benchmark Nikkei Average of 225 issues, which gained 452.76 points Wednesday, fell 351.84 points to 24,524.94.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major stocks, which was added 30.93 points Wednesday, fell 26.04 points to 1, 795.37.

An estimated 360 million shares changed hands, compared with 639.3 million Wednesday.

Declines outpaced advances 856 to 157, while 125 issues remained unchanged.

Analysts said the Tokyo Foreign Exchange market had the strongest influence on stock prices.

On the foreign exchange, a tax evasion scandal involving a leading member of Japan's ruling Liberal Democratic Party pushed the U.S. dollar sharply higher against the Japanese yen.

The dollar closed at 134.58 yen, up 1.31 from 133.27 yen Wednesday.

The dollar's rise against the yen was blamed on a political scandal which dominated the news in Japan Wednesday and Thursday.

Concern this may signal a sustained drop in the value of the yen caused traders to sell stocks, analysts said.

A drop in Japanese bond prices also depressed the stock market, market watchers explained. The benchmark No. 119 issue fell 0.30 yen to 95.51 yen.

''Today the real story is the curreny market and the Inamura scandal, '' said Chris Schreiber, a broker with New Japan Securities Co.

''People are not sure which way the curreny market is going,'' said Schreiber. ''If the yen has a major move down, we may see more profit taking in the stock market.''

Schreiber said profit taking was a further reason for the decline Thursday.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange slipped in thin trading reflecting the usual yearend market slump.

The blue-chip Hang Seng Index, which added 16.79 points Wednesday, eased 5.23 points to 3,078.21.

Among the market's narrower indexes, financials added 8.13 points, utilities climbed 20.49 points, properties fell 40.89 and industrials lost 13.64 points.

Turnover amounted to 587 million shares, compared with 489 million Wednesday.

Analysts said the bullishness as a result of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board's decision to lower its discount rate worn out.

''It's all wait and see now,'' said Veit Schuhen of Hypobank. ''I would say the only big news that could effect us between now and the new year would be major news from the Persian Gulf. But we don't expect that to happen until the middle of January at the earliest.''

In Singapore, stocks closed mixed on the Singapore Stock Exchange after trading resumed following a six-hour suspension due to a technical failure in the computer system.

Trading was extended by 90 minutes due to the failure.

The blue-chip Straits Times Industrial Index, which eased 0.76 points Wednesday, gained 4.00 points to 1,173.64. The broader-based All Singapore

Index slipped 0.23 point to 323.42.

Volume amounted to 18.2 million shares, compared with 46.7 million Wednesday.

Analysts said with the volume so thin, most investors were not willing to commit themselves as the year approached.

On the trading floor, Metro Holdings paced the advancing issues followed by Malayan Banking and United Engineers.

Overseas Union Enterprise led the declining stocks followed by Wearne Brothers and Singapore Airlines.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices closed lower in thin trading on the Thailand Stock Exchange, reflecting the tense situation in the Middle East.

The Securities Exchange of Thailand Index, which added 4.54 points Wednesday, slipped 6.90 points to 616.68.

Volume amounted to 32 million Thai shares, compared with 73 million Wednesday.

''The market eased because investors are worried that war may be unavoidable in the Gulf,'' said Panthavit Pattanasiri, a broker from Phatra Thanakit Co., Ltd.

In Australia, stock prices closed lower on the Sydney Sharemarkets dragged down by nervous investors bailing out of News Corporation amid reports that Rupert Murdoch's empire could be in serious trouble.

The All Ordinaries Index, which added 0.4 points Wednesday, fell 7.5 to 1,276.6.

Volume amounted to around an estimated 130 million shares, compared with 73 million chnaging hands Wednesday.

Analysts said News Corp. slumped after a report that the BBC's Channel 4 was to broadcast Thursday a documentary claiming the company was in dire trouble.

News Corp. stock plummeted $1.09 to $4.35.

Analysts were skeptical the BBC documentary would reveal any details not already known by the market.

A spokesman for News Corp. said the company saw no reason for the fall and that its negotiations with its banks were proceeding satisfactorily.

News Corp.'s problems dragged the banks lower. Westpac Bank fell 11 cents to $3.60 and ANZ Bank dropped 6 cents to $3.37.

Elsewhere, the value of gold climbed on the Sydney Exchange, inspiring cautious buying on shares in gold-mining companies.

The approach of the U.S.-imposed Jan. 15 deadline for Iraq to leave Kuwait brought traders back to the gold scene.

Dominion rose 3 cents to 73 cents, Placer Pacific added 1 cent to $2. 85, and Homestake Mining gained 3 cents to 80 cents a share.

PITTSBURGH (DEC. 20) UPI - An airman sent to Saudi Arabia as part of Operation Desert Shield has been reunited with his family at Children's Hospital so he can undergo tests to determine if he has the same rare ailment that recently cost his sister her liver.

Brook Emerick, 16, underwent liver transplant surgery necessitated by a killer ailment known as Wilson's disease on Dec. 6. Her brother, Airman 1st Class Scott Emerick, was flown home for tests and will remain as a result of the family crisis.

Brook's doctors first thought she might have hepatitis, her mother, Barbara Emerick, said as the family was reunited at the hospital.

''They took us into the room and said she had this Wilson's disease. I said, 'You mean to tell me she could die?''' Mrs. Emerick said.

Wilson's is an inborn defect inhibiting the body's ability to process copper. Copper is dumped into the liver, causing jaundice and cirrhosis.

''She was going downhill so fast it was amazing,'' said another brother, Chuck.

In the Persian Gulf, Scott learned that his sister could die without a new liver. A few days later, he was told that he, too, might have Wilson's. Like his brother, he had to be tested.

Scott and Chuck will not know for a week or so whether they have Wilson's disease. Each has a 1-in-4 chance because both parents bear the Wilson-carrying recessive gene.

To Scott, it is a blessing in disguise. The disease, diagnosed at such an early stage, is treatable and his return to the States could be permanent.

The timing of his return also will allow him to spend the holidays with his family again.

If all goes well, Brook is expected to be released from Children's on Friday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

BOSTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Boston College was sent back to the drawing board in its search for a new head football coach Thursday when Jimmye Laycock, the winningest coach in William & Mary history, changed his mind one day after accepting the post.

It was the second time BC had been spurned by a Virginia coach. Virginia Tech coach Frank Beamer was the school's first choice to replace Jack Bicknell, but he withdrew his name from consideration Monday.

Laycock accepted the post Wednesday, but called BC Athletic Directort Chet Gladchuk around 5:30 a.m. Thursday to say he had reconsidered.

''He told me he really thought the job was there, he felt good about BC, he felt good about the conditions, the whole situation. But he felt he just could not leave his home,'' Gladchuk said.

''I felt very confident that everything was all set to go,'' Gladchuk said. ''(But) I can't control a man's emotions. It's unfortunate because he's a quality guy.''

In announcing the appointment Wednesday, Gladchuk said Laycock has been ''referred to by many as one of the brilliant minds in the game today.''

Laycock, who was preparing to move up from Division I-AA to Division I-A and receive a substantial pay hike, Wednesday called the chance to lead the Eagles ''a tremendous opportunity.''

Laycock's record in 11 years at William & Mary was 68-56-2, making him the Tribe's winningest coach. He enjoyed his greatest success in his last five years, posting a 52-18-2 mark, including a school-high 10 wins last season to go with three losses. Laycock also coached the Tribe longer than anyone in the team's 97-year history.

William & Mary qualified for the Division I-AA tournament three times in the past five seasons, losing twice in the first round.

Gladchuk did not say who was the next choice to replace Bicknell, the Eagles' coach for 10 years. Bicknell was fired last month after four consecutive losing seasons. His overall mark was 59-55-1, but only 14-30 in the last four years.

BC reportedly had agreed to pay Laycock about $160,000 annually. His William & Mary salary was approximately $70,000. But after first accepting the post, Laycock said money ''was not by any means the deciding factor.''

Even though the BC job represented a move up in divisions and a pay raise, Laycock had obviously been reluctant to move. He met with football staff members Tuesday night after returning from Boston, only to tell them he would speak to them again Wednesday. After twice delaying that discussion, he met with his assistants at midafternoon, informed school officials of his decision and left the campus immediately.

The Richmond Times-Dispatch reported Wednesday Laycock left an unidentified friend with the impression he was emotionally torn by the decision he eventually made.

''It's the ties here, it's the people here, it's the family here, it's the degree of comfort here, it's the players you have here,'' Laycock said, regarding the difficulty of his decision to leave Williamsburg.

''You put in 11 years, and 11 hard years in a lot of respects, 11 good years, and it's very difficult to leave - very difficult,'' Laycock said. ''Boston College is a good job, and I looked at it that way, but I also looked at this program and these people.''

BANGKOK, THAILAND (DEC. 20) UPI - Cambodia' s ruling Communist Party toughened its stand on the eve of peace talks in Paris, rejecting plans to put the country under U.N. protection and calling for the dissolution of the Khmer Rouge resistance, the official SPK news agency reported.

The agency, in a report dated Wednesday, said the Communist politburo met earlier in the day to ''determine the stance'' of its delegation at talks due to start in Paris Friday.

It quoted party leader Heng Samrin as saying the party rejected what he said were efforts by the three-part resistance coalition to undermine the government that was installed by the 1978 Vietnamese invasion.

''If they persist in their demand for dissolving the Cambodian government and the Cambodian armed forces and put Cambodia under the protection of any organization, the peace process in Cambodia will get into a deadlock again,'' Heng Samrin said.

Although the party leader did not mention it specifically, he appeared to be referring to U.N. peace plan that calls for creation of a U.N. Transitional Authority in Cambodia that would oversee the disarming of all sides, supervise key ministries and conduct national elections.

The plan, worked out by the U.N. Security Council last month, was to be the subject of the Paris talks.

Under the proposal, up to 20,000 U.N. officials and peace-keeping troops were expected to take part in the effort to end the 12-year-old Cambodian conflict.

Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach last week emphatically rejected the plan as a violation of Cambodian national sovereignty and of the U.N. charter.

Heng Samrin appeared to echo the Vietnamese position.

''Only the Cambodian people can exercise their sovereignty and right of self-determination through free and fair general elections to choose their own socio-economic regime and their leaders,'' he said.

He repeated demands for guarantees that the Khmer Rouge, the Chinese- backed wing of the Communist Party ousted by the Vietnamese invasion, would not return to power.

Heng Samrin, a former Khmer Rouge regional military commander, defected to Vietnam in 1978 when he became the target of one of many internal purges by Khmer Rouge leaders.

Political executions and radical economic policies under Khmer Rouge leader Pol Pot led to the deaths of more than 1 million people from 1975 to 1979.

''The best measure to prevent the return of the genocidal regime is to dissolve the Polpotist organization both politically and militarily, and send its ringleaders (for trial),'' Heng Samrin said.

Khmer Rouge radio, however, Thursday proclaimed full support for the U.N. peace plan and the Paris meeting.

It said the Khmer Rouge, the strongest of the three resistance groups, ''would like to express its support for the draft agreement for a political and comprehensive solution.''

The radio urged Vietnam and Phnom Penh to accept the peace plan because ''the Cambodian people need peace and independence without Vietnamese aggressor forces occupying Cambodia.''

It said official Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan and defense minister Son Sen would attend the Paris talks.

Despite the preparations for peace talks, both sides reported fighting on the ground in western Cambodia.

SPK said government troops killed 19 guerrillas in fighting in Siem Reap province.

Khmer Rouge radio reported increased fighting around the district capital of Samrong near the northwestern border with Thailand.

It said five Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 10 wounded in fighting on Dec. 18.

''The resistance forces are attacking and surrounding the Samrong township from every direction,'' it said.

Vietnam has denied it has any combat troops remaining in the country since its official withdrawal in 1989, although it admits that advisors, technicians and military intelligence officers have remained.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze told the Congress of Peoples Deputies today that he is resigning. He said ''I cannot reconcile myself to all the events that are occurring in our country, and all the trials that are awaiting our people.'' The 62- year-old Shevardnadze was appointed foreign minister by Mikhail Gorbachev in 1985 as the Soviet leader was launching the reforms that opened up the Soviet system and led to the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the end of the Cold War. Shevardnaze worked his way up through a series of party posts until he became leader of the party in the republic in 1972, a post he held for 13 years. As foreign minister, he has traveled around the world to carry out the new Soviet foreign policy.

In an interview with Turkish television aired by Cable News Network, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said yesterday there is ''still a chance of peace instead of war.'' He said a diplomatic solution must address the Arab-Israeli dispute and the Palestinian question. President Bush has refused to link the gulf crisis with any outside issue.

A court in Thailand sentenced a 19-year-old British woman to 25 years in prison today for trafficking in more than 57 pounds of high-grade heroin. The court cited her age and confession as reasons to lighten the normal sentence of death. When the two-judge court announced the sentence, defendant Karyn Joanne Smith from Birmingham, England, burst into tears.

A newspaper in Johannesburg reports that the South African government is expected to scrap all but one of the remaining apartheid laws at the opening of parliament February 1st. The report says the changes will desegregate residential areas and end racial restrictions on land ownership. The repeal would satisfy most conditions imposed by the United States for the lifting of its economic sanctions.

Lebanon's prime minister has resigned. Veteran Sunni Moslem Selim Hoss submitted his resignation yesterday during the last session of his outgoing 14-member cabinet. The move paves the way for the formation of a new government under a national reconciliation accord that gives Moslems greater political power.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Americans earned, spent and saved more in November than the month before, the Commerce Department said Thursday. Personal income increased $13.5 billion last month to an annual rate of $4.7 trillion after decreasing by $800 million the month before.

Personal spending also increased, gaining $5.8 billion last month to an annual rate of $3.8 trillion. In October, spending increased a scant $300 million. Savings also increased to $154.9 billion from $149.3 billion in October.

The government said last month's income gain included a large increase in subsidy payments to farmers. Without those payments, income levels were about the same as the month before.

Overall wages and salaries decreased by $3.9 billion in November after falling $15.3 billion the month before. Payrolls of commodity-producing industries fell by $10.8 billion after decreasing $5.6 billion the month before.

Manufacturing payrolls, trimmed by layoffs in several industries, fell $9.2 billion after a decline of $2.6 billion in October. But payrolls for distributors rose $1.2 billion after falling $7 billion in October.

Service industries also posted a payroll gain, with wages rising $3.2 billion after falling $5 billion the month before. Government wages and salaries increased $2.3 billion after rising $2.4 billion in October.

Farmers' income increased $13.9 billion in November after gaining $2.4 billion in October. Federal subsidies to farmers rose $13.1 billion after gaining $1.6 billion the month before. Excluding these payments, farmers' income increased by $800 million each month.

Non-farm proprietors' income rose $600 million last month after falling $200 million in October. Rental incomes fell $1.7 billion after rising $400 million in the previous month.

Personal interest income increased by $1 billion in November after gaining $1.2 billion the month before. Personal tax and non-tax payments rose $2 billion last month ater falling $200 million in October. Disposable personal income, which includes income after taxes, increased by $11.4 billion after falling $600 million in October.

Personal outlays, which includes personal spending, interest payments and transfer payments, increased by $5.8 billion last month after rising $300 million the month before.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, architect of Mikhail Gorbachev's foreign policy that freed Eastern Europe and ended the Cold War, resigned Thursday to protest conservative attacks and warn of the danger of an ''impending dictatorship.''

Gorbachev condemned the decision of his close ally and said he had not been consulted before Shevardnadze's surprise announcement at the Congress of People's Deputies, which voted 1,540-52 to ask Shevardnadze to reconsider.

''Such a step as he took, taken without consultation with the president, I personally condemn,'' Gorbachev said. ''Moreover, I will tell you directly that I had reached a point in my plans where I was ready to recommend comrade Shevardnadze for vice president.

''... Now is perhaps the most difficult time, and to leave now is unforgiveable.''

Presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said Shevardnadze indicated to Gorbachev after the speech he would stay at the Foreign Ministry long enough to allow a smooth transition, but Shevardnadze aide and Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said the decision to resign was ''final.''

''In any case, the political life of Shevardnadze will be long,'' Ignatenko told reporters. ''He may occupy any other post.''

In Washingtonm White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said there would be no immediate from the administration comment because ''it's not entirely clear yet'' what the situation is in the Soviet Union.

Shevardnadze said he was ''deeply hurt'' by the personal attacks from critics of his foreign policy. More importantly, he said, conservative ''reactionary'' forces in the country were being allowed to move against the ideals of perestroika with little resistance.

Shevardnadze recalled conservative attacks on him for ''giving away Eastern Europe'' at July's 28th Communist Party Congress and at recent sessions of the Supreme Soviet or standing parliament.

''There was not one person besides the chairman who could be found who would say this was dishonorable, this is not the way to act, this is not the way things are done in a civilized government,'' Shevardnadze said.

He said the conservative backlash was continuing almost unimpeded, mentioning a publication by the right-wing Russian nationalist movement Pamyat that said ''down with the clique of Gorbachev.''

''I say to you democrats, in the broadest sense of the word, you ran off,'' he said. ''The reformers fled to the bushes.''

Shevardnadze said he feared the recent upsurge of criticism from the right would lead to the return of a dictatorship in the country, but he made it clear he was not attacking his close ally, Gorbachev.

''No one knows what kind of dicatatorship it will be and who will come to power, who will be the dictator and what kind of regime it will be,'' Shevardnadze said.

''(Therefore), I would like to make the following announcement. I am resigning '' he said. ''Don't dare make any reactions. Don't try to dissuade me. Don't scold me.

''Let this be my contribution if you wish, my protest against the impending dictatorship.

''I consider it my duty as a man, as a citizen and as a communist. I cannot reconcile myself to all the events that are occurring in our country, and all the trials that are awaiting our people.

''I am nevertheless sure that a dictatorship will not happen, that our future is one of democracy, of freedom.''

The delegates to the fourth Congress of People's Deputies listened to the resignation speech in stunned silence, then rose at the end and gave him a standing ovation.

Leaders of the ''Soyuz'' group of deputies that has been calling for a return to firm state control in the Soviet Union said they were pleased that Shevardnadze was leaving.

''This deed of his was unseemly, but it was a step in the right direction,'' said Col. Viktor Alksnis, a founder of the conservative group. ''Shevardnadze is leaving a sinking ship.''

Most officials and deputies agreed, however, that Shevardadze's decision to quit was a blow to Soviet foreign policy and Gorbachev's government in general. Some said they hoped it would shock reformers out of their complacency.

''Shevardnadze's step is a deliberate sacrifice,'' Deputy Nikolai Medvedev said. ''It is aimed at making the reformers think better of it, to rouse us and look at the situation in the country.''

Shevardnadze said he would like to give his ''deepest thanks'' to Gorbachev. ''I am his friend and we think alike,'' he said.

''I support now and I will support to the end of my days the ideals of perestroika, the idea of the renewal of our society, the idea of democratization,'' Shevardndaze said. ''We accomplished marvels.''

Shevardnadze, 62, was appointed foreign minister by Gorbachev on July 2, 1985, as the Soviet leader was launching the perestroika and glasnost reforms that opened up the Soviet system and led to the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the end of the Cold War.

As foreign minister, Shevardnadze has traveled around the world to carry out the new Soviet foreign policy. He was responsible for the negotiations that led to the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan and was instrumental in the changes in Eastern Europe and the reunification of Germany.

Recently he has been a key to the diplomatic maneuvering in the Persian Gulf crisis, meeting frequently with his American counterpart, James Baker, as the two superpowers formulated a common strategy in an international conflict for the first time since World War II.

The son of a teacher in the southern republic of Georgia, Shevardnadze's first job was as an instructor at the Georgian Young Communist League Central Committee.

He worked his way up through a series of party posts until he became leader of the party in the republic in 1972, a post he held for 13 years.

(DEC. 20) UPI - The man who implemented Mikhail Gorbachev's new foreign policy has called it quits. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze handed in his resignation today during a speech to the Congress of People's Deputies.

Shevardnadze said he was asking the Congress to accept his resignation because of attacks on him and his foreign policy by conservative political rivals. He said he feared the return of a ''dictatorship'' in the country.

MIAMI (DEC. 20) UPI - The judge in charge of the case against Manuel Noriega has ordered federal prosecutors to prepare a criminal case against Cable News Network for defying his order not to air a tape of the former Panamanian dictator talking with his defense team.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler directed the U.S. Attorney's office Wednesday to prepare papers directing CNN to show why it should not be held in criminal contempt for violating his temporary restraining order last month.

Network personnel responsible for preparing, producing and broadcasting the tape could go to jail if CNN was found in criminal contempt.

CNN officials said they expect the network to be cleared of wrongdoing. ''CNN is confident that if and when a trial is held on the issue of contempt, its actions will be vindicated,'' network spokesman Steve Haworth said.

A CNN reporter in Panama obtained the tape, which was made by officials at the Metropolitan Correctional Center in Dade County where Noriega is being held for trial on drug charges.

Prison officials routinely tape inmates' conversations but are restricted from recording privileged conversations between prisoners and their attorneys. The Noriega tape contained a conversation between him and his attorney's law office.

On Nov. 8, Hoeveler issued a temporary restraining order against airing the tapes after CNN broadcast a portion of a conversation between Noriega and a friend until the judge could determine if the broadcast violated Noriega's right to a fair trial.

Noriega is awaiting trial on drug-trafficking and money laundering charges at MCC, where he has been held since his arrival in the United States in January. Noriega surrendered to U.S. agents following the U.S. invasion of Panama Dec. 20, 1989.

CNN aired other segments, including Noriega's conversations with his defense team Nov. 9 and Nov. 10 in violation of Hoeveler's order.

The network appealed the temporary restraining order to the Supreme Court, which let the Nov. 18 order stand.

On Dec. 6, Hoeveler determined the broadcast did not threaten Noriega's right to a fair trial but reserved the right to pursue contempt charges against CNN.

Hoeveler's order directed the U.S. attorney to prepare a show cause order on why Cable News Network Inc. and Turner Broadcasting System Inc. - collectively CNN - ''should not be held in criminal contempt of this court.''

The order also said the U.S. attorney to provide ''the essential facts constituting the criminal contempt charged and describe it as such.''

Hoeveler said he issued the order because CNN violated the temporary restraining order without waiting for the legal process to decide the issue.

''Civil contempt action would have been justified had the action not taken place, but once the action of airing the tape was taken, the only recourse is criminal proceedings,'' Hoeveler said.

''This is not a message to the media at all,'' he said. ''It is simply what the law requires in this case. I would say it is almost routine.''

Noriega defense attorney Frank Rubino praised Hoeveler for seeking criminal action against CNN, saying the action ''may teach CNN and others out there that when a U.S. judge makes an order, they cannot just flagrantly ignore such an order, that they must comply with it.''

INDIANAPOLIS (DEC. 20) UPI - Dick Versace was fired Thursday as coach of the Indiana Pacers and replaced by assistant Bob Hill. Hill becomes the team's fifth different coach in just over two years.

The Pacers were 73-87 under Versace, but 9-16 this season with one road victory in 13 tries. Versace, a former Detroit assistant and college coach at Bradley, ended his reign after a 114-112 overtime loss Wednesday at home to Washington.

Versace took over the Pacers in January 1989. Jack Ramsay had resigned after an 0-7 start, assistant Mel Daniels coached the team through two more losses and George Irvine, the team's former coach who is director of player personnel compiled a 6-14 record as an interim coach until a search produced Versace.

Indiana was 42-40 last season, only the second winning season for the club in 15 NBA campaigns. Team dissension over Versace's coaching style and arguments over his substition choices caused a rift between players and Versace.

When asked Wednesday night if Versace should be replaced, guard Vern Fleming said, ''I don't know about that. But one thing is for sure. We've got to start winning some games.''

Hill, a former New York Knicks coach, was in his second season as a Pacer assistant. He replaced Hubie Brown 16 games into the 1986-87 season and earned praise despite being replaced after a 20-46 record. Hill, a native of Columbus Ohio, has also coached in Italy and served as a scout for Charlotte. His college background includes eight years as an assistant at Kansas after serving as an aide at Bowling Green and Pittsburgh.

The switch comes one game after Donnie Walsh, Indiana's vice president, professed his support for Versace and was surprised about rumors a coaching change would be made. Walsh said the team was moving in the right direction after a victory at Utah and a last-second loss to the Los Angeles Lakers.

BERLIN (DEC. 20) UPI - The first elected parliament of a united Germany in nearly six decades convened Thursday for its inaugural session at Berlin's historic Reichstag.

In one of its first acts, the new Parliament voted overwhelmingly to re-elect conservative Rita Suessmuth to the prestigious post of parliamentary president.

The 662 deputies from eastern and western Germany were elected Dec. 2, two months after the flag of German unification was raised over Berlin's Reichstag Oct. 3.

In her acceptance speech, Suessmuth said the role of Parliament was to complete the unity of people living in eastern and western Germany, strive toward European unification and support the new democracies in Eastern Europe.

She also called on Parliament to work for the cause of peace, an apparent reference to tensions in the Persian Gulf.

''We did not fight for peace in Europe so that it would not be built up and maintained in other parts of the world,'' she said to thunderous applause. ''It is the duty of this Parliament and of those carrying political responsibility to do everything to prevent a war of insanity.''

Italian President Francesco Cossiga was among the dignitaries attending the session, which coincided with a meeting of prime ministers of the 16 German states in Munich.

The Munich meeting was the first to include the leaders of all German states since 1947, when the leaders of the Soviet occupation areas, which later became East Germany, walked out of a similar conference, also held in Munich.

The Reichstag, which last hosted a freely-elected Parliament in 1933, has stood at the center of Germany's turbulent history for nearly a century. Its construction was commissioned in 1871, when German lands were first unified in a single country.

One month after Adolf Hitler became chancellor and eliminated most parliamentary powers, a huge fire gutted the Reichstag, Feb. 27, 1933.

''This building, as one knows, went up in flames after the majority of the people working there had become a droning male choir,'' former chancellor Willy Brandt told deputies Thursday.

Brandt, 77, a Social Democrat who is chairman by seniority, reminded parliamentarians that Hitler had sent about 200 deputies to concentrations camps.

''Who still remembers today that over 100 parliamentarians lost their lives?'' he said. ''The view from this Reichstag building includes rememberance. It is not only the open area left by the fall of the wall. It is also the places from which the war and the crimes started.''

He urged Germans not to lose courage or become aggressive because ''of a feeling of having been on the wrong side of history.

''The end of the Cold War and military confrontation, the peaceful and courageous uprising of our fellow-countrymen in the former GDR (East Germany), the realization of state unity, the chance for European unity - all that was and remains a cause for great joy,'' he said.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl, whose center-right coalition holds a majority of seats in Parliament, was originally expected to be confirmed at Thursday's session as the first head of state to lead a post-war unified Germany.

But the vote and swearing-in ceremony for the cabinet was postponed because the coalition partners were still negotiating future government policy. The new government is now expected to be formed Jan. 17.

Since the Dec. 2 election, Kohl's Chrisitan Democratic Union, its Bavarian sister party, the Christian Social Union, and the liberal Free Democratic Party have haggled over how to raise funds to pay for the rehabilitation of run-down eastern Germany.

Before the elections, Kohl promised not to raise taxes to pay for unification, but said that new environmental levies will be established.

The coalition also agreed in principle that motorists will have to pay a fee to use Germany's Autobahns and decided to raise telephone fees to help modernize the obsolete telecommunications system in the former East Germany.

MOUNT VERNON, Mo. (DEC. 20) UPI - The Missouri Supreme Court Thursday refused to order hospital officials to resume feeding Nancy Cruzan, whose family last week won the right to remove the feeding tube that has kept her alive in a vegetative state for nearly eight years.

The state's highest court issued a two-sentence order Thursday morning denying a petition filed Wednesday by Yvette Williams of Kansas City that asked the court to order the feeding tube to be reconnected to Cruzan, whose condition has been deteriorating since the tube was removed last weekend.

The ruling was the latest setback to advocates opposed to the decision in the right-to-die case, which earlier this year reached the Supreme Court of the United States.

Williams had asked the Missouri Supreme Court to overturn the decision last Friday by Jasper County Probate Judge Charles Teel Jr. to allow Cruzan's parents to remove the feeding tube. The petition was filed on behalf of Williams by attorney Dewey Crepeau of Columbia, a member of Lawyers for Life, a group opposed to euthanasia.

Cruzan's condition was downgraded Wednesday from stable to deteriorating, said Barbara Shoun, director of public relations for the Missouri Rehabilitation Center. She said no other details of Cruzan's condition would be released.

On Wednesday, hospital officials again had to contend with protesters who want Cruzan to be sustained. The six or seven protesters were taken out and told not to come back. Unlike 19 people in a protest Tuesday, they were not arrested.

Officials with Operation Rescue of Binghamton, N.Y., an anti-abortion group, released a statement Wednesday saying the organization's founder, Randall Terry, and other anti-abortion leaders from around the country would go to Mount Vernon to hold continuous prayer vigils.

Cruzan has been in a vegetative state since a 1983 automobile accident. Her surgically implanted feeding tube, which had supplied her with food and water, was removed during the weekend after a Jasper County judge granted her family's request on Friday. Doctors said she would die within two weeks.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Saying it was his ''duty as a man, as a citizen and as a Communist,'' Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned today. In a speech to the Congress of Peoples Deputies, Shevardnadze said he feared that the recent upsurge of criticism from the right would lead to the return of a ''dictatorship'' in the country. He said conservative ''reactionary'' forces in the country are being allowed to move against the ideals of perestroika with little resistance. There was no immediate comment from the White House or State Department on the announcement.

Japan's chief Cabinet secretary says a relaxation of international tensions led Cabinet members to slash defense spending growth nearly in half over the next five years. The five-year defense plan will lead to a steep drop in defense spending growth, from an annual five-point-four percent average growth over the past five years, to three percent growth in the 1991-95 period.

Security sources in Lebanon say an Israeli gunship crashed late last night while chasing Palestinian guerrillas who attacked an Israeli position at the Lebanese-Israeli border. The U-S-made helicopter was downed a few miles north of the Lebanese-Israeli frontier. The sources said a number of the helicopter's crew were wounded and transported to hospitals inside Israel.

A group of 201 Vietnamese boat people returned to Vietnam from Hong Kong today under the U-N voluntary repatriation program. The latest return to Hanoi brought to almost 63-hundred the number of Vietnamese who voluntarily have returned home since the program begin in March 1989. Boat people screened out of the refugee program are being told that the only alternative to returning home is to spend the rest of their lives in Hong Kong's crowded camps.

Gunmen ambushed and killed a 46-year-old policeman early today outside his Northern Ireland home. No organization claimed responsibility, but police believe the Irish Republican Army was involved. Officials say the 12th policeman killed this year in Northern Ireland died in a hail of gunfire at his home in Lurgan, 20 miles west of Belfast.

A nationwide survey of American adults shows that nearly 90 percent of them donate time, money or both to charities serving causes ranging from homelessness to the environment. The survey found that the central states from Minnesota and North Dakota south to Texas are the most charitable. States in the West were found to be the least charitable.

INDIANAPOLIS (DEC. 20) UPI - A minor earthquake rattled the state Thursday for the second time in a week but there were no reports of damage or injuries.

The quake registered 3.4 on the Richter scale and was centered about 30 miles southwest of Indianapolis near Littlepoint.

A quake also shook the state Monday but caused no damage. It registered 3.1 on the scale.

Neither quake occurred along the New Madrid fault system, which a New Mexico consultant, Iben Browning, predicted would be the site of a major quake about Dec. 3.

Kelly Stemnock, earthquake program manager for the State Emergency Management Agency, said the epicenter of the quake was not along any known fault, ''but you have to remember that most faults are about 12 miles underground.''

The shaking was felt very widely, she said, at points as distant as Gosport, Spencer and Indianapolis. She said the temblor was not unusual for this area, nor was the fact that two occurred within a week.

Stemnock said the quake brought more calls to state police than they received in previous years, probably because people this year were worried about ''the big one'' predicted by Browning.

BALTIMORE (DEC. 20) UPI - People who drink only one cup of coffee or two cans of cola daily can experience caffeine withdrawal symptoms ranging from headaches to moodiness and nausea, researchers say.

Scientists have long recognized that heavy coffee drinkers are subject to withdrawal syptoms. But a new study has found unpleasant side effects when people with low-caffeine habits suddenly are denied the stimulant.

''Previous studies documented the caffeine withdrawals under substantially higher doses,'' said Dr. Roland Griffiths, a professor of psychiatry and neuroscience at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine who led the study.

''The general consensus of scientific opinion would have been that withdrawal might not have occurred at these low doses,'' he said. ''We were astonished.''

The ''lift'' many people experience when they have their first cup of coffee for the day may not result completely from caffeine's stiumulant effect, he said. In part, the perceived high may be what he calls ''the suppression of low-grade withdrawal symptoms'' - or the absence of feeling bad.

Griffiths pointed out that caffiene itself apparently is not harmful for most people, although it may pose risks for pregnant women and people with underlying heartbeat irregularities and anxiety disorders.

But Griffiths said people should be aware that if they are caffeine- dependent they may be subject to unpleasant side effects when they miss their usual dose.

The symptoms can usually be alleviated by going back on caffeine, he said. People wishing to kick the habit should taper off gradually over several days, he said.

In the new study, seven subjects first were given a 100 milligram capsule of caffeine daily for 100 days. Abruptly, and without their knowledge, they then were given capsules containing an inactive ingredient for 12 days.

Four of seven people suffered withdrawal symptoms that peaked during the first two days of the placebo, then symptoms declined over the next week, the researchers said.

In the second phase of testing, the participants were given daily doses of 100 miligrams over the course of 20 days, except that on five of the days, scattered throughout the period, they were given placebos. All seven experienced some withdrawal symptoms ranging from fatigue to vomiting and severe headaches when they were denied caffiene.

Participants reported a range of other symptoms including irritability, sluggishness, depression, muscle pain, stiffness and flu- like feelings. They also reported a decline in alertness, concentration, energy, happiness and interest in sociability.

Americans consume an average of 211 milligrams of caffeine daily - about half the average daily intake in nations such as Britain and Sweden.

Depending on its strength, a cup of percolated or drip coffee can put between 64 and 155 milligrams of caffeine in the bloodstream.

Less potent sources include tea, cola, chocolate and over-the-counter preparations and stimulants.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned today to protest conservative attacks against him and to warn against what he said is an impending dictatorship. A spokesman for Soviet President Gorbachev said after Shevardnadze's announcement that the resignation came as a surprise to Gorbachev, and added that Shevardnadze has been asked to stay on in the job. The spokesman said ''In any case, the political life of Shevardnadze will be long.'' He said Shevardnadze ''may occupy any other post.'' Shevardnadze stunned deputies to the Congress of Peoples Deputies with his speech today.

The spokesman for Gorbachev said Shevardnadze indicated he would stay on at the Foreign Ministry to provide a smooth transition and allow the Parliament to accept his resignation. A Shevardnadze aide said the decision to resign was ''final.''

Iran's president said today there is little liklihood that Iraq would withdraw from Kuwait at the last moment. Iran's official news agency quoted President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani as saying in a speech that the possibility of war in the Gulf is high. Iran fought a bitter eight-year war with Iraq from 1980-88 that claimed one Million lives.

The first elected parliament of a united Germany in nearly six decades convened today for its inaugural session at Berlin's historic Reichstag. The 662 deputies from eastern and western Germany were widely expected to re-elect conservative Rita Suessmuth to the prestigious post of parliamentary president. Four vice-presidents from other parties also will be be chosen.

China refused today to acknowledge that it had discussed human rights this week with Washington's top rights envoy. The denial came on the final day of an official visit to Beijing and Shanghai by U-S Assistant Secretary of State Richard Schifter. He distributed a list of 150 prisoners believed held on political and religious offenses and asked the Chinese to ''engage in a discussion of the names.'' But Chinese officials would NOT acknowledge the list.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Eduard Amvrosievich Shevardnadze, whose resignation as Soviet foreign minister Thursday shocked the world, was virtually unknown in international circles when his mentor Mikhail Gorbachev gave him the job just 5 1/2 years ago.

The appointment on July 2, 1985, came less than four months after Gorbachev's own rise to power as successor to the late Konstantin Chernenko, and one day after Shevardnadze's elevation to voting membership on the 13-member Politburo which runs the country.

Since then, Shevardnadze has become one of the world's most recognizable and respected figures as he crafted the international image of Gorbachev's perestroika and helped bring about the end of the Cold War.

Shevardnadze became foreign minister on a note of drama. The day after his appointment, Washington and Moscow officially announced Gorbachev and President Reagan would meet in November in Geneva, Switzerland. No U.S.-Soviet summit had been held since the June 1979 meting between President Jimmy Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Shevardnadze made his reputation in the Soviet Union in his native republic of Georgia, one of the unruliest and most corrupt domains in the U.S.S.R.

When Shevardnadze, a general in the Georgian police, took over as first secretary of the Georgian Communist Party in 1972, the republic was awash in scandal - bribery, black marketeering and protectionism from the highest level down.

Shevardnadze set about imposing his ''exemplary social order,'' paying closest attention to the party hierarchy and the police. He dismissed scores for corruption.

Progress was not rapid in a republic best known as the homeland of Josef Stalin.

Wheeling and dealing were the rule in Georgia, its farmers grown rich on the private-plot produce sold on the private market. There were strong nationalist sentiments.

As late as 1980, Shevardnadze found it necessary to reiterate that economic and social development depended on ''an uncompromising struggle against such negative phenomena as money-grubbing, bribe-taking, misappropriation of socialist property, private-property tendencies, theft and other deviations from the norms of Communist morality.''

Party chieftains, satisfied with his performance, in November 1978 made him an alternate member of the Politburo, a non-voting group at the top of the party structure.

The Soviet Union invaded Afghanistan the next year, and Shevardnadze was later to complain that as alternate members of the Politburo he and Gorbachev were helpless and learned of the invasion on the radio. After he became Gorbachev's foreign policy architect in 1985, Shevardnadze spent three years working to get Soviet troops out of Afghanistan and end what is frequently called the Soviet Union's Vietnam.

The negotiated withdrawal from Afghanistan was one of the first concrete signs of the new Soviet foreign policy. Shevardnadze went on to play a role in negotiations to end the Iran-Iraq war, African conflicts in Namibia and Angola and more recently seeking a settlement in Cambodia.

But the world discovered that Soviet foreign policy really had changed with the 1989 revolutions in Eastern Europe. While some advised Gorbachev to use force to stop the revolt against Communist regimes, Shevardnadze advised his boss to let it happen.

Shevardnadze is also largely credited with the formula that led to the reunification of Germany after the Berlin Wall crumbled.

With the thaw of the Cold War nearly complete, the Soviet Union was ready to cooperate with the West when its onetime ally Iraq invaded Kuwait, supporting U.N. sanctions as a partner with the United States rather than seeking confrontation.

Shevardnadze met with his American counterpart James Baker almost monthly in the last part of 1990. At the beginning of the Persian Gulf crisis the two foreign policy bosses spoke daily about world response.

Gorbachev named Shevardnadze foreign minister to replace the veteran 75-year-old diplomat Andrei Gromyko, who was given the then mostly ceremonial position of Soviet president.

Shevardnadze was born Jan. 25, 1928, in the village of Mamati in Georgia. From his earliest years he took an interest in politics and the Communist Party as a member of Komsomol, the party youth league.

Shevardnadze was the son of a schoolteacher, and the future foreign minister's first job was that of an instructor at the Komsomol.

Until Gorbachev brought him to Moscow, Shevardnadze's entire professional life was spent in Georgia. Rising through the ranks, he was appointed minister for maintenance of public order (later renamed the Ministry of Internal Affairs) in 1965 and served in that capacity until 1972. In 1968, was given the title of general of the third rank of the official police.

Shevardnadze traveled widely - to Austria, Brazil, Bulgaria, Hungary, Portugal Tunisia, Cuba, Nicaragua, and other countries.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - A congressman's car used to haul fertilizer a few weeks ago triggered a bomb scare at the White House Thursday, Rep. Herbert Bateman, R-Va., said.

The alert, which closed the West Wing driveway to traffic for about 50 minutes was caused by a bomb-sniffing German shepherd who raised an alarm about Bateman's grey Lincoln while it was parked inside the White House complex.

Bateman, with seven other congressmen, was there to brief President Bush on the group's recent trip to the Persian Gulf.

''It was fertilizer from some azaleas hauled in the back seat a few weeks ago '' explained Bateman as he left the White House. ''Great fun.''

But the alert prompted a full shutdown of traffic in and out of the driveway while a single security official, dressed in a green helmet and bulletproof vest, carefully combed the car for anything suspicious.

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (DEC. 20) UPI - Former Minnesota Gov. Karl Rolvaag died in his sleep during the night, a family member said Thursday. He was 78.

Rolvaag, a former ambassador to Iceland, died of congestive heart failure. He had been in and out of the Veterans Administration hospital in recent months.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Rolvaag, who devoted much of his life to Democratic Farmer Labor politics, waited more than three months to find out that he was elected governor when he ran against Gov. Elmer L. Anderson in 1962. It turned out that he won by 91 votes but the delay meant he took office in March rather than in January.

Rolvaag, a top vote-getter in Minnesota for many years, was finally defeated by his own DFL party when it denied him the endorsement for governor in 1966. He reversed the action of the long and bitter DFL convention by going to the voters with a cry of ''Let the People Decide. ''

Rolvaag won the primary easily but the party was badly split and he was defeated by Republican Harold LeVander for governor.

He was the son of Ole Rolvaag, who wrote ''Giants in the Earth,'' a compelling novel of an immigrant family's struggle to survive on the prairie.

Rolvaag grew up in Northfield where his father was a professor at St. Olaf College. The son attended St. Olaf's and did graduate work at the University of Minnesota and the University of Oslo in Norway.

He spent six years in the Army in World War II, fighting with the tank corps in Europe. He was wounded and came home with honors, including the Croix de Guerre, the Silver Star and the Purple Heart.

He twice ran unsuccessfully for Congress and later served as DFL party chairman.

President Lyndon Johnson appointed him ambassador to Iceland after his defeat as governor but he returned to Minnesota when Richard Nixon became president in 1969.

Rumors of a ''drinking problem'' persisted while Rolvaag was governor and he underwent treatment for alcoholism. He resigned from the Railroad and Warehouse Commission in November 1977, to devote fulltime to his battle with alcoholism.

''I realize I am an acute and chronic alcoholic,'' he told his last news conference as a public official. ''I seek the serenity and peace of sobriety.''

Rolvaag then moved to a cabin near Bowstring, Minn. A daughter and her husband operated a lake resort nearby.

SAN DIMAS, CALIF. (DEC. 20) UPI - Parking in a spot reserved for handicapped drivers was the downfall of two drug-dealing suspects.

Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies spotted the men's car Wednesday night in a parking slot restricted to handicapped drivers and began questioning them, Deputy George Ducoulombier said.

The deputies found Jose Siu, 24, and Manuel Enriquez, 26, in the car, along with half a pound of marijuana, Ducoulombier said. They asked for the men's permission to search their room at the Comfort Suite Hotel and there they found Sherri Roybal, 26, with $73,000 in cash, 2 more pounds of marijuana, 5 pounds of methamphetamine and a loaded revolver.

The three suspects, identified as Mexican nationals, were arrested and the cash and narcotics seized.

The three were charged with possession of drugs for sale and were booked in lieu of $75,000 bond, Ducoulombier said.

The deputies did not issue the suspects a parking ticket - a $103 fine - but Ducoulombier said the two would be charged with parking in a handicapped zone when the case goes to court.

MECHANICVILLE, N.Y. (DEC. 20) UPI - Mayor Patrick Hildreth plans to use an old technique to get deadbeats to pay their bills - public embarrassment.

Hildreth plans to release to the media in mid-January a list of residents who haven't paid their water or sewer bills.

''Embarrassment is the biggest factor,'' Hildreth said. ''I'll do whatever I can to keep this town out of debt.''

Hildreth expects to raise about $30,000 in unpaid bills with his plan.

Town Attorney Val Serbalik has told Hildreth he is opening himself up to potential lawsuits by publishing the dishonor roll.

''I sort of make him nervous,'' Hildreth said.

But the threat of lawsuits does not worry the mayor, who earns about $600 a month for a 20-hour work week. ''I don't have much more than my son's three student loans.''

The Civil Liberties Union threatened to sue Hildreth once before, when he imposed a curfew on the town of 5,300 people, located about 10 miles north of Albany.

But Hildreth, finishing his first year as mayor, calls his policies ''common-sense government.''

With state and federal budget problems hitting hard at small towns, Hildreth said humiliating people into paying is a necessity.

''What people have to remember is this is their town, this is their money,'' he said.

When word of the list gets around, Hildreth said he expects to see people running off to pay their bills.

''I might not be the best-liked guy in town,'' the mayor said. ''But I'm just trying to run a business.''

COLUMBUS, Ohio (DEC. 20) UPI - When you're Ohio State's Robert Smith, there's always another set of goals waiting.

Last spring, he was touted by many as the nation's best high school running back, a heavy load to carry. But for Smith, it was no problem.

Smith won the Buckeyes' starting tailback job by the second game, and Thursday was named United Press International's Freshman of the Year.

The product of Euclid, Ohio, finished the 11-game regular season with 1,064 yards, averaging 6.5 yards a carry, and seven touchdowns. Ohio State, 7-3-1, plays Air Force in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 27.

''I feel good about that only because I think I helped us win a couple of games,'' Smith said. ''It honestly wouldn't have mattered to me if I had come in here this year and helped the defense by running on the scout team.

''I think a lot of people have trouble believing something like that, but that's honestly the way I feel about it.''

Smith, 6-foot-2 and 195 pounds, said he did not expect to start this year.

''I just got in there the first game and things went right,'' he said. ''I was given the opportunity. I think any of the other backs could have done the same thing ... It's just that I got out there, got the hot hand and pretty much didn't do anything to take myself out.''

Smith wants to enter Ohio State's medical school following his junior year. He says his biggest disappointment was his first-quarter grades. He wanted a 3.5 grade-point average and earned a 3.45.

''That's the thing that bothers me most of all,'' he said. ''I think that's the expectation I want to live up to more than anything else.''

With Butler By'note'e and redshirt freshman Raymont Harris also returning next year at tailback, along with Carlos Snow, a two-year regular who sat out 1990 following hip surgery, there might be a position switch in the works for the speedy Smith.

''That idea has been brought up, not specifically for me, but the creation of a new position,'' Smith said. ''I'd go for that in a second. I'm not a coach or anything, but I really think I could do something like that.''

Smith said he found the biggest difference between high school and major-college football to be the pace of the game.

''Things happen a lot faster out there,'' he said. ''I don't think the hits were too much harder, although you get them more often.

''At this level, you have to be a student of the game. That's what I enjoyed about it most of all. You can't just go out there and go through the motions. You have to know what you're doing. It kept me busy and I like that.''

Smith, a former state high school 100-meter champion who hopes to run track at Ohio State this spring, has other goals besides medical school - the 1992 Olympics.

''I really would like to give the decathlon a shot,'' he said. ''I think the only thing I'd have trouble with is the pole vault. I've never tried the pole vault, but I've talked to people who have gone 11 1/2 feet the first time they tried.

''In the decathlon, it's not like you need to jump 18 feet to be competitive. I can make up for it in the sprint events, or any of the other running events for that matter.

''It's definitely something I'd like to try. I think I have a legitimate shot to go (to Barcelona). If that came up, everything else would have to go on hold for a while as far as athletics go.''

Including football?

''I was trying to say that without really saying it,'' Smith said.

HOUSTON (DEC. 20) UPI - The Dallas Times Herald asked an appeals court Wednesday to order a new trial of its $33 million damage suit against The Dallas Morning News.

The Herald's appeal states that state District Judge David West, who presided over a jury trial earlier this year, made six improper rulings that caused the jury to decide wrongly in favor of The Morning News and its parent company, A.H. Belo Corp.

The Times Herald had accused the News of unlawful and anti-competitive business practices for buying up the exclusive publication rights to 26 of the Times Herald's most popular features, including Doonesbury, Dear Abby, The Far Side, and Erma Bombeck.

During the six-week trial, attorneys for the Times Herald argued that The News had deliberately gutted the Times Herald's comics, features, and editorial pages in an attempt to drive away readers and advertising, and ultimately force its smaller competitor out of business.

"The evidence established that The Morning News and Belo had attempted for years to make Dallas a one-newspaper town and ... tried to buy the Times Herald outright in 1988," the appeal stated.

Belo and The News argued during the trial that the wholesale transfer of the features was merely the logical consequence of a joint venture Belo had agreed to form with Universal Press Syndicate, of Kansas City, Mo.

Universal held the marketing rights to many of the comic-strip characters the Universal-Belo joint venture planned to use in television commercials and feature-length films, and Belo attorneys argued it made no sense to promote features appearing in a competing paper.

"The principal legal issue presented by this appeal is whether a defendant who acts with both an anti-competitive purpose and a legitimate business purpose can ever violate the antitrust laws," the appeal stated.

"In effect, the trial court judge told the jury that any conceivable business purpose ... automatically insulated the defendants' conduct from all liability."

After the jury announced it was deadlocked on the issue of an attempt to achieve monopoly power, the judge sent jurors a supplemental instruction saying, "if the only purpose of conduct is to cripple or eliminate competition " it would be anti-competitive. But "if conduct has a legitimate business purpose," it was not improper.

"The trial court's definition ... in the present case renders the Texas Free Enterprise and Antitrust Act meaningless," the Herald's attorneys argued in the appeal.

Belo and The News should respond to the appeal within 25 days, and oral arguments could be held as early as June, with no final decision likely before next December.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker said Thursday that Eduard Shevardnadze - ''a man I'm proud to call a friend'' - made significant achievements as foreign minister, but his resignation should not alter Soviet foreign policy.

Baker, who had established a warm, first-name relationship with Shevardnadze in their 23 months of frequent meetings, added that the minister's unexpected resignation and his public warning about the Soviet Union drifting toward a dictatorship ''have to be taken seriously.''

Baker told reporters, ''I've known Eduard Shevardnadze to be a man of his word a man of courage, conviction and principle. I'm convinced that he is committed to peaceful reforms, political and economic, in the Soviet Union and I'm also convinced that the dramatic moves toward democratization and freedom in Central and Eastern Europe and the new thinking in Soviet foreign policy would never have happened without his and President (Mikhail) Gorbachev's courageous leadership.''

But Baker also said he believes Gorbachev when he says that Soviet foreign policy will remain unchanged.

Baker said he expected Shevardnadze to remain on the job at least until the announced mid-February summit in Moscow, where the two countries are expected to sign a strategic arms reduction treaty. Baker and Shevardnadze were the two principal negotiators in the final stages of those complex talks.

He also said that he does not think that the resignation will change the ''solid, firm'' coalition of nations aligned against Iraq in the crisis in the gulf.

U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, Baker said, will continue to be based on the concept of mutual advantage that he and the Soviet foreign minister used as a guideline in their frequent contacts.

He praised Shevardnadze as a man who ''has always worked as a professional who served his country's interests. He was in the forefront of the new thinking in foreign policy and democratization at home and I think that he has earned the respect of leaders all around the world. We are pleased that President Gorbachev has said that there will be no change in Soviet foreign policy.''

Baker said President Bush has often stated that ''our new relationship with the Soviet Union depends on its continuing commitment to democratization and to reform.''

NEWARK, N.J. (DEC. 20) UPI - Prudential Insurance Co. of North America said Thursday its Prudential Bache brokerage subsidiary, currently undergoing a restructuring, will record a $250 million loss for 1990 compared to a loss of $51 million a year earlier.

Prudential-Bache's 1990 loss is attributable to four business lines that have been either dropped or substantially cut back over the past year as part of a restructuring to reduce exposure to unprofitable businesses, the company said.

Investment banking and limited partnership activities have been significantly reduced, and risk arbitrage and Canadian operations have been exited, resulting in an undisclosed number of layoffs, a spokesman said.

Prudential-Bache now plans to concentrate on retail brokerage and mutual fund acitivities.

To reduce earnings volatility further, the merchant banking assets of Prudential-Bache have been acquired by parent The Prudential, the company said.

Prudential-Bache also has transferred its interest rate and currency swap portfolios to its parent company.

Despite the loss at Prudential-Bache, Prudential projected an increase of more than $600 million in statutory surplus - essentially the company's net worth - for 1990 and said it expects to maintain total capital at about $7.9 billion.

Prudential, the nation's largest insurer, said it has set aside a provision of more than $2 billion in policyowner dividends.

Winters said Prudential's individual insurance business had a particularly good year in 1990 with record sales. The company also anticipates strong performances in its group insurance and asset management businesses.

Prudential is the largest insurance company in North America and one of the largest financial institutions in the world, with more than $160 billion in consolidated assets.

WARSAW, POLAND (DEC. 20) UPI - President-elect Lech Walesa, facing a growing governmental crisis, proposed Thursday retaining the outgoing one until parliamentary elections next spring or even postponing elections for a year while a caretaker coalition governs.

Walesa's statement, telephoned to Western news agencies from his office in the northern seaport of Gdansk, was an indication his troubles are mounting following the resignation of his former adviser Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, last week.

''Lech Walesa is respecting the will of the electorate which wants quick formation of a new government, but Walesa wants to act in a cautious way,'' said the statement, signed by Walesa's spokesman Andrzej Drzycimski.

Walesa won the presidency in the runoff Dec. 9 against Stanislaw Tyminski, a Canadian businessman of Polish descent who outpolled Mazowiecki in the first round Nov. 25. Mazowiecki subsequently resigned, saying he lacked popular support.

Ironically, part of his criticism of the Mazowiecki government centered on charges it was dragging its feet on political reforms - in particular, by not holding early elections to replace a Parliament installed as the result of a round-table agreement with the previously ruling Communist Party.

Walesa's first proposed alternative envisages appointment of a temporary prime minister who would act for about one year.

Parliamentary elections are expected in the next three months but Walesa noted ''Nobody responsible would take a job for three months.'' In such a case, he said, ''It would be necessary to postpone the elections for one year.''

As the second alternative, he suggested keeping the old government in office which ''following certain changes would stay until spring elections.''

Drzycimski confirmed that this alternative might also concern Mazowiecki - if the public accepted him.

''If there is social approval, then Mazowiecki can also be taken into account '' he said.

The spokesman said the people could express their opinion on what they think about Mazowiecki now through the political parties, social organizations or trade unions.

''It must be done quickly,'' he said.

Walesa urged Mazowiecki and the political parties with whom he held consulations to consider his proposal over Christmas.

He also vowed to continue holding consultations in order to be ready to take a final decision after Christmas.

A swearing-in ceremony for Walesa is planned Saturday. The outgoing Communist president, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, said he would not attend the ceremony.

He did not give any explanation, but Walesa has already announced he would take over the presidential insignia not from Jaruzelski, but from London-based Polish President-in-Exile Ryszard Kaczorowski.

Grazyna Jaskula, an assistant to government spokeswoman Malgorzata Niezabitowska, said the proposal to have the old government stay on was already rejected by Mazowiecki before Walesa came up with his new suggestion.

''The continuation of the economic reforms need sacrifices and full approval by the people,'' she said. ''The election results showed there there was not such an approval of Mazowiecki's reforms and the prime minister does not want to take the responsibility for them now.''

However, Niezabitowska herself held out the possibility that at least some current governmental ministers might be persuaded to stay on.

''If a new prime minister was approved by Parliament, then the old Cabinet could fulfil its functions,'' Niezabitowska said.

As the result of the economic austerity measures in the last 14 months, the standard of living dropped by almost 40 percent.

Walesa has suffered at least two setbacks in his attempt to form a new Cabinet.

Jan Olszewski, an outstanding lawyer, quit trying to form a new government Tuesday after two weeks of consultations.

Olszewski said he had given up his mission as the result of ''significant differences'' which emerged between him and Walesa.

Sources close to Walesa said the president-elect wanted Leszek Balcerowicz, the finance minister who designed the austerity measures, to get special powers to be able to decide about economic problems on his own. Olszewski did not accept the proposal.

Jan Krzysztof Bielecki, a 39-year-old economist, also attempted to select candidates for a new Cabinet but he is believed to have ended his attempt also.

HACKENSACK, N.J. (DEC. 20) UPI - A suspended police officer pleaded innocent Thursday to reckless manslaughter in the shooting of a black teenager that set off a night of looting in nearby Teaneck last summer.

Gary Spath was allowed to remain free on a $50,000 personal recognizance bond.

Spath, accompanied by his wife and lawyer, stood quietly through the brief arraignment before Superior Court Judge John DiGisi. He was suspended from the Teaneck Police Department after he shot Phillip Pannell, 16, in the back.

Supporters of the Pannell family, including the Rev. Al Sharpton, packed the small courtroom. Pannell's father, also named Phillip, told reporters after the hearing that Spath should have been jailed.

''My son's back was blown apart,'' he said. ''There is no justice in New Jersey for a black man.''

Spath and his partner, Wayne Blanco, came across Pannell the night of April 10 while responding to complaint that someone matching the youth's description was brandishing a gun.

Blanco said he felt a weapon when he frisked Pannell before the shooting, but other witnesses said he was running away with his hands in the air and was shot in the back.

The shooting set off a night of looting a few nights later when a memorial service turned violent. Teaneck, a quiet suburb in affluent Bergen County, had prided itself on setting an example of racial harmony and peaceful integration.

Spath was charged last month by a state grand jury after an earlier grand jury investigation found no cause for indictment. Attorney General Robert Del Tufo ordered the second investigation.

Black activists, including Sharpton and Jesse Jackson, descended on the town, calling for Spath to be charged and convicted of murder.

Police responded by selling T-shirts with Spath's badge number and the slogan, ''Never a doubt.''

The arraignment was held under tight security with all spectators being screened for weapons. Bergen County officials assigned the hearing to a small room to prevent demonstrations.

Spath's lawyer, Robert Gallantucci, told the court there is no risk his client will flee.

''Literally thousands of letters have been forwarded to the court on Officer Spath's behalf,'' the lawyer said. ''He is anxious to prove his innocence in a jury trial.''

CHICAGO (DEC. 20) UPI - The Chicago White Sox Thursday announced they have signed free-agent knuckleballer Charlie Hough to a one-year contract.

Hough, who will turn 43 Jan. 5, is the second-oldest pitcher in the major leagues after Nolan Ryan.

Hough posted a 12-12 record last season for the Texas Rangers with a 4.07 ERA. He started 32 games and pitched 218 1/3 innings.

In a major-league career that started in 1970, he has pitched 3,106 2/3 innings and posted a 186-169 record with a 3.63 ERA. He holds Rangers' records for wins (139), games (344), starts (313), complete games (98), innings pitched (2,307 2/3) and strikeouts (1,452).

With the Los Angeles Dodgers, he appeared in the World Series in 1974, 1977 and 1978.

Hough is likely to pass a major milestone next year as a White Sox. He is only 12 strikeouts short of 2,000 for his career.

Sox Manager Jeff Torborg caught Hough's first major-league appearance back in August of 1970.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (DEC. 20) UPI - The Florida Supreme Court upheld Thursday the reimposition of the death penalty upon a convicted killer whose first round of appeals resulted in an important legal precedent in death cases.

James Ernest Hitchcock was convicted of first-degree murder for the 1976 rape and murder of his 13-year-old niece in Orange County. He was sentenced to death in 1977, but the U.S. Supreme Court reversed that sentence, saying the judge prevented the jury from considering all possible mitigating factors.

Numerous death sentences have been overturned for so-called Hitchcock errors since then.

But that didn't stop Circuit Judge Gary Formet from reimposing the death penalty when Hitchcock's case went back to the lower court for a new sentencing hearing.

On Thursday, the state high court upheld that sentence by a vote of 4-to-3.

This time the issue was proportionality, or whether people convicted of similar crimes also were sentenced to death.

Justices Gerald Kogan and Rosemary Barkett ruled that death would be disproportionate in Hitchcock's case. They said they would have commuted his sentence to life in prison.

Justice Leander Shaw filed a separate dissent but did not explain his reasoning.

But the court majority, in an unsigned opinion, said the death sentence was fair.

''On the circumstances of this case, and in comparison with other cases, we find Hitchcock's sentence of death proportionate to his crime, '' the majority decision said.

According to court records, Hitchcock strangled Cynthia Ann Driggers, his brother's stepdaughter, after sexually assaulting her in her bedroom. She had begun screaming and threatening to report him.

Florida law requires a balancing by juries of circumstances that cry out for death and those that suggest leniency in particular cases. During Hitchcock's first trial in 1977, his judge told the jury it could only consider mitigating factors spelled out in the statute books.

But the nation's high court overturned the sentence on appeal, saying juries should be allowed to consider any possible mitigating evidence in death cases, whether or not they are spelled out by statute.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - The Air Force has grounded its fleet of B-1B strategic bombers following an engine problem similar to one in which an engine dropped out of a bomber in flight, officials said Thursday.

A B-1B on a training flight early Wednesday morning was making practice approaches at Dyess Air Force Base, Texas, when the crew heard a loud bang, Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall told reporters. Ground safety personnel reported there was a fire in the right inboard engine. The plane made an emergency landing.

Officials suspect that a problem with the first stage compressor fan blades was responsible, the same cause believed behind an incident Oct. 11 in which the crew of a plane from McConnell Air Force Base, Kansas, heard a similar bang and, after landing, found that the covering of the left outboard engine was gone - and so was the engine itself.

Although the plane has been grounded from making routine training flights until the problem is resolved, it is still on alert in case of war. The manufacturer of the engine, General Electric, is working with the Air Force to pin down the cause and devise a fix, officials said.

"We believe something was wrong with the fan blades," said Capt. Don Planalp, a spokesman for the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb. "They're up at the front of the engine spinning at high speed and if they fail, they enter the engine and it causes catestrophic failure. That's what we think the sequence of events was."

The crew, he said, used internal fire control systems to battle the ensuing fire Wednesday morning but ground crews at Dyess also helped fight the blaze.

The engine involved is the F-101-GE-102, which puts out 30,000 pounds of thrust. The B-1B, which has had problems with its package of electronic defenses, has four jet engines.

The plane was scrapped by the Carter administration, which wanted to concentrate on the B-2 stealth bomber. It was revived by the Reagan administration as an interim bomber to penetrate Soviet airspace until the B-2 was ready for use.

The B-2 program is now in serious trouble over its cost, with planes now forecast at over $800 million each. The B-1B costs about $280 million each. Of the 100 planes originally built, 97 are still flying. Three crashed.

AGANA, Guam (DEC. 20) UPI - Typhoon Ross bore down on Guam Thursday, whipping the Pacific island territory with 75-mph wind gusts and chasing away aircraft and ships.

The eye of the 500-mile-wide storm, packing sustained winds of 145 mph, was expected to pass over the island at about midday Friday before swinging to the northwest toward the Ryukyu Islands.

Southernmost and largest of the Mariana Islands with 209 square miles, Guam lies 1,500 miles southeast of the Philippines and 3,000 west of Hawaii.

On Thursday, the typhoon's lead winds gusted to 75 mph on Guam, a U. S. territory that serves as an important refueling stop for trans- Pacific air traffic.

All commercial aircraft have been evauated and all incoming flights were canceled until Saturday.

In addition, most U.S. military planes have flown to other bases in the Pacific and most ships have gone to sea to ride out the storm, officials said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - An Italian national currently serving a 40-year prison term in Florida for terrorist activities cannot be returned to Italy, the Justice Department said Thursday.

In a letter to Italian Assistant Minister of Justice Piero Calla, Assistant Attorney General Robert Mueller said there was concern that Silvia Baraldini, 43, would serve a shorter prison term in Italy and then be freed to commit further crimes.

Baraldini is seeking to return to her native country, and the Italian government had requested a formal review of the case.

Mueller noted that Baraldini has not shown remorse for her crimes, refused to testify before a grand jury and has remained in touch with members of terrorist groups.

''After an exhaustive examination of all the relevant factors, we have determined that we cannot at this time approve the transfer of Ms. Baraldini to Italy,'' Mueller wrote.

Baraldini was a member of the terrorist group known as the ''Family,'' which staged a number of bold armored car and bank robberies beginning in the mid-1970s.

Authorities say the group used the money from the robberies to pay for a series of ''safe houses'' along the East Coast to store weapons, hide fugitives and plot further terrorist activities.

Prosecutors say she also was national secretary of the ''May 19th Organization '' which is blamed for several robberies and terrorist bombings.

A federal jury in New York convicted Baraldini in 1983 on conspiracy and racketeering charges. She was sentenced to 40 years in prison with a recommendation from the judge that she ''not be considered for parole until the maximum period.''

Baraldini is currently serving the sentence at the Federal Correctional Institute at Marianna, Fla.

The Justice Department conducted a review of Baraldini's case at the request of the Italian government. In turning down the request, Mueller said, ''Were Ms. Baraldini to show remorse for her past crimes, cooperate with the government of the United States in its current investigations and demonstrate in some convincing way that she has abandoned her criminal lifestyle, we might reconsider this decision.''

Mueller said the Justice Department also would reconsider ''if we could be assured that Ms. Baraldini would serve a sentence in Italy equivalent to that imposed by the judges here.''

Mueller also responded to concerns expressed by the Italian government over the conditions at the Florida prison where Baraldini is being held. Detailing the various aspects of her confinement, he wrote, ''She has access to all of the various educational and recreational programs listed above. Ms. Baraldini's health is monitored closely by qualified staff.''

The department said will consider a new application for transfer from Baraldini in one year.

PARIS (DEC. 20) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis and accompanying oil price increases have slowed the world economy, but their effects can be absorbed by the end of next year if governments fight inflation and reduce budget deficits the Organization for Economic Cooperation said Thursday.

However, the Paris-based agency warned in its bi-annual report that economic activity in the United States is certain to slow further and said the country will not be able to avoid a recession. The report predicted zero growth for the second half of the current year and a negative figure in the first part of 1991.

''A recession is more than possible,'' David Henderson, chief of economic and statistical studies for the 24-member agency, told reporters Thursday.

The report released Thursday blamed weakness of the dollar for current inflationary pressures in the United States and said interest rates had risen in many countries. It also warned that many U.S. financial markets remained fragile and said serious questions had arisen about the balance sheets of some Japanese banks.

''These developments, together with the effects of higher oil prices, have led to a less favorable view of the short-term economic outlook than before the summer: inflation is likely to be higher and output weaker,'' the report said.

Overall, however, the OECD was upbeat about the state of the world economy, concluding that though growth in the OECD area was slowing, the effects of oil-price shocks on member countries was much smaller than during the two previous oil crises of 1973 and 1979.

It predicted the impact of the gulf crisis and the slowdown of the U. S. economy would be absorbed by the economies of the world's most industrialized countries by the end of next year.

Based on a price of $27 a barrel, the study said growth in the OECD area should be 2 percent next year and 2.5 percent in 1992, compared with 2.8 percent growth this year.

But if the effects of the crisis are to be contained, the report said, OECD governments must align their monetary policies to fight inflation, continue to reduce budget deficits, and pursue more liberal trade policies.

''To the extent that these assumptionss are met, difficulties associated with the oil-price increase should prove to be only temporary,'' the report added.

It predicted inflation in the OECD area would rise to an annual rate of 6 percent but would drop to 4 percent or 4.5 percent by the second half of 1992. Unemployment should increase from 6.25 percent in the first half of 1990 to nearly 7 percent in 1992.

''While OECD activity remained strong on average during 1990, differences have become accentuated between the buoyancy of activity in some countries, notably Japan and western Germany, and its weakness in a number of others, including the United States,'' the report said.

It said growth in the United States will drop to 0.9 percent next year compared to 1 percent in 1990, but predicted it would rise to 1.9 percent in 1992.

''One commonly thinks that the rest of the world catches pneumonia when the United States sneezes, but that is not what we are going to see,'' David Potter, who is in charge of U.S. studies for the OECD, told reporters.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze stunned delegates to the Congress of People's Deputies in Moscow today by handing in his resignation. And he said the decision is ''final.'' Shervardnadze is considered the architect of the wide-ranging Soviet foreign policy that led to freedom for the nations of Eastern Europe. He said his resignation comes because of attacks by ''reactionary'' forces on the perestroika policies of Mikhail Gorbachev.

The U-N's January 15th deadline in the Persian Gulf crisis is rapidly approaching with some controversy over whether U-S troops will be ready. The second-in-command of U-S troops in Saudi Arabia says reinforcements ordered by President Bush on November 8th may NOT be ready to fight by the middle of February, almost one month after the deadline passes. Lieutenant General Calvin Waller made the comments yesterday. January 15th is the deadline set for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or face the possibility that military action will be taken.

Chilean Defense Minister Patricio Rojas says a reported military alert was an exercise. Rojas also sought to deflect reports of conflict between the civilian government of Chile and army commander General Augusto Pinochet. He attributed the reports to what he termed a ''misunderstanding'' over a financial scandal involving senior officers.

SOFIA, Bulgaria (DEC. 20) UPI - For the first time since World War II, Bulgaria installed a non-communist government Thursday following two weeks of negotiations between Prime Minister Dimiter Popov and the nation's leading political forces.

The Grand National Assembly, or parliament, approved the new Cabinet by secret ballot at 3 a.m. following a marathon session.

It was the third government to come to power this year. The previous ones were headed by Prime Minister Andrei Lukanov of the Socialist Party, the renamed Communists who had retained monopoly rule with their satellite party, the Agrarian Party, for more than 40 years.

Popov's Cabinet was formed following 12 days of tense negotiations with Bulgaria's leading political movements which resulted in an agreement to call it a ''national government of the peaceful transition to democracy.''

It includes eight members of the former Cabinet, six of them Socialist Party members. It also includes members of the opposition Union of Democratic Forces and the Agrarian Party, as well as ministers with no party affiliation.

Significantly, however, it did not include members of the Movement for Rights and Freedom, a group representing Bulgaria's minorities and particularly the Turks.

They took part in the consultations on the Cabinet until the last moment, but bowed out on grounds that too many members of the old government remained in power.

The new government will serve until the election of a new Parliament expected in late May or early June.

Its prime tasks will be to ensure survive of the nation during the winter season in the face of worsening food and energy shortages as well as to prepare for the elections.

A total of 259 of the 326 deputies present voted for Popov, who is recognized as a caretaker premier and has no party affiliation.

The new finance minister, economist Ivan Kostov of the UDF, slipped by with the narrow margin of 164-162.

Ivan Poushkarov, another UDF member, will be minister of industry, trade and services.

Another hotly contested seat was interior minister, which went to Hristo Danov an eminent lawyer with no party affiliation.

Other new names in the government are Environment Minister Dimiter Vodenicharov, a biology professor with no party affiliation, and Culture Minister Georgi Fotev, a sociologist at the University of Sofia, who was nominated by the UDF.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) UPI - Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent continued to make progress Thursday following removal of his spleen.

Vincent, who had been ill several weeks, underwent surgery Tuesday at Greenwich Hospital in Connecticut.

''His condition is good and he's still in the hospital,'' a spokesman for the commissioner's office said. ''We hope he will be out before Christmas.''

Vincent, 52, wasn't feeling well when he accompanied a team of U.S. players for an eight-game tour of Japan, and it was determined he had an upper respiratory infection and pneumonia.

''The infection settled in his spleen, and it was decided the best course of action was to remove it, which they did, and he's doing fine,'' the spokesman said.

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) UPI - The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Atlanta spent more than $21,000, most of it for medical bills, on the woman lay minister whose affair with Archbishop Eugene A. Marino led to his resignation, the church said Thursday.

The archdiocese released the results of an independent audit of the church's financial support for Vicki Long. The audit was ordered by Bishop James P. Lyke, acting apostolic administrator of the archdiocese.

Pope John Paul II appointed Lyke to run the archdiocese after Marino, the nation's first black Roman Catholic archbishop, resigned in July, citing physical ailments and a two-year affair with Long.

The audit - which took four months to complete, requiring investigators to spend 1,500 hours poring over 30,000 checks and other financial records - found Atlanta Catholics contributed $21,096 for Long.

The archdiocese paid $14,556 to hospitals and doctors who treated Long, the audit disclosed.

The audit did not elaborate on Long's medical problems and the archdiocese refused comment on the matter.

In addition to her affair with Marino, Long has claimed she was molested by a nun while working at a Catholic hospital in Columbus, Ga. She also filed suit against the Rev. Donal Keohane, a Columbus, Ga., priest, in 1987, alleging that he fathered her daughter, now 4. Blood tests indicated Keohane was not the father.

Another priest, the Rev. Michael Woods, resigned after confessing to an ''intimate'' relationship with Long, who denied the relationship was sexual.

''Disbursements for Miss Long's care were never given directly to her, but made out in checks to the medical professions or institutions involved,'' Lyke said. ''Further, the archdiocese covered only part of her medical expenses. Miss Long either personally or through her insurance, or in some other way, paid the remainder of her health costs. ''

The audit also found that funds from two parishes, St. Pius X in Conyers and St. John the Evangelist in Hapeville, were used to support Long.

The St. John parish spent $5,195 on Long, virtually all on rent, utilities and payments for credit card purchases and loans. Long received $185 in direct payments from the parish.

The St. Pius parish gave Long $1,075 in direct payments and $270 for medical bills.

Lyke said he hoped the investigation would allow Catholics in the Atlanta area to put the Long scandal behind them and look to the future.

''Dear friends, now that the investigation is complete, I ask that we now direct our attention to the many needs we face as a church and to the countless cries of the poor which we hear,'' he said.

''I want you to know that as the apostolic administrator of the archdiocese of Atlanta, I shall always strive to be a good and faithful steward of the resources I oversee before God in your name,'' he said.

Marino, who was installed as archbishop May 5, 1988, suffered chest pains while in New York in early May. The Rev. Peter Dora, a spokesman for the Atlanta archdiocese, said Marino remains ''in a therapeutic setting at an undisclosed, church-run institution. He's doing very well under the circumstances.''

Lyke and Marino share a similar background and, like the archbishop, Lyke is considered a strong advocate for increased black participation in the Roman Catholic Church.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 20) UPI - Christian leaders combined their Christmas appeal to save the region from a devastating war Thursday with blunt criticism of Israel for making them ''constant targets of attack.''

Leaders of eight Christian communities in the Holy Land said they deplored ''constant attempts to change the demographic character'' of Jerusalem's Old City, erosion in privileges accorded the churches and ''deterioration in the condition of the Palestinian people.''

''The prospects of constructive dialogue and peace in the holy land are receding. Despair is the pervasive mood,'' the church leaders' annual Christmas message said.

''We pray for a quick reconciliation and a just settlement of the (Israeli-Palestinian) conflict.''

Signing the Christmas message were the patriarchs from the Greek Orthodox, Latin and Armenian churches, as well as the Anglican bishop, Greek-Catholic patriarchal vicar, Lutheran bishop, and Syrian archbishop.

The Christian leaders met in Jerusalem to pull together their Christmas message, released several days earlier than expected. A day earlier, an internal Israeli report was leaked to Israel Radio that discussed the ''radicalization'' among Christian religious leaders and their efforts to show loyalty to the Palestinian cause.

The report, which Israeli officials declined to comment on Thursday, studied the influence of the 3-year-old Palestinian uprising on different religious groups. The report said church leaders hide attacks by Islamic fundamentalists against Christians and church property, and were actively involved in anti-Israel propaganda, Israel Radio reported.

''We deplore the fact that the patriarchs and the heads of the Christian churches in the Holy Land are constant targets of attacks by Israeli officials and the Israeli media,'' the church leaders said in their message.

''We consider our sacred duty to voice our concern about human rights' violations in the occupied territories. We maintain fraternal relations with Moslems in the occupied territories, and everywhere, as well as with Jews in Israel,'' the church leaders said.

The last joint message by the Christian leaders came after Israeli police opened fire and killed at least 17 Palestinians Oct. 8 on Jerusalem's Temple Mount, known in Arabic as the Haram esh Sharif. The complex is Islam's holiest site and is revered by Jews as the site of their Temple.

The Christian communities urged world leaders to resolve the Persian Gulf crisis through negotiation without bloodshed, sparing the region ''from ultimate destruction.''

''We pray to the Lord to guide the leaders of the world in the path of peace and justice, and we pray for a year free of the threat of war and violence, extending our blessing to all the faithful.''

On the issue of church relations with the Israeli government, the message cited as examples of attempts to change the demographics of the Old City the St. John's Hospice incident during last Easter week. The issue, which is under debate in Israeli courts, revolved around ownership of the Christian Quarter hospice into which dozens of Jews moved.

Church leaders also said the government was imposing municipal and state taxes for the first time, eroding ''traditional rights and centuries' old privileges'' of the churches.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Controversy flared Thursday over a congressional report on cat-shooting experiments aimed at improving treatment for head wounds, with scientists calling the report flawed and animal rights activists saying it shows such tests should end.

From 1983 through November 1989, researchers at Louisiana State University in New Orleans used about 700 cats in work aimed at finding better ways of treating soldiers and other people with bullet wounds to the head.

The death rates among soldiers with head wounds from bullets or shrapnel remained essentially unchanged from World War II through Vietnam, with about 10 percent of patients dying from their wounds. About 16,000 Americans die annually from gunshot wounds to the brain.

Dr. Michael Carey, head of the LSU research and a former surgeon in Vietnam, said he is conducting the cat work because so little laboratory work has been done on brain wounds.

''If the biology of brain wounds is not known, how can treatments be designed, how can doctors save more lives?'' Carey told a news conference hosted by LSU and the American Medical Association.

In the experiments, anesthestized cats were wounded in the brain with pellets about one-quarter the size of a BB gun pellet.

The wounded cats were kept alive from two hours to 60 days to allow researchers to study the mechanics of brain injury and to test drugs that may reduce such damage. So far, researchers have found that one drug, called GM-1 ganglioside, appears to reduce some of the brain damage in wounded cats.

Federal funding for the $2 million research project was frozen in November 1989 following claims by animal rights groups that the work was not adding to scientific knowledge on the treatment of brain wounds.

The Defense Appropriations Act of 1991 forbids the Army from releasing any money for the research until the investigation by the General Accounting Office was completed.

However, the GAO's report, released on Friday, made no recommendation whether the cat research should be allowed to continue. Instead, the investigative branch of Congress said it should be up to Defense Secretary Dick Cheney to decide if there are still enough merits to the project to allow it to proceed further.

A medical panel convened by the GAO concluded that the goals of the LSU research are valid.

''The panel strongly believes that progress in improving outcome of brain injury can be made through studies such as this one. The (cat) model was deemed to be unique and suitable for the investigations undertaken,'' the report said.

Furthermore, the panel said it believes that the anesthesia was adequate to protect the cats from pain when the pellets were shot into their brains.

Carey and his LSU colleagues had no objections to that section of the report. However, they expressed dismay that they were not allowed to testify before the medical panel or show them their laboratory.

The researchers were most upset with the GAO's findings that were based on consultation with veterinary anesthesiologists.

The anesthesiologists said they doubted all the cats were adequately anesthetized, and also said the lack of detailed records suggested there were deficiencies in the animal's post-wounding care.

Questions were also raised about the number of cats used in research that did not result in usable data and the lack of different response to injuries of increasing severity.

The GAO also found that the Army did not adequately monitor the technical performance of the LSU contract.

Army and GAO officials could not be reached for comment Thursday.

CHICAGO (DEC. 20) UPI - Uncertainty over what may happen in the Soviet Union following the resignation of the Foreign Minister kept the grain market on the defensive Thursday.

Grain and soybean futures were lower at the close on the Chicago Board of Trade in relatively quiet trading.

The surprise resignation of Eduard Shevardnadze weighed on prices. Buying interest was limited amid concern over the fate of the export credit package to the Soviets. There was talk of possible delays in implementing the credit arrangement.

Soybean meal was the weakest commodity in the soy complex. January meal made a contract low of $169 per ton and closed just above that level. Overnight developments in the Soviet Union and the lack of trading in Rotterdam pressured the meal.

Soybean oil prices were virtually unchanged.

Corn had underlying support from the sale of another 385,000 tons to the USSR, but was lower across the board.

Wheat also closed lower in line with the weakness on the rest of the floor.

Country movement was light.

At the close, corn was off 1/2 to 1 1/2, soybeans down 2 1/2 to 5 1/2, wheat unchanged to off 2 1/2 and oats down 1 1/2 to 1 3/4.

TORONTO (DEC. 20) UPI - The Bank of Canada Thursday cut its key bank rate to 11.78 percent, triggering an 0.5 percentage point drop in prime rates at most of Canada's major banks.

The central bank cut 23 basis points off its rate, which was set at 12.01 percent last week. It was the largest decrease since January and marked a significant step in easing its tight monetary policy.

The Bank of Canada's action was not unexpected, nor was the reaction from the major banks. Prime rates in the country now stand at 12.75 percent, effective Friday.

Until Thursday, most of the major banks, except for the Bank of Montreal, had held their prime rates at 13.50 percent. On Wednesday, the Bank of Montreal shaved 0.25 percentage point off its prime lending rate to 12.75 percent, saying the central bank had signalled the advent of a more rapid easing of rates.

It was the second time within two weeks that the Bank of Montreal cut its prime rate ahead of the central bank and further distanced itself from the other major banks.

Also Wednesday, the Canadian Manufacturers Association and the Toronto Dominion Bank issued reports on the state of the Canadian economy forecasting a more severe recession than previously expected.

The CMA said the recession has cost $25.5 billion in short-term lost sales, will result in the loss of 180,000 jobs - half of them permanent, and that the manufacturing outlook continues to deteriorate.

The TD Bank predicted declining economic growth in the fourth quarter of 1990 and in the first two quarters of 1991 resulting in "the second most severe recession of the post-war period."

Both the CMA and the TD Bank said the economy's recovery was grounded in the lowering of interest rates to a level where consumer spending and business investment would rebound. This is not expected to happen until mid to late 1991, they said.

JERUSALEM (DEC. 20) UPI - Israeli military officials confirmed Thursday a plea bargain agreement with a former air force procurement officer accused of large-scale bribery and fraud.

Brig. Gen. Rami Dotan, who is considered an expert on air force jet engines, is accused of accumulating approximately $10 million in bribes from Israeli and American companies during an eight-year period. The money apparently was deposited into bank accounts outside the country.

Israeli military and police have arrested at least two air force officers and three civilians implicated in what the Israeli press calls the ''Dotan Affair.'' About 100 people have been questioned, Israel Radio reported.

Gen. Amnon Strashnov, the military advocate general, told reporters he signed a plea bargain last week with Dotan, the former Israeli air force equipment branch chief, because it was in the best interest of the public.

''The purpose here, as the chief of staff made clear more than once, is to go to the end and to weed out all the noxious weeds from the garden,'' Strashnov said in explaining the decision.

According to the arrangement, Dotan will admit to receiving bribes, fraud and violating trust to commit a crime, Strashnov indicated. Israel Radio reported Dotan would be indicted in the next few days under the agreement and would not be indicted for treason.

Several senior military officers, including Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron and air force chief Avihu Ben Nun have publicly denounced Dotan as a traitor.

Ezer Weizman, the founding father of the Israeli air force and a war hero, called for Dotan to be tarred and feathered and paraded through the streets.

Respected military analyst Ron Ben Yishai said the ''affair is one of the largest bribery cases in the history of the state'' and warned it could jeopardize American miltary aid to Israel.

Ben Yishai, military commentator writing for the daily Yediot Ahronot, said a bribery affair involving American taxpayer money could strengthen those calling for cuts in military aid to Israel.

Yediot, which in recent days has come out with much information on the investigation, reported Dotan received a regular salary from an American company and placed the funds into a Canadian bank account. The company was not named.

In the United States, General Electric announced Wednesday it had begun an internal investigation concerning purchase orders placed with companies ''said to be involved in the Israeli investigation.''

Dotan played a key role in deciding to acquire jet engines from General Electric, worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) UPI - New Yorkers are dining out as usual despite the economic slump, getting more for their money at fine restaurants that are holding prices down and improving service, a leading guide reported Thursday.

Zagat's 1991 New York City Restaurant Survey, which is based on the experiences of 5,500 frequent restaurant visitors, said that though restaurant closings have accelerated in the past year, up to 54 from 38 in 1989, new restaurant openings outnumbered the closings by more than two to one.

The survey noted 125 new restaurants among the 1,000 reviewed in its pages, noting that they are ''arriving with simpler styles and lower prices than those in previous years, with a marked majority serving scaled-down bistro, regional American or pasta fare, often with low ceilings on the price of entrees.''

Zagat diners reported eating out on an average of 3.4 times a week, the same as in 1989, and 38 percent said they were eating our four times a week or more. Some 73 percent reported ordering take-out meals for home at least one of two times weekly.

Restaurants that never had take-out menus in the past are now offering home delivery, Zagat observed.

''Our sense has been that despite the recent downturn in the economy, New Yorkers haven't given up on restaurant-going as a normal part of their lives '' said Tim Zagat, who started publishing travel guides with his wife, Nina, 11 years ago.

''They may be less willing to support certain marginal or expense- account hangouts, but they're still trying out new places in great numbers and proving especially supportive of smaller neighborhood places with moderate prices and simpler food.''

The Four Seasons and Lutece remained at the top of Zagat's most popular restaurants listing, with Bouley, Le Bernardin, Gotham Bar & Grill, La Cote Basque, Union Square Cafe, Aureole, Cafe des Artistes, Le Cirque, Chanterelle and Brooklyn's Peter Luger Steak House completing the short list. Chanterelle fell from sixth to eleventh place.

MINEOLA, NY (DEC. 20) UPI - The final decommissioning plan for the Long Island Lighting Company's nuclear power plant in Shoreham will be submitted to the federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission next week, it was reported Thursday.

Long Island Power Authority Chairman Richard Kessel urged the NRC to speedily review and approve the decommissioning plan, as well as transfer of the plant's operating license from LILCO to LIPA, so that the dismantling of Shoreham could begin as early as next September.

Because of public opposition, the $5.6 billion plant was abandoned last year before it ever went into full commercial operation, and under an agreement engineered by Gov. Mario Cuomo, it was sold to the state for $1. In return, LILCO is to receive annual five percent raises in electric rates over the next ten years.

At a Thursday news conference, Kessel said the dismantling of the plant will cost an estimated $186 million, and if it is started next September, completion of the work is set for late 1993.

Shoreham would mark the first decommissioning of a major nuclear power plant in the nation and would serve as a prototype for future dismantling of similar plants.

"The plan provides detailed estimates of radiological exposure to workers performing the decomissioning and the amount of radioactive waste expected from the decommissioning," Kessel stated.

He said removal of the reactor vessel will be accomplished by cutting it up, and those portions which have become radioactive will be disposed of. "Other components of the plant, excluding the reactor vessel, have less radiation than you would probably find in a dentist's office," Kessel said.

LIPA Executive Director Stanley Klimberg said the decommissioning "can be accomplished safely with no significant environmental impact." Klimberg noted that there are only "low levels" of contamination in the reactor vessel, because the plant was only operated, during brief test periods, at no more than five percent of capacity.

Klimberg said state officials are in the process of establishing a dump site for disposal of nuclear contamination, and there are similar disposal areas in three other states. If none of these are available for the Shoreham waste, it can be stored at the plant until a dump site can be found, Klimberg said.

"The only high level waste is in the fuel rods, which have been removed and are safely stored in a water pool at the plant," Klimberg said. He said the fuel rods can be stored indefinitely at Shoreham, could be sold for use at another nuclear plant, or could be reprocessed in England or France.

"When the decommissioning is completed, most of the Shoreham buildings will be left at the site," Kessel said. "The cost of razing them would be prohibitive, and the possibility remains that they could be used if there is a decision to convert them to a natural gas-fired generating plant." Kessel said LIPA's board of trustees is expected to approve the decommissioning plan on Friday, and it will then be submitted to the NRC.

MOSCOW (DEC. 20) UPI - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned Thursday at a critical point in world affairs - less than four weeks before a United Nations deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

Although the Soviet policy in the Persian Gulf crisis will not change overnight with Shevardnadze's departure, the resignation of the white- haired Georgian opens the door for more subtle modifications that could affect future U.S. decisions.

Shevardnadze, who won admirers around the globe for his implementation of President Mikhail Gorbachev's ''new thinking,'' built a particularly close relationship with Secretary of States James Baker.

The two men have met on the average of once a month during Baker's two years in office and kept in especially close touch since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Baker and Shevardnadze have consulted at each important step in the gulf crisis, beginning with the joint U.S.-Soviet condemnation of Iraq's aggression the day after the invasion and through a series of progressively tougher U.N. resolutions.

Their cooperation has spawned an unprecedented partnership in the gulf crisis, a superpower alliance that would have been unthinkable even three years ago and which symbolizes the new world order trumpeted by Gorbachev and, more belatedly, President Bush.

But now with the clock ticking down on the last U.N. measure, which gives Iraq President Saddam Hussein until Jan. 15 to pull out his troops or face military action, Shevardnadze's departure introduces an element of uncertainty at a time when the United States wants clarity of purpose.

After Shevardnadze's dramatic announcement, the U.S.S.R. Congress of People's Deputies adopted a resolution asking him to reconsider and even Gorbachev indicated he would be prepared to set the clock back.

Shevardnadze's spokesman Vitaly Churkin, however, said his boss's decision is final, and Shevardnadze himself gave little sign of having second thoughts.

If Shevardnadze is indeed gone from the scene, the biggest question mark for Washington is: Who will replace him?

One name floated in Moscow diplomatic circles in recent weeks, when it appeared that Shevardnadze might fill the new post of vice president, is Yevgeni Primakov, the Arab specialist who Gorbachev has sent on several Middle East missions to try to find a peaceful resolution of the gulf crisis.

Primakov built close ties with Arab leaders from 1966 to 1985 as the Middle East correpondent for the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda and then in Moscow as head of the Institute for Oriental Studies.

Primakov is widely viewed as being more resistant to the use of force to drive Iraq from Kuwait than Shevardnadze, who strongly advocated a political solution but openly acknowleded that military action might be needed to end the standoff.

Baker cultivated his budding relationship with Shevardnadze to build Soviet support for U.S. policy in the gulf.

Even if Shevardnadze's successor does not stray far from Moscow's present path

Baker will have to start from scratch in building a relationship with a new man.

Criticism over his handling of the gulf crisis, from conservative military officers and deputies who accused him of cozying up too close to Washington, was the last straw for Shevardnadze, who had already endured charges of having lost Eastern Europe in the anti-Communist revolutions of the past year.

Shevardnadze fiercely defended his approach to the gulf conflict in his resignation speech to the legislature.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - President Bush said Thursday he has ''crossed the Rubicon'' on force as an option to drive Iraq from Kuwait, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president has not decided if military action will be necessary.

Rep. George ''Buddy'' Darden, D-Ga., reported that Bush made the remark to a congressional group that recently toured the gulf region.

Fitzwater confirmed that Bush told the lawmakers that he had '''crossed the Rubicon,''' explaining president had ''come to terms in his own mind on the use of force (as an option) a long time ago.'' The spokesman said Bush reached that decision ''when he sent the first troops'' to the Persian Gulf in August.

''We believe there will come a time when force will have to be exercised,'' noted Fitzwater, who quickly added no decision has been made on whether a military solution will be ordered.

The administration has publicly expressed doubts about effectiveness of the U.N.-imposed economic sanctions against Iraq, and has indicated there is no sign that its troops are preparing to withdraw from Kuwait.

If force is deemed necessary, it does not appear that Bush will hold off long after the Jan. 15 deadline mandated by the United Nations for the complete Iraqi withdrawl from Kuwait.

Rep. Mike McNulty, D-N.Y. said the president made a reference to summer. ''He said he didn't think we should wait that long but he didn't get much more specific than that,'' the congressman added.

Fitzwater agreed that Bush was running out of patience.

''The president did indicate a summertime time frame would be difficult,'' he said. Furthermore, he said the United Nations ''clearly indicates that Iraq must be out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.''

Fitzwater also addressed controversial remarks of Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller, second in command of Operation Desert Shield, who expressed doubt on Wednesday that American forces will be ready for combat by mid January.

With a smile, Fitzwater told reporters ''it never hurts build a little uncertainty'' into the strategy.

''It doesn't hurt to put a little grief in Saddam Hussein's mind. We think it's not necessarily bad to have a little mystery. We believe our forces are ready whenever they are called upon. They are ready now in terms of service and mission. They are ready for a test,'' said Fitzwater.

It appears that there will be no retribution against Waller. ''He's in good shape,'' Fitzwater said. Former Gen. Michael Dugan, Air Force chief of staff, was given his walking papers after disclosing to reporters this fall that the U.S. battle plan centered on the bombing of Baghdad.

Rep. Anthony Beilenson, D-Calif., who headed the delegation, said he told Bush that troop morale was high. He also reported that Middle Eastern leaders suggested that ''only a credible military threat'' will ''nly a credible m

''Nobody was suggesting over there I think that it could be done terribly quickly or terribly easily or that there wouldn't be some casualties,'' he said.

Both Sens. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, reported Wednesday military commanders predicted a war would last no more than five days.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Today's sudden resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze has taken everyone by surprise, including his boss. Mikhail Gorbachev says he was NOT consulted on the move and condemns it. And Gorbachev says he was just about ready to recommend Shevardnadze to serve as his vice president.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater has his own spin to comments by Lieutenant General Calvin Waller that NOT all U-S troops will be in place against Iraq by January 15th. Fitzwater says the second-in-command of forces in the region meant to say that the troops may NOT be as ready as they would like to be.

First National Bank of Chicago cut the interest rate it charges its most credit-worthy customers by one-half of one percent today. First National dropped the rate from 10 percent to nine and one-half... the action coming two days after the Federal Reserve trimmed its discount rate by one-half percent.

There news is NOT good in another Commerce Department report. It says the nation's businesses plan to increase spending for new plants and equipment by an estimated two-point-four percent in 1991... the lowest spending level in four years. The figure is seen as an indicator of business confidence in the economy, and the 1991 increase is the lowest since 1986, when spending actually declined by three-point-one percent.

Two health care workers warned in the New England Journal of Medicine that the once-common practice of using kerosene to get rid of head lice is NOT only outdated but can be extremely dangerous. They explained that a patient's family used kerosene after shampoos failed to get rid of the lice and a stove pilot light ignited kerosene fumes, burning the child and two family members.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - EPA Administrator William Reilly, bowing to White House objections, said Thursday he will withdraw a controversial plan that would have imposed major new recycling requirements on municipal trash incinerators.

Reilly's retreat followed a Wednesday meeting of the newly formed President's Council on Competitiveness at which top administration officials expressed concern the Environmental Protection Agency plan would be overly burdensome and costly to cities already facing enormous trash disposal problems.

The proposal would have required garbage incinerators to separate for recycling at least 25 percent of the re-usable items in trash before sending it on for burning.

Reilly defended the environmental merits of his proposal, but all other members of the council urged him to scrap it, said David Beckwith, a spokesman for the vice president, who attended the closed meeting.

In a statement issued Thursday, Reilly capitulated, saying: ''I accept the decision of the panel.''

However, he added, ''We continue to be commited to recycling and we will consider other appropriate mechanisms to help solve the solid waste problem.''

The rejection of the recycling plan represented the first major action by the competitiveness council, which is supposed to act as a watchdog against government over-regulation.

Vice President Dan Quayle is chairman of the council, which also includes as permanent members White House chief of staff John Sununu and Richard Darman, head of the White House Office of Management and Budget. Both have clashed with Reilly over a wide range of other environmental policies.

A White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the administration was in favor of recycling ''as a concept,'' but felt the EPA proposal was a flawed and heavy-handed imposition on local governments.

Beyond the specific issues raised by the recycling plan, the official said the council's action was intended to re-assure the business community that the administration would remain vigilant against excessive government regulation.

''The broader message is the Reagan administration did a good job of reducing the burden of unnecessary regulation and this administration is going to make sure there is a followup on that effort,'' the official said.

The EPA proposed the recycling requirement in the fall of 1989 as part of a regulatory package to reduce toxic air pollution from trash incinerators. Items targeted for recycling included lead-acid batteries, plastic and metal refuse and other materials likely to produce dangerous emissions when burned.

EPA officials argued that greater recycling by incinerators would reduce the amount of trash burned, thus cutting smokestack emissions. As a side benefit, they said the new requirements would stimulate the struggling recycling industry by ensuring ample supplies of raw material.

However, local government officials said the plan was impractical and ill-conceived in that they already were buried under piles of recycled materials - such as newspapers - that no one wanted to buy.

The incinerator industry complained it was being unfairly singled out for regulatory requirements that were not being applied to operators of trash landfills.

Within the administration, Energy Department officials charged the EPA plan would clash with the emerging National Energy Strategy by reducing operations - and thus heat output - from trash incinerators linked to power generators. Draft versions of the energy strategy call for such waste-to-energy plants to play a larger role in the nation's energy mix.

DALLAS (DEC. 20) UPI - A federal court jury on Thursday convicted former Vernon Savings and Loan owner Don Dixon on 23 charges of misusing thrift funds on a California beach home where he hosted lavish parties with prostitutes.

The verdict came after 11 days of deliberation. The jury of seven women and five men reported they were deadlocked at one point, but U.S. District Judge Joe Fish told them to keep working.

Dixon and his attorney, William Ravkind, showed little reaction to the verdict which came at 11 a.m. Later Dixon turned and embraced his wife and mother. "I've had better days," he told a reporter as he left. Ravkind said, "You live and die by these jury verdicts. I've been around too long to really talk about it."

U.S. Attorney Robert Hauberg said the convictions made a clear statement that savings and loan fraud cases can be successfully prosecuted. "We believe it sends a message to the banking and savings and loan community here in the state of Texas that their own citizens will hold them responsible," he said. Hauberg said Dixon was the first owner of a Texas thrift to be convicted on charges of "personally benefiting from his abuse of the institution."

Sentencing is scheduled Feb. 19. Ravind said no decison had been made on an appeal. Vernon's failure in 1987 set a record as the most costly savings and loan failure at that time. The bailout cost $1.3 billion, officials said.

Most of the 23 counts related the Solana Beach, Calif. home bought with Vernon funds and used to win the favor of regulators and politicians with lavish parties and prostitutes. He was acquitted on 15 counts mostly related to political contributions. Jurors said little to reporters. "Its been a long road, we need to rest," one said to a reporter.

During closing arguments, Prosecutor Davis Jarvis said Dixon used Vernon funds to pay for the beach house which he used like his own. "This master manipulator didn't care as long as it served his purpose," he said. "It was Dixon's house and not Vernon's."

Ravkind argued the government wanted to make Dixon a scapegoat for the thrift industry collapse and that its case had been scripted with plenty of sex and politics thrown in to convince the jury.

Throughout his testimony, Dixon claimed he was only trying to save Vernon at a time when the economy was declining and the 1986 tax reform act was threatening the incentives for real estate investment.

Dixon admitted that female entertainment was provided on company trips and in hindsight he could see that was wrong. He said, however, that his employees arranged the escorts and he was not directly involved.

"This is not a referendum on prostitution," Jarvis said. "The issue is whether federally-insured funds can be used to hire prostitutes and the answer, ladies and gentlemen, is absolutely not."

Jarvis described as "a most absurd statement and ridiculous lie" Dixon's testimony that he did not know about laws governing campaign contributions. "And yet he (Dixon) asked his officers to make personal contributions and approved reimbursement for them from Vernon funds," he said.

Jarvis said Dawn Baum Simmons, Dixon's former secretary, was the most devastating witness against her former boss. She said Dixon asked her to "filter" political contributions through expense accounts and she refused. "Over and over again Dixon was playing while Vernon was paying," the prosecutor said.

Dixon bought the Vernon, Texas thrift in 1982 and the next year moved it to Dallas. Vernon deposits grew from $80 million to 1982 to $1.6 billion in 1986, when federal regulators forced Dixon from control.

When regulators declared Vernon insolvent, the FBI began a fraud investigation. Since then, ten people connected with Vernon have been convicted on various federal charges. Seven of them were former Vernon officers.

OTTAWA (DEC. 20) UPI - Canada's aviation safety board Thursday urged the federal government to crack down on small commercial aircraft operators who are putting customers at risk by pushing pilots to fly in adverse and potentially dangerous weather conditions.

The Transportation Safety Board of Canada, a federal government agency, said in a report that failure to complete assignments because of poor weather was costly to small charter companies that already suffered from low-capital investment and high economic risk.

''There are many pressures on the company, the client and the pilot to get the job done,'' the Board said.

An estimated 6 percent of all aviation accidents in Canada involved pilots ''pushing the weather'', the Board said. The phenomena, in which pilots encounter poor weather but decide to continue the flight anyway, also accounted for 23 percent of all fatal accidents.

''Whatever you call it, the practice is dangerous and potentially fatal,'' a spokesman for the Board said.

Most of the small charter companies involved in the accidents operate in the harsh northern environment where transportation is seasonal and intensely active during the summer months, the report added.

Pilots continue to fly fixed-wing planes and helicopters in poor conditions by using visual references to the ground or water. But the Board said minimum visibility requirements - three miles in controlled airspace and one mile in uncontrolled space - were insufficient because pilots often had difficulty determining how far they could see.

''A visibility of 1 mile leaves no margin for error,'' the Board said, adding that regulations in the United States are already much tougher. Commercial pilots in the United States cannot use visual references in uncontrolled airspace when the ceiling is less than 1,000 feet unless flight visibility is at least 2 miles.

The danger of flying in poor weather is increased significantly in mountainous terrain where small planes are hampered by strong winds and severe turbulence, the report said, recommending that minimum visibility in such areas be increased to 2 miles.

According to the report, the largest clients of charter services have surpassed government standards by demanding additional safety precautions when they book planes, including mandatory passenger briefings before takeoff, extra survival equipment, additional aircraft maintenace facilities and better-trained pilots.

The board said the federal government should catch up in its standards and audit procedures to better protect customers.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - President Bush told a group of congressmen Thursday the best way to avoid war with Iraq is for Saddam Hussein to realize he is ''going to get his ass kicked,'' a Republican congressman said.

Rep. Elton Gallegly, R-Calif., said after a meeting with the president at the White House that Bush had reiterated his desire to avoid conflict in the five-month standoff in the Persian Gulf and that Saddam's getting the message had the ''greatest potential for preventing any kind of armed confrontation.''

''To quote him (Bush),'' Gallegly said, '''If we get into an armed situation, he's going to get his ass kicked.''

The California Republican was one of eight congressmen who just returned from a three-day trip to the Middle East.

Another, Rep. George ''Buddy'' Darden, D-Ga., reported that Bush also had said he has ''crossed the Rubicon'' on using force as an option to drive Iraq from Kuwait, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president has not decided if military action will be necessary.

Fitzwater acknowledged that Bush had told the lawmakers he had ''come to terms in his own mind on the use of force (as an option) a long time ago.''

The spokesman said Bush reached that decision ''when he sent the first troops'' to the Persian Gulf in August.

''We believe there will come a time when force will have to be exercised,'' noted Fitzwater, but no decision had been made on whether a military solution will be ordered.

The administration has publicly expressed doubts about effectiveness of the U.N.-imposed economic sanctions against Iraq, and has indicated there is no sign that its troops are preparing to withdraw from Kuwait.

If force is deemed necessary, it does not appear that Bush will hold off long after the Jan. 15 deadline mandated by the United Nations for the complete Iraqi withdrawl from Kuwait.

Rep. Mike McNulty, D-N.Y. said the president made a reference to summer. ''He said he didn't think we should wait that long but he didn't get much more specific than that,'' the congressman added.

Fitzwater agreed that Bush was running out of patience.

''The president did indicate a summertime time frame would be difficult,'' he said. Furthermore, he said the United Nations ''clearly indicates that Iraq must be out of Kuwait by Jan. 15.''

Fitzwater also addressed controversial remarks of Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller, second in command of Operation Desert Shield, who expressed doubt on Wednesday that American forces will be ready for combat by mid January.

With a smile, Fitzwater told reporters ''it never hurts build a little uncertainty'' into the strategy.

''It doesn't hurt to put a little grief in Saddam Hussein's mind. We think it's not necessarily bad to have a little mystery. We believe our forces are ready whenever they are called upon. They are ready now in terms of service and mission. They are ready for a test,'' said Fitzwater.

It appears that there will be no retribution against Waller. ''He's in good shape,'' Fitzwater said. Former Gen. Michael Dugan, Air Force chief of staff, was given his walking papers after disclosing to reporters this fall that the U.S. battle plan centered on the bombing of Baghdad.

Rep. Anthony Beilenson, D-Calif., who headed the delegation, said he told Bush that troop morale was high. He also reported that Middle Eastern leaders suggested that ''only a credible military threat'' will ''nly a credible m

''Nobody was suggesting over there I think that it could be done terribly quickly or terribly easily or that there wouldn't be some casualties,'' he said.

Both Sens. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, reported Wednesday military commanders predicted a war would last no more than five days.

LONDON (DEC. 20) UPI - Asil Nadir, who faces 18 charges of theft and false accounting in connection with his collapsed trading empire Polly Peck, was released Thursday from jail after posting a nearly $7 million bail, court officials said.

Nadir, said to be Britain's 36th-richest man until Polly Peck ran into trouble had been in a London jail since his arrest Saturday at London's Heathrow airport while his lawyers struggled to raise his $6.7 million bail. The charges center on alleged misuse of company funds and alleged illegal share dealing in the weeks leading up to the company's collapse.

Polly Peck, valued at $3.8 billion earlier this year, went into administration - proceedings similar to Chapter 11 bankruptcy in the United States - in October, with debts of $2.5 billion.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - On the eve of the second anniversary of the terrorist bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, U.S. and British officials said Thursday that ''substantial progress'' has been made toward solving the case.

But in a joint statement, FBI Director William Sessions and George Esson, chief constable of Dumfries, Scotland, said it would serve no useful purpose to release details about the largest criminal investigation in history.

''A number of people associated with families of the victims and others would like the progress that has been made to be disclosed,'' the statement said. ''To do so would not be in the best interests of the investigation.''

The statement comes amid persistent reports that the United States may have unwittingly played a role in the Dec. 21, 1988, crash that killed 259 passengers and 11 people on the ground. Officials representing the Drug Enforcement Administration appeared at a congressional hearing Tuesday to dispute media reports that the bomb was slipped into a suitcase belonging to a DEA informant.

Family members of crash victims have criticized the probe and are calling for disclosure of what the investigation has turned up so far.

''We're calling for a full investigation,'' said Rosemary Wolfe, a member of Families of Pan Am 103-Lockerbie. ''We're concerned about airline security in the future.''

In the joint statement, Sessions and Esson said: ''While all associated with the investigation are sensitive to the feelings of those who lost loved ones either on the aircraft or on the ground in Lockerbie, little information regarding the investigaiton can be relased at present.

''It can, however, be said that substantial progress has been made since this time last year,'' the statement said. ''We remain committed to an international approach requiring the greatest cooperation from those involved and we are very grateful to those who have worked so tirelessly to assist us.''

The statement is essentially the same as comments made by Sessions a year ago and echoed last June by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh. During a meeting with Scottish officials, Thornburgh said ''significant progress'' had been made in the case.

Some have speculated that the United States is dragging its feet in the investigation to cover up its role in the bombing. Broadcast reports last month said Pan Am flights from Frankfurt, West Germany, including Flight 103, had been used several times by an undercover DEA operation to fly informants and suitcases of heroin into Detroit. The flights were part of an elaborate sting operation to snare Middle East drug dealers.

The reports said drug operatives may have uncovered the top-secret operation and retaliated by slipping a bomb in the suitcase of Khalid Jafaar, a Lebanese-American said to be acting as a DEA courier.

The DEA has denied any involvement, but nevertheless conducted an internal review, as did the FBI, another branch of the Justice Department. Both agencies said there was no evicence the allegations were true.

Investigators reportedly believe that the bombing was ordered by Iran, and orchestrated by the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command, in retaliation for the U.S. downing of an Iranian Airbus jetliner over the Persian Gulf.

Official pronouncements that the case is progressing are of no consolation to Pan Am family members. Joan Dater, representing Victims of Pan Am 103, said ''it is sad to say two years later'' that no one has been publicly identified or arrested for the bombing.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (DEC. 20) UPI - Despite a series of potentially crippling glitches, the shuttle Columbia's crew brought back ''an incredible wealth of scientific data'' about the violent universe, the astronauts said Thursday.

At the same time, the seven shuttle fliers said they demonstrated the value of manned space flight by their ability to overcome problems in orbit that would have derailed an unmanned mission with the same goals.

''From a spaceflight point of view, it was immensely successful,'' astronaut Jeffrey Hoffman said of the nine-day astronomy flight. ''We got a lot of challenges, more than we ever expected, and through it all we managed to keep the (Astro-1 space) observatory running.

''We're waiting anxiously to see the fruits of our labors and the labors of all the scientists and engineers on the ground. I'm confident those fruits will be an incredible wealth of scientific data. We really can't wait.''

At a news conference in Houston that was monitored at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, veteran shuttle commander Vance Brand agreed, saying: ''This flight, more than many, demonstrated the value of man in space.''

Columbia, bolted to the back of a 747 jumbo jet, returned to the Kennedy Space Center Thursday after a cross-country flight from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., bringing the mission full circle after blastoff Dec. 2 from nearby launch pad 39B.

Brand, who at 59 was the oldest human to fly in space, said Columbia's flight would be his last space mission, leaving him tied with six other astronauts and cosmonauts with four flights apiece.

''I certainly enjoy spaceflight, but ... we have 11 assigned crews now,'' he said. ''The line is long enough that I wouldn't want to have a long gray beard when I tried it again. So I think I'll have a change of career. I would like to probably continue on with NASA in some sort of management role.''

Running six months behind schedule because of hydrogen fuel leaks, Columbia blasted off Dec. 2 on a long-awiated mission to study the most violent stars and galaxies in the universe with a $150 million battery of telescopes sensitive to X-rays and ultraviolet light.

Joining Brand and Hoffman, 46, aboard Columbia were co-pilot Guy Gardner, 42, John ''Mike'' Lounge, 44, Robert Parker, 53, and civilian astronomers Ronald Parise, 39, and Samuel Durrance, 47.

Working around the clock in two 12-hours shifts, Hoffman, Parker, Durrance and Parise - all four hold doctorates in astronomy - operated three telescopes in the shuttle's payload bay that were sensitive to ultraviolet light, radiation that is blocked by Earth's atmosphere.

A fourth telescope, one sensitive to X-rays, was operated from the ground by remote control.

After finally getting a $50 million telescope mount to work properly, the second of two critical control computers overheated and burned out, leaving the astronauts with no way to automatically aim the three ultraviolet telescopes on the European-built Instrument Pointing System.

Scrambling to salvage the mission, engineers on the ground worked out a way for the astronauts to manually guide the IPS after engineers on the ground aimed the telescopes in the general direction of a target by remote control.

After that, Columbia's crew was able to gather priceless data about high-energy astronomical targets around the clock in a major step forward for humanity's understanding of the structure and evolution of the cosmos.

Durrance said the shuttle astronomers gathered ''a rich, deep harvest of ultraviolet astronomy data'' that will spawn dozens of scientific papers.

But Hoffman refused to characterize the overall success of the flight, saying ''the story of this mission isn't finished until those (scientific) papers are written. It's up to the scientists who have this data now to give that answer.''

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) UPI - Outbreaks of salmonella from eating contaminated eggs have spread across the country and now represent a major public health problem the federal Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

Previously, salmonella outbreaks had been confined primarily to the New England and Middle Atlantic states. But outbreaks are now occurring in other parts of the country, said Dr. Ban Mishu, a CDC epidemiologist.

''Salmonella enteritidis (SE) has increased dramatically from the early 1980s '' Mishu said. ''It is a major public health problem that's growing and one that we're trying to control.''

In its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the CDC said it had received reports of 49 outbreaks of salmonella caused by SE from January through October of this year. Of that number, 22, or 45 percent, occurred outside the New England and Middle Atlantic states.

SE is one of many types of salmonella and is found primarily in eggs.

Identification of SE bacteria as a cause of salmonella is becoming increasingly common and is indicative of the major role contaminated eggs are playing in the spread of the disease, Mishu said.

''During 1985-1989, state and territorial health departments reported 244 SE outbreaks which accounted for 8,607 cases of illness, 1,094 hospitalizations and 44 deaths. Of the 109 outbreaks in which a food vehicle was identified, 89 (82 percent) were associated with shell eggs, '' the CDC said.

A salmonella infection causes abdominal pain, fever, diarrhea, nausea, vomiting and dehydration.

Most cases of SE once were believed caused by eggs that became contaminated after being cracked. But in the 1980s, health officials discovered that entire flocks of chickens and turkeys were infected by the SE bacterium and that the organism was being transmitted from the chicken to the egg and hence to consumers.

The CDC said federal health officials have implemented two major control measures to deal with the salmonella problem caused by contaminated eggs. The Department of Agriculture began investigating flocks of hens last February and interstate movement of eggs from contaminated flocks was restricted. Eggs from such flocks either are diverted to pasteurization plants or the flock is destroyed.

Also, in August the Food and Drug Administration revised food safety codes to include eggs as a potentially hazardous food. The revision recommends that eggs be refrigerated during storage. In addition, food service establishments are advised not to serve raw or undercooked eggs and to serve pasteurized eggs when possible.

''Raw eggs are a public health hazard,'' Mishu said. ''Eggs should be cooked thoroughly.'' That means cooking at 140 degrees Fahrenheit, she said.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (DEC. 20) UPI - Syracuse University basketball players received Christmas cards containing money, traded tickets for favors and enjoyed generous deals on car rentals, the Syracuse Post Standard reported Thursday.

A seven-month investigation by the newspaper revealed 10 players received hundreds of dollars from Orangemen boosters such as basketball Hall of Famer Dave Bing and Bill Rapp Jr., a local car dealer and friend of basketball coach Jim Boeheim.

Rodney Walker, a former player, said he rented cars for the weekend from Rapp, usually paying him $15 at a time.

Derrick Coleman, who signed a $15 million contract with the New Jersey Nets after being the No. 1 pick in last spring's NBA draft, said he recently gave $500 to Billy Owens, his former teammate and current star of the No. 3 Orangemen.

Coleman said Owens called him and asked for spending money for the Maui Classic in November.

''That's my man,'' Coleman said. ''All the guys are good. I'm sure if they call me and ask me for something, if I got it, you know, I'll send it to them.''

Owens denied the allegation, the newspaper said.

The newspaper, which interviewed scores of players, parents, coaches and others during its investigation, reported one player had a grade changed so he could skirt rules on academic eligibility and play an important Big East Conference game in 1987 when Syracuse went to the NCAA championship game.

Players said they gave game tickets to local businessmen in return for merchandise or to satisfy a debt, which is forbidden under NCAA rules.

Players told the newspaper they typically received $50 bills inside Christmas cards from Rapp.

''It just said, 'Merry Christmas, Bill Rapp,' something like that,'' said George Papadakos, a center who since has transferred. One unidentified player said, ''Everyone took the money and trashed the card.''

However, other players said they don't remember receiving cash in the greeting cards.

Boeheim denied any improprieties.

''The NCAA has looked at everything we've done,'' he said. ''We tried to do everything we can to see that nothing happens.''

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - New findings provide the first steps towards developing tests to determine if a woman has inherited a tendency towards breast cancer, researchers said Thursday.

For the first time, scientists have found the approximate location of a gene involved in an inherited form of breast cancer.

About 5 percent to 10 percent of the 150,000 breast cancer cases reported in the United States each year are thought to be hereditary, but until now researchers have not been able to find the gene or genes responsible for the inherited cancer cases.

Finding the inherited genetic defects that predispose women to breast cancer could lead to tests to identify which women in families with high rates of breast cancer are at risk for the disease. Those at risk could then be monitored closely and also receive experimental treatments aimed at heading off the cancer.

In addition, identifying the gene or genes reponsible for inherited breast cancer may provide clues to the genetic mutations underlying the more common, non-inherited types of breast cancer.

''Ultimately, if all the genes causing breast cancer can be mapped, identified and their functions understood, the disease could be detected and treated very early in its development,'' said Mary-Claire King of the University of California-Berkeley's School of Public Health.

In a study published in the journal Science, King and her colleagues looked at the genetic makeup of 23 white families with unusually high rates of breast cancer. The women in the families tended to develop breast cancer before age 45, and were more likely to have cancer in both breasts than other patients.

The California researchers found that women with breast cancer appeared to share a genetic pattern on the long arm of so-called chromosome 17 that was different than their disease-free counterparts.

Each person has 23 chromosomes bearing about 100,000 genes that contain the blueprints for everything from hair color to disease risk.

Dr. John Laszlo of the American Cancer Society hailed the new findings, saying they provide ''important pieces of the puzzle'' about which women are at greatest risk for breast cancer. About one in 10 American women will develop breast cancer during their lifetimes, and about 45,000 women die of the disease in this country each year.

''The trick is to identify those patients who are at risk,'' Bert Vogelstein of Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions told Science, noting breast cancer deaths should be totally preventable if the tumors are caught in the earliest stages.

The precise location of the newly discovered breast cancer susceptibility gene as well as its function, is not yet known. However, researchers think they can use the newly discovered genetic pattern to tell members of the 23 families whether they are at high risk of developing breast cancer.

However, another study by University of Utah researchers did not find a strong association between the genetic region singled out by the California team and the risk of inherited breast cancer.

The Utah work, published in Science, also indicates that the genetic predisposition to cancer may be somewhat more common than previously believed.

Researchers found that women belonging to 20 Utah families with a high rate of breast cancer were about three times more likely to have a non-malignant condition, called proliferative breast disease or PBD, than women in the general population.

PBD, a non-cancerous growth of cells lining the milk duct, is sometimes, but not always, a precursor to breast cancer. Dr. John Ward, co-author of the study, said better detection of PBD may help expand understanding of the genetic basis of breast cancer in much the same way that identifying people with a tendency to non-cancerous colon polyps broadened knowledge about colon cancer inheritance.

Ward said the technique his team used to detect PBD, which involved drawing out tissue samples from the breast through a fine, hollow needle, currently is recommended only for research purposes, not as a general screening tool.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned today, warning that opposition to change in the Soviet Union is leading to a new

''dictatorship.'' His speech to the Congress of People's Deputies took everyone by surprise, and Shevardnadze told delegates that his decision was final, even though they later voted 15- hundred-40 to 52 to have him reconsider. Shevardnadze is one of Mikhail Gorbachev's closest allies. He warned that reactionary conservative forces are on the move in the Soviet Union and may destroy perestroika.

There is considerable tugging and pulling in Washington today over whether U-S troops are ready for any action against Iraq come January 15th, the deadline set by the U-N. The second-highest-ranking U-S military man in Saudi Arabia says that some of the troops ordered up on November 8th by President Bush are still arriving and may NOT be ready for combat until the middle of February. The comments from Lieutenant General Calvin Waller are being played down at the White House. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says General Waller really meant to say U-S troops may NOT be as ready by January 15th as everyone would like.

The first elected parliament of a united Germany in nearly 60 years convened today in the historic Reichstag building in Berlin. The inaugural gathering of the 660 deputies voted overwhelmingly to re-elect conservative Rita Suessmuth as parliamentary president. In an acceptance speech, she told the deputies that their jobs is to complete the unity of people in eastern and western Germany and work for European unification.

The Missouri Supreme Court today refused to order hospital officials to resume feeding Nancy Cruzan, whose family won the right last week to have a feeding tube removed from the woman. Cruzan has been kept alive by the feeding tube because she is hospitalized in a vegetative state for nearly eight years. The Missouri high court issued a two-sentence statement denying a petition filed by a woman who opposed the right-to- die ruling. Hospital officials said Cruzan would die in a two weeks without the feeding tube, and her condition has deteriorated since it was removed.

The Cable News Network may be back in court yet for releasing the contents of tapes of former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega talking with his defense lawyers. The judge in the case has told federal prosecutors to prepare a brief against C-N-N for defying his order NOT to air the recordings. The temporary restraining order was issued on November 8th after C-N-N ran part of the tape. The judge wanted to see if the conversations violated Noriega's right to a fair trial. C-N-N then aired two additional segments in violation of that order.

The World Health Organization says at least 250-Million sexually transmitted infections occurred world-wide each year and the growing epidemic is creating what is termed a ''public health nightmare.'' And the W-H-O says young adults now account for the largest share of the 250-Million infections, with the highest incidence reported among people aged 20 through 24. A spokesman says that if sexual behavior is NOT modified and effective new prevention and control programs developed, the disease and mortality rates will be even worse.

MIAMI (DEC. 20) UPI - Former Panamanian dictator Manuel Noriega, deposed a year ago by a U.S. invasion, has been awaiting trial in a Miami prison for nearly a year on drug and racketeering charges and it looks like he has another six months to wait.

He faces a myriad of charges largely involving the shipment of drugs and drug money from the notorious cocaine cartel in Medellin, Colombia, Panama City's closest metropolitan cousin, to the United States.

His trial date has been postponed at least twice - most recently last week - and despite hundreds of hours in legal wrangling does not appear to be much closer than when he arrived in Miami on Jan. 4.

''Right now we're sort of in a holding pattern,'' said lawyer Jon May, the appellate member of Noriega's defense team. ''We are months and months behind.''

May blamed the delays on the government. He said prosecutors have been less than cooperative in moving the case along.

U.S. Attorney Dexter Lehtinen would not comment on May's allegations. He has said many times his team is ready for trial. He also claims the case has moved at a steady pace since Noriega and 15 others were indicted in November 1988.

''The investigation has progressed quite a bit in the past two years, '' he said. ''We have had two defendants plead guilty. We're preparing for trial but the defense has indicated they need more time to prepare.''

Part of the problem, defense attorneys say, has to do with money. Defense attorneys say they have not been paid and have been unable to conduct crucial pretrial investigations.

At the request of prosecutors, several foreign governments froze Noriega's assets. Those governments have been hesitant to release the money because they are entitled to keep ill-gotten gains and Noriega's assets are in the millions.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler ordered the government to help the defense gain access to those funds and a group of Justice Department officials is in Europe trying to persuade France, Austria and Switzerland to release some of the money.

Hoeveler said he is satisfied the government is making a good faith effort to get the funds, but May questioned Lehtinen's motives.

''I don't know what's going on,'' he said. ''I would hope they are making the effort. The court believes they are but to me that the United States would suddenly send a delegation to Europe: it seems they are acting in our interests when their self interests coincide with ours.''

Meanwhile, the four defense lawyers have agreed to sign on as court- appointed attorneys earning up to $75 an hour, far less than the $350 an hour such a case can command, at least until the government delegation returns from Europe.

''That will permit us in the interim to get investigators hired. The (government) provides for necessary costs and expenses for a defense and we are required to reimburse most of the expenses,'' May said. ''We're trying very hard to keep the taxpayers from paying for the general's defense.''

Defense attorneys have indicated they may be forced to quit unless the general's assets are released. They have claimed they cannot prepare the type of defense required to win such a notorious case on what the government pays.

Another stumbling block of late has been the CNN tapes. Cable News Network obtained and aired tapes from telephone conversations Noriega has had from his cell at Metropolitan Correction Center.

Lead defense attorney Frank Rubino claims a CNN reporter got the tapes from an official in Panama who received them from the Justice Department.

CNN has refused to reveal its source, but Hoeveler Wednesday ordered prosecutors to prepare criminal contempt charges against CNN for airing some of the tapes against his orders. CNN officials said they expect the network to be exonerated.

The defense team also has a motion for dismissal pending because of the CNN tapes and several other issues they claim inhibit Noriega's right to a fair trial.

Two of Noriega's co-defendants pleaded guilty. In May, Eduardo Pardo was sentenced to 30 months in prison after pleading guilty to flying drug profits from the United States to Panama.

Just two weeks ago, Lt. Col. Luis del Cid, said to be the right hand man in Noriega's drug dealings with the Medellin Cartel, pleaded guilty in an agreement that calls for him to testify against the general in exchange for a possible three-year sentence.

Both May and Rubino don't think del Cid can significantly damage Noriega. In fact, ''if he tells the truth,'' he should help Noriega, Marino said.

Noriega and 15 others were indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami in February 1988 on charges of drug trafficking and money laundering. The 12-count indictment accuses Noriega of allowing Colombian drug lords to use Panama as a safe haven for shipping cocaine to the United States and stockpiling their profits, in return for at least $4.6 million in payoffs.

If convicted, Noriega would face a maximum penalty of 145 years in prison and $1.1 million in fines.

AUSTIN, TX (DEC. 20) UPI - Prodigy, a White Plains, N.Y.-based computer information service, agreed Thursday to refund four months of fees to Texas subscribers who want to cancel the service.

The Texas attorney general's office had accused the computer service, which is owned jointly by International Business Machines Corp, of Armonk, N.Y., and Sears, Roebuck and Co., of Chicago, of misleading customers about its costs and services.

In an agreement reached with the attorney general's office, Prodigy also said it would "clearly and conspicuously" disclose all fees in future advertisements.

Prodigy agreed to notify Texas subscribers to the service for the period Sept. 6, 1990 to Dec. 7, 1990 that they may cancel the service and receive a refund of all fees.

Prodigy allows subscribers to access a host of information services, including weather, news, and shopping networks. In addition, subscribers may send messages to one another by computer. The service has several hundred thousand subscribers in Texas.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said the main selling point of the service was that it charged a flat monthly rate with no usage charges. But he said Prodigy did not notify its subscribers in September when it began charging 25 cents for each message in excess of 30 messages per month.

Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Mattox, said the computer service was advertising that its electronic message service was free at the same time that it was charging subscribers for the service. The company also agreed to reimburse the state of Texas $12,500 for investigative costs.

FOXBORO, MA (DEC. 20) UPI - The New England Patriots, riding a 12-game losing streak and completing the most embarrassing season in the history of the franchise, Thursday hired University of Miami Athletic Director Sam Jankovich as the club's chief executive officer.

The announcement came after two days of meetings between owner Victor Kiam and Jankovich. Jankovich, who brought a sinking Miami athletic program to national prominence in the 1980s, also met with General Manager Pat Sullivan, who will remain with the Pats.

Jankovich said Sullivan will be involved in community relations and salary negotiations.

Terms of Jankovich's contract were not disclosed but there have been reports it is worth $500,000 a year for five years.

Jankovich said no decision had been made to fire Coach Rod Rust, whose team is 1-13 and has lost 12 straight games.

''That decision will not be made in haste,'' Jankovich said. ''There are two football games left. We will meet at the end of the football season.''

He also said he would talk with the players after the season to get their views.

The University of Miami said it would immediately begin a search for a new athletic director. Jankovich said reports that he might bring Hurricane Coach Dennis Erickson with him were not true, adding the Miami coach had signed a 5-year contract extension binding him to Miami.

''This is a new era for the Patriots,'' Kiam said. ''He is the owners' representative and chief executive officer and will be in complete control of all aspects of the New England Patriots organization.''

Kiam and the Patriots have been mired in a dismal season. The NFL fined the Patriots and several players for the sexual harrassment of a woman reporter in the locker room. In another incident, receivers Irving Fryar and Hart Lee Dykes were involved in a bar-room incident in Rhode Island.

The team has played before the NFL's five smallest crowds this year, four of the games at home.

''We are not coming in here with a broom to sweep things clean,'' Jankovich said. ''But if we have to make changes we will.''

When Jankovich arrived at Miami seven years ago the Hurricanes sold 12,000 season tickets. This year they sold 58,000.

During his stay at Miami, he hired football coaches Jimmy Johnson and Erickson revived the basketball program, which had been dormant for more than a decade placed Miami in the Big East Conference and is on the verge of putting together financing for an on-campus center that would serve as a basketball arena.

#90354u1339 12/20/1990 ~United Press International
NEW YORK (DEC. 20) UPI - First National Bank of Chicago responded to the Federal Reserve's loosening of the nation's credit reins by cutting Thursday its prime lending rate half a percentage point, but the largest U.S. banks and biggest regional institutions resisted pressure to follow suit.

First Chicago cut its prime, a touchstone for loans to mid-sized corporations and small businesses and for some home equity loans, to 9.5 percent from ten percent. The move by the 11th-largest U.S. bank came two weeks after Southwest Bank of St. Louis led the way down to 9.5 percent.

Southwest was quickly matched by Manufacturers & Traders Bank, a Buffalo, N.Y.-based unit of First Empire State Corp., and First Fidelity Bancorp of Lawrenceville, N.J., and Norwest Bank of Minnesota lowered its prime this week to 9.75 percent from ten percent.

But as of late Thursday the nation's ten largest New York and West Coast money-center banks, as well as the so-called super-regionals, hadn't responded to the Fed's easing signals by passing lower costs to customers.

This week, the Fed lowered the discount rate, a rarely adjusted but important benchmark, to 6.5 percent from seven percent and guided the Federal funds rate on interbank borrowing down to seven percent from 7.25 percent.

That gave big U.S. banks a generous spread, or profit margin, of three percentage points between their cost of funds and their profits from lending money out. Most often, the spread is of 1.5 to two percentage points.

The popular perception that banks weren't sharing the rate break from the Fed with the rest of the country brewed some discontent. "You're seeing a lot of political pressure, a lot of consumer pressure," said industry analyst Frank Anderson of Stephens Inc. in Little Rock, Ark. But "it's a question more of when, not if," prime rates descend, he added.

"There's always some degree of stickiness" in the prime's descent following a Fed easing, said Frederick Wolf, a partner in consulting firm Price Waterhouse who specializes in government financial services. "Will it come down?" Wolf asked. "Yes. I can't imagine that it's going to do anything other than that."

Most big banks declined to respond to criticisms. "We don't comment on rates unless and until" they are adjusted, said John Keane, vice president ofcorporate public relations with San Francisco's BankAmerica Corp.

The White House said it wouldn't jawbone the banks. "These things take time," said presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater. "The markets will take care of that in due course. We're not trying to speed up the process."

Anderson said that while profit is no doubt a factor in bankers' reticence to bring down rates, the parlous condition of U.S. financial institutions and rising costs they face in 1991 also are coming into play.

"Commercial banks' profitability or earnings are under great strain now," said Anderson, citing loan losses and a sharp hike in premiums required by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Next year banks will pay 19.5 cents per $100 in covered deposits, up 62 percent from 12 cents.

FDIC officials are also talking about a one-time assessment of one percent of all deposits to recapitalize the FDIC fund, facing depletion under a cresting wave of bank failures. "You're talking about a hit," Anderson said. "The consumer's got a complaint, no doubt," concluded Anderson. "But in order to have a healthy bank system, banks have to make money."

David C. Cates, chairman of Ferguson & Co., a Washington-based bank analysis firm, said that in any case the prime has become "a very artificial rate" that doesn't reflect currently tight, expensive credit markets.

Creditworthy customers are finding less money available, and at higher rates. "A businessman ought to feel good if he is able to get a continuation of his banking relationships at a reasonable price," Cates said.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (DEC. 20) UPI - The Florida Office of the Comptroller Thursday filed enforcement actions against 11 securities companies for alleged violations of the state's "cold call" rule, among other regulations.

State Comptroller Gerald Lewis, who announced the legal action at a news conference, said brokers at the 11 companies sought to sell low-priced securities known as "penny stocks" to strangers over the phone in apparent violation of the regulation, which was adopted Jan. 1. Enforcement actions also were filed against 65 individuals, Lewis said.

The state rule requires that any customer initially contacted by telephone must agree to the transaction in writing before a sale can be finalized, if he or she had no previous business relationship with the salesperson.

The restriction was designed to protect customers from high-pressure sales pitches, Lewis said. The companies face revocation of their licenses and fines. They have 21 days to challenge the actions against them.

"I think we have gotten a real handle on penny stock fraud," said Lewis, whose office has closed 45 so-called penny stock companies in Florida since launching an enforcement campaign in January 1988. "We think we have made a real dent in this type of fraud," he added.

In addition to violating the state's "cold call" rule, officials also said the companies failed to determine if the solicited stock purchasers were suitable investors. The firms also were cited for failing to supervise their sales staffs and not maintaining proper books and records.

Lewis' agency, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the National Association of Securities Dealers launched the probe in March. Florida was the only state asked to participate in the sweep, which targeted 188 companies nationwide.

Six of the companies named Thursday are based in Colorado, but have offices in Florida. They are Brennan Ross Securities Inc. of Fort Lauderdale; First Eagle Inc. of Boca Raton and Palm Harbor; H.T. Fletcher Securities Corp. of Boca Raton; Kober Financial Corp. of Tampa and Boca Raton; Malone and Associates Inc. of Fort Lauderdale and Boca Raton; and MLB Investments Ltd. of Longwood, Pensacola and Palm Beach Garden.

Three New York firms with branches in Florida also were named. They are G.K. Scott and Company Inc. of Boca Raton, Fort Lauderdale, West Palm Beach and Port St. Lucie; Global Capital Securities Inc. of Boca Raton; and GSG Global Securities Group Inc. of Boca Raton and Sunrise.

Also named were Michigan-based Horizons International Corp. with a branch office in Boca Raton and Washington-based Koch Capital with offices in Boca Raton, Tampa and Deerfield Beach.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (DEC. 20) UPI - The Rhode Island Supreme Court ruled Thursday that Vincent A. ''Buddy'' Cianci Jr. can return as mayor of Providence, despite the criminal record he earned for assaulting his wife's reputed lover.

In a 4-1 vote, the court rejected arguments that Cianci's narrow victory in the Nov. 6 election should be voided because of a 1986 amendment to the state constitution regarding convicted felons holding public office. The justices also said Cianci's challengers filed their objections too late.

Chief Justice Thomas Fay was the lone dissenter. Cianci, 49, is scheduled to be inaugurated Jan. 7.

''We were living on a high wire for a while, but basically we're down from there and it's a great feeling,'' said Cianci, who served as mayor from 1974-84 before being forced to resign because of the assault.

The ruling marked a stunning political comeback for Cianci, whose first administration was also plagued by corruption scandals that led to convictions or indictments of more than two dozen officials.

''As far as I'm concerned, the ball game is over,'' said Frederick Cass, a lawyer who challenged Cianci's right to take office.

Cass had complained about telephone threats he received for opposing Cianci, though he never accused Cianci of being behind them. After the Supreme Court released its decision, Cass said the harassment might be over.

''The last (call) I got was on Saturday,'' Cass said. ''(The caller) said if Buddy lost I'd be dead. Buddy won.''

Cianci narrowly defeated independent candidate Frederick Lippitt and Democrat Andrew Annaldo in the Nov. 6 race for mayor. Cianci, a former Republican who also ran as an independent, finished 317 votes ahead of Lippitt.

The state Board of Elections declared Cianci the winner after a recount of voting-machine tallies, but announced at the same time a group of voters had filed an objection to his election.

The challengers cited a 1986 constitutional amendment that says convicted felons must wait three years after completing their sentences before they can take public office. They argued Cianci did not complete his sentence, five years of probation, until April 1989, and therefore was not be eligible to hold public office until April 1992.

The court ruled, however, that the amendment cannot be applied retroactively to Cianci, who was convicted and sentenced in 1984 for assaulting Raymond DeLeo, a building contractor Cianci suspected of having an affair with his now-former wife, Sheila.

The high court also said the challengers should have filed their objections soon after Cianci filed his declaration of candidacy in June, not after he won the election.

Cianci, who became a popular radio talk show host after his resignation, went on the air at WHJJ-AM shortly after the high court ruling.

''I'm just happy it turned out in may favor,'' said Cianci, who will end his daily 3-6 p.m. show on Friday.

(DEC. 20) UPI - The surprise resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze is drawing quick reaction from other world leaders. U-S Secretary of State Baker calls his Soviet counterpart ''a man of his word, a man of courage, conviction and principle.'' And Baker says the warning by Shevardnadze that reactionary forces could force the Soviet Union back toward a dictatorship is a warning that the world should take seriously.

White House news secretary Marlin Fitzwater says the swiftness of the Schevardnadze resignation indicates just how serious the political situation has become within the Soviet Union. Fitzwater calls Shevardnadze- quoting now- ''an important figure in the positive evolution of U-S-Soviet relations.''

The nation's businesses plan to increase their capital spending next year, but the Commerce Department says the two-point-four percent increase is the smallest in four years. And that is taken as another sign that the economy's pattern of strong growth has begun to fade. Treasury Secretary Brady still refused to use the ''R'' word. He woN'T say the nation is drifting into a recession, only that it is going through what he calls a ''significant economic downturn.''

Former Texas savings and loan owner Don Dixon has been found guilty on 23 of 38 charges brought before a federal jury in Dallas. Collapse of his Vernon Savings and Loan in 1987 cost taxpayers one-point-three- BILLION dollars. The charges covered everything from making illegal political contributions to using thrift money for what was called ''female entertainment'' on company trips.

For the second time in a week, a minor earthquake rattled parts of Indiana. There are NO reports of damage or injuries in the latest tremor, which was recorded at three-point-four on the open-ended Richter Scale. The tremor was reported centered about 30 miles southwest of Indianapolis. Officials say neither quake, however, was along the New Madrid fault line.

The mercury plunged well below zero in the West on the last full day of fall while high winds created dangerous and miserable wind-chill conditions. The thermometer dropped to 15 degrees at midnight in Eugene, Oregon, breaking a six-year-old record, while other record lows were tied along the north Oregon coast. The cold was worse in South Dakota, where temperatures dipped as low as 23 below zero in Custer and Buffalo. The wind-chill factor made it seem as bad as 73 below in some parts of the state.

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) UPI - The Atlanta Braves Thursday agreed to a three-year contract with second-look free agent pitcher Charlie Leibrandt, including an option for 1994.

Leibrandt, 9-11 with a 3.16 ERA in 24 starts for the Braves last year, pitched five shutouts. He allowed 72 runs - 57 earned - on 164 hits and 35 walks, while striking out 76.

Leibrandt did not pitch until June 3 because of a shoulder injury he suffered in workouts in February.

In nine years Leibrandt is 101-89 with a 3.70 ERA in 300 games. His best season was 1985, when he was 17-9 with a 2.69 ERA in 33 games for the Kansas City Royals.

Leibrandt was acquired last December along with pitcher Rick Luecken from Kansas City in exchange for Gerald Perry and minor league pitcher Jim Lemasters.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) UPI - Stocks closed narrowly mixed in active trading Thursday after recovering from an early selloff tied to news of the Soviet foreign minister's resignation.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which closed unchanged Wednesday, edged up

2.73 to close at 2629.46.

Among broader market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index lost 0.06 to 180.29. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index fell 0.08 to 330.12. The price of an average share fell one cent.

Declines led advances 819-719 among the 2,040 issues crossing the Big Board tape. Volume totaled 174,700,000 shares, down from 180,380,000 traded Wednesday.

Stocks opened sharply lower, with the Dow down more than 25 points within the first 15 minutes of trading, after news that Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, the architect of Mikhail Gorbachev's foreign policy that freed Eastern Europe and ended the Cold War, had resigned to protest conservative attacks and warn of the danger of an "impending dictatorship."

Gorbachev condemned the decision of his close ally and said he had not been consulted before Shevardnadze's surprise announcement at the Congress of People's Deputies, which voted 1,540-52 to ask Shevardnadze to reconsider.

Presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said Shevardnadze indicated to Gorbachev after the speech he would stay at the Foreign Ministry long enough to allow a smooth transition, but Shevardnadze aide and Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said the decision to resign was "final."

But the market gradually recovered with the blue chips edging into the plus column. In the broad market, while most stocks were still lower, the margin of declines over advances had narrowed to a slim one at the close.

"We came back like gangbusters," said Dennis Jarrett, chief market strategist at Kidder, Peabody & Co. "The market's just not ready to go down. People have not yet found a sufficient negative catalyst to make them cash in their chips."

While the news from the Soviet Union was certainly negative at the opening, Jarrett said "it just wasn't enough to really upset people, even though it showed instability."

He also noted some seasonal pressures at work in the market, specifically money managers who don't want to show as much cash at the end of the year as they may have held throughout the year. "So they use any weakness to place some of that in select stocks. Today it was more in the Dow than across the board," he said.

On the trading floor, Manufacturers Hanover was the most active issue, up 1 5/8 to 24 1/8. AT&T followed, off 7/8 to 30 3/8. BankAmerica was third, up 1 3/8 to 28 as banks rallied in the wake of the Federal Reserve's discount rate cut Tuesday.

IBM gained one to 113 3/4, also in active trading as did Citicorp, up 1/2 to 13 3/4.

Among the other blue chips, General Electric gained 7/8 to 57 1/2, Philip Morris rose 3/8 to 51 3/8 and American Express lost 3/4 to 21 1/2.

MOSCOW (UPI) - Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, architect of Mikhail

Gorbachev's ''new thinking'' that freed Eastern Europe and ended the Cold War, resigned Thursday to protest attacks from conservatives who, he warned, are seeking a dictatorship.

Gorbachev condemned his close ally's decision and said he had not been consulted before the suprise announcement at the Congress of People's Deputies which voted 1,540-52 to ask Shevardnadze to reconsider.

''Such a step as he took, without consultation with the president, I personally condemn,'' Gorbachev said. ''Moreover, I will tell you directly that I had reached a point in my plans where I was ready to recommend comrade Shevardnadze for (the new post of) vice president...

''Now is perhaps the most difficult time, and to leave now is unforgiveable.''

Shevardnadze made his dramatic announcement at a time when Gorbachev is seeking expanded powers as part of a government overhaul he says is needed to stave off economic and political disaster.

Gorbachev supported the measure asking Shevardnadze to reconsider and indicated he would still like the white-haired minister's services.

''Even after everything I said, I do not want you or me to think now that Shevardnadze is being written off, that he is going down in history,'' Gorbachev told lawmakers.

Gorbachev said he and Shevardnadze spoke twice by phone after the resignation announcement, and that the two men had ''agreed to meet, sit down and discuss everything.''

Presidential spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said that Shevardnadze indicated to Gorbachev he would remain in his post long enough to allow a smooth transition but Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said the decision to resign was ''final.''

''I consider it my duty as a man, as a citizen and as a Communist,'' Shevardnadze told lawmakers. ''I cannot reconcile myself to all the events that are occurring in our country, and all the trials that are awaiting our people.''

Shevardnadze, saying, ''I am his friend and we think alike,'' expressed the ''deepest thanks'' to Gorbachev.

''I support now and I will support to the end of my days the ideals of perestroika, the idea of the renewal of our society, the idea of democratization,'' Shevardndaze said. ''We accomplished marvels.''

Gorbachev urged deputies to ''confirm before our people and before the world community ... our strategy to normalize international relations,'' and the legislature's resolution declared that Soviet foreign policy will not change.

In Washington, Secretary of State James Baker bemoaned Shevardnadze's decision to resign but said he is confident that the Soviets' stance abroad will remain constructive.

''I am proud to call this man a friend,'' Baker said of Shevardnadze. ''I think that we achieved some significant things during the 23 months we were able to work together, and on a purely personal note I would have to tell you that I'm going to miss him.''

In his brief emotional speech, Shevardnadze said he was ''deeply hurt'' by the personal attacks from critics of his conciliatory foreign policy in Eastern Europe, the Persian Gulf and other regions.

Even more important than the personal attacks, Shevardnadze said, is the threat from ''reactionary'' forces that are meeting little resistance as they move against the ideals of perestroika.

''I say to you, comrade democrats, in the broadest sense of the word you ran off,'' he said. ''The reformers have fled to the bushes.''

Shevardnadze made it clear he was not imputing Gorbachev in warning of a return to the authoritarian system that ruled the country for six decades.

''No one knows what kind of dicatatorship it will be and who will come to power, who will be the dictator and what kind of regime it will be,'' Shevardnadze said.

RENO, NV (DEC. 20) UPI - The UNLV Running Rebels, having finally settled with the NCAA on a case dating back 13 years, Thursday revealed 29 new charges leveled against the basketball program.

The rule violations were uncovered in a three-year investigation made public by the Chancellor's Office of the University of Nevada system in Reno covering the 1985-1989 seasons and UNLV's involvement with controversial recruit Lloyd Daniels.

Among the NCAA charges were illegal payments of hotel and lodging bills, the illegal use of telephones and telephone credit cards, the use of an illegal ''agent'' to recruit players, the paying of a $1500 bail bond and the illegal tutoring of two athletes.

The names of those accused by the NCAA were deleted from the report by the Chancellor's Office in accordance with Nevada state public record laws. However, Coach Jerry Tarkanian's name reportedly does not appear in the report.

The NCAA, which earlier this year agreed to allow UNLV to defer a one-year probation until the 1992-93 season so the Rebels could defend their national title this year, asked in the letter of inquiry for the university to supply it within 60 days with specific information regarding the charges.

The college athletic governing body, in a foreboding move, asked UNLV also to supply its won-loss record for the past four seasons, a list of the number of athletic scholarships the university gave out from 1987- 1990, a list of the players the program has redshirted over that span and a copy of the roster for this year's team.

The charges are the lastest in what appears to be a running feud between the university and the NCAA's enforcement division. UNLV would like to put end to the contentious relationship.

''We've got to settle our differences,'' said UNLV President Robert Maxson, of the Rebels conflict with the NCAA. ''We've got to get out of the adversarial role between the NCAA and the university or we are going to go through this all the time.''

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) UPI - Sales of existing homes in the slumping California market have posted back-to-back monthly increases for the first time since February, a real estate trade group reported Thursday.

The gain in sales for November - 2.6 percent above the October level - may give an indication the real estate market in California, which accounts for nearly a fifth of the nation's home sales, may be in the process of bottoming out.

October's sales gain, as reported by the California Association of Realtors, had been 2.2 percent.

Still, the November level of sales is 27.4 percent less than that of a year ago. The state's market has been clobbered since early last year, when a two-year boom in housing prices started to fizzle as buyers were priced out of many homes on the market.

But the trade group said Thursday that declines in mortgage rates may push buyers back into the market.

''Mortgage interest rates are at their lowest levels in more than three years, and that's extremely encouraging news,'' said Leslie Appleton-Young, the association's vice president of research and economics. ''Over the long term, buyers should respond positively to improvements in affordability and the favorable interest rate environment.''

Appleton-Young conceded that the Iraqi crisis will continue to hold back potential buyers. ''We will likely see a greater impact from these lower interest rates once the Persian Gulf crisis is resolved and consumer confidence improves,'' Appleton-Young said.

Northern California's wine country and the high desert region in the southern part of the state posted sales gains of 29.5 percent and 4.3 percent, respectively.

But sales declined in Santa Clara (3.3 percent), the San Francisco Bay area (4.9 percent), Orange County (9.7 percent), Los Angeles (20.6 percent) and San Diego (22.6 percent).

The trade group also reported the November median home price increased for the first time in seven months, up 2.2 percent to $192,280 from October's figure.

''November's statewide median home price increase is a promising signal that the housing market may have stabilized,'' said Mack Powell, the association'spresident.

The biggest price increases came in Sacramento, with a 15.5 percent gain, and a 8.7 percent rise in the high desert. The San Francisco Bay area gained 1.3 percent to $250,290 and Santa Clara advanced 1.2 percent to $257,450 - the most expensive regions in the state.

The biggest fall in prices came in Los Angeles, off 3.4 percent to $292,960.

There were also declines in San Diego (1.3 percent) and Orange County (2.1 percent).

ATLANTA (DEC. 20) UPI - The nation's blood donor supply appears relatively safe from two cousins of the AIDS virus, one of which can cause leukemia and a type of degenerative nerve disorder, federal health officials said Thursday.

Only a very small fraction of blood samples tested for the viruses, known as the human T-lymphotropic virus type 1 and type 2, or HTLV-1 and HTLV-2, produced positive results, the federal Centers for Disease Control said.

The Food and Drug Administration recommended in 1988 that donated blood be screened for the viruses after some samples were found to contain the viruses. The viruses are spread in the same way as the AIDS virus - through blood transfusion, contaminated needles, sexual contact and from a mother to her newborn baby.

The AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, and the HTLV viruses belong to a family of viruses known as retroviruses because of their genetic machinery.

While HTLV-1 may cause leukemia or lymphoma and a degenerative neurologic disease called tropical spastic paraparesis, a close relative, HTLV-2, has not be conclusively shown to cause any disease, the health agency said.

More than 9 million blood donations were screened by the American Red Cross and the Council of Community Blood Centers in from December 1988 through December 1989.

''It appears that the blood banks are effectively screening out HTLV- 1 and HTLV-2,'' said Dr. Jonathan Kaplan, a medical epidemiologist with the CDC.

Only 0.014 percent and 0.021 percent of the tests were positive for HTLV-1 and HTLV-2 respectively, the CDC said.

The findings indicate the viruses are relatively uncommon in the United States the CDC said.

In addition, fewer positive tests were found in the last quarter of 1989, reflecting the success of blood screening programs aimed at discouraging carriers of the virus from donating, the CDC said.

In general, infection with the HTLV-1 virus correlated with being from or having had sexual contact with persons from the Caribbean or Japan, the CDC said.

HTLV-2 infection correlated with a history of intravenous drug use or history of sexual contact with an intravenous drug user, the CDC said.

The highest positive rates were in the Pacific region of Alaska, California, Hawaii, Oregon and Washington, the agency said.

The probability of a person infected with the HTLV-1 virus developing leukemia was between 2 percent and 5 percent and less than 5 percent for developing neurologic disease, Kaplan said.

ROME (DEC. 20) UPI - The European Community and 10 South American countries plus Mexico signed a ''Rome Declaration'' Thursday covering future political and economic cooperation between the two areas.

The document was signed at a daylong conference held at the Italo- Latin American Institute under the chairmanship of Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis, who until the end of December is also president of the European Community foreign ministers council.

Taking part were 11 foreign ministers from South American countries and Mexico mainly comprising the Rio Group formed by Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Venezuela, Paraguay, Uruguay, Bolivia and Ecuador.

The representatives of the 12-nation EC included seven foreign ministers and five undersecretaries of foreign affairs.

The Rome Declaration paralleled a Luxembourg Declaration signed between the EC and Central American countries in 1984.

Conference officials said it was designed largely to offset South American fears that EC concentration on helping the newly democratic countries of Eastern Europe would detract from Europe's interest in South America.

The Rome Declaration was preceded by an EC accord with Chile, which De Michelis said signalled the ''formal recognition'' of Chile's return to democracy.

The Declaration placed political dialogue between the EC and South American signatories on a formal basis, providing for full conferences once a year plus an annual meeting on the fringe of the U.N. General Assembly.

The next full meeting of the 23 ministers was set for April 26-27 in Luxembourg, which takes over the rotating six-month EC presidency on Jan. 1.

The accord provides for cooperation in broad sectors of economy and trade, in science and technology and also in battling drug production and distribution and terrorism.

The declaration also stresses the importance of the principles of democratic rights and respect for human rights and social justice.

It underlines the importance of promoting an open and more productive international economy, with particular attention to the interests of less developed countries.

The EC undertakes to cooperate with the efforts of the South American partners to achieve more modern economic structures and more efficient administration. The South American countries pledge to make every effort to solve the problem of their huge foreign debt.

NEW YORK (DEC. 20) UPI - Assets of the nation's 532 money market mutual funds rose by $856.2 million to $428.86 billion in the week ended Wednesday, according to the Investment Company Institute, a research arm of the U.S. mutual fund industry.

Elsewhere, two other financial reporting organizations said average yields on money-market mutual funds were lower, while deposit and lending rates at U.S. savings and loan institutions were mostly in decline.

The Investment Company Institute said broker-dealer fund assets declined by $19.1 million to $166.12 billion, assets of general purpose funds fell by $14.2 million to $150.64 billion, and institutional fund assets increased by $889.5 million to $112.10 billion.

"Continuing the pattern of recent weeks, assets of institutional money market funds continued to rise briskly, while the combined assets of general purpose and broker-dealer funds barely changed," said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist of the institute, located in Washington.

"Small and erratic changes in assets owned by individuals are rather typical for the pre-Christmas season," he said. "On the other hand, recent increases in institutional assets are not a seasonal phenomenon but rather a reflection of the desire by institutional investors to lock in the relatively attractive money market yields."

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said average seven-day simple yields were 7.17 percent, down from 7.22 percent, while 30-day simple yields were also lower at 7.23 percent, vs. 7.28 percent last week. The average maturity of fund portfolios fell to 52 days from 53 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor in North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money-market deposit accounts, 5.79 percent, down from 5.80 percent; Super-Now accounts, 4.93 percent, off from 4.94 percent; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.14 percent, down from 7.23 percent; 1-year CDs, 7.19 percent, down from 7.29 percent; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.31 percent, off from 7.39 percent; and five-year CDs, 7.53 percent, off from 7.62 percent.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 7.92 percent, unchanged from the previous week.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage was unchanged at 9.21 percent. The average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage moved up to 9.48 percent from 9.47 percent the previous week.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan fell to 12.26 percent from 12.27 percent the previous week.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (DEC. 20) UPI - The Yugoslav government Thursday temporarily banned state-operated banks from selling foreign currency to citizens except in special cases, and limited the amount Yugoslavs may carry abroad in German marks to about $700.

The order was forced by an unrelenting demand for foreign currency provoked by the nation's political crisis, said a statement issued after a session of the Cabinet of reformist Prime Minister Ante Markovic.

As a result, there has been a major drain of foreign cash from the problem-plagued, politically manipulated Yugoslav banking system, threatening the country's foreign exchange reserves, the statement said.

The reserves had been pegged at $9.5 billion in October, but this week were put at $8.2 billion.

''Noting that the political situation seriously endangers the banking system and erodes foreign currency reserves, the government has passed as temporary decisions ... regulations for easing the acute insolvency of banks and regulating the situation on the foreign currency market,'' the statement said.

It said the cash crunch was also the result of free-wheeling speculative foreign currency transactions by state-owned enterprises and citizens.

''The government assessed, especially negatively, an ever-growing number of speculative foreign currency transactions on the part of some economic organizations and citizens, as well as the transfer aboard of national capital '' the statement said.

It said that until the requisite economic reforms are enacted next year, the federal government is prohibiting Yugoslavia's state-operated banks from selling foreign exchange to citizens ''except in exceptional cases,'' which it did not define.

''At the same time, and also temporarily, it (the government) limited the transfer of foreign currency out of the country over the sum of 1, 000 German marks,'' the statement said.

In another temporary step, the National Bank of Yugoslavia, the country's central bank, will sell foreign currency to banks that have to make payments on foreign credits, the statement said. Safeguarding Yugoslavia's foreign reserves is crucial to the success of sweeping economic reforms implemented by Markovic in January as part of a program aimed at transforming Yugoslavia from 45 years of communism into a Western-style free-market democracy.

UNITED NATIONS (DEC. 20) UPI - The U.N. Security Council adopted unanimously Thursday a resolution deploring Israel's decision to deport Palestinians and calling for a meeting of the Geneva convention to draw up measures to protect inhabitants in Israeli-occupies West Bank and Gaza strip.

The resolution, which climaxed weeks of negotiation, did not, however, include a call for an international conference on Middle East peace. The council's president, Yemeni Ambassador Abdalla Al-Ashtal, urged a peace conference in a separate statement at the beginning of the council session.

The council adopted the resolution with a 15-0 vote.

The resolution deplored the Israeli decision to resume deportations of Palestinians suspected of inciting violent demonstrations in the West Bank and Gaza strip.

It asked Israel to accept the applicability of the fourth Geneva convention of 1949 and to apply its provisions to ''all the territories'' occupied since 1967. It said Jerusalem is part of the occupied territories.

Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar was asked to consult with the International Committee of the Red Cross to develop the idea of convening the 164 signatories of the Geneva convention and to discuss measures to protect Palestinians in the occupied territories.

The council asked Perez de Cuellar to ''monitor and observe'' the situation regarding Palestinian civilians and to use U.N. personnel in the occupied territories to carry out his assignment.

Perez de Cuellar said last month he would send his senior aide on Middle East affairs, Jean-Claude Aimee, to Israel to hold talks with Israeli officials on the Palestinian issue.

The U.N. leader was also invited by the Israeli government to visit that country in January.

Israeli ambassador to the United Nations Yoram Aridor rejected the resolution, calling it ''biased and unbalanced.''

''The millions slaughtered during the 41 years since the fourth Geneva convention was codified did not enjoy similar treatment by the council,'' Aridor said.

In Jerusalem, Israeli officials called the resolution one-sided.

''We express regret over the adoption of the resolution which lacks any balance and ignores the facts on the ground,'' said Avi Pazner, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's spokesman. ''For example, it does not mention that over the last few weeks no less than seven Jews were stabbed to death by Arab terrorists.''

Israel's Foreign Ministry said in a statement read on the evening Israel Television news program that it was dissatisfied by the ''one- sided decision, which is not calculated to promote a peace process or to bring about a relaxation of tension or to make negotiations possible, and instead which encourages aggression and violence.''

U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering complained that some elements were not included in the resolution.

''The council ought to be willing to say to the Palestinians that any use of violence to achieve their ends is plain wrong,'' Pickering said. ''We lament the continued violence, particularly in Israel, where innocent people have been the victims of numerous stabbings.''

But he said, ''Our vote today in no way indicates a change in the United States policy on any issue related to the Arab-Israeli conflict.''

Al-Ashtal's presidential statement said the Middle East conference should be held ''at an appropriate time, (and be) properly structured'' to bring a negotiated settlement to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

''However, the members of the council are of the view that there is not unanimity as to when would be the appropriate time for such a conference.''

''In the view of the members of the council, the Arab-Isaeli conflict is important and unique, and must be addressed independently, on its own merits '' it said.

Washington lately opposed the Middle East conference, fearing that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would exploit it to link withdrawal of his troops from Kuwait with the resolution of the Arab-Israeli issue.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Secretary of State Baker says he believes Soviet President Gorbachev when he says his nation's foreign policy will NOT change with the resignation of Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze . The resignation stunned the world this morning, and Baker says the Soviet leader's warning that the U-S-S-R is heading toward dictatorship must be taken seriously.

In Paris, the French foreign minister said the Shevardnadze resignation must be taken as what he termed ''a cry of alarm.'' And the German foreign minister told reporters that the West should read the action as a warning to give more support to reformers in the Soviet Union.

Shevardnadze announced his resignation to the Congress of People's Deputies meeting in Moscow, saying he was protesting conservative criticism of his work and warning the deputies that another dictatorship could be approaching. Shevardnadze later agreed to stay on for a transition period to a new foreign minister.

President-elect Lech Walesa is proposing retention of the old government of Poland until parliamentary elections next spring... or even postponing the elections for a year while a caretaker administration governs. Walesa is facing a growing governmental crisis in Warsaw and made his proposals in a statement distributed to Western news agencies.

President Bush told a congressional delegation today that he has ''crossed the Rubicon'' on the question of using force, if necessary, to drive Iraq out of Kuwait after the January 15th U-N deadline. But at the same time, the White House says Bush has NOT made a final decision on whether to send massive military forces into battle in the Persian Gulf.

Republican Representative Herbert Bateman of Virginia says the car he used to haul some fertilizer a few days ago set off a bomb scare at the White House today. A bomb-sniffing German shepherd dog raised a ruckus about Bateman's car when it was parked within the White House compound. Bateman referred to the alarm as ''great fun,'' but it resulted in a full traffic shutdown at the White House while a security officer searched the vehicle.

Parking in a spot reserved for handicapped drivers proved to be the downfall of a couple of drug-dealing suspects in Los Angeles. Authorities say the two were spotted in a handicapped slot last night. Officers found half-a-pound of marijuana in the car, then searched a nearby hotel room, finding a woman... 73-thousand dollars in cash... two more pounds of marijuana... five pounds of methamphetamine, and a loaded revolver. The woman also is being held.

(DEC. 20) - The Pentagon warned Thursday that U.S.-led forces could mount an attack against Iraq by Jan. 15 if necessary, and President Bush was quoted as saying that if he orders an offensive, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would get ''his ass kicked.''

Turkey, meanwhile, reportedly asked its NATO allies for reinforcements to guard against a possible strike by Iraq. Military sources say Iraqi troops have been sent to the Turkish border.

In Baghdad, Iraqi officials said they would prepare war by conducting test blackouts of the capital, air raid drills and a trial evacuation of a section of the city, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported.

U.S. officials addressed the question of U.S. readiness Thursday a day after a senior military leader said American forces would not be ready to fight for at least a month after the Jan. 15 U.N. deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait or face military force.

Lt. Gen. Calvin A.H. Waller, second in command of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, told reporters Wednesday that not all American forces in the region would be ready by Jan. 15.

At the Pentagon, spokesman Bob Hall danced around the readiness question Thursday, but noted air units both on land and on sea ''are clearly ready.''

''The general (Waller) was talking about the total package. That's different from being ready for offensive operations. We can do offensive operations now. The question is, would you want to?'' Hall said.

Hall said Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney, who is consulting with U. S. commanders in Saudi Arabia, would not reach any conclusions about readiness until his departure.

''We will obviously have added a good bit of offensive option by Jan. 15th,'' Hall said. ''When the whole package will be in place, all the different possibilities, all the different elements, I can't say. I just won't discuss that kind of complete picture in terms of timing.''

Bush told a group of congressmen Thursday the best way to avoid war with Iraq is for Saddam to realize he is ''going to get his ass kicked'' in an armed confrontation, said Rep. Elton Gallegly, R-Calif.

Rep. George ''Buddy'' Darden, D-Ga., reported that Bush also said he has ''crossed the Rubicon'' on using force as an option to drive Iraq from Kuwait, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president has not decided if military action will be necessary.

Fitzwater acknowledged that Bush told the lawmakers he had ''come to terms in his own mind on the use of force (as an option) a long time ago.''

Fitzwater also addressed the remarks made by Waller, saying with a smile, ''It never hurts to build a little uncertainty'' into the strategy.

''We think it's not necessarily bad to have a little mystery. We believe our forces are ready whenever they are called upon. They are ready now in terms of service and mission. They are ready for a test,'' said Fitzwater.

In Ankara, the official Houriyat newspaper said Turkey had asked NATO for 5,000 troops and 54 aircraft to guard its 125-mile border with Iraq. It said Turkish officials wanted to create a shield that would include 1,000 Turkish troops.

Turkey has been a staunch supporter of U.S.-led efforts to oust Iraq from Kuwait, cutting off a vital Iraqi oil pipeline that runs across its territory during the first days of the U.N.-imposed economic embargo against Baghdad.

In other developments Thursday:

-Iranian President President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani was quoted by the official Iranian news agency IRNA as saying the possiblity of war was high and there was ''little likelihood'' Iraq would leave Kuwait at the last minute.

TIRANA, Albania (DEC. 20) UPI - The widow of the architect of Communist Albania Thursday resigned as head of the nation's main Communist Party front organization in what appeared to be a move to allow fresh blood into the Marxist regime as it faces unprecedented political challenges.

Nexhmije Hoxha's position as head of the Democratic Front was taken by Adil Carcani, who tendered his immediate resignation as prime minister. No replacement was named by President Ramiz Alia.

In another development in the tiny Balkan nation's political crisis, members of the 9-day-old Democratic Party, its first legal opposition group, criticized the authorities' handling of anti-regime riots in major towns last week, accusing police in Elbasan of torturing demonstrators taken into custody.

Hoxha, 69, announcing her decision to resign in a speech to a meeting of the Democratic Front, said she would continue working for the good of the ruling Albanian Party of Labor. The front serves as an umbrella group for other party-affiliated organizations.

''What makes me withdraw today is age. I am nearly 70,'' Mrs. Hoxha said in her address, the text of which was carried by the official news agency.

She is the widow of Enver Hoxha, the hard-line Marxist who in 1944 established what was Europe's most repressive police state behind borders of minefields and barbed wire fences, leading it through self- imposed isolation until his death in 1985.

He was succeeded by Alia, who earlier this year implemented a program of gradual reforms that culminated last week in his agreement to permit independent political parties, which will be allowed to contest Feb. 23 elections for the national Parliament.

Alia also ousted seven anti-reform members of the party politburo, and although in her speech, Hoxha praised the president as ''far- sighted'' and pledged to support his program, she too has long been regarded as a doctrinaire Marxist opposed to altering her late husband's political legacy.

In her address, Mrs. Hoxha appeared to acknowlege the frustration and anger among the nation's youth with Marxism and Albania's dire economic problems, calling on the front to ensure that it remains in step with their aspirations.

''It is a natural right for the people, and especially the youth, to dream and aim for a better and more cultured life, to march ahead with the pace of time and the whole of mankind,'' she said. ''But the greatest misfortune for a nation, and moreover for a small nation such as ours, would be the division of the generations.''

Hoxha and Carcani, who also spoke to the meeting, both referred to the Nov. 15-16 riots, which erupted after anti-government demonstrations by workers, who apparently believed Alia's Dec. 10 decision to permit independent political parties signalled a willingness to tolerate dissent.

Carcani, regarded as an Alia loyalist, called the protesters ''hooligans ... who rightfully demand ... severe punishment.''

State-run Tirana Radio said 26 of a reported 172 people arrested in the violence had been sentenced to jail terms ranging from 11 years to 20 years.

Azem Hajdari, 28, a student leader of the Democratic Party detailed allegations of police torture, saying the parents of youths arrested in Elbasan told him their sons bore bruises and scars from beatings.

A newly formed human rights group of writers and academics planned to investigate the claims and review the regime's human rights record.

''A proper investigation into human rights has been coming,'' said Arben Puto, a university professor.

Albania has long been accused of severe human rights violations, but Alia pledged to observe international human rights accords as part of his reform effort. Estimates put the number of political prisoners at nearly 1,000.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (DEC. 20) UPI - Officials discounted threats by striking workers to shut off the country's communication system Thursday, saying strikers would have to break through police lines to succeed.

''The possibility that we will be without communication services is, I think, remote to impossible,'' said Ernesto Robleto, vice minister of Communications.

Police on Wednesday removed striking Sandinista telecommunication workers from government telephone buildings in Managua. The workers momentarily interrupted service, Robleto said.

Telecommunication workers in the capital were joining a strike begun 15 days ago by their counterparts in eastern Nicaragua to demand higher pay.

Some strike leaders have been arrested on charges of sabotage and threatening state security.

Telecommunication workers, affiliated with the main Sandinista labor union, cut off telephone service during similar strikes in July and September.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that the basic U.S. money supply, known as M1, rose $1.6 billion in the latest reporting week. The broader monetary aggregate M2 increased $8.3 billion, and the broadest measure of all, M3, gained $11.8 billion.

M1, including cash, checking accounts and NOW accounts - money available for immediate spending - increased to a seasonally adjusted average of $820.4 billion in the week ended Dec. 10, from a revised $818.8 billion the week before.

Over the past 13 weeks, M1 averaged $821.5 billion, up 4.2 percent from its average over the previous 13-week period, the central bank said.

The more broadly defined M2 averaged an estimated $3,318.0 billion in the latest week, ahead from a revised $3,309.7 billion. M2 includes M1 plus passbook savings, small time deposits such as money market deposit accounts, consumer money market mutual funds and other short-term assets.

M3, defined as M2 plus large time deposits, securities repurchase agreements longer than one day at banks and thrifts, and institutional money market funds averaged $4,087.2 billion in the latest week, up from a revised $4,075.4 billion, the Fed said.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 21) UPI - Home mortgage rates could fall to near 9 percent by next spring, their lowest level since early 1987, an economist with the Federal National Mortgage Association, known as Fannie Mae, said Thursday.

David W. Berson, chief economist, said the lower rates and an expected renewal of consumer confidence could begin to revive the single-family housing market beginning next summer.

Berson, who spoke at a year-end briefing on the housing industry, said interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages would decline to nearly 9 percent as a result of lower inflation and easing of monetary policy by the Federal Reserve Board.

Although home sales will remain sluggish through the first part of the year, Berson said he expects enough of an increase during second- half 1991 to bring total home sales close to this year's level.

He said, however, that starts of new housing units would continue to be weak, falling to 1.12 million units from 1.20 million units in 1990.

''The housing sector will have to see more homes being sold on a sustained basis before beginning new construction,'' he said. ''Stronger home sales in the second half of next year could lead to higher housing starts in 1992.''

Single-family mortgage originations should climb by more than 7 percent in 1991, Berson said.

''This rise, coming on the heels of an estimated 3 percent drop in 1990, will result from stronger home sales in the second half of the year and a faster pace of mortgage refinancings. Borrowers will take advantage of the lowest interest rates in four years,'' he said.

However, even if an industry recovery begins by mid-year, Berson said significant regional variations in housing markets would continue.

If consumer confidence does not rebound, or if depository institution lending is curtailed significantly, the current slowdown could be more prolonged and more pronounced.

Another Fannie Mae official said mortgage funds will be abundant for lenders and home buyers next year, despite the current difficult economic environment.

Fannie Mae is a congressionally chartered, shareholder-owned company and the nation's largest investor in home mortgages.

NEW YORK (DEC. 21) UPI - The Resolution Trust Corp., the financing vehicle for the savings and loan bailout, said Thursday it held its largest sale to date of mortgage-backed securities inherited from failed thrifts, moving investments worth an original $883 million out of government hands.

The RTC said the sale, involving 14 securities dealers, was of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. 9 percent securities with an original face value of $341 million and Government National Mortgage Association 8 1/2 percent securities for $542 million.

The RTC did not disclose actual receipts for the sale.

The sale was carried out by the RTC's capital markets branch, whose job is to dispose of financial assets inherited from failed thrifts. Since its creationlast March, the branch has disposed of some $16.8 billion in securities through sales, the RTC said.

The federally chartered RTC was created in August 1989 through congressional passage of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act, the formal name of the S&L bailout bill.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - The Bush administration, without required congressional approval, appears to be using anti-drug aid in South America as a cover to help fight rebel forces, a House panel charged Thursday.

The House Government Operations Committee concluded in a study that the administration's overall anti-drug strategy in Colombia, Bolivia and Peru is ineffective, misguided and dangerous and should be redirected.

In a scathing 102-page report, the panel said effective controls must be implemented to ensure that counter-narcotics assistance is not used to to help host nations battle insurgents.

It also recommended that the focus of the strategy be shifted from law enforcement to placing a greater emphasis on developing an alternative crop program for thousands of peasant farmers who now grow coca that is turned into cocaine.

The House committee oversees federal anti-drug efforts, which includes the administration's two-year-old, $261 million Andean Inititiative.

The strategy seeks to disrupt cocaine production and trafficking in Colombia, Bolivia and Peru through crop eradication, interdiction and law enforcement.

Members of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration are being used to help coordinate strikes against clandestine cocaine laboratories and coca fields.

''One of the committee's most significant and alarming findings is that our government might be giving drug aid as a smokescreen to block insurgencies,'' said committee chairman Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich.

''If the State Department wants to fight guerrillas, it knows how to come and ask for counter-insurgency funds. It is not our job to use our military might disguised as anti-drug assistance,'' Conyers said.

His panel concluded in its report, ''United States Anti-Narcotic Activities in the Andean Region,'' that the administration's strategy is hampered by poor management, coordination and oversight.

Virtually all of the world's cocaine is produced in Colombia, Peru and Bolivia. The United States is the biggest cocaine consumer.

Last February, President Bush and the leaders of the three other countries held an anti-drug summit in Cartagena, Columbia, where they vowed to increase joint efforts to combat narco-trafficers.

The House panel said, however, ''The single greatest obstactle to the operational effectiveness of Andean counter-narcotics efforts may be the lack of political will and or ability among the host countries.''

The panel also found that the administration's strategy ''reflects a largely military and law enforcement response to deep-rooted and diverse economic problems.''

Conyers said in a statement: ''My greatest concern is that we have non-military U.S. agencies and personnel conducting paramilitary activities, particularly in the Upper Huallaga Valley in Peru.''

He noted that on April 7, an estimated 200 guerrillas attacked the anti-drug police base at Peru's Santa Lucia. In an ensuing gun battle, U.S. pilots flew helicopter gunships and DEA agents returned automatic weapon fire.

''What are DEA agents doing coordinating the military operations of foreign troops?'' Conyers asked rhetorically. ''Clearly, we are overstepping our capacity as 'advisers.'''

There are four main rebel groups in Colombia, the biggest, is M-19 while the main insurgency in Peru is the Shining Path. There is no organized rebel group in Bolivia, but there has been mounting signs that one may soon be formed.

Conyers said, ''The State Department has told Congress that 'it is inevitable that counter-narcotics activities will at times require counter-insurgency efforts.'''

DETROIT (DEC. 21) UPI - At least 47,000 hourly workers at U.S. and Canadian assembly plants operated by General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. will have their holiday vacations extended into mid-January, those automakers said Thursday.

At least 18 of GM and Chrysler's North American vehicle assembly plants will remain closed following the holiday week in late December, as those automakers strive to keep inventories in line with slower sales into the new year.

A Ford Motor Co. spokeswoman said all of the No. 2 carmaker's North American plants would resume operation Jan. 2 with the exception of its St. Thomas, Ontario, plant, which will start building its all-new full- sized sedans in mid-January.

But Ford is expected to announce in early January several temporary plant closings as it too deals with a shortage of dealer orders.

The plant idlings at the nation's top carmakers come on top of widespread closures this month in efforts to trim stockpiles. At least 30 U.S. and Canadian plants have been or are currently shuttered, as automakers slash fourth quarter production dramatically.

Thousands of workers at component and supplier plants also feel the brunt of these closures, as they too are temporarily idled.

While information on GM's three Canadian car assembly locations was not immediately available, various GM divisions in the United States said at least 13 of its 34 North American assembly plants would be idled into the first two weeks of January. They include:

- Detroit Assembly (400 workers).

- Detroit/Hamtramck (2,900).

- Fairfax (Kansas City, Kan.) (3,000).

- Flint (Mich.) Truck (2,300).

- Fort Wayne (Ind.) Truck (2,600)

- Lansing B (Mich.) (3,600).

- Linden (N.J.) (1,900).

- Lordstown (Ohio) Van (1,200).

- North Tarrytown (N.Y.) (3,300).

- Oklahoma City (Okla.) (5,000).

- Pontiac (Mich.) East Truck (3,200)

- Van Nuys (Calif.) (3,300).

GM's Wilmington, Del., plant, which employs 3,400 workers, will be idled the week of Jan. 2 but resume operations Jan. 7, company spokesman Phil Workman said.

In the United States, Chrysler's Jeep plant in Toledo and its St. Louis No. 1 car plant in Fenton, Mo., will be idled the first three weeks of January to reduce unsold inventories. Toledo has 4,500 workers; St. Louis I has 1,600 workers.

Chrysler's Sterling Heights, Mich., assembly plant will remain closed until Jan. 28. That plant employs 2,300 workers.

In Canada, Chrysler will idle its Pillette Road large van plant in Windsor, Ontario, until Jan. 28. Its Brampton, Ontario Jeep plant will be idled the weeks of Jan. 14 and 21.

Pillette has 1,800 workers, while Brampton has 1,000 workers, company spokesman Walter McCall said.

VANCOUVER, Wash. (DEC. 20) UPI - Mount St. Helens erupted Thursday, sending a plume of ash 23,000 feet into the air in the third eruption of its kind in as many months.

The eruption occurred at 12:59 p.m., and the ash cloud that shot into the air could be seen for miles because of clear skies brought on by an arctic cold front hovering over the state, said Steven Brantley, of the U.S. Geological Survey's office in Vancouver, about 40 miles southwest of the mountain.

''I haven't heard of any reports of ash having reached the ground, but I can look out my window and see a long, thin cloud that probably originated at the mountain,'' Brantley said.

The University of Washington Geophysics Laboratory in Seattle, which maintains several monitors around the volcano, reported minor seismic activity - small earthquakes - around the mountain for at least two to three hours after the blast.

Scientists reported two other similar events in the past two months: one involving back-to-back eruptions Oct. 25 and 26, and an eruption Nov. 5 that sent an ash plume about 30,000 feet in the air.

The Federal Aviation Administration reported Thursday's ash plume reached about 23,000 feet, Brantley said.

Mount St. Helens exploded in a spectacular eruption May 18, 1980, destroying hundreds of square miles of forest, sending an ash plume around the world, and killing at least 36 people. Another 21 people were never found.

The 1980 eruption reduced the mountain from an elevation of 9,677 feet to its current height crater rim height of 8,363 feet.

WASHINGTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Pentagon officials Thursday lauded Japan's new five-year defense budget and said Japan, in additon to increasing its share of the defense burden, will be buying fancy U.S. weaponry.

While the defense budgets of other nations are shrinking, Japan's 1991-1995 budget will rise three percent and its plan includes the purchase of four U.S.-built AWACs radar surveillance planes, two additional cruisers equipped with the Aegis defense system and the introduction of the multiple launch rocket system.

The Pentagon said by 1995 Japan will be paying an additional $600 million a year toward the cost of keeping U.S. forces in Japan by assuming the cost of all utilities and labor.

The total savings to the United States will be $1.7 billion over the five years.

Japan, the department said, will be providing more than half the cost of maintaining U.S. forces there by fiscal 1995, up from the current figure of about 40 percent. If the salaries of the U.S. forces are excluded, Japan's contribution will amount to more than 70 percent of the cost of maintaining U.S. forces in Japan.

''This initiative on the part of Japan is very much welcomed and appreciated '' the agency said in a statement.

U.S. forces in Japan have a regional role, and many of the forces, including the USS Midway carrier battle group, are in Southwest Asia in support of Desert Shield.

SAN FRANCISCO (DEC. 20) UPI - The California Supreme Court Thursday agreed to tackle the constitutionality of college athlete drug testing under the nationwide random testing system adopted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Four justices, the minimum vote needed, agreed to take up the NCAA appeal seeking to reinstate the program declared an unconstitutional invasion of privacy under California's state constitution.

The NCAA has asked the court to outline the proper legal standard for determining whether a drug testing program violates California's constitutional privacy provisions.

The NCAA also maintains the state is excluded from passing on the legality of the testing program under the federal constitution's commerce clause.

The organization argues that under the California ruling it will have to abandon its nationwide testing plan or comply with the standards of the strictest state. It maintains that one state cannot dictate standards to 49 other states under federal constitutional guarantees.

A San Jose-based state appeal court declared the NCAA program illegal and forbid the NCAA from testing student athletes at Stanford University, where the lawsuit began.

The controvery erupted in January 1987 when Stanford University diver Simone LeVant challenged the right of the NCAA to test college divers who had no history of drug abuse.

A restraining order was issued against the NCAA. LeVant was allowed to compete in NCAA diving without testing.

LeVant dropped out of the case upon graduation but two other athletes, Jennifer Hill and J. Barry McKeever, joined the suit to challenge the testing.

The NCAA is a voluntary association that includes more than 1,000 colleges, universities and other educational institutions. It regulates intercollegiate athletics programs involving 295,000 student-athletes nationwide.

NCAA member institutions are required to follow organization guidelines, such as drug testing, or risk sanction that could mean exclusion from post-season competition and being banned from television.

The NCAA members voted in 1986 to adopt the comprehensive anti-drug program of random testing for 3,600 substances, including anabolic steroids, diuretics and stimulants such as a caffeine and street drugs.

In 1988, Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Conrad Rushing concluded there was no significant use of drugs by college students in conection with athletic events, and no evidence that the drugs being tested were used in the specified sports.

Rushing said the NCAA could not demonstrate a ''compelling interest'' to justify the testing program.

Rushing concluded there was no drug use in any sport except football, where only steroids are a problem.

In the first year of nationwide testing, no women tested positive for drug use in any sport. Only 1 percent of the male athletes tested positive, and almost all of them were football players who used steroids.

The NCAA called Rushing's ruling ''astonishing'' and ''myopic.''

Earlier this year, the 6th District Court of Appeal in San Jose upheld the Rushing decision invalidating the testing program.

PANAMA CITY, Panama (DEC. 20) UPI - Thousands of Panamanians dressed in black and shouting anti-American slogans marched through the capital Thursday to mark the first anniversary of the U.S. invasion that ousted former dictator Manuel Noriega.

''I am here to protest the crime committed by the North Americans against Panama,'' said Teodoro Frias, 39, a University of Panama professor. ''We are here to honor our martyrs who died on Dec. 20.''

The thousands of demonstrators marched from downtown Panama City to the El Chorrillo slum, which was destroyed during the invasion. They carried Panamanian flags and shouted ''Panama si, Yanquis no (Panama yes, Yankees no).''

In other protests to mark the invastion, demonstrators burned effigies of President Guillermo Endara and Noriega and held a candlelight vigil.

The Dec. 20, 1989, invasion ended 21 years of military rule as 25,000 U.S. troops swarmed into Panama, ousted Noriega and installed Endara's civilian government.

Endara, who was sworn in on a U.S. base as the invasion began, declared Thursday a ''National Day of Reflection'' and government offices were closed.

In El Chorrillo, residents hung black banners from their doors and lighted candles early Thursday morning. Candles and small fires burned on the vacant lot where Noriega's military headquarters once stood.

Relatives of the dead held a mass at the Jardin de Paz cemetery in Panama City where 123 Panamanians killed in the invasion were buried in a common grave.

The invasion caused more than $1 billion in damage, and left thousands homeless and more than 500 Panamanians dead. Twenty-three U.S. troops were killed in fighting.

Relatives of invasion victims also held a candlelight vigil before the dawn Thursday and called for a moment of silence at 12:45 a.m., the time the invasion began one year ago. Mourners sang the national anthem and burned the effigies of Endara and Noriega.

Some shouted, ''Down with the gringos.''

The Committee for the Rescue of Sovereignty, a coalition of opposition groups, organized the protest march Thursday afternoon.

''We are marching against the invasion, in remembrance of the martyrs who died on Dec. 20, and to protest the U.S. occupation of Panama,'' said Juan McKenzie one of the organizers.

About 10,000 U.S. troops are stationed at 10 U.S. military bases in Panama.

While most Panamanians celebrated the overthrow of Noriega, many are now disenchanted with Endara.

Endara is widely viewed as a weak leader. A police rebellion two weeks ago had to be put down by 500 U.S. troops while recent anti- government rallies have been broken up by riot police with teargas and shotguns.

Panamanians are also bitter over the U.S. response to the invasion. Just $108 million of a $461 million U.S. recovery aid package has been released. The U.S. government has refused to compensate for Panamanians killed or injured in the fighting.

Opposition legislators sponsored a bill to have Dec. 20 named a day of mourning but other lawmakers said Dec. 20 should be a day of celebration. To appease both sides, Endara declared Dec. 20 a ''National Day of Reflection.''

In a statement Wednesday, Endara said that while Panama did not ask for the invasion, the country now has a duty to preserve democracy.

''We must preserve our democracy ... We must take care of the seed that has been planted. It is the responsibility of everyone.''

BOSTON (DEC. 20) UPI - Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, the 1988 Democratic presidential nominee, said goodby to state government Thursday night with a warning that America has grown economically ''soft and flabby'' and must make tough decisions soon if it is to remain a first-rate world power.

In an address before a packed House chamber that focused more on national issues than on his 12 years as Massachusetts' chief executive, Dukakis said the nation must summon the strength to deal with problems that are eating away at its social and economic fabric.

In the aftermath of winning the Cold War, he said Americans should feel ''terrific'' about themselves and the fact emerging European democracies are looking to them for leadership.

''But we don't feel terrific,'' Dukakis said. ''On the contary, we seem to be having a collective political nervous breakdown in this country.

''We've begun to realize that a future that's built on a credit card just won't make it, that a morning in America that ignores our fundamental responsibilities to our children and to each other carries with it a colossal ten-year hangover.''

Dukakis said Americans are beginning to understand that ''indulging ourselves in a world of quick bucks and junk bonds and leveraged buyouts and savings and loan operators has left us soft and flabby and unable to deal with the toughness and competitive instincts of others.''

He called for action to improve the nation's rapidly deteriorating health care system, deal with the federal deficit, improve America's economic competitiveness with the Japanese and Germans, and clean up the environment.

Dukakis also said the United States must abandon an energy policy that has left it vulnerable.

''How long are we going to permit the Saddam Husseins of this world to hold us hostage to an energy policy that has totally failed to wean us away from our growing dependence on foreign oil and now threatens to engulf us in armed conflict all over the Middle East?'' he asked.

Dukakis blamed himself for failing to shape a national debate on such issues in his battle with George Bush and urged more substantive debate as the nation approaches the 1992 elections.

''I made a lot of mistakes in the 1988 campaign, but few were as bad as my failure to make the case for the kind of fundamental change that we, as a nation, must seek,'' he said.

Dukakis, who served 12 of the last 16 years as governor, leaves office with Massachusetts in a severe recession and the state facing its fourth straight deficit, even after more than $1 billion in cuts from its $13 billion budget.

He made no mention of another possible run for the presidency, but hinted he was still not ready to close the door on public life.

After a vacation in Hawaii and Australia, Dukakis said he and his wife, Kitty, will ''be anxious to continue to make a contribution to our state and to our country in whatever way seems best when we return.''

BAYPORT, N.Y. (DEC. 20) UPI - A nationally known surgeon confessed Thursday to killing his 47-year-old wife in their elegant home on Long Island's South Shore.

Dr. Robert Reza told Suffolk County police that he shot his wife, Marilyn, as she slept and then strangled her with a necktie.

The victim's body was found by police Dec. 12 in her bed while Dr. Reza was attending a medical conference in Washington.

Officer Mark Ryan, a police spokesman, said, ''During the initial investigation Dr. Reza told detectives he had gone to Washington, D.C., on Monday, Dec. 10 where he had remained until notified of his wife's death.

''As a matter of routine, detectives began verifying Dr. Reza's whereabouts,'' Ryan said. ''An investigation revealed Dr. Reza had returned to New York late in the evening of Dec. 11 and returned to Washington the morning of Dec. 12th.''

''With this information the investigation focused on him,'' said Ryan.

When confronted, he confessed to the killing, the spokesman said, and he ''provided police with an account of the murder.''

The spokesman said Dr. Reza told of speaking with his wife before they went to bed, waiting ''until she was asleep then shooting her - as she slept - with a .22-caliber rifle which he had recently acquired.

''He then strangled her with a necktie,'' said the spokesman. ''The motive remains unclear. However, police have learned of recent marital problems.''

The spokesman, who said he was at the scene when Reza returned home, said he believed the doctor had traveled by car from the nation's capital to carry out the killing.

Dr. Reza, a nationally prominent pulmonary disease expert who was a committee member of the National Institutes of Health, was attending a conference on tuberculosis in Washington when his wife's body was found.

The woman, a registered nurse and well-known member of the community, had last been seen alive by co-workers when she left the Patchogue office of her husband on Dec. 11.

When the woman failed to show up for work the next day, co-workers called her neighbor, a Nassau County policeman. Police then found the body.

The couple's two daughters, Joy, 20, a Columbia University student, and Kristen, 17, were not at home when the body was found.

Detectives were originally baffled by the crime, as there were no signs of forced entry into the house and the burglar alarm had been turned off.

After police discovered the killing, Dr. Reza returned to his Bayport home and issued a short statement to the media, saying, ''The family is in shock.''

Ryan said Dr. Reza was to be arraigned Dec. 21 in 1st District Court in Hauppauge.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned today, blasting his conservative critics and warning that a dictatorship may be returning to the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State Baker says the Shevardnadze resignation should NOT change Soviet foreign policy, but he also told reporters that the outgoing leader's warning should be taken seriously.

The Pentagon reported today that more than 280-thousand U-S troops are now in the Persian Gulf region. That total means the number of American soldiers in the region has climbed about 10-thousand in the past two days.

President Bush met with congressmen who just returned from the Mideast today and told them that the best hope for peace in the Persian Gulf is if Saddam Hussein realizes he will lose a war.

A federal appeals court in Atlanta ruled today that some Eastern Airlines pilots who were displaced by new hires during an eight-month strike last year are entitled to their jobs and should be reinstated. Eastern says the order affects about 200 pilots.

E-P-A Administrator William Reilly bowed to White House ojections and said he will withdraw a controversial plan that would have imposed major new recycling requirements on municipal trash incinerators.

About 200 demonstrators burned effigies of the Panamanian president and General Manuel Noriega today in a demonstration marking the first anniversary of the U-S invasion that dumped Noriega.

The Florida Supreme Court today upheld on a 4-3 vote the reimposition of the death sentence against a convicted killer whose first round of appeals resulted in an important legal precedent in death cases. James Ernest Hitchcock was re-sentenced to death in a new penalty hearing ordered by the U-S Supreme Court.

VANCOUVER, WASH. (DEC. 21) UPI - Mount St. Helens erupted Thursday, sending a plume of ash 23,000 feet into the air in the third eruption of its kind in as many months.

The eruption occurred at 12:59 p.m., and the ash cloud that shot into the air could be seen for miles because of clear skies brought on by an arctic cold front hovering over the state, said Steven Brantley, of the U.S. Geological Survey's office in Vancouver, about 40 miles southwest of the mountain.

''I haven't heard of any reports of ash having reached the ground, but I can look out my window and see a long, thin cloud that probably originated at the mountain,'' Brantley said.

The University of Washington Geophysics Laboratory in Seattle, which maintains several monitors around the volcano, reported minor seismic activity - small earthquakes - around the mountain for at least two to three hours after the blast.

United Airlines cancelled all incoming and outgoing flights at the Portland, Ore., airport Thursday night because of a company policy against flying in the vicinity of an erupting volcano.

United cancelled 13 inbound flights and eight outbound flights, including one from Chicago that was diverted to Seattle. The mountain is about 50 miles northeast of Portland.

No other airlines cancelled flights, according to a spokesman at the airport.

Scientists reported two other similar events in the past two months: one involving back-to-back eruptions Oct. 25 and 26, and an eruption Nov. 5 that sent an ash plume about 30,000 feet in the air.

The Federal Aviation Administration reported Thursday's ash plume reached about 23,000 feet, Brantley said.

Mount St. Helens exploded in a spectacular eruption May 18, 1980, destroying hundreds of square miles of forest, sending an ash plume around the world, and killing at least 36 people. Another 21 people were never found.

The 1980 eruption reduced the mountain from an elevation of 9,677 feet to its current height crater rim height of 8,363 feet.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Congressmen who met with President Bush at the White House today reported that the chief executive got blunt when discussing the best way to avoid a war in the Persian Gulf. They say Bush told them that the best chance for averting a Persian Gulf conflict is for Saddam Hussein to realize that if he takes on the U-S-led multi- national force that he's ''going to get his butt kicked.''

Secretary of State Baker says a warning from Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze about another dictatorship getting closer in the Soviet Union must be taken seriously. Shevardnadze issued his warning in a dramatic speech to the Congress of Peoples Deputies in Moscow in which he announced his resignation. Baker says he is proud to call Shevardnadze a ''friend.'' He also said he does NOT feel that the resignation will alter Soviet foreign policy.

The Organization for Economic Co-operation says the economic slowdown caused by the Persian Gulf crisis and accompanying oil price hikes can be beaten by the end of next year. But it says governments will have to fight inflation and reduce budget deficits in order to win the fight. But the Paris-based agency also warns in its bi-annual report that economic activity in the United States is certain to slow further and said the country will NOT be able to avoid a recession.

Eastern Airlines vows it will appeal a decision by the federal appeals court in Atlanta today that some pilots who were displaced by new hires during an eight-month strike last year are entitled to their jobs. The appeals court said the pilots should be reinstated. A union spokesman says the decision means about 800 jobs for the pilots, but an Eastern spokesman says the decision affects only about 200 pilots, who walked off their jobs in sympathy with a strike by machinists.

The shuttle Columbia's crew says the series of potentially crippling glitches did NOT change their view that the flight was ''immensely successful.'' They told reporters today at Cape Canaveral that they came back with what they called ''an incredible wealth of scientific data'' about the violent universe. They also said the flight demonstrated the value of men in space... that an unmanned mission probably could NOT have survived the problems they encountered.

The federal Centers for Disease Control says outbreaks of salmonella from eating contaminated eggs have spread across the country and now represent a major public health problem. In its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, the C-D-C said it had received reports of 49 outbreaks of salmonella from January through October of this year. Of that number, 22... or 45 percent... occurred outside the New England and Middle Atlantic states, where the problem had originally been confined.

(DEC. 20) UPI - The architect of the end of the Cold War, the fall of the Berlin Wall and the democratization process that swept Eastern Europe stunned the Soviet Union and the world today by announcing his resignation. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze resigned in protest of attacks on his work by conservatives and warned that they are working to restore a dictatorship in the Soviet Union.

Shevardnadze announced his resignation at the Congress of Peoples Deputies, which then voted 15-hundred consider. Gorbachev condemned his close ally's decision and said he had NOT been consulted. He called it ''unforgiveable'' but added that the two men had- quoting now- ''agreed to meet, sit down and discuss everything.''

Congressmen who met with President Bush at the White House says the chief executive has NOT made the final decision on the use of military force in the Persian Gulf but knows what it will take to avoid a fight. The congressmen say Bush told them that the best way to avoid war with Iraq is for Saddam Hussein to realize he is- quoting now- ''going to get his butt kicked.''

The Mount Vernon, Missouri, hospital where Nancy Cruzan is being allowed to die barred protesters today from holding a prayer vigil in its chapel and the Missouri Supreme Court rejected a request that her feeding tube be reinserted. A hospital spokeswoman said Cruzan's condition was still listed as ''deteriorating.'' The anti-abortion group ''Operation Rescue'' tried to arrange to use the hospital chapel 24 hours a day. But hospital officials refused because protesters earlier blocked corridors and had to be physically removed from the building.

Officials say the Air Force grounded its fleet of BB strategic bombers following an engine problem similar to one in which an engine dropped out of a bomber in flight. A Pentagon spokesman says the latest problem involved a fire in the right in-board engine. Although the plane has been grounded from making routine training flights until the problem is resolved, it is still on alert in case of war.

British Prime Minister John Major left London today for a two-day visit to the United States, where he will meet President Bush for the first time as the English leader. The brief, pre-Christmas visit is seen as an opportunity for the two leaders to get acquainted. The two men do not know each other well.

Researchers in Baltimore say people who drink only one cup of coffee or two cans of cola daily can experience caffeine withdrawal symptoms ranging from headaches to moodiness and nausea. Scientists have long recognized that heavy coffee drinkers are subject to withdrawal syptoms. But a new study has found unpleasant side effects when people with low- caffeine habits suddenly are denied the stimulant.

(DEC. 20) UPI - The surprise resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Shevardnadze has evoked an outpouring of personal praise from world leaders. Many view the move as a sign of growing crisis in the Soviet Union. The french foreign minister calls it a ''cry of alarm.''

Israeli officials are rejecting as ''biased and unbalanced'' the U-N Security Council's resolution today deploring Israel's decision to deport Palestinians suspected of inciting violent demonstrations in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Typhoon Ross is bearing down on Guam. The eye of the 500-mile-wide storm, packing sustained winds of 145 miles an hour, is expected to pass over the Pacific island at about midday tomorrow.

There was another minor earthquake in Indiana today... the second in a week. But there were NO reports of damage or injuries. The quake registered three-point-four on the Richter scale and was centered about 30 miles southwest of Indianapolis near Littlepoint.

Neither today's quake, nor Monday's quake occurred along the New Madrid fault system, which a New Mexico climatologist, Iben Browning, predicted would be the site of a major quake about December 3rd.

Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis said goodby to state government tonight. The 1988 Democratic presidential nominee left with a warning that America has grown economically ''soft and flabby'' and must make tough decisions soon to remain a first-rate world power.

Dukakis made NO mention of another possible run for the presidency, but hinted he's still NOT ready to close the door on public life. He was governor for 12 years.

(DEC. 20) UPI - Secretary of State Baker says the resignation of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze should NOT alter Soviet foreign policy. Pentagon officials are lauding Japan's new five-year defense budget. Officials say the Tokyo government NOT only will be increasing its share of the defense burden, but also will be buying fancy U-S weaponry. The Pentagon says by 1995 Japan will be paying an additional 600-Million dollars a year toward the cost of keeping U-S forces in Japan by assuming the cost of all utilities and labor.

A federal jury in Dallas today convicted former Vernon Savings and Loan owner Don Dixon on 23 charges of misusing thrift funds. The jury deliberated 11 days before returning a guilty verdict. Dixon showed little reaction to the verdict. Later Dixon told a reporter- quote- ''I've had better days.'' Most of the 23 counts related to a California beach home where Dixon used Vernon funds to host lavish parties with prostitutes. Vernon failed in 1987. Dixon could face a maximum of 120 years in prison and fines of more than a half-Million dollars when he's sentenced on February 19th.

A nationally known New York surgeon today confessed to killing his wife in their elegant Long Island home. Dr. Robert Reza told Suffolk County police that he shot his 47-year-old wife, Marilyn, as she slept and then strangled her with a necktie. The woman's body was found by police a week ago in her bed while Reza was attending a medical conference in Washington. The motive remains unclear.

The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Atlanta today released figures on the church's financial support of Vicki Long, the woman lay minister whose two-year affair brought down Archbishop Eugene Marino. The archdiocese says it spent more than 21-thousand dollars on Long, mostly for medical bills. Marinothe nation's first black Roman Catholic archbishop- resigned in July, citing physical ailments and his affair with Long.

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Reliance Steel & Aluminum Co. of Los Angeles has purchased the assets of the City of Industry and Phoenix facilities of Lusk Metals for an undisclosed sum.

The Lusk Divisions will be integrated into Bralco Metals, Los Angeles, and Bralco Metals, Phoenix.

In making the announcement, Reliance President Joe Crider said, ''The acquisition will broaden Bralco Metals' marketing base in both Los Angeles and Phoenix.''

Lusk Metals of Hayward was not part of the transaction and will continue to operate as a metal service center serving Northern California and Nevada.

Reliance Steel & Aluminum Co., founded in 1939, is one of the nation's largest independently owned full-line distributors and processors of metal. The 18 metal service centers of the expanded network are in California, Oregon, Arizona, Utah, Texas and New Mexico.

SAN DIEGO (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Ventura Software Inc., a Xerox company, announced Friday that it has begun shipment of Ventura Publisher, OS/2 Presentation Manager Edition, a new version of the company's desktop publishing software running under IBM Corp's OS/2 version 1.3 Presentation Manager operating environment.

Supporting Ventura Software Inc.'s multiple platform strategy, the availability of Ventura Publisher for the OS/2 operating environment rounds out the company's 1990 product offerings. Earlier this year, Ventura Software Inc. made desktop publishing solutions available for the Windows 3.0, Macintosh and DOS/GEM environments.

The new product will be distributed to major resellers nationwide, including Ingram Micro D of Santa Ana, Calif., Merisel of Inglewood, Calif., and Egghead Discount Software of Issaquah, Wash.

''This version of Ventura Publisher is targeted for desktop publishers who are standardizing on OS/2 and who want high-end workstation features at PC prices '' said Larry Gerhard, president and chief executive officer of Ventura Software Inc. ''The lower memory requirements of OS/2 version 1.3 have enabled us to take full advantage of the functionality inherent in the OS/2 operating system without sacrificing performance.''

Although redesigned to take advantage of the powerful OS/2 environment, Ventura Publisher, OS/2 Edition has maintained both the look and feel and features common to Ventura Publisher, Windows and DOS/GEM Editions. All three versions include capabilities found in Network Server and Professional Extension (previously available as separate products), new import filters, an improved HPGL converter and support for longer footnotes.

Ventura Publisher, OS/2 Edition combines the power of OS/2 with the advanced features of Ventura Publisher. It allows concurrent processing within a session so that more tasks can be accomplished in the same amount of time. The ability to run multiple simultaneous sessions of Ventura Publisher allows users to continue working while a document is printing. Virtual memory removes all practical limits on the size and complexity of documents which can be created.

Documents created in Ventura Publisher 1.1, 2.0 or 3.0 (Windows, Macintosh and DOS/GEM) are upwardly compatible in the OS/2 Edition.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Genentech Inc. Friday announced that it has received permission from the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market Actimmune (interferon gamma-1b) for the management of chronic granulomatous disease.

It is the third pharmaceutical product developed, produced and marketed by Genentech using recombinant DNA technology, and it is the company's second product designated as an Orphan Drug by the FDA.

''Interferon gamma's approval is a testament to the true spirit of the Orphan Drug Act, which is to develop new treatments for rare diseases,'' said G. Kirk Raab, president and chief executive officer of Genentech.

''Had it not been for the incentives provided by Congress, we could not have explored Actimmune's potential clinical application in chronic granulomatous disease patients.''

Chronic granulomatous disease is a rare, inherited disorder of the immune system which affects between 250 and 400 Americans. The disease is characterized by frequent and severe infections, caused by invading bacteria and fungi, which require hospitalization and may lead to death.

The only previously available treatment for this disease was frequent and high doses of antibiotics. A recently completed Phase III clinical trial showed that chronic granulomatous disease patients receiving Actimmune with antibiotic therapy had fewer and less severe serious infections and hospitalizations than chronic granulomatous disease patients receiving antibiotics alone.

''To the patients who have chronic granulomatous disease and their families who likewise suffer the stress and strain of this disease, having access to a drug that has the potential to reduce the severity of the disease's symptoms and restore them to a more normal day-to-day existence is a welcome respite,'' said Paul G. Quie, M.D., professor of pediatrics, Laboratory Medicine and Pathology, and Microbiology, University of Minnesota.

Interferon gamma is one of the body's proteins which is produced naturally by certain white blood cells to help reduce the frequency and severity of infections caused by invading bacteria or fungi. Since a component of the immune systems of patients with chronic granulomatous disease are dysfunctional, these patients have an impaired natural ability to defend against such infection.

Based on statistical projections, interferon gamma's immune modulating activity has been shown to be effective in these patients, with an estimated 77 percent of the 63 Actimmune treated patients reported free of serious chronic granulomatous disease-related infections one year after randomization, compared with an estimated 30 percent of the 65 patients receiving placebo.

These data and more will be reported in an article on the results of the study of interferon gamma in chronic granulomatous disease patients that has been submitted for publication in a national medical journal.

The FDA previously granted the company product licenses in 1985 for Protropin, human growth hormone, as a replacement therapy for growth hormone inadequacy in children, and in 1987 for Activase, t-PA (Alteplase), a blood clot-dissolving agent for the treatment of heart attacks.

Additionally, Genentech developed human insulin, licensed to and marketed by Eli Lily for the treatment of diabetes, and alfa interferon, licensed to and marketed by Hoffman-La Roche for the treatment of hairy cell leukemeia.

Genentech Inc. is a leading biotechnology company focusing on the development, manufacture and marketing of pharmaceuticals produced by recombinant DNA technology.

#90355b0031 12/21/1990 ~Business Wire

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Chronic granulomatous disease is a rare, inherited disorder in which the body's immune system does not function normally, and therefore is unable to fight certain bacterial or fungal infections.

It affects infants and young children; approximately 80 percent of the children diagnosed with chronic granulomatous disease have unusually frequent or severe infections before the second year of life. In some cases, the infections may retard normal development, or may lead to death.

Children with chronic granulomatous disease produce white blood cells which lack the ability to kill certain bacteria and fungal agents. All other components of their immune system function normally. White blood cells are the body's natural guards against invading harmful micro-organisms.

In healthy people, the white blood cells engulf and ingest the invaders, then undergo a series of complex metabolic changes to kill them. In patients with chronic granulomatous disease, the cells are either deficient in producing or do not produce the oxygen metabolites necessary to kill some species of bacteria or fungi, thus increasing their susceptibility to infections.

Current treatment for chronic granulomatous disease is prolonged administration of antibiotics. In a series of clinical studies, it has been shown that interferon gamma-1b stimulates the immune system, and in conjunction with antibiotic therapy, reduces the incidence of recurrent infections, such as aspergillis pneumonia, hepatic abscesses and skin infections, common to chronic granulomatous disease patients.

In September 1988, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) granted Genentech Orphan Drug designation for interferon gamma for the treatment of this rare disease. There are between 250 and 400 cases of chronic granulomatous disease in the United States.

The company filed a Product License Application with the FDA for Actimmune (interferon gamma-1b) on Dec. 20, 1989. The FDA granted a license on Dec. 20, 1990, to Genentech to market Actimmune for the management of chronic granulomatous disease.

FREMONT, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Safeway's Lucerne Egg Nog was judged the best egg nog by a panel commissioned by the "San Francisco Chronicle." The panel characterized Lucerne Egg Nog as thick, smooth and spicy with a nice aroma and a taste of nutmeg, a bit of rum flavoring and not overly sweet.

Panelists included Gerald Boyd, beverage editor for "Restaurant Hospitality" magazine and judge of numerous wine competitions; John Carroll, cook and food writer; Donna Katzl, chef/owner of Cafe For All Seasons, San Francisco and San Mateo; Roland Passot, chef/owner of La Folie restaurant, and Michael Podlin, general manager, Vivande Porta Via.

Lucerne was the favorite of all except one taster and received a score of 81 out of 100 points available. Other brands included in the taste test were: Classic Egg Nog, Altadena Egg Nog, Berkeley Farms Egg Nog, Lady Lee Egg Nog and Bud's Egg Nog.

Lucerne Egg Nog is produced locally by Safeway's milk plant in San Leandro. It is one of many products produced by the plant. Some other products that appear under the Lucerne brand name are milk, cottage cheese, yogurt, and sour cream. Safeway Inc. is the third largest grocery chain in the United States operating 876 stores, 220 in Northern California.

DALLAS (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - First RepublicBank Corp. (FRBC), IFRB Corp. (IFRB) and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) Friday announced that the FRBC Official Committee of Senior Unsecured Creditors, the IFRB Statutory Creditors' Committee, the estates and the FDIC finalized the terms of an agreement to settle all disputes. Earlier this month FRBC and IFRB announced they had reached a conceptual understanding with the FDIC to settle all disputes.

The agreement will result in a general release of all claims and lawsuits between the FDIC and the estates and a payment to the FDIC of $142.5 million from the assets of the two estates plus approximately $15.7 million that is related to a separate adversary proceeding involving the estates and the FDIC.

The agreement will require approval of the Bankruptcy Court and, with respect to some matters, the District Court. No assurance can be given that the agreement will be approved by the Bankruptcy Court and the District Court.

If the agreement is approved and the reorganization plans are implemented, approximately $275 million will be available in the FRBC estate and approximately $170 million will be available in the IFRB estate to satisfy creditors other than the FDIC. The amount of valid claims against each estate has not yet been determined.

The FDIC asserted a number of claims against FRBC and IFRB consisting both of claims arising out of the March 1988 assistance given by the FDIC and claims acquired by the FDIC as receiver of the failed First Republic banks.

FRBC and IFRB have disputed the FDIC's claims. In addition, the creditors of FRBC and IFRB filed a lawsuit against the FDIC related to the March 1988 assistance. The FDIC has disputed the allegations of the lawsuit. If approved, the agreement will resolve all of these claims and lawsuits.

The FRBC and IFRB plans of reorganization, which had been approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Steven A. Felsenthal in October 1990, have been stayed by U.S. District Court Judge Sydney A. Fitzwater pending an appeal by the FDIC. Under the terms of the reorganization plans, most distributions are to be withheld until resolution of the claims asserted by the FDIC against FRBC and IFRB.

KANSAS CITY, MO (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Friday announced significant rate reductions on international calling to 36 popular destinations.

The reductions were made as part of Sprint's new international calling plan, Sprint WORLD(sm).

The new calling plan offers simplified low flat rates to 36 major international destinations, available during discount, economy and weekend calling periods. Sprint WORLD, targeted to residential and small business customers, is available immediately.

Sprint WORLD customers can call more than 170 countries and territories around the world with special rates to 36 countries. These plan rates make it easier to understand and budget for international calling. Customers will be billed a low monthly fee of $3 for Sprint WORLD service. This fee will be waived for the first three months of service for those customers signing up before Feb. 28, 1991.

Sprint provides calling destinations around the world for its one $3 fee. Some competing calling plans charge additional fees for individual regions of the world, increasing the overall costs of their plans. US Sprint provides more discounted hours per week than competing plans, with up to an additional 10 hours per week.

Per minute rates vary from country to country. The following rates apply to discount, economy and weekend calls, for calls originating in the United States to one of the 36 countries:

Asia/Pacific, 79 cents

Europe, 59 cents

Canada, 17 cents

Mexico:

  Tijuana, Nuevo Laredo, 24 cents

  Monterrey, 44 cents

  Tampico, Durango, 69 cents

  Mexico City, Acapulco, Veracruz, Guadalajara, 89 cents

The Sprint WORLD plan is available with either Sprint's Dial-1 or Sprint Plus(sm) long distance services. With Sprint Plus, the customer receives five percent off standard period international calls, and calls to countries not covered by Sprint WORLD's special rates.

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company with $7.5 billion in revenues. US Sprint provides a comprehensive array of voice, data and video communications products and services on the only nationwide all-digital, all fiber-optic network.

TORONTO (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Central Crude Ltd. (VSE,TSE:CLC.) Friday reported the results of a limited exploration program conducted on its new gold discovery known as the ''P'' Zone on its Eagle River property in the Mishibishu Lake area, northwestern Ontario.

The ''P'' Zone is located approximately 800 feet south of the 2 zone which is east of the main Eagle River deposit.

The zone hosts significant gold with grab samples returning assays up to 10.6 oz Au/ton. Stripping and trenching has traced this faulted structure for about 1150 feet. The shear structure of the zone averages 16 feet in width with individual high grade quartz veins ranging from 1.6 to 6.5 feet. The most significant channel sample returned an assay of 0.41 oz Au/ton over 23.0 feet.

Four shallow drill holes were just completed on the zone in an attempt to define the strike and dip of the structure and mineralization. Two holes returned significant assays of 0.13 oz Au/ton across 15 feet including 0.53 oz Au/ton across 4.6 feet and 0.15 oz Au/ton across 9.8 feet including 0.43 Au/ton across 3.3 feet. Further drilling is required to trace this mineralization.

CARROLLTON, TX (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Westcott Communications Inc. (NASDAQ:WCTV) Friday announced that it has acquired American Heat Video Productions Inc. for an aggregate consideration of $3,124,500 payable in cash in exchange for 100 percent of the stock of American Heat Video Productions Inc. and non-competition agreements from American Heat Video Productions' shareholders.

WCI funded the acquisition through its existing bank lines.

American Heat, based in St. Louis, Mo., produces and distributes on a subscription basis training materials on video cassettes each month to over 2,200 fire departments throughout the United States.

American Heat's Pulse division distributes first call emergency training material on video cassette each quarter to over 800 subscribers.

American Heat's unaudited operating results reflect revenues of $2,392,000 and net income of $473,000 for the eleven months ended November 1990. WCI recently announced the formation of a television network to serve fire departments and emergency personnel via satellite.

Westcott said: ''The acquisition of American Heat will enable WCI to serve fire departments of all sizes and provide existing relationships with over 2,200 fire departments which will accelerate our entry into marketing WCI satellite-delivered services to fire departments. We are all looking forward to the contribution American Heat will bring to our efforts.''

LOS ANGELES (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - ARCO has signed preliminary agreements with two local governments in the Soviet Far East to explore, develop and produce hydrocarbons.

Protocols of Intent were signed last week by an ARCO subsidiary and the regional councils of Magadan and the Chukotka Autonomous Area.

The protocols provide for ARCO to negotiate with the regional councils to obtain exclusive rights for oil exploration and development both onshore and offshore. ARCO pledges to use state-of-the-art technologies to maximize hydrocarbon resources while minimizing environmental impacts.

Specific geographic areas for future work are to be identified in the process of negotiating a final agreement. The regional councils will assist ARCO in obtaining the required legal approvals of the governments of the Russian Federation and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

SANTA ANA, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Microsemi Corp. (NASDAQ:MSCC) Friday announced results for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1990.

Revenues decreased 14 percent to $88,882,000, down from $103,539,000 in the prior year. Net earnings decreased 38 percent from a net loss of $8,371,000 in fiscal year 1989 to a net loss of $11,548,000 in fiscal year 1990. Earnings per share decreased from a loss per share of $1.10 in fiscal year 1989 to a loss per share of $1.54 in fiscal year 1990.

Revenues in the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990 decreased 7 percent from $25,221,000 in fiscal year 1989 to $23,524,000 in fiscal year 1990. Net loss increased 22 percent from $9,421,000 a year ago to a net loss of $11,509,000 this quarter. Loss per share increased from $1.25 in the prior year to $1.54 per share in the fourth quarter of fiscal year 1990.

The fourth quarter fiscal year 1990 results were impacted adversely by several unusual items. The largest of these is the previously announced $11 million reserve to cover the losses and associated costs from disposition of troubled businesses.

Another is a $980,000 writedown of the company's investments in two non-affiliated electronics companies. The third item is a $869,000 reserve for certain notes receivable from an affiliated electronics company. The fourth item was a $658,000 writedown of certain specialized experimental test equipment. Additionally, the net tax benefit recorded in the fourth quarter was $600,000.

In commenting on the results for the year, Philip Frey Jr., chairman, chief executive officer and president, stated, ''Now that we have expanded the Plan of Disposition, we are committed to complete the plan in a timely and orderly sequence of events so that management can concentrate efforts on new opportunities which will be very challenging.''

Backlog now stands at $36.15 million, a decrease of 18 percent from the $44.2 million one year ago. However, after eliminating the backlog of companies planned for disposition from last year's figures, the current backlog is essentially unchanged from the prior year's.

Frey stated further, ''We are pleased with the quality and relative stability of our backlog which will be the foundation of our success in the '90s.''

Microsemi is a leading supplier of discrete power-related and other semiconductor products and assemblies for the electronics, computer, telecommunications, defense/aerospace and medical markets.

SAN JOSE, CA (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - David Anderson, 40, has been appointed senior vice president and chief financial officer of Pacific Western Bank and its holding company parent, Pacific Western Bancshares, Inc. (ASE:PWB), effective Jan. 1, 1991.

He is currently senior vice president and controller of Union Bank in Los Angeles.

As chief financial officer, Anderson will be responsible for all financial aspects of the company, as well as related activities, such as merger and acquisition projects.

Anderson who has been with Union Bank for 12 years where he held a number of positions in the finance department until named to his present position. Prior to joining Union Bank, he was a CPA at Peat, Marwick, Mitchell in Chicago. An accredited CPA, Anderson graduated from the University of Utah with a bachelor of science in accounting in 1972.

According to Phillip R. Boyce, chief executive officer of Pacific Western Bancshares, ''David Anderson's experience at Union Bank during its growth years (from a $2 billion asset institution to today's nearly $17 billion asset institution), adds considerable strength and support to Pacific Western as we continue to expand our presence as one of Northern California's major independent banks.''

Anderson replaces Eugene Blakeslee, 45, who announced his resignation earlier this week to pursue other interests.

Blakeslee, who joined Pacific Western as vice president and controller in 1979 had held the position of executive vice president, chief financial officer and treasurer since 1987.

Pacific Western Bancshares Inc. is a bank holding company.

Through its subsidiaries, the company offers trust and asset management services. The holding company's Pacific Western Bank has 28 locations in three counties servicing California's Santa Clara Valley and Monterey Bay area.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Partech Holdings Corp. (NASDAQ:APHC; BSE:PTH.B) Friday reported a net loss for the six months ended Oct. 31 of $662,853, or 11.2 cents per share, compared with net income of $921,605, or 16.9 cents per share, for the like period of the previous fiscal year.

The business of the company is devoted principally to the acquisition, management, financing, refinancing and sale of leased data processing and other capital equipment.

At the end of the previous fiscal year, the company had agreed to participate in a substantial number of lease transactions, many of which have been delayed or terminated due to domestic economic and international events not in the company's control. The general state of the domestic economy may continue to have an adverse effect on the company's fee income throughout the remainder of this fiscal year.

However, the company expects an increase in income from the sale and re-lease of existing equipment and from the sale and/or refinancing of existing lease revenue sharing agreements which, when completed, could equal or exceed any current year decline in commissions and fee income.

COLUMBUS, OH (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE - Fourth-quarter, fiscal 1990 reserves established for estimated losses for underperforming restaurants closed or anticipated to be closed significantly impacted Rax Restaurants Inc.'s (NASDAQ:RAXR) operating results for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 ended Oct. 29.

First-quarter revenues were $21,457,000 down nearly 22 percent from the $27,424,000 recorded during the first quarter of fiscal 1990. More than 80 percent, or $4.9 million, of this decrease was comprised of net sales excluded from first-quarter results because of reserves the company has established for restaurants closed or anticipated to be closed. These restaurants include 29 in Florida the company announced Nov. 7 it would close.

Rax's net loss for the first quarter was $1,586,000, or 23 cents per share, compared with $1,183,000, or 17 cents per share, for the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Current-year results reflect an approximately $400,000 one-time charge for severance pay and a charge of $248,000 for reserves arranged for past-due franchise royalties.

''To position Rax for long-term stability, we are considering and implementing various strategies to restructure our long-term debt,'' said Ira A. Hermann, president and chief executive officer. ''These strategies include negotiating with our vendors for reduced costs and negotiating with our lenders for favorable financial arrangements. In addition, the board has appointed a special committee to evaluate proposals for securing further capital to strengthen our long-term position.''

Company, comparable, per-restaurant average net sales decreased approximately 3.5 percent for the first quarter of fiscal 1991 compared with the first quarter of fiscal 1990. Softened sales, which began impacting Rax during the fourth quarter of the company's 1990 fiscal year, continued to negatively impact Rax. Some of Rax's softened sales are due to widespread discounting by competitors who are reacting to down industry sales. During the first quarter Rax introduced a Super Saver Menu featuring selected products priced at $1 or less, a discount strategy which already has positively impacted the company's traffic counts, Hermann said.

Restaurant operating profitability as a percentage of net sales increased from 7 percent to 9.6 percent on a 1st quarter-to-1st quarter comparison as a result of the closing of the Florida stores, negotiated savings in distribution and goods costs, reduced labor costs, and improved company restaurant operations.

Rax has undertaken significant efforts to lower expenses, with the intent to improve its long-term results. An approximately 25 percent reduction in corporate personnel in September is expected to result in future administrative cost savings of about $1 million annually, and a tentative agreement reached in November with the mortgage of its corporate office facility, which included a transfer of the facility to the lendor in consideration of a release for the mortgage loan and renegotiating a short-term lease, will save Rax more than $400,000 annually.

Rax Restaurants owns, operates, develops and franchises restaurants that feature a variety of specialty sandwiches and other fast foods. Rax has 110 company-owned and 284 franchised stores in 29 U.S. states and in Canada. Incorporated in 1977, the publicly held company is traded over-the-counter on the NASDAQ National Market System under the RAXR symbol.

VENTURA, CALIF. (DEC. 21) BUSINESS WIRE)--Benton Oil and Gas Co. (OTC:BNTN) Friday announced the acquisition of an additional 7.6 percent working interest in the West Cote Blanche Bay Field for approximately $5 million.

The company now controls a 26.7 percent working interest in the West Cote Blanche Bay Field. This acquisition was effective Oct. 1, 1990, for the purposes of allocating costs and revenues. The sellers were two private investment companies and certain of their affiliates.

''We are very pleased to acquire this additional interest in the West Cote Blanche Bay,'' said Alex Benton, president. ''We continue to believe that in addition to its considerable existing reserves, West Cote has significant upside potential in behind pipe oil and gas producing zones, shallow developmental oil drilling, and both shallow and deep exploratory and developmental gas drilling.

''Nineteen-ninety development programs consisting of shallow drilling and behind pipe recompletions have already made a major improvement in the daily production at West Cote. Similar programs are anticipated during each of the next several years.''

Including this additional acquisition, Benton's internal estimates of its total share of the existing reserves at West Cote are approximately 3.1 million barrels of oil and 1.4 billion cubic feet of natural gas.
